Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Expend-pect higher costs, larger quantities of anything than planned. Financial opportunities are all tied to long waiting periods.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): If it is worth while doing, it will have hindrances for you to cope with. Once you have gone forward, others will join in.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Have the judgment to leave the insoluble stand a while longer; work on what is feasible. Older people attract special complications.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A vexing failure of communication and co-operation is likely if you become impatient or aggressive. Don't act it all.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Too many cooks do not necessarily have to spoil the broth. Be cautious about your contribution to family welfare today.

Pain of Sciatica Comes from Spine

By G. C. THOSTESON MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What causes sciatica and what can be done to correct it? I have a severe pain from the right side of the pelvis down to the right knee. It started about seven months ago, and I have applied heat and hot baths but it still pains me.—E. P.

Sciatica gets its name from a nerve that runs down the back of each leg—the sciatic nerve. Chances are that applying heat to the place where you suffer the pain won't do a bit of good. Or will do very little. It may relieve tension and massage or such things on the leg won't do anything to help what has gone wrong in your back.

After seven months of that pain, I think your only wise course is to have your doctor (or perhaps an orthopedist) see what is bothering that nerve. Doubtless, he will want an x-ray of the spine.

Some sufferers unfortunately go on for years trying different home remedies that don't, really, have the faintest chance of succeeding. Liniment on the leg, where the hurt is, is putting the medicine in the wrong place.

Quite often patients with sciatica will have the pain when in one position, and not in another —the pain may come when they are lying down but not when standing up, or vice versa.

This can be a valuable clue. Some spot in the lumbar area of the spine exerts the pressure. If the pressure can be kept out of that position, the pressure is prevented. Hence back braces, or similar devices of one kind or another, can be very useful in preventing sciatica.

The important point, of course, is to discover which is the pressure position, and that is why x-rays are usually required for a successful attack on sciatica.

Opening lead — jack of spades.

Once upon a time, in the early days of contract bridge, there lived a man by the name of Samson Shmearcase. He was noted by none (particularly by himself) as the greatest bridge player who ever lived.

His exploits at the card table were simply phenomenal. Smother plays, double squeezes and trick grand coups were all this bridge fiend knew. As declarer, no hand that could be defeated was ever made.

The only trouble was that all these triumphs occurred only while Samson was asleep — dreaming. In real life he could not count to 13: he revoked as often as he followed suit; in fact he went down 4,600 points at three no-trump redoubled when he could have made the contract with three overtricks.

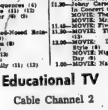
But once Samson entered the Land of Nod there was a complete and startling change of personality. He became a giant - killer, the sluggish mind vanished, and his thinking suddenly became clear and precise. His results were stupendous.

Here is a simple example of Samson's prowess. He held the East hand. Declarer won the spade lead with the ace, drew two rounds of trumps, then led the queen of diamonds and finessed.

Do you took the king and calmly played the only card in his hand that could beat the contract. He led the jack of clubs!

Declarer was now a deceased duck. Whether he covered or not, the defenders were bound to score three club tricks to put him down one.

But note that if Samson had made the more normal return of the three instead of the jack, South would have followed low and thus lost only two club tricks. Or had Samson led the ace, declarer would also have lost only two club tricks and made the contract.



Samson had triumphed Tomorrow: Bidding quiz.

British Industry World for Whites

LONDON (AP) — British industry is a white world where those of a different color have a long, hard climb to the top.

Discrimination is keeping non-whites on the factory floor, mainly handling the dirty, low-paid or dangerous jobs that whites don't want, say two reports.

But a cabinet minister has ordered that moves toward equal opportunity must be made.

The two examinations of the country's industrial setup priced Britain's racial conscience as problems in this field mounted with an influx of 28,000 Asian refugees from Uganda. They arrived here in a time of high unemployment —with almost a million out of work, including 72,000 non-whites.

The recently published results of a government survey reflected official anxiety that industry was doing little to promote integration at the work bench. A significant BBC television report followed.

The government survey was carried out in 1970, when Britain's non-white population totalled 1.37 million out of 56 million. The non-white community has since risen to 1½ million.

The survey of seven companies, ranging from engineering plants to chain food enterprises, was a follow-up to Britain's Race Relations Act which outlawed discrimination on grounds of race or color.

The employment ministry said several of the firms it polled had defied "intimidation" from some employers against promoting non-whites to senior posts.

But a ministry spokesman said the survey was aimed at "prodding management to take positivesteps to ensure equal opportunities."

Robin Chichester-Clark, the department's minister of state, said: "Increasingly it becomes clear the major obstacle is not active, blatant discrimination, but the passive ofttin unthinking, accept ance of unequal conditions by both management and workers."

The survey said there was cautious optimism that things were getting better.

But the BBC broadcast, one day after the survey was published, said non-whites were still being handed only the unwanted jobs.

The BBC said some trade unions refused to accept non-whites, especially among the skilled textile and steel workers of Britain's industrial north, where some trades are jealously guarded and handed down from father to son.

The Trades Union Congress, umbrella organization for Britain's 10 million organized workers, said its policy is "to recruit as many people as possible, including non-whites, into trade unions."

But a spokesman, while refusing to comment on the BBC's allegations, stressed: "We cannot order unions to accept non-whites."

The government survey said many non-whites who were suitable for promotion never got the chance because middle management was afraid to be "the first to break the ice" and risk clashes with white employees.

Yet, the survey emphasized, a poll of 280 white workers in the seven firms "suggested there might be less resistance on the shop floor than was feared."

Some firms claimed to have made major efforts to promote non-whites, but said they found many immigrants lacking in educational qualifications, experience and alien adaptability.

Toronto Is Called Bank Fraud Capital

TORONTO (CP) — Michael Ballard has made an addition to Toronto's ever-growing list of distinctions; he calls the city the bank fraud capital of Canada.

Mr. Ballard, who recently became the first director of security for the Canadian Bankers' Association, also has something to say about Montreal—"It's the bank hold-up capital of Canada."

But unlike Toronto, the situation in Montreal has "vastly improved," he says.

The one-time Montreal policeman said in an interview that the incidence of bank holdups in Montreal has dropped 35 per cent since 1971.

Toronto, however, is another story. Mr. Ballard suspects the "bank inspector fraud" is native to Toronto and is continuing to flourish.

This is the fraud in which the criminal, posing as a bank inspector, asks a victim to withdraw his or her savings in order to assist in a supposed bank "investigation."

Mr. Ballard says the average loss is between $1,500 and $2,000 and the victims, "without exception, are elderly and senile."

The 33-year-old director, who took his new position after a 13-year stint with the Montreal police force, says the fraud is pulled 20 to 30 times a year in Toronto and the criminals are hard to track down because the victims usually make poor witnesses.

He says bank hold-ups have slowed down but bank fraud crime, including counterfeit and stolen cheques and customer impersonation, keep growing at an "alarming rate."

More than half the bank fraud cases involve forged endorsements on cheques and forged signatures on customer's account, Mr. Ballard said. That is the reason more customers are being asked to sign their cheques in the presence of tellers.

Such losses amount to about $3 million annually in Canada, well ahead of robbery losses.

Mr. Ballard's job is to set up better communications between the bank and security forces and the various police forces in Canada, improving security measures and ensuring preventive procedures are explained to bank personnel.

Complaints On Prices Give Alarm

HAMILTON, Bermuda (Reuter) — Tourists' complaints about high prices are causing concern in this little British colony.

The island's only daily newspaper, The Royal Gazette, warned that the island resort must charge its millionaire playground image and begin catering to middle class package tour visitors if it is to survive against fierce overseas competition.

The department of tourism issued hitherto confidential statistical evidence showing that 91 per cent of all visitors in 1971 considered Bermuda the best possible place for a vacation.

Three per cent were dissatisfied, but of these only one per cent blamed high costs. Six per cent thought some other places were as good.

So far in 1972, the survey showed that of 160 foreign visitors questioned at random, only 13 complained of the cost of accommodation, one about the high cost of restaurant meals, and two about the prices in the shops.

Last summer, the percentage dissatisfied because of the cost of accommodation was only 7.6 per cent.

Pakistan Pegs Hopes To Cotton and Textiles

TEHRAN, Iran (CP) — Having lost its jute trade in losing Bangladesh, Pakistan is pegging its export hopes to cotton and textiles, and the prospects are not altogether dim.

Spurred by necessity, a vigorous export drive has enabled the Pakistanis to build up a foreign currency reserve of about $300 million after finding themselves scraping the bottom of their coffeer following last December's war.

Devaluation of the rupee last May, under pressure from the World Bank, played a part in boosting the sale of Pakistani goods abroad. The state bank of Pakistan no es that the value of exports has picked up to about 41 per cent above normal.

Before Bangladesh was created out of East Pakistan, West Pakistan—now Pakistan used to sell about 40 per c e n t of its manufactured goods there. What has happened, in effect, is that a good part of what used to be sold for rupees now is being sold externally for hard currencies.

In fact, the West Pakistanis had begun diverting their East Pakistan exports to the international market as early as the beginning of 1971, because of turmoil in the rebellious este.

Several reports including that from the state bank show s t a g n a t i o n in economic growth during the last two years. There are no indications that things are going to be much better for the current 1972-73 year.

Unemployment is reported as 33 per cent of the 4.3 million labor force.

Inflation is rampant, intensified because of the war and currency devaluation, and in turn higher prices are causing press for higher wages.

Under those gloomy conditions, investment has gone into a steady decline.

It certainly was not encouraged by new President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto's takeover of 10 basic industries after the war, though Bhutto has been trying to regain investor confidence by denying that the Pakistan People's Party has Marxist leanings or that it did any more than take over management rather than ownership.

The government also has been at pains to point out that it still follows the mixed economy s y s t e m though—after tough measures against the country's wealthiest families —it will be some time before the private sector begins to trust him again.

As if these problems were not enough, Bhutto also has inherited a foreign debt of $4 billion from the previous two military regimes, and a debt-servicing liability of $270 million a year.

The Western countries have given him some breathing space by postponing debt charges for a few years. China has written off a $107 million debt.

But sources of additional financial assistance from the outside have dried up.

Out of now, the only source of hard currency earnings seems to be trade, which brought in $685 million last year. Since hard currencies are needed for development projects, the country has been forced to freeze luxury imports including such items as automobiles, transistor radios and tape recorders.

Pakistan therefore is currently a bad market for foreign sellers and may remain so for some time.

To add to the problems, the government is being forced to import $80 million worth of wheat this year, to meet a shortage caused by two consecutive droughts and a severe winter which delayed sowing in the third year.

Long-term planning has been suspended and Pakistan currently is working on a one-year plan aimed at reviving the economy.

When long-term planning is resumed, there is likely to be a radical change in the strategy of the planners.

While the mixed-economy system may remain, there should be a shift from capital-intensive development projects which require large doses of hard-currency loans from abroad, to labor-intensive schemes.

Like China, Pakistan has plenty of labor but a scarcity of capital least, the Pakistans may turn to the Chinese pattern in future.

Pop Package

LONDON (CP) — Secretary Diana Hart has no intention of letting American pop singer David Cassidy forget his London fans. She has sent him a giant fan letter—measuring five feet by two—full of letters from ardent British fans. The post office has welcomed the giant delivery. "It will be much easier than sorting out hundreds of ordinary letters to Mr. Cassidy," a spokesman said.

New Roman Gods Found

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Two previously unknown R o m a n gods—perhaps the centre of a fertility cult—have been discovered by an archeology expedition in western Turkey, a Harvard University professor said.

A stone inscription describing the gods was found with a seventh-century lime kiln which may have been used to melt the gods' statues, he said.

The gods, named Abundance and Growth, are believed to be children of the Roman corn goddess.

The director of the joint Harvard-Cornell University expedition, Harvard professor George Hanfmann, theorized that a fertility cult existed around the worship of these deities.

It is presumed he cult was built around food," Hanfmann said in an interview. "These were not bloody gods and there were no animal sacrifices. The gods were probably offered the first fruits of harvest—vegetables, corn and other grain—in a ceremony sort of like our Thanksgiving."

The find was made this summer in a gymnasium at Sardis, a city destroyed by the Persians in the seventh century. The site has been under excavation since 1958.

The inscription said the statues of the gods had been given to the city's gymnasium by a wealthy Roman in the third century AD to insure the prosperity of the city and the suburbs of Sardis.

Hanfmann said archaeologists found the lime kiln within a few feet of the statue base. Hetherized that statues of the gods and other figures in the gymnasium hall probably were melted down.

1972 Proved Good For Astronomers

CAMBRIDGE, England (CP) — Radio astronomers in Britain are going to look back on 1972 as one of the best years since the subject started seriously 20 years ago.

Early in the year Sir Martin Ryle received the title of Astronomer Royal in recognition of his distinguished services to British astronomy. Within the last few weeks a powerful new radio telescope has come into operation at Cambridge and this will maintain Britain's worldwide lead in certain aspects of the subject.

Finally, there was some excitement about the discovery of a new radio star by a Canadian research group in September. Both the Jodrell Bank and Cambridge telescopes have made an indispensable contribution in observing this nine-day wonder in the heavens.

The investigation of high-energy processes in galaxies that are up to 10 billion light years from earth is one of the greatest challenges of 20th-century physics. Scientists are puzzled by quasars and radio galaxies: How do they manage to sustain their prodigious emission of radio signals over millions of years.

One precondition to answering this question is a series of first-rate maps of the radio structures that quasars and Radio telescopes have to be large to compete with optical instruments.

It is impossible to build a radio telescope three miles in diameter as a single instrument but Sir Martin Ryle's group at Cambridge has spent 20 years perfecting a technique known as aperture synthesis by which a large dish can be built up from an array of smaller ones.

In aperture synthesis, the radio signals from space are collected by pairs of aerials for many days. By means of a large computer all this data can be processed in such a way that the information of corresponds to that picked up by a giant telescope.

Thus a huge telescope can be constructed in the mind of the computer: a graph plotter can be attached so that the radio images of galaxies which the computer brain builds up can be drawn out.

On Oct. 17 Sir Alan Hodgkin, president of the Royal Society, opened a new synthesis telescope known as the Five-Kilometre instrument at Cambridge. The $5-million instrument consists of eight interlinked dishes that can be steered to any point in the sky. Stretched across three miles of open country, the eight dishes form the largest telescope of this type in the world.

Each day 16 concentric rings of information can be fed into a computer at the observatory, making it possible to draw the radio structures of seven sources each week.

Observations now are well under way with the telescope, and the first results have already been published. One map shows a radio galaxy known as 3C 295; this object is five billion light years from earth, farther than any other galaxy. Its radio picture shows two enormous clouds that have been thrown out of the optical galaxy and now are colliding with material in the depths of the universe.

The new facility was ready for action when a new radio star burst on the scene at the beginning of September. Astronomers at the University of Toronto found that an x-ray star known as Cygnus X-3 had increased, its radio emission by 1,000 times in only three days, to become the third brightest object in the sky at radio wavelengths.

This is the most dramatic outburst ever witnessed by radio astronomers and the British groups wasted no time in getting all their telescopes trained on it.

At Cambridge and Jodrell Bank groups watched the radio flare climb to a peak and then set into a steady decline.

By Sept. 12 it was all over as far as the observers were concerned. However, the Cambridge group continued to keep watch and their diligence was rewarded Sept. 18 when observations registered a 45-per-cent increase in only three hours here was a new outburst beginning.

Soon the intensity rose and the second flare eventually outpaced the first in terms of brightness at its peak.

Jodrell Bank scientists recently gave an interpretation of the Cygnus X-3 outburst at a meeting in London. They believe that some tragedy has overtaken the star and caused it to throw a vast cloud of high energy matter into space.

This enigmatic x-ray star certainly is a member of our own Milky Way system and the Cambridge group fix it at between 28 and 60 thousand light years from our solar system, with a diameter for the radio cloud of 20 billion miles.

With the new telescope they have pinpointed the position in the sky far more accurately than any other telescope is capable of—and this will assist efforts to match the radio source with an optically visible star.

Receives Award

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — A Barrie truck driver was presented with a certificate of merit from the Canada Safety Council and Dunlop of Canada recently. The truck driver deliberately drove his truck into the path of a runaway car, saving the only occupant—a three-year-old boy—from serious injury.

Money Germs

ROME (AP) — Nearly half Italy's paper money and 13 per cent of its coins are covered with germs, a government scientist said. He added, however, that the contamination presented no real danger.

Murders Up

HONG KONG (AP) — The annual number of murders in Hong Kong topped the 100 mark for the first time, rising from 98 in 1971 to 101 in 1972 to near the end of November, police said. Suspects have been arrested and charged in only 56 of the killings.

UN Will Help

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The United Nations ducational, Scientific and Cultural Organization plans to help Mexico restore ancient frescoes in a Mayan temple near the Guatemalan border, Mexico's deputy education minister announced.

Cracked Hinges

HALIFAX (CP) — A Canadian Forces squadron, based near Dartmouth, N.S., resumed operations recently after being grounded following a discovery of cracks in the elevator hinges of some planes. The hinges are part of a system used to bank the planes. A spokesman said the cause of the cracks had not been determined.

No-Accident Record

EDMONTON (CP) — Twenty-two drivers with Canadian Freightways Ltd. drove one million miles without an accident in less than 10 months, a safety record unsurpassed in the company's 37-year history in Western Canada. Art Strasdiat, senior line dispatch operator for Canadian Freightways, says the million miles was accumulated between Dec. 29, 1971, and Oct. 21.

Saigon Overhauls Tax System

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnam's tax structure is in the throes of a major overhaul, with government officials hoping new reforms will raise more revenue, curb corruption—and make the country less dependent on foreign aid.

President Nguyen Van Thieu already has signed one new tax law. Finance Minister Ha Xuan Trung expects six other measures to be signed before Thieu's six-month emergency powers are scheduled to run out at the year-end.

"I think this will be a change of the greatest magnitude you will ever see in any country of the world as far as tax affairs are concerned," said Nguyen Trong Hien, assistant to the finance minister.

"They've taken the right track," said a U.S. official. "It's a good program and they're good people. I guess the first thing you have to appreciate is the mess the tax system is in—it's antiquated."

One big question mark is what will happen to the proposed tax reforms in the event of a ceasefire.

"I'm not going to say it won't have any effect," Hien said. "We are going under the assumption that whatever happens, we have to collect taxes and carry out other programs toward economic development regardless of whether peace comes tomorrow or five years from now."

American sources were less optimistic.

"It could be tough," said one official.

Payment of taxes has been haphazard in South Vietnam—many collectors take payoffs.

"The tax administration up to two or three years ago was seriously understaffed and quite ridden with corruption," one source said. "The result was a very low level of collections. In this country collections average five per cent of gross national product, which is quite low for a developing country. It should be about 15 per cent."

Trung, a 36-year-old economist, said collection procedures have been tightened and more collectors hired, and hoped there will be less opportunity for corruption.

Officials said the country's tax take was up 45 per cent during the first nine months of 1972, compared with last year, despite a lower economy for six of those months. They called this evidence of improved administration.

But continuation of his anti-corruption campaign" may be contingent, in part, on continuation of a system of bonus payments for tax collectors. Under this system, which is part of the proposed 1973 budget, tax collecors receive a percentage of the collections.

Dallas Called Capital Of Corporal Punishment

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — A law group which calls Dallas "the corporal punishment capital of the country" is trying to change the city's school board policy of paddling pupils as a disciplinary measure.

Carole Duncan, secretary-treasurer of the newly-formed National Committee to Abolish Corporal Punishment in Schools, recently told the board it ought to do so voluntarily because: "It is only a matter of time before corporal punishment will be ended because of federal decisions involve a disproportionate number of minority pupils and parental permission is not always sought.

"Statistics indicate that, when black children attended black schools in black communities with black personnel, they were not subjected to excessive punishments," she told the school board. Mrs. Duncan is white.

Dallas school superintendent Nolan Estes has disclosed there were 24,306 paddling cases in Dallas during the 1971-72 academic year.

This was almost four times more than in the 1970-71 school year. Estes attributed the increase to what he called general unrest resulting from school desegregation.

"We don't think we ought to paddle," Estes conceded, "but until there is a utopian society we will use it as a method of discipline. It is a last resort."

Estes also said he would resign rather than head a school system where such punishment was banned.

School policy in Dallas is that only the school principal or his immediate deputy may paddle a child without prior consent from the parents. A teacher must first go through a hearing process with the pupil and then have permission from the parents to paddle the child.

Mrs. Duncan claims that Estes's figure of 24,306 does not reflect the true number of cases. She also says that paddling is "It is a tragic admission of racial misunderstanding to acknowledge that integration of blacks into white schools has served to bring about increased physical assaults on black school children," she said.

Although paddlings in Dallas schools are supposed to take place in the privacy of the principal's office, it is claimed by parents that many actually take place in hallways or in front of the class.

Many U.S. Residents Moslems

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Five times a day Beverly Spears, a 51-year-old mother of two, spreads her dark red prayer rug on the floor of her suburban Indianapolis home. Then while kneeling with her forehead sometimes dropping to the rug, she recites in Arabic the prayers of the Moslem religion.

Melvin Walker, 41, working in Manhattan skyscraper, can scarcely unroll a prayer rug on the office floor—it would create too much of a scene even in cosmopolitan New York. But sitting at his desk, Walker bows his head in prayer at the times required by his religion. Later at his apartment, he prostrates himself on a prayer rug before Allah, just like millions of other Moslems around the world.

In Virginia, Todd G. Level, 17, a high school pupil in Charlottsville, often ends telephone conversations by wishing the "peace of Allah" on the other party.

Mrs. Spears, Walker and Level are all converts to the Moslem religion. They claim their new faith can also satisfy other Americans disillusioned by their own church or who are attracted to the "Jesus freak" movement or to Buddhist or Hindu cults.

"We have been having people come to Islam in small numbers, but the numbers have been increasing," says Muhammed Abdul Rauf, the director of the Islamic Centre in Washington, D.C., which has the country's biggest mosque.

Rauf says there are no figures on the number of converts in this country. So far, he adds, most of them have been blacks; many converted to Islam as part of their emphasis on civil rights, with a feeling they are "reverting to the religion of their ancestors."

But increasing numbers of whites are also converting with "no other motive apparently behind it except that they are coming to seek the truth," says Rauf.

Mrs. Spears, who dresses stylishly and speaks in a soft Kentucky accent, says she was raised an Episcopalian (Anglican). But after a trip to Pakistan—where most of the people are Moslems—she began reading more and more about the religion and eventually converted.

"There was (in Pakistan) a certain peace you don't find in the United States or Europe," she recalls. "I now feel I've found that inner peace."

Federal Works Plan Said Late

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Provincial governments heaved a sigh of relief Wednesday when the federal government announced a $500-million winter works program that could possibly create 100,000 jobs this winter.

Those provinces depending largely on federal initiative in winter works welcomed the news, but complained that action came too late in the year for effective utilization.

Premier Allan Blakeney of Saskatchewan said: "You'd think someone would have explained that winter comes early in the West."

Finance Minister John Crosbie of Newfoundland said provincial finance ministers made it clear earlier this year they would have liked a decision on the scope of any federal program by September.

Ontario announced its own $50 million winter works plan last Thursday, coupling it with criticism of the federal government for failing to bring in a program first.

Ontario Treasurer Charles MacNaughton said he had received details of the federal plan only Tuesday morning "in a telex about a mile long."

"I would be premature if I tried to give a full analysis of it today."

Alberta has also announced a $12-million expenditure on its priority employment program on Nova Scotia earlier this week outlined a $2.3-million provincially funded winter works scheme.

Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island both rely on federal winter employment programs such as on-job training and local initiatives programs.

Premiers Robert Bourassa of Quebec and Richard Hatfield of New Brunswick had said they were awaiting details on the federal works plan before deciding on what supplementary employment assistance was necessary.

Among the provinces there was favorable comment on a new aspect of the federal program—a three-year $500 million provincial-municipal works fund. Expenditures this winter would amount to between $50 million and $100 million for loans and grants to municipalities to finance capital projects.

Premier Blakeney said the long-term nature of the fund is useful because if gives Saskatchewan municipalities time to plan for the next two years. Saskatchewan had introduced a provincial program in September and about 250 municipal-provincial projects are already approved.

Bert Hohol, Alberta labor minister, said the government will have to study the payment system before deciding whether to avail itself of the loan fund.

He said he gets "frustrated as hell" when he hears about such federal announcements because "Ottawa always making big announcements involving lots of money . . . but it never has any plans."

There had been no prior communication with Ottawa about the program and he did not know what benefit Alberta would receive.

In announcing Ontario's $50 million program last week, Provincial Treasurer Charles MacNaughton criticized the federal government for not announcing a comprehensive works plan with "the prospect of continuing high unemployment."

Provinces had been left with the impression they would have to rely on existing local initiative and Canada Manpower training programs.

Although the Ottawa announcement came late in the season, Mr. Crosbie said Newfoundland views this year's federal program as better than the one in effect last winter. It was obvious, he said, that the federal government "had listened to some of the provincial objections and suggestions."

Extradition Treaty Draft Is Rejected

OTTAWA (CP) — Cuba has in effect rejected a Canadian draft proposal for a new extradition treaty between the two countries to cover explicitly the crime of hijacking, it was learned Wednesday.

Instead, it has proposed a document described as being shorter and simpler than the Canadian draft and more along the lines of an arrangement currently under negotiation between Cuba and the United States.

Canadian officials were reported studying the new document, given to Canadian Ambassador Ken Brown by Cuban Foreign Minister Raul Ros in Havana earlier this month.

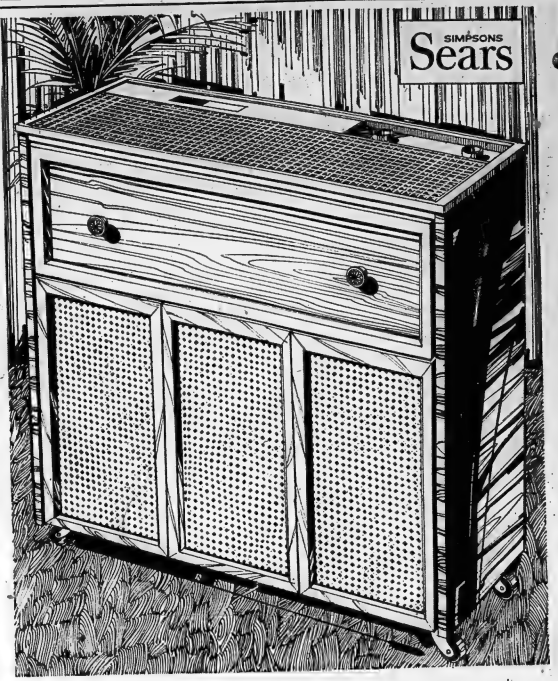
If they think it offers the basis of an agreement, an external affairs department delegation may go to Havana to negotiate directly with Cuban officials.

Cuba Expects Higher Sugar Sales to Canada

MONTREAL (CP) — Cuba hopes to increase its ... sales to Canada by 130,000 tons annually in obtaining a ... preferential Canadian tariffs for Commonwealth countries and South Africa, a Cuban government official said Wednesday.

Raul Leon, deputy minister of external commerce, has been talking to Canadian federal government officials for the last week about reducing the export-import trade imbalance between the two countries.

'Virtually Useless' Is PC Appraisal



OTTAWA (CP) — Progressive Conservative spokesmen said Wednesday the new $325-million winter work plans announced by the Liberal government are too late to be effective this year.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield told a news conference he has always favored a winter-works scheme. While the new plan was better late than never, it was difficult to understand the mentality of the government in introducing the plan in December, he said.

Lincoln Alexander, Conservative manpower critic, said it was difficult to see how provinces and municipalities could take advantage of the plan. The program would fail to make any real impact on the unemployment problem this year.

Mr. Alexander said for the plans to be effective they should have been put into effect in the fall. The government's program would be virtually useless.

7 Hijackers Killed In Gun Fight in Air

Grenade Blows Hole in Plane

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (Reuter) — Six hijackers died and a seventh was fatally wounded in a gun battle with security guards today as a crippled Ethiopian airliner plunged earthwards with a hole torn in its side by a hijacker's grenade. The Boeing 707 was able to land safely, however.

One of the dead sky pirates was a woman—killed as she threw herself across the body of a male accomplice, apparently to shield him from security guards' bullets.

An official statement from Ethiopian Airlines said two security guards and four passengers, including an American professor, were injured by grenade fragments. Earlier reports had put the injured toll at nine—seven passengers and two stewardesses—in the battle between the seven hijackers and security men shortly after the plane took off from Addis Ababa for Paris.

"All the would-be hijackers were killed by security inspectors during the ensuing shooting started by the hijackers," the airline statement said.

Six of the hijackers died aboard the plane. The seventh, injured during the shootout, died in hospital.

One of the passengers injured in the blast, Temple University Prof. Roderich Hilsinger, possibly saved the lives of many passengers by grabbing the grenade and throwing it into an unoccupied corner of the plane after a wounded hijacker pulled the pin and dropped it in the aisle.

The blast shook the plane, carrying about 100 persons, and it began plunging downwards before the pilot could regain control. It landed safely at Addis Ababa a few minutes later.

It was about 10 minutes out when a man suddenly appeared at the division between the first class and the economy seats with a pistol and grenade. Prof. Richard Wylie, 30, also of Temple University in Philadelphia, said, Wylie quoted the man as saying: "This is a hijack, stay in your seats."

"Dr. Hilsinger and I were sitting in the most forward seats of the economy class and the man was standing right beside us," Wylie said.

"No sooner had he said it was a hijacking, when one of the security guards opened fire and wounded the man. He staggered but managed to pull the pin from the grenade which he dropped right at the feet of Dr. Hilsinger, who had the aisle seat.

"Dr. Hilsinger immediately picked up the grenade and threw it into the opposite corner where the seats were unoccupied.

"It exploded there, tearing a great hole in the plane's side. Dr. Hilsinger took most of the force of the explosion, receiving shrapnel wounds in the face, shoulders and ankles.

"It was an extremely brave act by Dr. Hilsinger to throw the grenade away and probably saved many people from injury."

"The next 2 minutes were an absolute nightmare." Wylie added. "Bullets were flying everywhere as the hijackers fought it out with the security men.

"The plane was full of smoke and when the grenade exploded, the plane dropped like a stone and we thought that this was the end.

"But the pilot managed to get control again and we landed safely at Addis Ababa a few minutes later. It was a fine bit of piloting and the Ethiopian security guards did a marvelous job of work."

The seven hijackers were understood to be Ethiopians from the northern province of Eritrea, a former Italian colony. The largely Moslem area, with a population of two million, was handed to predominantly Christian Ethiopia by the United Nations after the Second World War.

A number of previous hijackings involving Ethiopian aircraft have been staged by members of the Eritrean Liberation Front (ELF), a guerrilla organization which seeks to break away from the central government.

When Hilsinger, 40, hurled the grenade into a row of unoccupied seats opposite him, the man armed with a gun and grenade fell to the ground. A woman hijacker flung herself on top of him in an apparent attempt to shield him from the bullets of the security guards. She died in her attempt.

The hijackers were doted about the economy class seats but none of them managed to get into the cockpit. An Ethiopian Airlines international flights the cockpit section is always sealed off.

Ulster Killer-hunters Quickly Put to Work

BELFAST (AP)— Northern Ireland's Murder Task Force, formed two days ago to trap the faceless assassins who have slain more than 100 persons this year, began hunting today the men who brutally killed a leading Protestant militant.

The bonded body of Ernest Duke Elliott, 28, was found with what police described as "terrible head injuries" and bullet wounds in the back of a panel truck in Belfast Thursday.

The paramilitary Ulster Defence Association—the powerful answer of Protestant extremists to the Roman Catholic-based Irish Republican Army—said Elliott was a lieutenant-colonel in its ranks.

As such he probably was the most politically-important victim in the 107-name-long list of sectarian assassinations. It was believed to be the first case of a UDA murder and definitely the first of a man of such prominence.

Elliott, an unemployed building worker, was married and used to head UDA activities in a teeming working class district just off the staunchly-Protestant Shankill Road in Belfast.

The Murder Task Force was on the scene within minutes. The force, composed of military and civilian police, was created by British administrator William Whitelow to halt what he called "murder madness" in Ulster.

Truman Improves

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Doctors reported some improvement in the critical condition of former President Truman and his daughter said she hoped "he will be able to come home in the near future".

Doctors at Kansas City's Research Hospital and Medical Centre, however, continue to list the 88-year-old former president's condition as critical. They declined to speculate if or when he might come off the critical list.

Veteran's Widow to Return Medals After Son Is Jailed

HAMILTON (CP) — A Hamilton woman said Thursday she is returning her late husband's war medals to the federal veterans affairs department—because her 17-year-old son was arrested for wearing one of them on the street.

"If my son can't wear the medals they are of no use to me," said Helen Penfold. "They're all going back as soon as the last one is returned from the police."

Judge Walter Tuchbie fined Kim Penfold $50 or 10 days on the rare charge of unlawfully wearing a service medal. A veteran's complained to police of youth's arrest.

In addition, the youth received 10 days in jail for not appearing in court at an earlier date when the charge was first laid.

John Beckett, a Hamilton lawyer, paid Penfold's $50 fine Wednesday so that he would not have to spend the extra 10 days in jail. He already had served 10 days.

"It's appalling when a boy is arrested for wearing a medal in memory of his father," Mr. Beckett said. "Others, especially motorcycle gangs, are allowed to wear swastikas and such."

The lawyer warned war widows or mothers who wear medals on Remembrance Day that they are subject to the same penalties as her son. The law states that only veterans who earned the medals may wear them.

Apollo Flight Smooth

HOUSTON (AP) — Apollo 17, operating smoothly though slightly off course, passed the midway point in its voyage to the moon today and a rocket firing was scheduled to put the spacecraft on target for lunar orbit.

Astronauts Eugene Cernan, Ronald Evans and Dr. Harrison Schmitt were in their rest period as they passed the milestone—232,000 miles from both earth and moon—early today.

Apollo 17's command ship, America, and lunar module, Challenger, still linked nose-to-nose, were streaking on a collision course with the moon.

But ground controllers said a small rocket thrust of about one second would change the flight path enough to bring the spacecraft into the proper position on Sunday to settle it into lunar orbit.

Mission Control said the off-course flight path was caused by an excess of rocket thrust Thursday morning when Apollo 17 was fired out of earth orbit and started its 66-hour coast to the moon.

News Briefs

Blast Kills Two

MUIDEN (Reuter) — Two persons were killed and at least 15 were injured by an explosion at Holland's main explosives factory today. Thousands of windows in Muiden, near Amsterdam, were shattered by the blast and many people were injured by flying glass. Three of the injured were in serious condition.

Meningitis Fatal

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The Kingston area health unit is fighting a possible spread of meningitis after a school student at a township school died of the disease Sunday. The medical officer of health, Dr. Richard Kelly, said he has "taken the necessary steps" for prevention of the disease. The doctor who treated the girl said no one knows where the disease originated or whether there is a person carrying the disease.

To Give Subsidy Facts

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Ontario municipalities may be helped in devising their individual budgets by having earlier information on what provincial subsidies they can expect. The provincial management board soon will be able to tell municipalities what the financial restrictions and limitations will be before municipalities shape their budget, Walter Q. MacNee, deputy minister of natural resources, said Thursday.

Death Toll Reduced

TORONTO (CP) — At the close of Safe Driving Week at midnight Thursday, at least 12 Canadians had died on the nation's highways. It was the lowest death total for Safe Driving Week since 1968 and 16 fewer than the seven-day total for 1971.

Price Rise May Slow

TORONTO (CP) — The executive vice-president of Steinberg's Ltd. of Montreal says food prices will not rise as sharply as they did in 1972. H. Arnold Steinberg told the University of Toronto's business outlook forum that food sales in Canada were up nine per cent this year from 1971, with about five per cent of this representing price increases.

Recognition Likely

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Thursday Canada likely will extend official diplomatic recognition to East Germany once a treaty of recognition is signed by east and West Germany.

The main issue at the referendum was removal from the 1937 constitution of a clause recognizing the "special position" of the Catholic Church in the life of the republic.

Lynch hoped that a massive "Yes" vote would show Protestants in Northern Ireland that the predominantly Catholic republic was ready to make concessions to achieve unity.

Kissinger Visits Pompidou

PARIS (Reuter) — U.S. presidential adviser Henry Kissinger called on French President Georges Pompidou at the Elysee Palace today shortly before he was due to resume Vietnam peace negotiations with North American officials.

The meeting with Pompidou was not announced in advance and even presidential aides could not immediately give a reason for it.

The meeting was believed to have taken place at the request of Kissinger, who talked with top advisers before seeing Pompidou.

Mailmen Walk Out In Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — About 800 postal workers walked off the job early today in Toronto city's main delivery building and at four postal stations in Scarborough and one in Downsview district of Metropolitan Toronto.

The wildcat walkouts were in protest against slow progress in negotiations at Ottawa for a new agreement between the post office and its unions.

Postal officials here planned to seek a court injunction today to get the dissidents back to work. A walkout of Toronto mail truck drivers in November was ended by a temporary injunction from Mr. Justice Lawrence Pennell of the Ontario Supreme Court, and the post office may go before him again on three hours' notice.

At the downtown delivery office, where more than 300 handlers and sorters walked out, delivery men remained on duty and were expected to take out mail that ordered Thursday and was sorted. But about 500,000 pieces for northwest Toronto remained unprocessed. Today's arriving mail was not being handled.

English Liberals Get Surprise Win

LONDON (CP) — The minority Liberal party rejoiced today over a byelection victory which has caused a sensation in the world of British politics.

The Thursday triumph is being described as "astonishing" and "staggering" by national newspapers and even Lord Carrington, chairman of the governing Conservative party, conceded that the Liberal achievement in the south London suburban riding of Sutton and Cheam was remarkable.

The Tories, who had previously held the seat, were hit by an adverse voting swing of 22 per cent as 29-year-old Graham Tope, gearing his campaign to a variety of local issues, piled up a Liberal plurality of 7,417 in a five-way field.

But the Conservatives were compensated for their Sutton setback by victory in a second Thursday byelection, which saw them holding back a much-vaunted challenge from the main opposition Labor party.

The Tories retained Uxbridge, another constituency in the south London suburbs, and thus rounded out a disastrous electoral day for Labor.

Irish Vote 5 to 1 to End Catholic Church's Special Role

DUBLIN (Reuter) — Early vote counts in the Irish republic's referendum on changing the status of the Roman Catholic Church said giving votes to 18-year-olds showed a five-to-one majority in favor.

But apathy on the part of the 1.8-million electorate brought only a 50-per-cent turnout in Thursday's poll, a bitter blow to Prime Minister Jack Lynch's hopes of proving to Northern Ireland Protestants that the people of the republic are ready to compromise to achieve unity.

Board and Consultant at Odds

By KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

A representative of a consulting firm hired to prepare the Belleville section of the Quinte Official Plan told Alderman Arnold Orr his criticism of the consultants had been "in bad taste."

Roger Truemner of Totten Sims Hubicki Associates went on to tell last night's Quinte Planning Board meeting his company has had a problem with the QPB staff.

"The staff are at odds with us," he said, "it is basically a matter of philosophy and approach."

Such important divergence of view relater to the fact Quinte Planning Board staff "would like more analysis and substantiation" to back up chapters of the Belleville plan being drafted by the firm, the consultant disclosed.

Ald. Orr has expressed concern at the last board meeting Oct. 26 that consultants may be failing behind schedule.

During yesterday's QPB meeting, Mr. Truemner said he had been "disturbed" by Ald. Orr's statements about the consultants that he read in The Intelligencer.

The consultant indicated his problems are not only with QPB staff but with the board too. "It is a matter of understanding between consultant and client," he said.

As far as the time being taken to complete the plan is concerned, Mr. Truemner explained when the schedule for the job was prepared "I had only just joined the firm and I did not know how long it would take.

"Consultants are only human," he added.

Ald. Orr replied, "this schedule was not our schedule."

Continuing with his presentation, Mr. Truemner said "we have different thoughts—sometimes quite different — with your planning staff."

Frank Stikmans, deputy director of QPB, told the board 20 pages of questions and comments were sent to Totten Sims Hubicki "but we haven't had satisfactory answers since May.

"We should have answers," he said, adding the would not recommend the board accept the study until it has them.

Mr. Stikmans wants the designated use of lands based on land needs "data but says Mr. Truemner "we do not want a pat systematic approach to land use allocation."

The deputy director asked the board why the QPB staff's view should be wrong after seven years' experience, while the consultant has had one year involved with Quinte planning. He said director Bert Kenny also feels reasons for land use allocation should be specified.

Ald. Orr disclosed that the provincial - municipal liaison committee "is also anxious to get some answers."

Mr. Truemner told the alderman "if you want to leave us alone, we will do it." However, he warned "it is only within our budget to answer so many questions."

The consultant said "I cannot promise we can give you satisfactory answers to some of your questions."

Another meeting, with another representative of the firm will be held by the planning board Dec. 21 at city hall.

Farms Fewer, Larger

Farms are getting fewer and larger in Hastings County.

This has been indicated for some years but it is all confirmed in the Statistics Canada report of the 1971 census listing the number of farms in the 10 provinces.

The report lists the number of farms of one acre or more with annual sales of $50 or more, and also the number of farms reporting 1970 sales of more than $5,000.

According to the report, there were 1,911 farms in Hastings in 1971 as compared with 2,272 in 1966. Farms with sales of $5,000 and more totalled an even 700 as compared with 647 back in 1966.

The trend was the same in Lennox and Addington, in Northumberland a nd Prince Edward County as well as for the province as a whole.

In Prince Edward the total number of farms dropped from 1,220 in 1966 to 1,003 l a s t year, while in the same period the number of farms with sales of $5,000 rose from 485 to 499.

On the other hand, Sidney has the greatest farm total (276) with a combined acreage of 47,423 — down more than 6,000 acres from 1966.

Thurlow has a farm total of 223 with total acreage of 41,898, and 97 farms having sales of $5,000 or more with a total acreage of 27,010.

The number of larger farms in Hungerford at 65 was down one from the previous census while total farms were down to 216 from 250.

Huntingdon was listed as having a farm total of 156 and 72 farms in the $5,000 sales bracket.

Politicians, Newsmen Bad Election Guessers

Hot on the heels of the municipal election comes the naming of Belleville's top political pundits — the people most expert at predicting election results.

This year's winners were announced today by Ernest Kneisel, chairman of business at Loyalist College and conductor of the unofficial pundit's poll.

Before each of the last three municipal elections, Mr. Kneisel has conducted his personal search for the best political prognosticators in the city and district.

Politicians and newsmen finished low in the list of 23 people participating in the poll.

The winner this year, with a score of 369 out of a possible 425 was J. W. Jenkins. Close on his heels, with a score of 368 was John Patterson, head of the drafting department of the Regional Assessment Office in Trenton.

Mr. Patterson come out on top for consistency — he was first three years ago and a close second this year.

Third, with a score of 364 is Doreen Greer, a secretary.

Mr. Kneisel invited a cross section of the community to participate — teachers, liquor salesmen, housewives, guards and radio and television personnel. They were asked to guess the outcome of the mayoralty and aldermanic races, irrespective of their personal favorites.

Dave Sovereign, news director of radio station CJBQ, was half way down the list of expert guessers. He came 11th. Top politician in the poll, in 12th place was newly elected member f parliament, for Hastings, Jack Ellis.

The weakest experts were wide of the mark on the mayoralty race. They gave Dr. J. Russell Scott the lead, with only 40 per cent predicting a win for Robin Jeffrey.

Help Fund Is Just That

Last week a mother on welfare had to move her family of four to a new residence. But she had no money to hire a moving van and no way to get her furniture to the new premises.

At the same time the owner of a small truck was off work with a broken leg. The two got together. The trucker picked up a little supplementary income to help him over his period of unemployment and the mother and her children were moved to their new location.

The agency that matched and her children were moved to their new location.

The agency that matched the two needs and picked up the tab for the moving expenses was the Quinte Help Fund.

The lottery is now in its sixth month of distributing charitable funds to those in need in the community, both individuals and organizations.

Quinte Help Fund tries to plug the gaps left by social agencies and out-red tape to aid those needing it. If it can't cut the red tape it can't aid the individual over until the agencies have untangled the situation.

"We don't get involved in social work," says Albert Lenkel, chairman of the fund. "But we do a lot of counselling."

People applying for aid at the fund's headquarters at 46 Bridge St. East are advised about the help available to them from established agencies in the community, and how to go about getting it.

Why a second charitable lottery in the city?

"It creates an involvement for the people who work on it," says Mr. Lenkel. "It creates excitement for those who buy the tickets and it helps the unfortunate."

The fund is administered by 17 men, and new workers would be welcomed by the company. United Community Service's social planning group acts as the advisory committee for the fund.

Since the fund began, it has supplied senior citizens with eyeglasses, equipped people to go to school, supplied food vouchers, arranged taxis to take patients to and from the hospital for therapy and found jobs for some who have applied for help.

The fund has given $75 to the Belleville Firefighters for their Christmas toy project, has supported the Santa Claus Parade and the Red Cross. It bought an exercise bicycle for the Quinte Athletic Club and an adding machine for the Cancer Society. It contributes $10 a game to the Quinte Sports Foundation to buy admission tickets for youngsters left hanging around outside the arena after the game has begun. It also buys fuel for elderly people.

The next draw in the lottery will be Dec. 23, for two prizes of $1,000 cash. Before that date there will be six early bird draws of $100 each. Sellers of winning tickets will share $225 in prize money.

Regular date for the draw is the 25th of each month, except, for obvious reasons, December.

Plans Take Shape For Anniversary

PICTON (Staff) — The Church of St. Mary Magdalene in Picton will celebrate its 150th anniversary in 1973.

This event has been marked with a sketch of the church drawn by Milford artist William Kettlewell. Programs, basty notes and calendars of events are decorated with this sketch which depicts the exterior of the building. Anniversary plates showing the church also will be made as mementoes of this special year in the history of the church.

Miss Constance Wilcox of Picton is now compiling information for an Anglican Church book to mark the 150th anniversary of the church. She is enlisting the aid of the general public in securing a copy of a photograph of the laying of the corner stone of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Picton.

Arts Extravaganza Plans Firming

A meeting last month has rekindled excitement about next summer's proposed arts extravaganza, It's Your Bag.

Three executive members from the Quinte Arts Council, along with Mrs. Wilma Summers of the Belleville Recreation Department, travelled to Hamilton Nov. 22 for a discussion with representatives of the Hamilton and Region Arts Council. The Hamilton organization staged an it's Your Bag in the steel city last year and attracted 150,000 persons.

Since then, the Belleville group has been itching to get things under way here. They broached the idea to other QAC members at an executive meeting Tuesday and were greeted with enthusiastic support.

At the moment, a committee is being formed to plan the massive exhibition. Next step will be to appoint a chairman, hopefully someone in the community who has good relations with industry and arts and ethnic groups.

"We have reaffirmed that It's Your Bag is a valid idea" said QAC vice-president Manfred Koechlin, who, along with president Frank Murray and member Hazel Bernard, formed the council delegation.

Following the Hamilton pattern, the exhibition will feature performers in almost every aspect of the arts. Key to success, is public participation, something the QAC is anxious to convey to potential entertainers and artists.

Target date is early June but a change could be made pending talks with the Trenton Rotary Club which has staged a similar attraction July 1 at Centennial Park for the past two years. More than 5,000 people turned out last year to witness or take part in sports tournaments, art shows, cultural exhibitions and, at 11 p.m., a fireworks display.

Mr. Koechlin is anxious to contact ethnic groups in the area to hear their views about "It's Your Bag. Besides dancing and artwork, he hopes to entice the groups to bring along wine and food from their native countries "so people can get a real taste and experience of their lives and traditions".

In Hamilton, industry provided much of the impetus for It's Your Bag, something Mr. Koechlin hopes will happen here as well. Government assistance may also be available but Mr. Koechlin is optimistic it won't be needed.

City Crime Rate Down

Belleville's crime rate is down by four per cent this year.

The information is in contrast to the situation in Trenton where Tuesday, Police Chief David Saunders announced 34 charges have been laid in an attempt to crack down on a recent crime wave there.

City Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said the number of criminal occurrences in Belleville until the end of September had declined from 2,28 in 1971 to0 2,193 this year. In addition, break and enters are also showed a fall from 373 to 343 over the same period.

Even in November, the month during which Trenton's upsurge in crime reached its peak, Chief Crosbie said matters were well in hand and with the number of criminal offences not appreciably higher than normal.

"These things run in cycles," said the chief. "Maybe

The 'United' Way

We have not heard the last, by any means, of the dispute that has erupted between the United Community Services organization and one of its member agencies, the Belleville Family YMCA.

Indeed, matters could well be coming to a head with the announcement by the Y of a conference of all agencies in the United Appeal next Monday night.

UCS executive director, Isidore Cooperman, is quoted as saying he will not attend the conference and that any statement would be up to the organization's president, Andrew Robb, currently in Europe on business.

Contary to Mr. Cooperman's stated belief that there is nothing to be gained from such a conference, we believe it will go far toward clearing the air. The Y itself says it wants to find out how best it can serve the community. A frank discussion between all the parties concerned can be of real value.

In a recent statement Mr. Robb outlined the UCS' reasons for its decision to cut off grants to the Y among them the fact that programs of a basically physical education nature carried out by the Y had been adopted by educational and municipal recreation groups, and by other sport-oriented agencies with more success. He claimed further that volunteer leadership at the Y had been allowed to dissipate over the years, that it "has not made a real effort to determine unmet community needs . . ." and that the inability of the Y to improve its debt position "has created a lack of confidence" in the organization.

As matters stand, the UCS has decided to cut off grants to the Y as from the beginning of 1974. The Y, in turn, says the UCS has evolved from a largely voluntary organization to one with a full-time director with a permanent headquarters and a budget that last year totalled some $30,000. A question that many would like to have answered is what percentage of public contributions goes toward member agencies and how much toward UCS staff salaries?

The UCS' belief is that the Y is not fulfilling its role in the community. Then what is its role, in the UCS' view? Recently, we outlined some of the Y's activities. They have been chronicled often enough in the past — swimming classes, children's camps and various other outdoor and athletic activities, a day-care centre (now also in danger of closing through elimination of grants) — but Monday night's scheduled meeting will provide a further opportunity to inform the public and hear the views of other member agencies of the United Appeal.

It is to be hoped the UCS will be represented also. Indeed, it can accurately choose otherwise. A full exchange of views is essential in the present atmosphere of suspicion and of charge and counter charge. As it is, the term "united," as it applies to the fund raising the needs of the various member agencies, is something of a misnomer at present. Here is one breakdown in community relations that should be repaired as soon as possible.

Snowmobiling

With the snowmobilers' sails trimmed temporarily by a sudden thaw, perhaps this is a good time to mention a few points.

Despite all the lip service being paid toward safety and the rights of non-users there remains some vital aspects of the use of these vehicles that are of public concern.

For example, they still may be seen being driven along the roads in the early parts, despite the fact that the law says they should be operated on the non-travelled portion of the road — the shoulder presumably.

They are being operated in rural areas in close proximity to homes, with resulting noise not to mention interference with television reception. In this regard we might mention the law in Massachusetts which forbids operation of snowmobiles without permission within 300 feet of an occupied house. Hence the machines are banned altogether for recreation purposes.

The very least we should be able to expect from snowmobilers, in the absence of any strong laws governing their operation, is consideration for the rights of others. The machines should not be operated on the open road, in built-up areas or in the vicinity of homes, whether urban or rural.

Diefenbaker Errors Recalled

Foreign Policy Pitfall Dogs PC Shadow Cabinet

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Prime Minister Trudeau hasn't returned from Londop with big promises from Prime Minister Edward Heath in his pocket. Rather the other way around.

Why should the British prime minister, determined since his rebuff by France in 1963 to see Britain in Europe, give Canada last-minute concessions? It was a wordy try by Mr. Trudeau. But he lost.

And if the Queen does come to open the Commonwealth Prime Minister's Confederence in Ottawa next summer, Mr. Trudeau might no longer be prime minister. Next month in the house of commons promises to be a wild one.

Which begs the question of how Mr. Stanfield as Conservative prime minister would deal with fellow Tories in Britain? If he thinks Tories talking to Tories will make matters easier, he should remember the less-than-happy results of a similar era during the Diefenbaker Conservative years in power when Tory Mr. MacMillan was British Prime Minister.

One reason Mr. Diefenbaker made a mess of Canada's policy was his choice of external affairs ministers, his own incessant meddling in foreign policy, and the low-level of competence of the party's so-called foreign policy critics.

It looks as though Mr. Stanfield is getting ready to repeat some of Mr. Diefenbaker's mistakes by announcing Claude Wagner as the foreign affairs critic in the Conservative "shadow cabinet."

What, for goodness sakes, are the credentials of Wagner to be a Canadian foreign minister? Not much better than those of Howard Green, the Tory pacifist who had not been included outside Canada since he was a Second World War foot soldier.

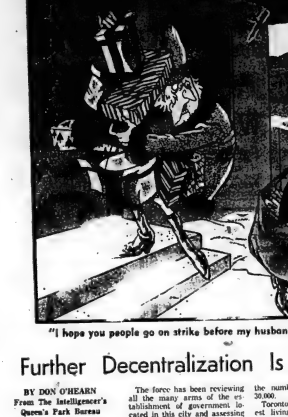
At least Mr. Wagner is fur-bane, competent and presumably able to learn a good deal ever in office.

To look back, Mr. Diefenbaker had the secretaries of state for external affairs, the late Sidney Smith-who was persuaded to resign as president of the University of Toronto to take the job; and Howard Green, now in retirement in British Columbia.

Mr. Smith, it is believed, was badgered incessantly by Mr. Diefenbaker in the palmy early months of the new Tory administration in 1957.

The summer of 1957 was the time for scheming out a 15-percent slice of Canada's overwhelming trade with the United States to the British market. The British and Canadian Tories met in gorgeous fall weather at Mont Tremblant, closeted like elders coming in from the cold in the chalets of that resort site.

Confusion seemed to have reigned supreme from the various epicals. The Canadians came, more in hope and with an old-fashioned not to say colonniality of the Canada—United Kingdom trade relationship, than with their homework properly done.



Mr. Peter Thorneycroft, then president of the British Board of Trade and a smooth and cautious customer, came, apparently unwilling to co-operate in the Canadian scheme.

The point I make is that Conservatives, admittedly long out of power, were ill-prepared, as they were in the 1962-63 nuclear weapons-or-Canadian-soil crisis, because they had the wrong men as external affairs ministers.

In spite of all the shafts fired at Messrs. Pearson, Martin and Sharp, they have approached the pitfalls of diplomacy, knowing ahead of time they were there.

One hopes this is going to be true of the final decision whether or not to keep armed Canadian troops into a post-truce Vietnam, but still heavily-armed.

If Claude Wagner becomes external affairs minister and tells heir to a move which could involve us in Vietnam in a way we have never been involved, the disastrous record of past Conservative foreign policy decisions, could be shockingly compounded.

"I hope you people go on strike before my husband receives the bills for all of this!"

Further Decentralization Is A Possibility

BY DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's
Queen's Park Bureau

There has been a task force of the Ontario government at work for the past few months which might in the future mean a good deal to communities throughout the province.

The task force, made up of senior public servants, has been studying the possibility of taking some of the machinery of government out of Toronto and locating it in other areas of the province.

The force has been reviewing all the many arms of the establishment of government located in this city and assessing what units might possibly be moved to other centres and what the implications and the problems could be.

At first glance decentralization of the provincial government would seem to make eminent and easy good sense.

There are more than 20,000 direct employees of the government now located in Toronto. When secondary wings such as Hydro and the Workmen's Compensation Board are included, the number rises to close to 30,000.

Toronto has close to the highest living costs included of Canada since he was a Second in the province.

And to such centres the injection of government money could be very significant.

If the WCB with some 1,500 employees were located elsewhere, for instance, taking the usual ration of three or more service jobs for one new productive job there could be employment for 4,500 people. And assuming a family factor of two and half people for every job, this could mean a population increase of more than 11,000 people.

There is, however, very much of another side to the coin.

A main consideration in locating a good many government offices is that they are visited by people from all over the province and must be central. To use the WCB as an example again, injured workmen and their solicitors from all over Ontario must come to its head quarters from time to time.

And Toronto, of course, is central — though there are nearer centres which might be even more conveniently.

Then there if the consideration of communication. One of the studies underway is how efficiency might be impared if units were decentralized.

Further there is the question of housing employees.

You and I might not agree but there are people who believe in the quality of life in this city. These people would probably have to be accommodated in one way or another, at least if they had long seniority. To go into this phase the task force has commissioned a study of other organizations which have decentralized into communities in the province.

The report is due to be handed to the government momentarily.

The probabilities are that it will recommend at least some decentralization, with the key question being how much.

Actually the government has already taken at least one step in this it by establishing an assistant deputy minister of Natural Resources and a section of nicetown Ontario.

The Davis government deserves kudos for this, and in fact for its whole approach to this question.

For lip services have been paid to the decentralization principle for years. But the Davis regime is the first administration to back its talk to something about it.

Incidentally, Ontario is the only province or state in North America to have its capital in a major metropolitan area. This has many disadvantages.

And from time to time it has bred the dream of starting a new capital. But this would be no go. For automatically it would mean another big city. Government now is that large.

U.K. Charm Die Well

Lufthansa is using the alleged charm of British girls in its airline cabins, according to a London newspaper. But the West German airline, currently trying to recruit air hostesses in Britain, gives other reasons for its action. Englishis the international language of air travel and the first Britain's imminent entry into the Common Market formalities will be over.

But whether the airline will be able to recruit 100 girls for training as air hostesses in West Germany remains to be seen, according to the London paper. If Lufthansa does, the girls will not be the first foreigners recruited by the airline. Of the 1,800 cabin staff employed by Lufthansa 76 per cent are foreigners including some from Britain.

Unemployment Benefits 'Haven for Spongers'

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Unemployment insurance is the name given to a bureaucrat's heaven and taxpayers nightmare, whereby people, regardless of need, who have been on a payroll for the magnificent total of eight weeks — a possible outside 220 hours total work commitment in their whole life, can receive as a result from a grateful society a bonus of $4,708.

He (or she) may have been fired as an incompetent loser after eight weeks but for up to a further 44 weeks a miserable pop bleeding heart piece of legislation makes it possible for him to live free off the country at over $428 a month for 44 weeks of loafing!

You work eight weeks and you get a bonus of 44 week's pay!

The caliber of mental process which can produce such a masterpiece of legislation is found only in the employ of government and it never has a any worries about meeting its financial commitments.

The "benefit" receiver may be a member of a wealthy family dropping out of the college system to find himself, I hope he is proud of what he finds — a gutless public sponger.

The public prize winner may be a lawyer's wife briefly returned to the world of business to be able to qualify and cash in on the booby bonanza (might be a good name for the scheme). She will brag about it at her next lawn party.

The real poor are still "on welfare" and the rest — in the matter what new euphemisms are employed for "relief" they are still getting the "charity".

The new breed of bonanza racers of the mighty proud of their accomplishment.

This legislation breeds greed dishonesty and fraud.

It rewards the cleverly covert and the unscrupulous.

It penalizes independence, self-reliance and decency with high public fiscal theft, and makes them a laughing stock.

It gives a free ride to state approved species of citizen parasites.

Perhaps one of the worst features is the hypocrisy.

Why the word "insurance" in connection with it, because it isn't. "Benefits" they aren't. "Unemployment" — it is not officially and vaguely connected with the length of any former employment of an individual to work!

If any malevolent tyrant had purposely set out to corrupt a people he would have invented this legislation at its present stage of evolution.

There is no way that the public trough wallowers who have carefully nurtured this Frankenstein can be interested to curb or put away their creature — nor does any opposition party have the guts to stand up and lose the public popularity vote by demanding its complete overhaul.

We are very close to Orwell's 1984 and we well deserve what we are getting. While devoting our energies to our own private affairs we have allowed public affairs to fall into the hands of men of little stature who have very carefully grown their own electorate of a level equal to the late Roman mob who lived entirely on free public handouts and entertainment — until they got their just and terrible deserts as a useless decadent top heavy society rightly discarded and was swept away by a self respecting, proud and virtuous people.

Remember — we asked for it!

Phone Links On Increase

Gali Reporter

Less than 20 years ago, two telephone circuits, provided by high-frequency radio, were the only voice pathways from Canada to the United Kingdom. The total number of calls in a year was 7,000.

Today, 500 overseas circuits, provided by undersea cable and by satellites, enable Canadians to enjoy fast and reliable telephone contact with almost any part of the world. In 1971, the total volume of calls between Canada and overseas countries had reached over 1,250,000.

Those taking over the responsibility to maintain and operate external telecommunications on its formation in 1950, the Canadian Overseas Telecommunication Corporation has been right in the forefront of communications. Since the Corporation's first major undertakings in 1956 there has been an almost continuous development in the technological field and an ever-increasing demand for direct telephone service to all parts of the world. Canadians have come quick to accept and use overseer lelephone facilities for both business and social calls.

Safety On Farm

Ottawa Journal

A coroner's jury looking into the death the other day of an Ogdgoke Township farmer recommended regular inspections in Ontario of farm machinery. A good suggestion that, but it won't work.

In Ontario there are: 165,752 tractors; 25,320 grain combines; 1,845 swathers; 39,348 hay balers; and 13,136 forage crop harvesters. The bureaucracy necessary to examine all that equipment, and keep it in safety regularly, makes the mind reel.

Yet something is to be done. Perhaps the province could help by improving farm safety education. Farm equipment manufacturers might be urged to make the possible hazards of their machinery better known. Ontario's farm fatality record in 1969 (the latest figure available) was 29 deaths, the second worst in Canada after Quebec's 34. The Workmen's Compensation Board during farm safety week this year: "The majority of accidents including farm accidents are caused by unsafe acts." Any piece of equipment, by dangerous when used improperly or in poor mechanical condition. Learning how to use equipment and keeping it running smoothly is mainly the responsibility of its owner.

MPP Won't Resign
I Stay and Fight Declares Shulman

TORONTO (CP) — "I'm going to stay here and keep fighting," Mr. Morton Shulman said Thursday after his conditions for resigning from the legislature were rejected by Premier William Davis.

The member for Toronto High Park for the New Democratic Party made the remark to reporters outside the legislature after Mr. Davis called for his unconditional resignation.

Dr. Shulman offered his resignation Wednesday on the conditions that a quick byelection be called so that he could run again to seek a new mandate in support of his actions in the house.

During a speech Tuesday night in the house he claimed Attorney-General Dalton Bales had attended an election fund-raising party at the home of a man he linked with price-fixing and criminal bombings.

He later withdrew the allegation against Mr. Bales on the grounds that his informant, Max Chikofsky, a Toronto detective, had "changed his story". But he had seen the minister at the party, given by Anthony Cesaroni shortly before the 1971 provincial election.

Vernon Singer (L—Toronto Dovercourt) demanded that he resign, and Mr. Bales asked that his accuser be censured by the house.

Premier Davis said Thursday the honor and traditions of the legislature are at stake unless Dr. Shulman resigns.

"I do not propose, nor should it be necessary, to bargain with him in order to get him to accept the consequences of his actions," the premier said.

"And I certainly do not propose to decide the date of any byelection simply to serve the personal or political interests of the present member. . . ."

Speaker Allan Reuter has promised a ruling before the current session ends next week on both Mr. Singer's and Mr. Bales's motions.

Dr. Shulman did not speak in the house in reply to Mr. Davis's statement.

However, he told reporters he was not prepared to resign and leave his seat vacant to be filled in a byelection called at some undecided future date.

"I'm not going to cut bait and run."

He said he would apologize to the house and to Mr. Bales in order to avoid any ruling by the Speaker that could lead to his censure. "But the government won't be satisfied with anything but my resignation."

He admitted to reporters that his statement about Mr. Bales had been "a blunder" because it had seriously detracted from his main objective to force the government to act to check the spread and control of organized crime.

"The main issue has been lost because of this blunder. I made, which has only given them government an excuse to avoid the real problem."

Bicycle Ban

OLDHAM, England (CP) — Parents in this Lancashire community have been urged to ban their children from riding bicycles as a road safety measure. Chris Tyrell, head of the local road safety committee, said in a report that the national cycling proficiency scheme, equivalent to a driving test for cyclist, "pulls parents into a false sense of security."

He said he regretted making the mistake, but claimed he had carefully researched his facts and had received a great deal of information from Mr. Chikofsky in the past which has always proven accurate.

Mr. Bales read in the house Wednesday what he said was a statement signed by Mr. Chikofsky in which the detective denied he had seen Mr. Bales at the party, or that he had told Dr. Shulman the minister was there.

Dr. Shulman told reporters he was surprised at Mr. Chikofsky's denial.

North May Get Ontario Place

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Davis, replying to a question from Liberal Leader Robert Nixon, said the Ontario government is considering locating a northern version of Ontario Place near Temagami, 40 miles north of North Bay. He said the government is "very anxious to stimulate development in northeastern and northwestern Ontario," but that no decisions have been made on the Temagami study. •

Active Athlete

HALIFAX (CP) — There aren't many off-seasons for 14-year-old Richard Joseph Shea. One sport runs into another and he has been on a Halifax Metro League championship team in them all in the last three years —baseball, lacrosse, hockey and football.

PC Dentist Says Bill Misses Point

TORONTO (CP) — The government's bill to provide for the licensing of denturists "grossly misses the point", a Progressive Conservative backbencher said in the legislature Thursday.

Dr. Harry Parroti (PC—Oxford), a Woodstock dentist, said he supported the bill, but was critical of the fact that it did not include other auxiliary fields of dentistry besides the making of false teeth.

The thrust of government action, he said, should be on the preserving of teeth, not the replacing of them.

The bill was the subject of a legislative uproar earlier in the week and Health Minister Dr. Richard Potter temporarily withdrew it after opposition members accused him of changing the principle of the legislation.

At that time Dr. Potter had announced his intention to amend the bill to place denturists—those who make false teeth—under the supervision of dentists.

The bill, re-introduced with the amendment the same day, creates a new profession of denture therapists for the fitting and making of dentures.

In his speech Thursday, Dr. Parroti said a government-sponsored dental program for children, beginning initially with three-year-olds, should be started.

He said the only dental program now covered by Ontario Hospital Plan (OHIP) was that of extractions in hospitals.

Dr. Parroti said routine extractions should be conducted in private offices and clinics, not in hospitals and estimated the program cost $30.5 million in hospital and dental fees.

The cost of the dental program for children in the first year, would only be about $10 million, he said.

Health Estimates Highest, $66 Million

TORONTO (CP) — Supplementary estimates totalling $206.5 million were introduced into the legislature Thursday, the highest vote of $66 million earmarked for the health ministry.

Debate on the estimates, which provide monies for programs not included in the current fiscal budget, was expected to begin today.

The government is seeking legislative approval of the interim expenditures to serve 12 of the 24 ministries. Of the total vote for the health ministry, $50 million is for operation of the medical care plan.

Also included is a vote of $25 million for the ministry of treasury, economics and intergovernmental affairs for Ontario's program to relieve unemployment this winter.

Estimates by ministries: Health, $66 million; Revenue, $10,825,000; Treasury, $35 million; Environment, $18.5 million; Natural Resources, $10,862,000; Government Services, $10,105,000; Agriculture, $10 million; Transportation and Communications, $5,694,000; Education, $4.1 million; Community and Social Services, $2,750,000; Colleges and Universities, $2,735,000; and Correctional Services, $1,832,000.

Minimum Wage Goes Up 15 Cents

TORONTO (CP) — A 15-cent increase in the general minimum hourly wage, to $1.80 from $1.65, effective next Feb. 1, was announced Thursday by Labor Minister Fernand Guindon.

The rate for construction workers will go up to $3.05 from $1.90, and for students under 18 to $1.45 from $1.30.

Mr. Guindon said there would be no differential for hotel, restaurant, tavern or other service industry workers who rely chiefly on tips for their wages.

Mr. Guindon also announced a new definition for a student worker under the Employment Standards Act.

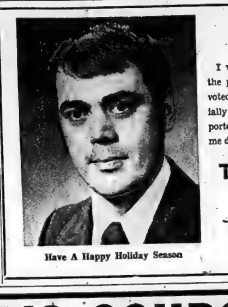
Now a student will be defined as being under 18.

"Of course, full-time employees under the age of 18 will receive the regular minimum rate of $1.80."

The new rates makes Ontario only second to other provinces with the highest prejudiced minimum wage, behind British Columbia which introduced a $2.00 minimum wage this month.

The federal government recently increased its minimum to $1.90 for workers within its jurisdiction.



Inquiry No Cure Says Davis

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis said Thursday a royal commission to investigate the alleged presence of organized crime in the construction industry would not "help resolve the situation."

Replying to questions by several opposition members in the legislature, the premier said the government is concerned about the problem and is "dedicating a great deal of effort to it."

He promised Liberal Leader Robert Nixon that he would prepare a statement detailing the actions of law officers, policy ministers and various study committees to cope with organized crime.

The exchange followed an uproar this week in the legislature over allegations about corruption in the construction industry by Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP—Toronto High Park).

MEN'S CORDUROY FLAIRS $4.95

They're Going Fast

Mrs. Lena MacMillan, 84 West Bridge St., Belleville, replenishes the dwindling supply of aprons at the Tabernacle United Church Holiday Fiesta Bazaar and Tea, held Wednesday afternoon.

Bazaar Features Men's Booth

A men's booth at a women's bazaar may not be a common feature but the one at the Tabernacle United Church Holiday Fiesta Bazaar and Tea, Wednesday afternoon was one of the main attractions. As Mrs. B. Stetson, convener of the event, put it, "The men have really outdone themselves this year, in fact, everyone has." It was difficult not to notice the steady stream of shoppers table which offered door stop men, spice racks, flower boxes and greenery, and waste paper baskets skilfully made from catalogue pages.

There was an array of Christmas ideas and gifts in the other areas of the bazaar as well. The aroma of home cooking and candy led many to the tables which offered an assortment of cakes and cookies, fudge and relishes.

A trading post operated by The Young Folk of the Awareness group was another spot where there was much activity.

Stuffed animals, colorful mitt mittens, nighties, crocheted skirts and attractive Christmas tree centrepieces were just some of the items offered at the children's wear and novelties table. There was no doubt that many Christmas gifts were purchased here as well as at the booth which offered a large selection of colorful cotton aprons for the Yuletide season.

Beautiful seasonal decor in the tea room offered the visitor a sight for his eyes as well as a place to relax and enjoy the luncheon provided. Homemade Christmas ornaments were hung from the ceiling and the walls with an added Christmas card bulletin board. Cellophaned trees decorated the stage. The individual tea tables had candle centrepieces and the main serving table attracted the eye and mums and lighted candles. Unit 8, in charge of decorations had definitely contributed to the over-all Christmas spirit of the bazaar.

With a large number in attendance and comments of delight as people left it was as Mrs. Stetson and Mrs. J. A. Charlton, co - convener a n d, a "successful group effort and we're happy with the result."

Spicy Ideas Suggested For Christmas Dinner

TWELVE DAYS OF CHRISTMAS

1. Cook rice in orange juice instead of water. Add a pinch of ginger.

2. Soak mint leaves in orange juice to which has been added a little sugar and a sprinkling of cayenne and nutmeg. Spread on ham during last 15 minutes of baking.

3. Have some pre-Christmas fun making pomanders. Use firm - skinned navel orange. Cover it closely with whole cloves (puncture the holes first with a pick or skewer). Then roll the clove-studded orange in a mixture of powdered orris root (purchase in a drug store) and powdered cinnamon. Wrap each one in waxed paper of heavy tissue paper and allow them to "age" a week or so.

4. Add a few poppy seeds to breakfast or luncheon waffle batter, then serve the waffles with butter and cinnamon-sugar (mix 1 teaspoon cinnamon with ¼ cup brown sugar).

5. Give an added fillip to vegetables by adding a dessert spoonful of marjoram, parsley flakes, tarragon or basil to the cooking water . . . especially for green vegetables. Try caraway seeds with carrots and cabbage; basil with potatoes and dill seed with braised celery.

6. Try using mixed pickling spice to subtly flavor canned or stewed fruit. Heat for five minutes the juice from a can of cherries, pineapple, peaches, pears or plums with a tablespoon of mixed pickling spice tied in a cheesecloth bag. Remove spice and return juice to fruit. Serve topped with ice cream.

7. Sometimes an economically wise buy is a large turkey so you can plan to use leftover dishes a few days later. After the feast, cut up the turkey remaining on the carcass, freeze it and then when desired use it in such appetizing dishes as chili con turkey, turkey a la king, turkey chop suey, or marinate the thawed turkey chunks in a curry salad dressing and serve as a salad with pineapple chunks.

8. Salad Dressing — 1 pint thick dairy sour cream combined with three tablespoons frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed, a pinch of nutmeg, and ginger, and a teaspoon of toasted sesame seeds. Chill. Use as a dip for fresh and canned fruit sections.

9. Chicken Bake — allow ¼ to ¾ lb. chicken pieces per serving. Arrange in shallow baking dish. Sprinkle chicken with ground ginger, a little garlic powder or seasoned pepper, and soya sauce. Turn chicken pieces to coat both sides. Let stand in a cool place for ½ hour. Bake skin side down and uncovered in a moderate oven of 350 degrees for ¾ hour. Turn skin side up, baste with juice in baking dish, and cook uncovered until chicken is brown, crisp and tender—about another 15 minutes.

10. Sesame Pear Salad — arrange wedges of fresh pear on beds of mixed salad greens. Sprinkle with toasted sesame seeds. Serve with a simple oil - vinegar dressing.

11. Mix mashed potatoes with a little sour cream, salt, lemon-pepper, and a touch of curry powder. Spoon into a greased casserole. Top with sesame seeds that have been lightly browned in butter. Heat in moderate oven.

12. Appetizer — fingers or triangles of rye bread spread thinly with curry flavored mayonnaise, covered with sliced turkey or ham and topped with chutney.

Native Children Happier

They seldom get sick anymore, she said, and since last winter have been attending school regularly. They're happier and more content than they've ever been.

The homes, which have an average value of $19,000 before renovations, are being provided by Canative Housing Corp., a company formed 18 months ago by a group of concerned native people.

Canative buys older homes with funds loaned by Central Mortgage and Housing Corp., and hires native people to fix them up. An average of $2,800 is spent repairing each house.

The idea, said Canative manager Gordon Hornby, is to get the hard-core native poverty cases out of the grip of slum landlords. He estimated that there were 250 native families living in substandard, unhealthy housing at the start of 1972 in Edmonton.

Canative charges its tenants the going rates for rents because it has to repay its capital costs to Central Mortgage.

Fur Fashions Presented At Sales and Ad Meet

The Women's Sales and Advertising Club of Belleville enjoyed a festive yuletide party for their December meeting.

A highlight of the evening was the cocktail hour showing of high fashion furs and their complementary accessories.

Carolyn Hamilton, president, introduced Doug Woodley of Woodley Furriers, commentator for the informal showing of minks, trimmed mink/suede coats and pant coats. A wool - tweed collection of winter coats was also introduced.

Another highlight of the evening was the toy presentation to firefighter Ralph Bommhour. Mr. Bommhour briefly outlined the objectives and accomplishments of the Belleville Firefighters Association and feted Children's Program.

During the evening, draws were enjoyed and exchange gifts were distributed by Jane Ann McCaw, president in her traditional role as Santa Claus.

The next meeting will be "Bring a Guest Night", January 9, and a travelogue on Hawaii will be presented.

Turkey-Thaw Suggested

The big, plump, frozen turkey you purchase at Christmas time requires careful attention before it reaches the oven. Food specialists at the Ontario Food Council, Ministry of Agriculture and Food, say it is very important to estimate the thawing time as accurately as possible, so that the bird goes into the oven as soon as possible after it is completely thawed.

A room temperature, a 15-20-pound turkey takes about 20-30 hours to thaw (roughly 1½ hrs. per lb.). The outside of the poultry thaws and becomes warm. Surface deterioration could result before the inside is completely thawed. If you thaw your turkey at room temperature, allt he bag open and lift the bird to allow moisture to run out of the bag.

It is safer to thaw poultry in the refrigerator. Refrigerator thawing time for a 20-lb. bird would be 4 days (roughly 5 hrs. per lb.). The turkey should be left in its original wrappings, but the bag should be slit and the turkey placed on a rack over a pan to catch the drips.

The easiest way to thaw your turkey is to leave it in its original watertight bag, and submerge it in cold water. The part that thaws first will remain cold until the entire bird is defrosted. The thawing time for a 20-pound bird is then reduced to 25 hours (roughly 1 hr. per lb.).

Once the bird has thawed remove store wrappings and giblets, wrap turkey loosely in waxed paper — refrigerate or cook immediately. Store giblets separately in the refrigerator.

Quilts Attract

FRANKFORD — A quilt display attracted many admiring glances at the recent UCW bazaar and tea.

Mrs. Muriel Rabel, convener of the bazaar, along with many willing helpers was on hand around the tables with their wares of knitted articles, novelties, decorations and cards.

BABY WARD CLOSED

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP)—St. Joseph's Hospital here closed its maternity ward because of a sharp decline in the birth rate. "It was becoming unacceptably expensive to operate the ward," said Martin Lefebvre, vice-chairman of the hospital's board of directors. Expectant mothers now will be sent to the Brantford General Hospital to have their children.

Ann Landers
Eighth Engagement Jilts Parents and Public

Dear Ann Landers: What is a father to do when his 22-year-old daughter gets herself engaged seven times in four years and is about to announce her eighth engagement?

In a period of 11 months this girl has accepted three different engagement rings. She has bought three wedding gowns (says it's bad luck to use a gown that was purchased for a cancelled wedding). We couldn't return any of the gowns because they had been altered.

There have been so many different sets of wedding invitations sent out that the printer thinks we are crazy. The newspapers will no publish any more pictures of her. Our friends are sick of buying shower gifts. The ring she just brought home last night is from a man she has known less than six weeks.

Our daughter is beautiful, smart, has a wonderful personality and makes friends with no trouble. I guess the reason I am writing to you is because I have been over-ruled by my wife at every turn. This girl's foolishness has cost me a fortune, not to mention the embarrassment. All my wife says is: "It's her life. I want her to be happy. Better a broken engagement than a divorce."

Don't tell me that the girl needs to see a psychiatrist. She has been engaged to two of them. Thank you very much.—Laughing Stock

Dear Stock: The fact that she has been engaged to two psychiatrists does not mean she doesn't need therapy. (They could probably use some, also.) Your daughter is afraid of marriage and she'd better understand why before she accepts any more engagement rings. If your wife wants to help the girl "be happy" she should encourage her to get her head together and forget about marriage for a while.

Dear Ann Landers: A dear friend of mine passed away a few weeks ago. She was a voracious reader and so was I. We loaned one another many books and periodicals through the years and enjoyed discussing them over tea.

The day after my friend's funeral I went to her daughter's home and asked if I could go through her mother's library and take back the books which I had loaned her. She was highly indignant and said: "No, you may not go into mother's library and help yourself. How do I know the books are yours?" I felt as if she had spat in my face. I left without speaking another word.

Some of those books were like good friends and I am distressed that they are lost to me forever. How I wish I had taken the time to have labels made and pasted them in the inside covers. Maybe my procrastination will serve as a lesson to others. Print this, please.—Bye, N.Y.

Dear Bye: Thank you for the suggestion. Those labels can also be useful reminders for bookkeepers who forget where certain books came from. And a deceased friend's daughter sounds like a crumb. I'm glad all sure I'd let the matter drop.

Dear Ann Landers: You have frequently given advice to women who write to you about the problems they face as a result of being married to alcoholics. Do you have any words of wisdom for a woman who is married to a workaholic? My husband is completely devoted to his profession and I feel as if the children and I are so far down the list that it is pathetic. Is there a cure for the workaholic?—X.Y.Z.

Dear X.: None that I know of. It's a deep-rooted compulsion and most successful men have it. My advice is to stop feeling sorry for yourself, stop nagging him and get busy with activities of your own.

Co-ed Clergy

LONDON (AP) — The Anglican Church's general synod seems to favor a co-ed clergy, but some clerics during a debate voiced strong opposition. A London vicar threatened to leave the church if women were ordained, and a bishop cautioned against admitting women, "only because we could not get enough men."

Successful Living
Should Boys Cry!

By DORIS CLARK

"The young boy has a difficult burden, usually starting on the day of birth — to be a 'man.' At the age of two, when he bangs his finger and cries, he is told to be a man and stop crying. But, he is unable to stop and so is made to feel that he is inferior by adult standards.

"At a little later age he will be able to stop crying, but will still have the desire to cry and this in turn will leave him with a feeling of inadequacy, because he has been taught that a man should not even have such a desire." — Clifford J. Sager, M.D., in "The Concept of Aggression in Modern Psychiatry."

Dear Doris: Our house is up for taxes; I pay for nearly everything else.

I do not go anywhere other than work until lately and I have joined a square dance group that meets one night a week for two hours. I did not go there and forget about home for a while. I think I would go up the wall, as my husband and I do not have any communication any more.

If I say something we have an argument so I keep quiet. I can't tell my children or friends. I have thought of leaving; he tells me he doesn't need me any more; but then I think of what people would say so here I stay.

Just having written you and telling how I feel makes it a little easier, but I feel sick and — Dead Inside.

Dear Dead: To heck with what people will say! But before you leave, try a few more arguments — and warn them. You aren't getting anywhere the way you are.

If it is too much for you, go to a skilled counsellor for understanding. Writing to me seems to have helped. You'll find it will help twice as much to talk to someone who will talk it through with you, once you get your nerve up for that telephone call.

I'm sick of husbands who won't talk to their wives. Husbands! Why won't you? Let's hear your side of it.

* * *

Dear Doris: How can we decorate a school gym for a Christmas dance? We usually have a big band playing so we don't have to decorate the stage. — Diane.

Dear Diane: Camouflage the ceiling with red, white and green crepe paper streamers. Hang plenty of glittery stars and folding paper bells.

Pick an important wall or corner for your decorated Christmas tree, with imitation gifts underneath. If you have prizes for spot dances or other events, have them gift-wrapped under the tree.

Get the art department to create huge murals with Christmas scenes, and silver cutout letters spelling "Merry Christmas" for the backdrop on the stage. Would a local florist loan some potted poinsettias?

* * *

(Every day Doris hears from readers who report success after taking her advice so a human dilemma. Let her help you with yours. Write to her in care of this newspaper.)

Mirror of Your Mind
by JOHN CONNELL

Is it good for a tot to 'run away'?

CERTAINLY; but parents know he won't go far because he is not allowed off the sidewalk by himself. More important, however, is that such a youthful show of independence should alert parents to any weak sparked the tot's desire to leave home. If the tiny thing became so angry that he will abandon the security of his home, he must have something bothering him that needs parental attention—fast.

Can a person hate without letup?

PERHAPS not downright, unadulterated hate. A person couldn't possibly get so all-fired up every minute of every day against everything and everything he encountered. He would be exhausted—or worse—in no time. Some people, however, do express aversion and dislike so much that these feelings actually do seem to be a habit with them. They constantly refuse to accept or acknowledge anything until they are sure they can find some way to dislike it.

Are wives as practical as husbands?

MORE so, in many ways. A man marries, then lives about the same as he did at home, except for that fact that he is supporting a wife. His wife, on the other hand, is usually the homemaker, taking over the many chores that had been done for her by her mother. A wife has to be very practical right away about running her marriage; her husband usually can live in his dream world a little longer—at least until the bills become due.

Ontario NDPers Start 1975 Plans

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario New Democrats gather here this weekend for their annual convention to try to revive their forces for the next provincial election, probably in 1975.

"I see this convention as crucial to reorienting the party to its role of fashioning policies for the province and building a program for 1975, Leader Stephen Lewis said on the eve of the three-day convention which opens today.

About 1,500 delegates are expected for the party's sixth annual convention in the new downtown Four Seasons-Sheraton Hotel.

One of the 200 convention resolutions criticizes the party for selecting the hotel which it claimed was United States-owned, expensive and not representative "of the working class."

But about 50 resolutions are expected to reach the floor, dealing with the six major areas of health, natural resources, urban affairs, housing, women in politics, and working class problems.

Mr. Lewis delivers his major address to the convention tonight at 9 p.m. EST. His father, David Lewis, national NDP leader, will close the convention Sunday with an address at 3 p.m.

Stephen Lewis is easily expected to overcome the only challenge to his leadership, from perennial candidate Douglas Campbell, a Toronto taxi driver. The vote to elect the leader takes place at 4 p.m. Saturday.

For the first time, delegates will be able to pursue policy making without the distractions of an election, leadership fight, and the radical Waffle wing.

The ultra-nationalist Waffles were ousted from the party at a stormy meeting last June in Orillia, but many of their adherents still are members.

Among these are Steven Penner, Varda Kidd and Jackie Larkin, but they will be without Waffle leaders Mel Watkins and James Laxer, who have left to form the Movement for an Independent Socialist Canada.

"The convention is obviously an opportunity to let the party cohere again," Mr. Lewis said. "Without the Waffle or leadership fights, we can be more relaxed and less competitive."

In his keynote address, Stephen Lewis will be attempting to reassert his own credibility after the party's crushing defeat in the 1971 provincial election when the NDP strength in the legislature slipped to 19 from 21 seats.

Mr. Lewis had been leader less than a year when he led his party into the election fight with high expectations.

New Airport Seen As White Elephant

TORONTO (CP) — J. J. Robinette, lawyer for People or Planes (P.O.P.), told a public inquiry Thursday that if the proposed Pickering airport is proceeded with it will be "the greatest white elephant in the world."

Summing up his case against the airport on the final day of the federal government inquiry, Mr. Robinette contended that P.O.P. had submitted evidence proving the second airport for the Metropolitan Toronto area to be unnecessary.

If not, "at the very least, it has been established that it has not been clearly shown that an airport is needed."

Even if there is a need, Mr. Robinette said, Pickering is not the right place. The studies of the area, northeast of Toronto, had been less thorough than those of other possible sites.

He quoted at length from an August, 1970, planning report to the federal transport ministry, which recommended expansion of the present Toronto International Airport in preference to a second facility.

Nothing has happened since then to upset the findings of that report," Mr. Robinette said. The only reason why it had been rejected in favor of a two-airport plan was a ministerial decision that expansion of the existing airport was politically "not saleable."

Court Says Union Fine Not Legal

WASHINGTON (AP) — On an 8-to-1 vote, the United States Supreme Court ruled Thursday it is illegal for labor unions to fine members who quit during a strike and return to their jobs.

"When a member lawfully resigns from the union its power over him ends," said Justice William O. Douglas in a case from New Hampshire. Justice Harry A. Blackmun voted to support the Textile Workers Union, AFL-CIO, in a dispute with 31 ex-members.

After they returned to their jobs the union tried to fine them a day's wages for each day they worked, but the National Labor Relations Board held the fines were illegal.

The court agreed with the board. Douglas said: "We have ... only to apply the law which normally is reflected in our free institutions—the right of the individual to join or to resign from associations as he sees fit."

Teachers Deny Campaigning In Schools

OTTAWA (CP) — Teacher representatives have denied charges made by school trustees here that some teachers campaigned against them in the schools prior to Monday's school board election.

Ottawa board of education trustee Roy Bushfield alleged Tuesday that teachers had prepared a list of candidates they wished to see re-elected and distributed the list in school corridors.

Leslie Roche of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers Federation said Wednesday that teachers were instructed not to distribute the teacher-approved slate in the schools. He said a pamphlet citing one trustee as someone not to be re-elected was the "rash mistake of one teacher in one school."

Language Tried

ROME (AP) — Chinese language courses have been inaugurated at some Italian high schools on an experimental basis, the government announced.

Cattle Caves

PRAGUE (AP) — When 77 houses and shops collapsed and a 156-foot tower lurched more than two feet out of plumb, Yugoslav town officials discovered heavy rains had undermined the walls of old underground passages weakened by new sewer trenches. They theorized that the previously unknown galleries were built to hide cattle from Turkish invaders three centuries ago.

Healthy, Buoyant Year Is Predicted

TORONTO (CP) — Judging by the predictions of economists and business executives at a University of Toronto seminar Thursday, Canada is heading into a healthy, buoyant year in 1973.

Some uncertainties exist over the direction of federal policies but improvements are expected in the employment picture and in efforts to control inflation.

Economist John Sawyer of the University of Toronto forecast a growth in real gross national product of close to 6.5 per cent, up from about 5.25 this year, and an inflation rate down to nearly 3.5 per cent from 4.5.

Unemployment, he said, would slip to about six per cent from an average this year of 6.5 per cent of the labor force.

The one-day business outlook seminar, organized by the faculty of management studies at the university, was told that the United States economy is in one of the most vigorous and long-est-expansion periods in history.

Robert Parks, chief economist for Blyth, Eastman, Dillon and Co. Inc. of New York, said the present economic momentum will carry into 1973 and that Canada will benefit indirectly from counter-inflationary controls in the U.S. American prosperity also will be reflected in higher Canadian exports to the U.S.

The outlook by industry:

PETROLEUM

H. S. Outrander, president, Sun Oil Co. Ltd.: Demand for oil and natural gas will accelerate with Canadian production going above two million barrels a day for the first time.

STEEL

A. V. Orr, vice-president, Atlas Steels Co.: Basic steel output in Canada will increase eight per cent to 14 million tons, still below estimated industry capacity of 15 million. Although the basic steel industry is healthy and profitable, the specialty steel outlook is not as bright.

MINING

John Kostuik, president, Denison Mines Ltd.: Rate of growth in Canadian mining will slow with capital expenditures 40 per cent below this year's $1 billion, partly from uncertainties in tax policies. After two or three years the industry should resume its previous strong growth.

FOREST PRODUCTS

R. C. Nelson, executive vice-president, Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd.: Exports are important and the industry hopes for a slow retreat of the Canadian dollar to parity with the U.S. Newsprint demand is bright in the short term but cloudy in the long term, pulp is expected to strengthen but not as much as newsprint.

AUTOMOTIVE

John Baker, president, General Motors of Canada Ltd.: A record 1,000,000 vehicles sold this year and the record will be broken in 1973 with 1,116,000 sales. The bullish influences should continue for five years at least. Unpredictable influences, mainly government regulation in emission, safety and noise, cloud the picture.

RETAIL MERCHANDISING

H. A. Steinberg, executive vice-president, Steinberg's Ltd.: High level of economic advance should continue into the first half of 1973. For most retailers 1973 should be another good year.

CONSTRUCTION

Eric Hartley, chairman, Frankel Structural Steel Ltd., and president of the Canadian Construction Association: Prospects are for a modest gain next year. Mortgage money is in ready supply and residential construction will continue high for the first six months.

Third of All Canadians Fear Computer Prying

OTTAWA (CP) — About one-third of all Canadians feel threatened by the computer and half of them fear it will expose confidential matters.

But a task force that studied the question of computers and privacy, while conceding that the storage of information in data banks poses real dangers, says no crisis exists in Canada today.

A 227-page study says more information is being stored and disseminated than Canadians realize and compared the situation with environmental concerns.

It says the scale of invasions of privacy is not yet at "crisis" stage but without adequate controls, "this situation could change quickly."

"The privacy crisis, unlike the ecology crisis, which was predicted but largely ignored until severe damage had been done to the environment, has never happen.

"Appropriate preventive measures can make certain that it in fact never will."

Members of the task force hesitated to use the word crisis, which they described as inflammatory, at a news conference held Thursday to discuss the report.

A. Z. Gotlieb, deputy communications minister, said the report provides Canadians with sufficient warning that a dangerous situation could become worse.

He said Canadians have been told they are on a "slippery slope" and the task force has raised a "red flag."

A survey by the communications department showed that more than one-third of all Canadians "appear to believe that computers threaten their personal privacy and more than half "believe that computers will violate confidentiality."

The report says that the vagueness of the terms privacy and confidentiality "doubtless led to some confusion," but "the general degree of concern is significant."

Mr. Gotlieb said one of the reasons the task force believes there is no crisis is the lack of done to the environment has never happen.

"Appropriate preventive measures can make certain that it in fact never will."

Members of the task force hesitated to use the word crisis, which they described as inflammatory, at a news conference held Thursday to discuss the report.

Dissension Blamed On White Man's Laws

OTTAWA (CP) — Jeannette Corbiere Lavell, an Ojibwa woman who will fight to retain her Indian status before the Supreme Court next year, blames white-created laws and the adoption by Indians of white values for dissension among Indians themselves.

Mrs. Lavell married a white man, David Lavell, and moved to Toronto from Manitoulin Island in Ontario. Under the Indian Act, she was stripped of her rights as a status Indian because she married a white man.

"I can't sit back any longer," she suddenly announced from the rear of the hall, catching participants by surprise.

The discussion involved an October, 1971, Federal Court decision that ruled Mrs. Lavell had been illegally deprived of her Indian status under the Canadian Bill of Rights.

The government is appealing the decision to the Supreme Court.

"The Indian Act was drawn up by white people here in Ottawa," Mrs. Lavell said.

"It did not draw on the traditional values of the Indian people . . . and it is the Indian Act that is creating divisions between Indian people."

She also attacked male-dominated Indian associations that she said use the Indian Act as the ultimate authority.

"Because European men looked upon their own women as something that they owned, that didn't have any rights—they decided that Indian men should do the same. This is very important, that the Indian Act was created from a white point of view."

The participating municipalities are Kitchener, Milton, Waterloo, London, Stratford, Oakville, Goderich, Sarnia, Mississauga and Toronto.

Costly Fire

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — A tank truck loaded with diesel fuel and stove oil burst into flames Thursday when it struck the rear of a transport truck on Highway 2, about13 miles east of here.

Fish in Harbor

TORONTO (CP) — Scuba divers employed by the Toronto harbor police are seeing something unusual in the harbor these days—fish.

First Officer Ernest Norrey, head of the scuba diving detail, said in an interview Thursday his divers are encountering fish for the first time "since I don't know how far back."

Plans Appeal

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto undertaker will appeal a decision which cost him his licence and prohibits him from renewing it or taking part in the conduct or arrangements of a funeral for a one-year period.

Reginald Strasler, owner of Brown Brothers Funeral Chapel Ltd., said Thursday he will appeal the decision by the Ontario undertakers' board of administration "all the way to the Supreme Court if necessary."

Wants One City

TORONTO (CP) — The city of Toronto should be amalgamated with its boroughs immediately, mayor-elect David Crombie said Thursday.

UN Environment Squabble Resolved

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — A conflict which emerged Wednesday between Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim and Maurice Strong of Canada, head of the UN's environment program, has been resolved, UN sources said Thursday.

At one point in the dispute, Strong was reported to have submitted his resignation to Waldheim, but both sides denied the report.

The argument concerned financing for the environment secretariat, established by the General Assembly last month. The secretariat headquarters is to be set up in Nairobi, Kenya, and Strong is expected to be named its head by the assembly before it ends its current session this month.

Strong, who served as head of the UN environment conference in Stockholm earlier this year, was reported to be angered by lack of control over financing for the Nairobi secretariat.

One of Strong's major concerns is reported to be that the Nairobi headquarters should be able to operate independently of the UN secretariat here.

Quinte League cellar dwellers, Central Taxi and Belvedere Hotel, upset league leaders, Teachers and Reid's Dairy, to move up in the point standings, but remain unchanged in place standings.

Belvedere edged Reid's 5-4 despite centre Reid Mallory's addition of two goals to his standings in the individual scoring race. Linemates Ted Walke and Denny Tompkins scored the dairymen's other two goals.

The two teams totalled 63 minutes in penalties with 22 sat out by Reid's and 41 minutes by Belvedere.

Despite Teachers Doug Jodin's hat trick scoring effort, the Central Taxi marksmen tallied an 8-5 victory over the second place team. Gord McGaughey beat cabbie goalie Ken Genereaux for the Teachers other two tallies.

Ted Schwager and Dwight Rathwell netted two goals and Steve Sharp tallied singles for Central who maintain third place, one point behind last night's opponents.

Wellington In Second

Wellington of the Prince Edward North Shore Hockey League remains in second place in the standings with their 8-4 victory over last place Bayview.

Though the score was tied 2-2 at the end of the first period, Wellington's five goal scoring binge in the second put the game out of Bayview's reach.

In the other PENSHL game last night, Proctor trounced OPP 11-4 as the Eric McConnell - Floyd Baverstock - Roger McCaw line proved too hot to handle for OPP. The Proctor line totalled 16 scoring points as McConnell marked six goals on the scoreboard and earned one assist.

Baverstock, George Ostrander and Gerry Ryan each tallied one goal for first place Proctor while Tom Lavender netted two. Goal scorers for OPP were Glen Wannamaker and Gary Haennal with one apiece while Ron Norton tallied two.

Wed. and Thurs. at 7:00 and 9:10 only and Fri. and Sat. at 7:00 p.m. only. Saturday and Sunday matinee children matinee.

AT THE PARK — In Color — This picture has nothing to do with two of the finest movies ever to be made. Any poor comparison with "Hotel", with an all star international cast. See "Hotel" for the man who gave you "Airport". "Hotel" is the story of the operation of "H", starring Jennifer O'Neill and Gary Grimes, "Summer of '42" achieves a special humanity unlike anything you have seen before. It is the story of the awakening of one boy that shapes his life. Due to the length of both these pictures it is only possible to have one complete program. Show time 7:15. Adult entertainment.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

SAT: DEC. 9

Aries (March 21-April 19): Charm your way into elite circles, remembering that a short cut may be a short circuit that will leave you worse off than you began.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Week-end chores include serious thought on any current financial questions, perhaps a brilliant idea for some early solutions.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Whether you can fly away or have to stay put, your attention is drawn to distant places and people.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Cooperation toward speculative or idealistic goals is available. Hobbies can turn out to be profitable. Assign priorities early.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 23): Diversity is the order of the day, turn lywithy from one activity to something unrelated, enjoy the changes of pace.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be serene and undisturbed at stories touching on you and your situation—anything off the mark contradicts itself.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Week-end has brought you so many odds and ends to attend that you are on the jump all day, one way or another.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): There is nothing like the advantage an early start confers on this busy, complex Saturday. Activity around home comes to a peak.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): What other people have known comes to you as a shock. Nothing to do but adjust and go on. There is no time for brooding.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): In having to explain things, you may see a mode of operation in fresh perspective and do something about it.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Intuition directs an acquisitive streak, and off you go bargain-hunting. Be prepared with negotiable terms and skeptical.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Secret activities can cross purposes with creative ideas. Something has to be brought out in the open, and soon.

FOX-SIZED HORSES

When horses first evolved 60 million years ago, they were fox-sized forest dwellers that scampered over the rough debris where they lived.

Infection Causes Sudden Red Spots

By G. C. THOSTESON MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Last year I started to get red spots on my arms and legs. It seemed that a couple would come out every day. I'd get a feeling of a needle sticking me, and a little later the spot would appear.

My doctor prescribed vitamin C and a vitamin with minerals, but also took a urine test which showed infection in the kidneys or bladder. After 10 days of medication, the spots stopped.

He didn't actually pinpoint the cause of the spots, so could you tell me what it could be? Because the spots have started again. — H.L.

There are different causes of purpura, and one of them is infection. Thus in your case the infection in the urinary tract could be the answer. After all, the spots stopped when you were treated for that infection.

However, urinary infections are notoriously stubborn, with a habit of recurring unless the infection has been totally subdued. Usually continued treatment is necessary for quite some time. So I would suspect that your next logical step is to go back to the doctor and see whether that infection is flaring up again.

Dear Doctor: My problem is getting up about five times at night to urinate. Is there any thing I can take for that? I am 78. — W.G.

The only thing for you to do is to have your doctor find out what's causing it—trouble in a bladder or kidneys, or prostate enlargement, which is a lot more likely.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there anything that can be done to reduce your bust, and if so, what? — D.T.

No easy way. No pill. You can lose some weight. Or, if the problem is worth the price, it can be done surgically, but it isn't simple surgery.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: It's really amazing how many people have the notion that if you play with toads, you'll get warts. I know this to be a fact, as I have handled toads for the time I was a child and even today, when my four children bring toads to me, I hold them with no after-effects.

It is my way of thinking that warts are caused by some sort of virus.

Incidentally some neighbor children have sent me to doctors recommended some kind of nitrogen. Would you like a note on the use of nitrogen? — S.A.

You're right about toads. The poor little critter probably got a bad name because they look so warty—but warts come from a virus, not from toads.

Liquid nitrogen, which approaches absolute zero in temperature, sometimes is used in a freezing technique, mainly for plantar warts on the soles of the feet. That's one of a variety of wart treatments.

My own preference (except when a wart is on the sole, and hurts to walk on, or is in some other annoying location) is to leave warts alone until, in their own deliberate time, they go away spontaneously.

Bidding Quiz

You are South, both sides vulnerable. The bidding has been:

East	South	West	North
1 ♣	Dble	Pass	?
Pass	?

What would you bid now with each of the following five hands?

1. ♠AK95 ♥K8 ♦KQ92 ♣AJ8
2. ♠AQ9 ♥KJ963 ♦AK8 ♣A3
3. ♠AK82 ♥KQ74 ♦AK873 ♣A5
4. ♠AK98 ♥J9 ♦AQ74 ♣AQ6
5. ♠AK ♥QJ82 ♦KQJ854 ♣7

1. One notrump. When partner responds in a minor, he seems to a double, you must proceed with caution, for partner does not require any balanced strength for his bid. The fact is that quite often he will have a poor hand when he makes a minimum response.

In this sequence the two trump bid shows 10 or 11 points, give or take a point. It would not be wise to bid a spade, which would indicate five spades and suggest greater distributional values. Similarly, with diamonds. Since the doubler is not required to bid again when partner responds in minimum terms, any further bid — especially a raise in partner's suit — assures vulnerables clearly beyond a minimum takeout double. The raise to two hearts in the present case just about makes the grade. To jump-raise to three would be much too optimistic opposite a partner who was forced to respond to a double.

3. Three hearts. This hand is far more promising than the previous one, though it has the same high-card point count. If North had as little as five hearts to the ace, you would have a good shot at game.

4. Pass. There are no values here beyond those expressed by the double, and a pass is clearly in order. A further bid would suggest extra strength and could lead to all kinds of trouble. There cannot be a game, for partner failed to make a jump response to the double.

5. Four hearts. Experience strongly indicates it is best to jump to game with this lay-out, even though partner may have an absolutely worthless hand such as A-K-x-x. The trouble with a conservative raise is only three hearts is that partner may have some dreadful - looking hand, consisting of nothing more than four or five hearts to the king, and pass.

Point count is not a good criterion in hands of this type. Instead the hand should be evaluated on the basis of tricks, for they are what really count in bridge.

Tomorrow: Suit preference.

Tony Lassing and 'Junk' Sculpture

"Drawings in steel," or "junk sculpture" is only one of the many art interests of Trenton artist and engineer Tony Lassings, creator of the 1972 Belleville Cultural Awards Committee award, to be presented Saturday at the Belleville Theatre Guild. Mr. Lassing believes in the understanding of self in order to be a good artist. Other art interests include oil painting, water colors, pen and ink sketching, theatre and movie production, building design, wood and linoleum cuts, mobiles . . . in fact, anything that he can create in his already cramped schedule.

Sculpture Is Cultural Award

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — There's one thing Trenton artist and design engineer Anton "Tony" Lassing has little of in the liberal sense, and that's leisure time.

If Tony Lassing isn't busy with his engineering firm, Lassing Associates Ltd., he's spending his spare time with brush, knife, glue or an arc welding machine, creating a wide assortment of widely known contributions to the local art world.

This inborn and non professionally trained talent led the Belleville Cultural Awards Committee to select one of his many works to be used as their fourth annual award in recognition of a Belleville resident who has contributed highly to the artistic scene in the city. The award will be presented Saturday night following the three-act comedy festival at the Belleville Theatre Guild's Pinnacle Playhouse on Pinnacle Street.

"I've drawn all my life, since early childhood and although I didn't have an artistic family, my environment was conducive to art of some kind." He was born in Amsterdam, Holland, in 1928, a city well-known for its architecture, art galleries and schools of art.

In this early environment, the young Lassing developed his artistic talent, first with water colors at the age of 13, later branching out into present art forms. Always interested in engineering and its creative field, primarily in the area of building design, he enrolled and graduated from the Technical College of Amsterdam in 1949.

While still in his native country and before being conscripted into the Dutch Navy submarine service for two years, he followed his professional training, at the same time learning the use of arc welding machines, a method he now uses to create almost all of his sculpture.

There were several companies and one partnership in Trenton before the forming of his present company, "Designing buildings may not be as exciting, but in a way there still are some chances to be creative," he said.

Although akin to draft, he confines much of his designing to sketches and the creation of a scale model. The actual drafting and specification he leaves to his staff. Both Trenton's fire hall and branch library are wo of his better - known designs. The planned municipal office-parking garage now awaiting approval for construction on the site of Trenton's former federal building, is another.

On the subject of art, he believes that building artists should be themselves, and let their art develop naturally.

"If you don't know yourself you'd be surprised at what you can come up with," he says.

To this end, he spends most of his weekends and many of his free evenings working on a variety of art forms that include arc welded sculpture done primarily out of doors in summer, water colors, pen and ink sketches, oil painting combined with specially created frames or non-frames, wood or linoleum cuts and mobiles, a more recent interest.

He says once "you really do something good, you feel that you've really done something good." At the same time, simply sitting and waiting for natural inspiration isn't the answer. The successful piece of art is often preceded by dozens of almost, but not quite perfect attempts.

Claiming he could never sculpt in marble or stone, "because I prefer to build rather than cut away," Tony starts his steel sculptures, or as he calls it, "my drawing in steel," with basic metal forming designs by adding additional metal.

Unlike many impressionistic art forms of this type, his sculpture is easily recognizable for what it portrays or represents. Such is the case with the sculpture created for the 1972 cultural award.

He says he offered a choice of three, from which was selected.

'We'll Work to Rule'

City Mail Slowdown Threatened

By BRIAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

Belleville's letter carriers are threatening to cause a mail slowdown.

They say they will begin a work - to - rule program at our convenience" unless a proposed change in working conditions is withdrawn.

The dispute, they say, is internal and has nothing to do with national contract negotiations currently in progress in Ottawa.

Jim Campbell, president of the Letter Carriers Union of Canada, Local 45, said the change was not scheduled to go into effect until after the Christmas mail rush. But, he added, the 33 letter carriers could begin the slowdown at any time unless a satisfactory agreement is reached.

Cause of the dispute is a decision by Belleville post office management to use taxis to transport men to their routes instead of buses, as is now the case. The cabs would mean carriers could reach their pickup points sooner. The time saved would be made up by longer hours put in sorting mail at the post office.

The letter carriers are protesting that they are being asked to do more work without an increase in pay. The change would mean an average of 30 extra calls for postmen each day.

Talks between post office officials and Local 45 representatives reached an impasse yesterday after special negotiating agents imported from Ottawa by both sides failed to produce a solution. The idea was first introduced here six months ago.

Postmaster Roy Wainwright — who says the project could be a first in Canada — has left the final decision to his superiors at National Operations in Ottawa. As far as he is concerned, "The decision has been made there," he said this morning.

The transportation shuffle is the key to an efficiency plan that would double interior sorting space at the post office and lead to better customer service, said Mr. Wainwright. The scheme does not involve layoffs, despite the relative costs of taxis and buses.

"The carriers will be doing exactly the same thing they're doing now," he said, noting that they can still use buses to return to the office.

He said the project was suggested by postal authorities in Ottawa.

"If a postmaster is on his toes, he will look at this," he commented.

George Johnson Jr., secretary - treasurer of Local 43, sees the proposal differently.

"They're trying to cut into us," he said. "They're setting us up as an example for other post offices."

Johnson estimates that every minute saved getting to the starting point means two extra houses to which he must deliver. A 20-minute time-saving would mean 40 more calls than the 483 he now makes.

"We're working more and we're not progressing," he said. "It's a step backward."

The carriers also fear being stranded in areas of the city where public transportation is minimal or non-existent. At present, each carrier along the 28½ routes has his walk timed to correspond to bus schedules but implementation of taxis could upset the routine.

"If they interpret this their way, they'll have us all frozen," claimed Local vice - president Bernie Williams.

Taxis — used by Trenton carriers for years — are common in communities where no public transportation is available. Otherwise, the public means are used across Canada.

Local president Campbell says a work - to - rule program would drastically affect mail delivery in Belleville.

"If we go by their rules, we'd never work within the time allowed," he said, adding that things would continue to pile up every day the order was in effect.

Although union bargainers were on hand Thursday, the head office of the Letter Carriers Union of Canada says it does not approve of strike action.

Santa's Helpers

Buried away in a William Street attic is Belleville's spirit of Christmas — the people who man the Christmas Sharing program of the Central Volunteer Bureau. Mrs. John Hayman and Miss Karin Nappsepps check out names against their master file to ensure that no one goes without a Christmas dinner this year.

Sharing Office Hums As Christmas Nears

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

The bustle of Christmas is spreading through Quinte district kitchens as preparations for family celebrations go into high gear.

But imagine being responsible for 250 family Christmas dinners!

That's the job of Christmas Sharing, the Central Volunteer Bureau's program for supplying holiday food hampers for those who can't provide their own.

So far, director Mrs. John Hayman and her assistant, Miss Karin Nappsepps, have the names of 350 families on file, all needing donor families or organizations to provide them with a food hamper for Christmas dinner.

To date, the donor record goes to city secondary schools. Among them, B.C.I., Quinte, Moira and Centennial have taken on about 135 families. Each class in every school is parcelled a hamper.

A welfare recipient mother with several children telephones to ask for a hamper. Mrs. Hayman checks the file. The family has already been registered by one of the city's social agencies.

"Our church will ask after them," says the worker, "but I wondered where you fit in and what I should do."

Another check of the files. The family is fixed — but no donor has come forward. Mrs. Hayman gratefully writes the name of the church on the card and closes the file.

A client's name crosses the desk — another agency has reported in. Miss Nappsepps flips through the files. The first name on the list strikes a responsive chord — it is already listed. But a careful search reveals the discrepancies — the first name is different, the number in the family and the ages of the children don't match. It's a new family with the same surname as one already registered, and a careful filing system has prevented the family from being overlooked and neglected.

Social agencies' records are sometimes out-dated. "Many families have checked once, and twice and sometimes over and over again," — "It would be awful," said Miss Nappsepps, "if we were to announce a toy meant for a six-year old."

Last year, 54 families were still not matched with donors on Christmas Eve. With cash donations, Christmas Sharing was able to buy the scarce turkey market packed the extra hampers, calling in extra staff to do the decorating and sorting. A volunteer delivered the hampers Christmas Eve. With rising population and growing unemployment, Christmas Sharing expects even more "unclaimed families" this year.

Cost of a Christmas dinner hamper for a family of two adults and four children is about $20. Christmas Sharing can provide a list of acceptable ingredients to every willing donor.

"Big organizations with large membership resources get the large families," says Miss Nappsepps.

Miss Nappsepps is more than a volunteer — she is a Loyalist College student doing the necessary field placement service required for graduation in her two-year social service course.

But she has become so wound up in the volunteer work of the community that she intends to stick with it until her graduation in June.

"She's invaluable," says Mrs. Hayman.

College Buildings To Lose Letters

The ABCs are being taken out of Loyalist College, it was reported at Thursday night's board of governors' meeting.

When the college first began, the buildings were dubbed according to the alphabet. As the campus grew, the more confusing the letters are becoming said college president Sidney Young.

"Pretty soon we are going to run out of initials," he said.

Town Will Extend Road

PICTON (Staff) — Town council at a caucus meeting Thursday supported construction of a road extension in a Picton subdivision by a recorded 5-4 vote.

Construction of the 126-foot road extension will begin short ly.

The council decision followed complaints last month by a Simcoe Street resident, who said that his property was a sea of mud and that guests were forced to use the rear entrance to his house.

When the issue was before council in November, Mayor Margaret Ackerman urged construction of the road at the town's expense. The motion was defeated as councillors voted against extending the roadway which was considered a responsibility of the subdivider. The subdivider had built the street but the roadway did not extend far enough to service all the subdivision.

Foxcroft was also conceded by November, 1971, for a similar offence.

Foxcroft was fined $500 in Provincial Court Thursday under the Income Tax Act after he was convicted for the second time of failing to remit employees' deductions.

Charles Charley, chief of collections and source deductions for the department of national revenue's taxation branch, testified that Foxcroft failed to forward income tax deductions for August and September before the deadline. Foxcroft is president of Peri Pump Co. Ltd., a pollution device manufacturing firm with four employees.

Foxcroft told Judge J. L. Clendenning the firm was financially embarrassed because a U.S. manager failed to turn in $6,000 in receipts over a five month period. An identical charge against the company was withdrawn by the Crown.

Household pets make ideal youngsters' Christmas gifts, says Quinte Ontario Humane Society, which again this season's is offering a variety of small animals for adoption. Available are rabbits — including this fluffy specimen admired by OHS worker Vivian Ethier — pups, guinea pigs, kittens.

Animal Shelter Has Lively Gifts

Christmas is a time of gift-sharing — and pets can also make prime presents.

This season, officials of the Ontario Humane Society's Belleville branch have again given a reminder the organization has a selection of young pets that could make ideal gifts — while simultaneously finding them homes.

"They are up for adoption — and make ideal Christmas gifts for youngsters," says an OHS official.

Started in the program, begun in recent years, has been satisfactory in the OHS view. Last Christmas, for instance, of 24 pups purchased, only one was returned later.

"People don't usually purchase a household pet unless they know it's needed, so we get hardly any returns," says the spokesman.

Costs run at $8 for pups, and $2.50 for kittens and other small pets.

Meantime, Christmas also sees a number of pets boarded away from home for the holidays.

Such reservations should be made as soon as possible, says the OHS, and owners should insure their pets have been inoculated — particularly against distemper — before boarding.

No Licence, Goes to Jail

A Thurlow township man, who was caught last fall driving with his licence suspended, was sentenced to 30 days in custody Thursday by Provincial Court Judge J. L. Clendenning.

Harry Baldgley, 67, of Thurlow's fourth concession, was given the jail term, plus a $50 fine and $10 to spend Christmas with his family. The judge also suspended his licence for two more years.

Baldgley was involved in a $900 collision Oct. 24 on North Front St. He had several previous driving convictions.

Two Bands Carolling

For the first time, the Salvation Army — which traditionally sends its band members on street corner duty throughout December — has a "junior group of musicians from the Trenton corps.

The young people ranging in age from about 12 years into the teens — made their debut in east - central Belleville last night.

The group is selected from among 25 young Salvationists who have been added to the Belleville corps band this year.

They are accompanied on their carolling rounds by other young Salvationists, who call at households for donations for Army work.

The new group alternates with other members of the Army band which has been bringing festive music into city neighborhoods for years.

Bruins Stepping To Livelier NHL Tune

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It didn't have the finesse one might find on the ballroom floor of a swank hotel, but the pairings on Boston Garden ice Thursday night were a delight to 10,003 fans.

After a slow start, the defending Stanley Cup champion Bruins have climbed into contention in the National Hockey League East Division. It was their 10th straight game without a loss.

St. Louis Blues were their latest victims, falling 5-0 as Mike Walton continued his latest scoring streak and veteran goaltender Eddie Johnston mastered St. Louis shooters for the second straight game.

The victory elevated Boston into a second-place tie with New York Rangers, each with 35 points, behind unbeaten leading Montreal Canadiens.

In other games, it was Philadelphia Flyers 6, Minnesota North Stars 2; Buffalo Sabres 6, Detroit Red Wings 1; Atlanta Flames 5, Vancouver Canucks 2.

The schedule resumes Saturday with the Rangers visiting their cross-city rivals, the Islanders, California Golden Seals at Montreal, Vancouver at Toronto Maple Leafs, Boston in Philadelphia, Detroit at Minnesota, Pittsburgh Penguins at Los Angeles Kings and Atlanta in St. Louis.

The Bruins, hit hard by losses to the rival World Hockey Association at the start of the season, had little trouble filling the vacancies.

Their immediate concern was the return of defenceman Bobby Orr, slow recovering from surgery to his left knee.

MIKE WALTON

The 24-year-old superstar has become a regular in recent weeks and the Bruins appear ready for a run at their third straight Prince of Wales Trophy.

Walton scored two goals against the Blues—his 12th in the last 13 games—and Johnston disciplined St. Louis sticks the turning aside 25S shots. He blanked them 4-0 in their last meeting, Nov. 16.

Orr, in his quiet first period, developed into a typical St. Louis-Boston game after Bruins Ken Hodge and rookie goaltender Bob Johnson exchanged punches midway into the second period.

Barclay Plager of St. Louis and Phil Esposito were also thumbed for fighting in the final minute of the period, paving the way for two third-period scraps between Boston newcomer Terry O'Reilly and Blues Floyd Thompson.

Flyers Gary Dornhoefer has never been labelled a big shooter. But the veteran winger tallied for the seventh consecutive game against Minnesota and is three games shy of the leagues consecutive game scoring record shared by Andy Bathgate and Bobby Hull.

Bill Flett led the Flyers with tow goals and Bobby Clarke collected a goal and three assists.

Buffalo Sabres closed to within two points of Boston and New York by ripping Detroit on the strength of two goal efforts from Gerry Meehan and Rene Robert.

Canucks Not for Sale

VANCOUVER (CP) — Thomas Scallen, president of Vancouver Canucks of the National Hockey League, said Thursday the club is not controlled by any outside interests and is not for sale.

Scallen, from Minneapolis, said in a telephone interview that a report by Toronto newspaper columnist Dick Beddoes that Chicago Black Hawks of the NHL had acquired control of the Canucks is not true.

Beddoes had said the Black Hawks acquired a controlling interest in the Canucks either through ownership of shares in the team or in collateral to pay off a $4-million bank loan to the Bank of British Columbia.

However, Coley Hall, a director of both the Canucks and the bank, said the bank had given the team a one-year extension to pay off the loan.

"We borrow money from Wirtz from time to time and we always pay it back.

"We have just concluded refinancing and the club is not for sale."

Hall said that since the bank had "just renewed the loan this week, I don't think there's anything to that story."

The Canucks are controlled through Medical Investment Corp. of Minneapolis (Medicor), which has a 50-per-cent share holding in Northwest Sports Enterprises, parent company of the Canucks.

Royals Sink Sorel

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cornwall Royals advanced to a four-point lead in the Quebec Junior A Hockey League Thursday by defeating Sorel Black Hawks 5-3.

In other league action, third-place Laval Nationals prevented Quebec Remparts from moving up on the Royals by edging the Cyclone team 6-5.

The Royals lead the league with 45 points, the Remparts have 41 and Laval holds a two-point edge on Sorel with 37.

Ottawa Edges Petes

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Jan Turnbull's second and third goals of the night, the latter with 38 seconds remaining, gave Ottawa 67s a 5-4 victory over Peterborough Petes Thursday and tightened their grip on second place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A race.

The victory gave Ottawa a three-point edge over the third-place Petes, who have managed only one tie in four meetings with the fix this season.

Peterborough had taken the lead for the first time on Stan Jonathan's goal early in the third period before Turnbull put the game away.

Kitchener Rangers entertain the Petes tonight while St. Catharines Black Hawks visit Toronto Marlboros and Oshawa Generals travel to Sault Ste. Marie to face the Greyhounds.

Whalers Whip Nats

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

They billed the game as Ladies' Night at Ottawa's Civic Centre, but it was hardly an exhibition that would woo the ladies.

The boostown Nationals were forced to play catch-up hockey Thursday night when New England Whalers opened an early four-goal lead and finally fell 4-2 in a scrappy contest.

Elsewhere, Cleveland Crusaders kept pace with the Whalers atop the World Hockey Association's Eastern Division by defeating Quebec Les Nordiques 3-1 and Minnesota's Fighting Saints blanked Houston Aeros 3-0.

It was bonus night at fan-starved Civic Centre, but only 2,682 fans showed up in the 9,000-seat rink despite free admission to any ladies accompanied by a male companion.

Those that did make it to the arena saw a no-holds barred fight in the second period between Whalers' Tom Webster, who opened the New England scoring, and Tom Simpson of Ottawa.

The fight ended when Webster decked the Ottawa player, but the altercation signified a change in the trend of the contest.

Terry Caffery, Ted Green and Tim Sheehy gave the Whalers a 3-0 lead by 12:18 of the second period. Steve King and Bob Charlebois replied for Ottawa who had an over-all 37-20 advantage in shots during the game.

Gary Jarrett broke up a 1-1 stalemate late in the second period at Quebec City. The sawoff between Jarrett, Gerry Cheevers and Jacques Lemelin was set-up in the opening period by Quebec's Frank Golembrosky and Gerry Pinder.

Jarrett scored again in the third period to nail down the Cleveland win in front of 6,001 Auditorium fans.

Minnesota moved into second place in the Western section on the shutout goaltending of Mike Curran—his second of the year—and two goals by Mike Antonovich.

Wayne Connolly opened the Saints' scoring in the first period and the score held until late in the game when Antonovich added the insurance score his second into an empty net goal with Don McLeod benched for a sixth attacker. More than 3,000 turned up in St. Paul for the game.

Introducing Rotary Combustion Evinrude Power.
More quiet. More performance.
It's faster accelerating, up to 65 mph.
It has only two moving parts. Idling is clean—free of oil, smoke and roughness.
And, it's economical. (you may never have to replace the spark plug!)
The Evinrude RC Engine isn't the first rotary combustion engine to go into a snowmobile. But it's the first Evinrude.
We've been working on the RC Engine since 1963. And after 9 years, we're ready to put our name on the first rotary combustion engine built in North America.

Thurlow Sports Expand

By AL ZABAS
Staff Sportswriter

Cosom, a breed of hockey played indoors, is one of those gymnasium games akin to murder ball, push ball and spider hockey. Very little equipment is needed besides a gymnasium and players.

The Thurlow Recreation Association, which was first formed in the spring of 1972, has both of these necessities. The Hastings Board of Education in co-operation with the Association's volunteer supervisors has provided the 700-800 younger people of the Thurlow area the two gymnasiums and associated facilities of Harmony Public School.

The TRA will also be organizing more conventional sports in the new year. Thurlow youths have shown an interest in playing volleyball and basketball besides the predominating winter game of hockey.

Though the Thurlow Association does not have an arena to serve the community, there are several outdoor rinks available. In mid - November 20 men and youths built boards around an area at the Harmony school.

The TRA, however, has elected an Arena Steering Committee to look into the possibilities of the Thurlow Township receiving an arena for next year's hockey season.

According to TRA chairman Fred Conley, it hopes to build tennis courts in Plainfield in the coming year. Several people have been approached to coach the track and field program also being planned for the summer months, and it's likely that the facilities will be built at Harmony Public School through the co-operation of the TRA and the Hastings Board of Education.

Empey Stops Purchase

Goalie Don Empey was too fast for Steven Purchase in Thursday night's push ball game at Harmony Public School as he made the save on a Purchase shot.

There were too many versions of the score to know which one was correct, but the young men did not seem overly concerned. The push ball action took place at the regular Thursday night the Thurlow Recreation Association on behalf of the children and youths of the area.

Trevor Top Scorer

Trevor Powell may be following in his older brothers' hockey skates, but he is outdoing Eric and Chuck in scoring statistics.

Trevor, who holds down the centre position on Wilson Concrete's tyke all-star Bryan Beer - Powell - Jamie Hofford line, banged seven goals past Stirling Legion goalie Kelly Reid in Wilson's 11-1 OMHA victory Saturday.

The eight - year - old centre also assisted on two goals while linemate Hofford tallied one and assisted on seven. Left winger Beer beat goalie Reid for a single goal and assisted on five.

"Most of my goals were wrist shots," said Trevor, "on one, I was just behind the net and I shot it. It hit the goalie's pad and went in.

"The most goals I ever got before was in the house league playoffs last year. I scored six then," said the blond centre.

With two older brothers, Eric, who plays wing for the Blake Kerr Imperial midget all - stars, and Chuck, who plays defense for the Gas House League's Intelligencer team, Trevor had plenty of help in finding his skating legs.

Trevor, who also plays baseball in the summer, started skating when he was three. He started in the tyke minor house league when he was five - years - old. Last year he was called up several times at the beginning of the season to play for the all-stars.

TREVOR POWELL

Other marksmen for the Wilson tykes in the victory over Stirling were defenseman Dave Meagher and centre Frank Pinder while Stirling's single tally came from Steve Wellman.

Madoc Midgets Trip Trenton

Top scorers for the Madoc midgets were Brian Levere with 11 points and Jory Brooks with 10. Trenton's Westlake heeped nine points.

In the junior game, Trenton edged the Madoc team 33-29 in a game that Pete Mewett, co-coach of Centre Hastings juniors, said could have gone "either way."

"Centre Hastings led at the end of the first half 19-12," said Mewett, "but Trenton broke it open in the third quarter. We only scored four points while Trenton got 11."

PRICE MORRIS

A 16-year wait will end for Price Morris Saturday when he accepts the Ontario "Champion of Champions" trophy.

The award goes to the Ontario weightlifter who hoists the highest total in relation to his body weight. The Frankford strong man, who retired from competitive lifting after the Summer Olympics, will be presented with the trophy at the 18th annual Eastern Ontario Teen Age Weightlifting championships to be held in Belleville Saturday.

The competition will be held at Sir MacKenzie Bowell Public School and will pit 10 Apollo Bar Bell Club members against lifters from Elliot Lake, London, Toronto, Ottawa and other parts of the province.

Saturday's meet will commence at noon and wind up around 4 p.m. in the after-

Rollins Peewees In Oshawa Tournament

The Belleville Rollins peewee majors will be playing hockey against some of Ontario's top pee wee teams in the Kinsmen Club Tournament in Oshawa this weekend.

Triple "A" teams from as far west as London, as far north as Sudbury, and as far east as Cornwall will be playing in one of the three major peewee tournaments held during the season. The Optimist Tournament in Niagara Falls and the Burlington Golden Triangle Tournament are of comparable caliber to Oshawa's.

The Rollins peewees can expect exceptionally keen competition from the other 13 teams attending, according to Norm Harris, manager of the Rollins team.

Belleville's peewees have already met three of the teams registered for the tourney. Rollins defeated the two Kingston teams and the team from Peterborough.

According to Harry, NHL scouts from Montreal, Toronto and Boston will be present at the tourney.

The first question you're going to ask is, what is it?

The second. How is it going to simplify my life?

O.K., to answer the first part. In any conventional ignition system the mechanical breaker points may be the cause of some problems. Knowing this, Chrysler engineers developed a solid-state electronic system (all 6 & 8 cyl. engines) that eliminates the need for breaker points and condenser, and their resulting maintenance headaches.

Now for what it can do for your car and your wallet.

For starters your car is going to start better at mileage levels when mechanical systems normally start to deteriorate.

DODGE BUILDS IN THE SOLID DIFFERENCE

What will it mean to your pocketbook? Because there are no points to wear out, no condenser to replace, the cost of tune-ups drops considerably.

New front disc brakes, (except Dart with 6 cylinder engines), unibody construction, torsion-bar suspension (except Colt) and new emission control systems are among the impressive list.

Innovative engineering plus extra care in every detail, make us believe your new Dodge is the best Dodge we've ever built.

Miller Accuses Commissioner

NEW YORK (AP) — Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, accused commissioner Bowie Kuhn Thursday of making a fraudulent statement and said player negotiations had been set back by "an act that only the most rank amateur would perform."

Miller said he was referring to a news conference held by the commissioner in Hawaii Nov. 29 at which, he insisted, Kuhn violated an understanding between owners' and players' negotiating committees to re-an owners' proposal for modifying the stringent reserve clause, which binds a player to one club for life unless he is sold or traded. Kuhn said the players had rejected the plan which he labelled historic and spectacular.

"Those words were clearly intended to deceive the public and players," Miller said. "His predictions of catastrophe if the terms were not accepted were a transparent and inept attempt to psyche the players and the fans."

The owners' proposal, as presented by Kuhn, called for free agent status for any player with five years' major league experience not offered $40,000 for his ninth year.

"Were it presently in effect, this magnanimous offer would probably affect five of the 960 players now on major league rosters," Miller said.

Miller said the owners actually were offering the players salary increases of one-half of one per cent, and even less than that if owners were allowed to go through with the suggestion that rosters be cut from 25 to 23 men.

He charged that baseball salaries fall below those in the other major professional sports—football, basketball and hockey—and cited the National Basketball Association's minimum of $20,000 compared with baseball's $14,000 as an example.

Kuhn had no immediate comment.

Miller called a news conference to detail some of the facets of the latest conflict which he had touched upon informally a week ago.

"The commissioner's act has only served to harden the players' position," he added.

He declined, however, to predict that baseball may again be hit by a players' strike such as the unprecedented action last spring that delayed opening of the regular season 10 days.

He said that at the Hawaii news conference, Kuhn outlined

Allen Tops AL Sluggers

BOSTON (AP) — Dick Allen of Chicago White Sox added the 1972 American League baseball slugging championship to his home run and runs batted in titles today in official records announced by league president Joe Cronin.

Allen, who tied for third in the batting race with a .308 average, compiled a slugging mark of .603 on 305 total bases in 506 trips to the plate.

Allen is the first player to lead the league in homers, RBI and slugging since 1967, when Boston's Carl Yastrzemski won the Triple Crown and had a slugging percentage of .622.

The White Sox first baseman had 37 homers, 28 doubles and five triples. He led the league with 99 walks, five more than runnerup Harmon Killebrew of Minnesota.

Chicago catcher Ed Hermann received the most intention; walks, 19. Oakland's Sal Bando received 16 and Allen 15.

Mike Epstein, recently traded by Oakland to Texas, was hit by 11 pitches, leading the league for the second year in a row. Minnesota's Bobby Darwin was the strikeout leader with 145, but finished high among sluggers with .442 on 22 homers, 29 doubles and two triples.

Cronin announced that 25 major league records were broken and another 25 tied during the 1972 American League season. Brooks Robinson of Baltimore set new marks for a third baseman, while Detroit's Ed Brinkman established four records for shortstops. And Boston shortstop Luis Aparicio set three marks.

Sherry & Olives and good conversation

Long before TV and stereo, before canned sound and canned laughter, there was conversation. There was sherry. There were olives.

About a hundred and fifty years ago the Rev. Sydney Smith said: "One of the greatest pleasures of life is conversation".

It still is. Tennyson spoke of "honest talk and wholesome wine".

For hundreds of years, friends have been meeting to talk, to sip sherry, to nibble olives. Try it. Start something old.

Winnipeg Places Most All-Stars

MONTREAL (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers, who put the most points up on the scoreboard this season, have placed the most players aboard the Canadian Football League All-Canada team.

The Bombers took six of the 25 spots—there was a tie for tight end—five on offence and one on defence.

Don Jonas won the quarterback position 23 to 18 over Chuck Ealey of Hamilton Tiger-Cats. Mack Herron, runner-up in voting as most valuable player in Canada last week, was the only unanimous choice, winning top spot among the three running backs.

Every team won at least one all-star spot. Hamilton was right behind Winnipeg with five; Saskatchewan Roughriders and Ottawa Rough Riders had three each; British Columbia Lions, Montreal Alouettes and Toronto Argonauts each put two aboard, while Calgary Stampeders, and Edmonton Eskimos took one position each.

The teams:

Winnipeg.

Guards—Bob Lueck, Winnipeg; Jack Abendschan, Saskatchewan.

Tackles—Bill Frank, Winnipeg; Ed George, Montreal.

Centre—Bob Swift, Winnipeg.

DEFENCE

Tackles—Jim Sillwagon, Toronto; John Helton, Calgary.

Ends—Bill Baker, Saskatchewan; Wayne Smith, Ottawa.

Middle linebacker—Gerry Campbell, Ottawa.

Backs—Al Brenner, Hamilton; Johnny Williams, Hamilton; Grady Cavness, Winnipeg; Dick Adams, Ottawa; Marv Luster, Toronto.

There were some surprises in the balloting.

Jim Sillwagon of Toronto and John Helton of Calgary we've 1-2 at defensive tackle, yet it was Helton who beat out Sillwagon as lineman-of-the-year in recent voting conducted by a distillery.

Gerry Campbell of Ottawa got enough votes to walk away with middle linebacker honors, but also received enough votes at cornerback to tie the winners in that category—Ray Nettles of B.C. and Dave Gasser of Edmonton. All three got 13 votes.

Bill Frank of Winnipeg got 25 votes to lead the offensive tackles, and Ed George of Montreal got 22. However, George got 19 votes as a guard, only one less than the 14 which gave the second guard spot to Jack Abendschan behind Bob Lueck of Winnipeg.

Abendschan, whose placekicking was worth 74 points to the Roughriders this season, didn't get a single vote from the reporters in the Western Conference.

Bench Played Series With Lung Lesion

CINCINNATI (AP) — Johnny Bench, the National League's Most Valuable Player, was to learn today whether he must face surgery for removal of a lesion in his lung.

Bench, earlier, remained confident that the spot discovered in his lung last September would not be a problem.

"I knew it was there, but I had to put the thought aside," he said. "I knew that after the season there was a good chance they could cut on it.

Women Golf Pros Get Pay Boost

NEW YORK (AP) — Golf's women professionals, hit by the sports money explosion, will play for $1.4 million in 1973.

Bud Erickson, executive director of the Ladies Professional Golf Association (LPGA), announced Thursday that the Sealy-Faberge Classic will be played for $100,000 in Las Vegas.

It's the fourth $100,000-and-up event announced by a circuit that offered a tour total of $320,000 three years ago. Kathy Whitworth earned $65,063 this year, astronomical by past standards.

Also added to next year's tour will be the Montreal event, with a purse of at least $40,000. Establishment of the new event by Montreal businessman and sportsman Jean-Louis Levesque was prompted by the success this year of rookie Jocelyne Bourassa of Shawinigan, Que.

Miss Bourassa, sponsored on the LPGA tour by Levesque, won more than $15,000, highest total ever for a rookie.

Cure for Cancer Predicted Close

LONDON (Reuter) — A Soviet expert predicts that man will find the answer to cancer any day now.

But United States researchers will settle for cutting the death toll from the disease by two-thirds by the end of the century, even given the enormous injection of government funds planned by President Nixon.

Now, almost three years into the decade that was supposed to see victory over cancer, progress is reported on many fronts. But the war goes on and few claim to see an end in sight.

An exception is Prof. G. I. Abelev, of the Soviet Academy of Medical Sciences. He heads the department of tumor virology and immunology at the N. F. Gamaleya Institute of Epidemiology and Microbiology in Moscow.

"One has the impression that a solution to cancer may be found, literally, any day," he said in a recent interview.

"It is probable that in the very near future, perhaps this year or next year, or in two or three years time, the first human carcinogenic (cancer-causing) viruses will be isolated and identified.

"From then on, it will be feasible to develop vaccines against these viruses, and hence against the types of cancer they cause. We have the feeling that we are on the threshold of a major breakthrough.

Prof. Abelevs optimism does not seem to be widely shared in the U.S., however.

Dr. Howard M. Temin, of the University of Wisconsin cancer laboratory, the young researcher who was hailed over two years ago for a breakthrough discovery about viruses, repeatedly warns that this might have nothing to do with the cause of cancer.

Nevertheless, virology now is generally regarded as the most promising line of attack on the disease.

The main reason the disease is so difficult to treat is that cancer cells hardly differ from normal cells in their chemical makeup. So drugs or radiation designed to kill cancer cells also kill healthy cells."

The eventual answer may be discovering ways to stimulate the bodys own defence against cancer.

This is why understanding the basic mechanism of cancer is so important.

A malignant tumour results from the uncontrolled growth of body tissue. Various factors are suspected, but viruses are under the closest investigation.

Dr. Temins discovery was to demonstrate, in effect, that the behavior rules of a cell can be reversed by cancer viruses.

It has been proved that certain chemical substances are carcinogenic, and that a group of viruses can cause in animals tumors that are similar to some that occur in man.

If a human cancer-causing virus can be isolated—and there is controversy as to whether some have already been found—then it should be feasible to develop vaccines against such viruses.

There are almost 200 types of cancer, however, and it is not known how many, if any, are caused by viruses.

Allmand Visits Kingston Prison

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Warren Allmand has started a tour that will include penitentiaries and RCMP and parole offices to familiarize himself with his new office.

Mr. Allmand spent Thursday in the Kingston, Ont., area visiting penal institutions, interviewing penitentiary officials and meeting some prisoners. He will do the same today and then head for Drumheller, Alta., and New Westminster, B.C., to visit penal institutions there.

His office said Thursday the primary purpose of this first series of visits is to "seek out the opinions and views of those who have operational responsibility for policing, corrections and parole programs."

He also would attempt to have informal talks with some prisoners.

The statement did not say when he would visit other areas. The demands of Parliament, which opens Jan. 4, would restrict travel.

The minister is visiting areas that have been most in the news. Both in Kingston and in British Columbia there have been complaints about the operation of the parole system, the granting of leaves to prisoners by the penitentiary systems and alleged lack of discipline in penal institutions. Prisoners at the Joyceville institution recently conducted a sit-down strike.

Ottawa Loses Millions On New Plant Never Used

Everything must be sold from postage stamps to the 140-foot flare tower.

The federal government, which loaned $8.5 million under the adjustment assistance program, hopes to recover about $1 million.

Wednesday two new elevators still unassembled sold for $500; sheets of high - quality alloy bought for $1,000 each sold for $25.

Pat Sheridan, a Toronto geophysicist, offered $500,000 for the plant Tuesday, but Clarkson Co., receiver and manager under the Bankruptcy Act, said it was too little too late.

Over Six Million Will Get Rebates

OTTAWA (CP) — Roughly 6.5 million Canadians are expected to get refunds when they file their 1972 income tax returns early next year, revenue department officials said Thursday.

And to get the money to them faster, the government has devised a special sticker that taxpayers can place on their tax-return envelopes to speed the journey through the processing mill.

"There will be very many taxpayers anxious to file early and get their refunds early, Revenue Minister Robert Stanbury said in an interview.

Also, for the first time, the government will offer a free telephone service to taxpayers who find themselves bewildered by their return forms and want to ask their local tax offices for clarification.

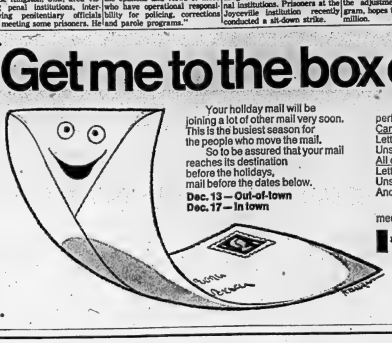
In the past, they had to pay for the calls themselves if they lived in an area that required a long-distance call to reach the nearest of the 28 district taxation offices across the country.

The service, which will involve a Zenith telephone number for each office, becomes effective Jan. 1.

The revenue department expects nearly 10 million Canadians to file income tax returns this year.

All of them will be using a standard new tax return form drawn up in the wake of tax reform measures implemented last. Jan. 1.

Among changed are bigger tax-free allowances, steeper tax rates, a $350 employment allowance, deductions for such items as unemployment insurance and a new capital gains tax.



When the blank form arrives in the mail, it will be accompanied by a series of explementary forms to cover every type of income the taxpayer could be called upon to report.

But, for many, the only form they will have to worry about is one entitled 1972 Individual Income Tax Return. The rest they can throw away.

Court Orders Posties Back

TORONTO (CP) — Postal unions in Toronto and their members were forbidden from taking part in any further illegal walkouts or work stoppages by an Ontario Supreme Court order issued Friday night.

Mr. Justice Lawrence Pennell upheld an application by the Toronto post office for an interlocutory decree. He said it will remain in effect until the unions can strike legally, seven days after a conciliation report is handed down in Ottawa.

Postal operations in Metropolitan Toronto were disrupted early Friday by a series of walkouts protesting slow progress in negotiations between the postal unions and the post office.

However, operations returned to normal Friday night as sorting crews reported to work on time. One of their first jobs was to process December family allowance cheques, trapped in the buildup of mail.

The walkouts, involving about 600 postal employees, began shortly after midnight Thursday night when some 300 sorters and handlers left their jobs at the downtown delivery office. They ended when pickets were withdrawn at the start of the evening shift.

There were other walkouts during the day by carriers and clerks in some other sections of the city.

Advises More Caution

Lewis Defends Shulman

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario New Democratic Leader Stephen Lewis gave a rousing defence of Morris Shulman in his keynote speech to the party's annual convention Friday night but warned that the NDP's crusading reformer would have to be more cautious in the future.

In a tough, frequently colorful speech the youthful leader also condemned the government for a welfare system that he said guarantees the poor will always be poor, and for cutbacks in hospital spending.

But his only standing ovation, except for the one at the end of his 24-page speech, came when he urged Dr. Shulman to continue the fight in the legislature for what he termed legitimate causes.

Dr. Shulman, who represents Toronto High Park, offered to resign, then changed his mind, after admitting in the legislature he had wrongly accused Attorney-General Dalton Bales of attending an election fundraising party staged by a man the NDP member linked with violence in the construction trade.

Both the government and Liberal opposition members called for his resignation.

"Morty Shulman chronicled a really quite terrifying problem in a small fraction of the construction industry in Metropolitan Toronto," Mr. Lewis said. "But in so doing he overstepped the bounds."

"So I urge Morty Shulman to exercise more care in the future but to stay and fight for what is legitimate."

The three-day convention, which ends Sunday with an address by David Lewis, national NDP leader was enlivened during floor debates on convention policy resolutions by the Left Caucus, a 75-member loose party group employing tactics similar to the Waffles. An extreme resolution group, the Waffles were ousted from the party last June.

This Moon Mission Least Dramatic

HOUSTON (CP) — Three industrious astronauts sailed today almost to within grasp of the moon's gravity in one of the most businesslike and unemotional missions of the Apollo program. Lunar orbit was just a day away.

Gone are the "gee whiz" reactions and television spectaculars from the spacecraft—only one had been scheduled early in the mission and that was cancelled. Instead, listeners on the ground were being given an exhaustive report on the earth's weather systems and scientific activities aboard the moonship.

Schmitt, mission commander Eugene Cernan and command module pilot Ronald Evans scheduled a final rehearsal today on the last manned U.S. moon landing—donning space suits, activating switches and awakening the lunar lander named Challenger.

The men of Apollo 17 perform the real thing Monday when Challenger sets down on the moon for an exploration science hopes will fill missing gaps about that world's evolution. The astronauts are to move into lunar orbit Sunday.

MONTREAL (CP) — La Presse, in a step unusual for an 86-year-old newspaper, publishes today a front-page policy statement rededicating itself to the interests of the Quebec community as part of Canada and to development of French culture on a basis of excellence.

The newspaper's policy redefinition follows its involvement in a long period of social turmoil including direct experience of trouble because of strikes, sit-ins and publication interruptions spread over almost 16 years.

Plane Plummets Into Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — A passenger jetliner carrying 61 persons was winging its way through sleet and snow to a landing at Midway Airport Friday when it plummeted down in a neighborhood of tidy bungalows on the city's Southwest Side, killing most of those aboard.

Among the 43 known victims was U.S. Representative George Collins (Dem. Ill.) while Michelle Clark, a CBS television news correspondent, was among the bodies tentatively identified at a morgue Friday night.

The survivors who were aboard the United Air Lines Boeing 727 jet were admitted to hospital for treatment.

It was not immediately determined if any residents of the neighborhood were killed when the two-engined jet skimmed over the roof of one home and slited through five other homes about a half-mile from the airport.

The tail section extended from one house and the shattered nose remained through a home and came to resi in an alley.

At least 29 persons resided in the section of homes, but many of the wives and husbands were either working or en route to schools to pick up the children when the crash occurred.

Marvin Anderson, a survivor treated and released from hospital, said he sensed something was wrong when the pilot reversed the engines in what Anderson thought was a "hopeless effort to abort the landing."

Egypt Wins UN Battle

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Egypt and non-aligned countries have won their biggest UN victory against Israeli occupation of Arab land, but its effect on settling the Middle East dispute is uncertain.

The General Assembly adopted the non-aligned countries' resolution late Friday, inviting states "to consult actions, including actions in the field of aid, that could constitute recognition" of the occupation.

The vote for the 18 nation proposal was 86 to 7, with 31 abstentions including Canada, compared with a 79 to 7 and 35 abstentions last year when a shorter and milder Middle East resolution was being considered.

Some observers speculated that the new resolution could be used by Egypt to slow demands by those pressing for war with Israel and thereby gain time for an eventual settlement.

Israeli Ambassador Yosef Tekoah told the assembly Israel would not be "engulfed by numbers" and would treat the new resolution "as a matter befitting a serious document." Tekoah called for an Israel-Arab dialogue to settle their differences.

U.S. Ambassador George Bush made it clear the United States would not cut off aid to Israel, in which it leads the world.

The United States also abstained from voting on Friday's resolution after the assembly defeated 65 to 24, with 31 abstentions, its bid for a separate vote on the reference to aid.

"This paragraph is directly contrary to United States policy on the matter of assistance," Bush said, "and cannot effect our attitude."

Bush said the new resolution "upset the careful balance" of the 1967 Security Council decision and the assembly could not expect that it would establish a new basis for peace in the Middle East.

The 1967 resolution calls for Israeli withdrawal from occupied territories and recognition of the sovereignty of all Middle East states within secure borders.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Window signs have appeared in the Kansas City area reading "Give 'em hell, Harry, let's get well," and 26-month-old former president Harry Truman still is in critical condition he is reported to be fighting back. The last medical bulletin of the night Friday described Truman's condition as "critical but slightly improved" following a late night feeding. The Research Hospital and Medical Centre statement said Truman, 88, "tolerated" 32 ounces of fluid wheat soya vitamin through a nasal tube between 7 and 10 p.m. EST.

Exports Improve

Canada's faltering exports may have taken a turn for the better in October, figures released Friday by Statistics Canada indicate. Exports for the first 10 months of this year are below those of the same months of 1971 for Europe and China, October exports to these areas showed increases over last year. Rising exports to the United States and Japan produced an over-all increase. Over-all October exports were $1.56 billion, up from $1.54 billion for October, 1971. The January-October total was $18.14 billion, up from $14.58 billion.

Peron Excluded

BUENOS AIRES (Reuter) — Argentina's governing military junta gave formal notice Friday that former president Juan Peron will not be allowed to be a candidate in general elections scheduled for next March. The junta, composed of the commanders-in-chief of the three armed forces, rejected a request from a group of political parties for repeal of a new two-year residency clause that excludes Peron.

Need New Jury

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The judge in the Pentagon Papers trial says he will declare a mistrial, dismiss the current jury and select a new one. Judge Matt Byrne of the U.S. district court announced his surprising decision Friday less than two hours after receiving word that the 9th Circuit U.S. Court of Appeal in San Francisco said it would be "foolish to proceed with the current jury." Byrne said he would issue his official ruling Monday, when defendant Daniel Ellsberg could be present.

Licence To Farm?

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — A proposal that farmers should be licensed was considered Friday at the annual meeting of the Christian Farmers Federation of Ont. Elbert Van Donkersgoed, CFF secretary-manager, said the idea of licensing was not meant to discourage anyone from becoming a farmer. Its purpose, he said, would be to ensure that only bona fide farmers benefitted from government farm programs.

Sentences Stiffened

NAPANEE, Ont. (CP) — Three of 14 prisoners who broke out of nearby Millhaven penitentiary July 10 in Canada's biggest jail break were sentenced to additional terms Thursday.

Donald Ong, 22, of London, Ont., received an additional 12 months to an 11-year term he was serving 20 years for armed robbery and other charges.

Six-month terms were imposed on Rudolph Nuss, 25, of Toronto, serving 20 years for armed robbery, and William Harding, 26, of Toronto, serving 12 years for armed robbery.

All pleaded guilty to escapist custody. Seven others have been sentenced and two of the 12 recaptured remain to be tried.

Sreto Dzambos, 22, of Toronto, who was doing life for non-capital murder, is being held in a jail in his native Yugoslavia on an assault charge.

Tree-Trapped Cat Rebuffs Rescue Tries

Frisky, the housecat of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Saunders, has ordered a phase of high-rise living. And the Saunders family is concerned.

The 11-month-old cat has been on an upper limb of a neighbor's tree since Thursday. Attempts to get it down had still failed today.

"The cat keeps meowing at you and we have tried to coax it down," says Mr. Saunders, "you get attached to the darn things, you know."

The Ontario Humane Society has indicated it is unable to get Frisky down. Compensation laws are keeping the Belleville Fire Department from taking action.

The police and the Belleville Utilities Commission could do nothing.

Says Mr. Saunders, the situation is complicated by the fact that homes along Queen Street in their neighborhood have garages, blocking access to the backyard tree where Frisky is precariously perched.

"Frisky likes its meals too," says the real estate and insurance broker: "the cat not only eats its own food but helps me eat mine too."

There is one hope for Frisky. An attempt will be made today by Mr. Saunder's brother-in-law, Malcolm Bell, a Bell Canada employee, to bring the cat down.

Mr. Bell, a former lineman, will scale the tree in an el-

Township Councillors Honored

AMELIASBURGH (Staff) — Ameliasburgh township councillors, board and committee members and local officials held a year-end banquet in the township hall here last night where two retiring municipal politicians were honored.

Master of ceremonies for the evening was township reeve Russell Thompson who may be a contender for election as county warden in 1973.

Guest speaker for the program was John McNeil, Ontario Department of education. He discussed the fluence of educational ideas such as the late Thorston Mustard on today's curriculum and termed Lloyd Dennis the parellel of this promineut teacher.

Mr. Mustard advocated correlation and was "a man of great vision". Today a new program of education has removed many of the labels once confronting students and teachers. Students with parental written consents, can study subjects for four years without working toward a diploma.

The association of pleasance and efficiency is becoming a reality", said Mr. McNeil.

Site for Metro Garbage Won't Be in Quinte Area

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Belleville - area municipalities can relax fears they could be selected as a dumping ground for Metro Toronto's surplus garbage, Ontario Environment Minister James Auld indicated yesterday.

The site would be much closer to Metro — probably on a sparsely - used rail line, he said.

Mr. Auld was queried on locales of the disposal site after officiating at opening ceremonies of expanded facilities at his ministry's Belleville Water Pollution Control Plant.

Metro last month selected CP Rail as the hauler of what could be a yearly 60-000 tons of untreated, surplus garbage, to an unnamed site outside Toronto. Reports placed the future dumping ground within a 125-mile radius — a possibility which evoked "grave" concern from Alderman Jean-Smith, chairman of Belleville's Solid Waste Disposal Committee.

Cause of her worry: Belleville - area municipalities not only were within the rim of the radius. They also are on a main CP line.

CP and environment ministry officials were apologetic but did not divulge any details when questioned, although confirming the choice of sites had been narrowed.

Reasons given the Intelligencer for secrecy included the fact premature disclosure would affect land prices before acquisition or options were exercised. The railroad wanted to have its case ready for expected local opposition when the choice was announced.

Mr. Auld was quoted as saying "all hell will break loose" when the site was revealed.

"As fas as I know there is no thought of coming east of Toronto — and certainly not this far east", said Mr. Auld yesterday.

Ministry officials had looked at 60 to 70 possible sites to help Metro and CP judge their suitability.

"But they are all in areas primarily where railroads have lines which are not heavily used and within, say, 30 to 60 miles of Toronto," Mr. Auld said.

Both CP and Canadian National lines in the Belleville area carry 47-heavy traffic load, he added.

The railroad's interest has focused on areas where lines are unused or lightly travelled he said.

Hastings Resolutions Approved by Farmers

The Ontario Federation of Agriculture at its annual convention in Hamilton has approved three resolutions submitted by the Hastings county organization.

The resolutions asked that the Ontario College of Pharmacy dispense and sell drugs as in the past without any restrictions; that farm machinery companies sell parts direct to farmers if they live at a greater distance than 30 miles from a dealer, and that the OFA investigate and try to determine who is responsible for the higher costs of concentrates, especially soybean meal.

Hastings county delegates attending the three day convention were Bill Langstaffe, RR3, Trenton; George Eisle, RR3, Stirling and county organization president Alex McCurdy.

Next year's convention may be held in Eastern Ontario if large enough accommodation can be arranged.

Four big provincial park reserves — one on the northwest boundary of Hastings County — are being held for future development in the natural resources ministry's Quinte district.

They are situated on Mc-Kenzie Lake, north of Lake St. Peter Park in northwest Hastings; near Kingston Mills on the Rideau Canal; in Frontenac County and Brougham township near Calabogie and Renfrew.

PICTON (Staff) — Picton town council has passed a motion opposing an increase in telephone rates proposed by Bell Canada.

"It's just 'buzz, ding, buzz, ding,' all the time I'm talking," stated the irate attorney as he supported the motion to fight the increase of rates.

One Government for Prince Edward Advocated

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — A brief prepared by the county government committee of Prince Edward County council has advocated a one - tier system with 24 representatives to replace the present two-tier government.

The brief, compiled during the past year and recently approved by council, was released yesterday to the press. Copies have been forwarded to several provincial officials and to James Taylor, MPP Prince Edward - Lennox.

The county government committee was instructed to prepare this report last June following a council motion to petition the Ontario government for permission to form its own county government and remain a separate region.

Prince Edward was suggested in the brief as ideal for one - tier government because its area has recognizable boundaries clearly delineating the proposed boundaries for an amalgamated county municipality. The county was termed "unusually homogenous" and it was observed its few immigrants have been successfully integrated with long established families. The counties 10 municipalities already are accustomed to working together under the present government system and no separated towns form an obstacle to amalgamation. Economic levels are not markedly different among the municipalities although population varies widely.

Generally, it was agreed that agriculture must be encouraged and maintained in the county but controlled industrial development and tourist development must be encouraged as a priority. Also, a county official plan covering the entire area is under preparation.

Under a one - tier government system, the present municipal boundaries would serve as areas for electoral wards. The brief recommended representation by population with one member from each ward for the first 1,500 population and an additional member for each additional 1,500 population. The determination of wards from the list revised each year from assessment roll.

Picton would be entitled to three representatives while Ameliasburgh and Hallowell would each have two members. The remaining seven municipalities would each have one representative.

The brief outlined the advantages of the proposed one-tier system, among them an even tax base. The tax base would be spread over a wide and all parts of the area would benefit from present economic assets or future developments. It was noted that members elected directly to the one - tier government would likely be more responsive to the electorate and qualified candidates would seek office since they would be required to serve on one council, not two.

Services such as waste disposal and fire protection could be provided more efficiently, effectively and economically through spreading them over the entire county's economy.

Municipal boundaries would be retained only for traditional identity and would be ignored completely for other municipal purposes. The brief stated, "In any case, assessment, municipal services would cross these boundaries without question in developed areas in need of service."

Personnel already were reviewed and the brief commented that instead of a tax collector for each of the 10 municipalities, one would be appointed for the area. Police would be staffed by two other persons. The office of the clerk - treasurer would remain "principally as it is to avoid hardship."

The county roads system would be administered more smoothly with proper planning and staging and this department probably would retain all present employees.

Social services would be administered on a county basis and the county would exist in a one - tier system. Research on the amalgamation of the Children's Aid Society and the Social Services Department at the local government should be conducted according to the brief.

The debentures of local municipalities would become the responsibility of the county government except those debentures chargeable on a local improvement basis, such as water and sewage. In these cases water and sewage would be arranged and the debenture payments for these services charged to these areas.

Police and fire protection would be handled on an area basis. Police protection would either be by arrangement with the Ontario Provincial Police or a municipal police force. Fire services now provided at the local level would merge with the area government.

For recreation and parks, it was recommended a department be established by an area government and this service should be area - wide. The Cemeteries Act provides for the maintenance of graveyards by the local municipalities. Legislation would be required to have this act apply to an area government.

Museums must be under local administration or public participation and incentive for their maintenance would be lost.

The brief observed, "Because of the rural character of the county the residents have nostalgic feelings toward the present system of a local government which has served so well for 120 years. While it is recognized that this system of local government is not as effective as it once was and will become less effective, it is nevertheless necessary for persons dealing with reorganization of the local government to recognize this feeling and deal with it sympathetically."

Ackerman Fires A Parting Shot At Her Successor

PICTON (Staff) — Picton mayor Mary Ackerman has fired a parting shot at mayor-elect Harvey J. McFarland at last night's final council meeting of the year suggesting he has no right to speak for industrial use of Loch Sloy Holdings.

Mayor Ackerman said during her two years in office no negotiations were possible with the Toronto group regarding this property adjacent to Edward Heights, although Prince Edward industrial commissioner William Reid had numerous inquiries from industries interested in "that very serviceable land."

"I am sorry that Mr. McFarland, who has talked many times he has the best interests of the town at heart, would hold out for two years," she asserted.

The mayor added that "now the door is open for negotiations" and it is believed two industries will be announced soon.

She commended her successful opponent for maybeing will return to "a very different council than I was used to." Former reeve Bernard Hepburn was defeated in 1970 and it was then that long-time deputy reeve Donald Thompson retired. Reginald Hourie, town solicitor, died in 1970.

"There are only three of the present council returning to office. It will be a very difficult two years for the new councillors with all the new legislation and I sincerely hope not too arduous for the administration," she said.

The mayor urged new councillors to be vigilant for conflict of interest and emphasized a need for qualifications for the good of the town and county.

She described her two years in office as "very worthwhile" and remarked "it has been an effective, controversial council criticized a fit at times frustrated."

A true decision for the benefit of all can be reached in two years only by bringing all views under discussion.

"I feel we are turning over the affairs of the town in excellent condition with many projects completed and a projected working surplus of $43,000.

Picton Reeve Albert Proth and councillors Lawrence Williams Lane, Corey Walraven and Harold McLoughlin spoke briefly of the past two years in council as they completed the only one of the group to seek re-election and was defeated by deputy reeve James Bird.

Dump Fee Pollutes, PACE Told

Take the price tag off going to the dump, Belleville policemen fighters were urged Tuesday night.

Since Quinte Sanitation took over the Belleville garbage contract, residents have had to pay at least $2 to truck their garbage privately to the dump.

The result has been abuses, said Albert Lemiu, defeated aldermanic candidate for city council.

Mr. Lemiu said the fee for garbage dumping has led to widespread abuses as residents throwing off their garden refuse, trees, ranges, refrigerators and spent household furnishings at any curbside or concealed roadside location.

He appeared before a PACE (Progressive Action Committee) meeting last night to urge action on the household garbage disposal problem.

"The city collects unusual garbage about three times a year," he said. "Collection is slated, say for the first of October. The resident puts his garbage out on the first, and it is finally collected about the 28th. This discourages him, and the next time he decides on a do-it-yourself project, only to be confronted by the dump fee.

PACE executives agreed to ask city council for direct access by city residents to the dump, so that pollution at the approach roads could be stopped.

Helicopters to Patrol Dwindling Deer Herds

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Helicopter patrols are being organized in a drive against deer poachers in the Quinte district.

The action comes as official concern appears increasing over depletion of Ontario's deer herds — a situation that also has hunters and conservationists worried.

Poaching is not seen as the major cause of the dwindling number of deer. Nonetheless, it is a contributing factor provincial wildlife authorities are anxious to reduce.

Air surveillance of Quinte bush country and known deer habitats will be launched within the next two weeks, a wildlife official at the natural resources ministry's Bancroft district office said today.

The patrols will be flown regularly. The policing action is part of a drive in which wildlife authorities are seeking public co-operation against illegal killing of the district's most populous big-game animal.

"We'd like the public to support and help us in reducing the poaching problem," says Russ Whitfield, Tweed district wildlife management officer.

Predation — whether by humans, wildlife predators or killer domestic dogs at large — is seen as only a partial contributor to the deer population drop. Pinpointing root ongoing study by ministry biologists, says Mr. Whitfield.

Harsh winters and natural deterioration of deer ranges providing food and shelter may be major factors, he adds.

A succession of hard winters — in which short-legged fawns bogged in deep snow die of starvation — has contributed to the depletion. And climatologists say there may be more such fatal seasons.

winter weather and food availability. Because deer are browsers, the closer the food is to ground level the better. Deer yards — areas where deer assemble to wait out the winter — must also provide proper shelter from the cold winds.

For some six years yard improvement programs have several Quinte yards.

Selective cutting — to encourage the accessible growth without damaging shelters — will again be carried out this winter.

But natural changes in the deer habitat areas are difficult to offset. Forest fires and lumbering once provided much of the needed new growth.

And, says Mr. Whitfield, lumbering in many areas used by deer can be ruled out. Many of the trees are junk wood — and would not economically support logging company operations.

Man-made improvements unrestricted by financial limits. There's only so much money allocated from the public budget, however. Any natural environmental change — a gradual process not readily detected — cannot be instantly altered.

"A main thing is the improvement of the deer yard areas," says Mr. Whitfield. But you have to work on a pretty large scale. You can't change conditions around in a few years."

Recently, ministry biologist Bert Post told a regional annual meeting of the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters, such improvements had staved off disaster in larger herd concentrations but such measures had little impact on the deer population."

One problem in the population decline is a reduction in the number of hunter kills, which were down 25 per cent in the Tweed area, says Mr. Whitfield.

Lack of success also discourages hunting and there were not as many marksmen in the bush during the season just ended, he said. It's a trend current in the last four years.

The "last many" dead deer were found by wardens during the past season, Mr. Quinte hunting areas are in the southern zone. The province, the wildlife official ponders if weather may not be a more important factor in the population drop.

Mr. Post told hunters at the Oshawa meeting one mild winter would increase herds "more than almost any other way. But another severe winter and we'll suffer a decrease that we can't make up merely by saving the herd."

Planning Levies To Be 'Adjusted'

The deputy minister of treasury, economics and interprovincial affairs has advised Murray township that action on the township Board's rural municipalities.

H. T. MacDonald also says in the letter to the township that "we (the ministry) do not consider the double levy that the township council pays to the planning board is unfair to your ratepayers."

"The senior government official added that there should be no need for your township to recommend to this two separate planning programs."

Murray and Brighton township and Brighton village contribute to both county planning and Quinte regional planning.

The deputy minister also says that problems outlined by Murray relating to participation in both planning areas should be resolved when reorganization of local government east of Toronto is complete."

On the question of what value Murray was getting from its participation in QPB, Mr. MacDonald said "It is our understanding the township has received more than just copies of minutes and planning board agendas."

He suggests that Murray take up its particular planning needs and its questions as to the appropriateness of current planning activities at the next QPB meeting.

Sandbanks Mystery

After months of campaigning by environmentalists and public against what they consider is the rape of this unique geological phenomenon by Lake Ontario Cement Company Ltd., all of a sudden they more or less have what they want.

That is, the company has not removed sand from its leased site adjacent to the (Sandbanks) provincial park since September, when the Pits and Quarries Act when into force in Hallowell township. Yet the general feeling is that company jobs are paramount — that work on the site should go on, for the two years or so, at least, recommended recently in a Government report while the search continues for an alternate supply of sand.

The Davis government meanwhile has been petitioned by more than 2,000 signatories in Prince Edward calling for a continuance of operations. Premier Davis has replied that he was confident a solution can be found that will safeguard plant employment. At the same time the government has chided the company for its apparent lack of effort in finding an alternate quarrying site.

Such a site if available, should surely have been found by now. It is time someone came up with a statement whether a suitable alternate site does exist. Otherwise, what of the government's assurance that plant jobs will be preserved? There is an aura of mystery about the whole situation at present that is disturbing. As it is, the controversy has ranged from wanting operations to be closed down, to assurances that jobs must come first, to the situation we have at present — suspension of quarrying operations. Will anyone with a solution to this confusing situation please stand up.

PM's British Visit

Like our own Prime Minister, Britain's Edward Heath — when he has the chance — is a man of the outdoors.

Thus while showing Mr. Trudeau around his country residence at Chequers outside London, it was the British leader who adopted the sporty look — in thick sweater and slacks while Mr. Trudeau, looking a little shy, wore a tie with his check suit.

We suspect that Mr. Heath ,for all his toughness as a politician and his love of the outdoors, especially his passion for yachting, is also a shy and gentle sort of man. Underneath, another of his personal accomplishments, incidentally, reflects this introspective side of his character. That is, his interest in music . . . he plays the organ with a professional touch, and recently he conducted a leading concert orchestra.

Mr. Heath is also very British, as they say, and even for men as worldly and as travelled as Mr. Trudeau, this can take some getting used to in such human situations. For all that, the two would seem to have much in common, with Mr. Trudeau only recently having shaken off the bachelor status to which Mr. Heath still clings. Both men may be described as pragmatic, a word which Mr. Trudeau has made almost his own.

It is said the Prime Minister's visit got little mention in the British Press. What did appear was none too complimentary. The Times spoke of his "long and boring" answers at a Press conference and even accused him of "grumbling." Well, we are accustomed to scant attention from the overseas Press . . . and after all it was a brief encounter with the British scene. Still, even with his minority leadership status, we are sure Mr. Trudeau represented Canada with aplomb in this meeting with the British leader.

Smart Group

Having back for a moment to the Santa Claus parade was there ever a smarter looking and more alert group of young men than the fledgling Yardmen's band that marched briskly along to their own instrumental accompaniment. It was a fine effort, as was that of every other participant and group. The youthful Yardmen's group though really caught the eye.

Government Faces Tightrope Budget Walk on Tax Issues

By HENRY REALD
From The Intelligencer's
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Finance Minister John Turner says the first duty of a government is to govern in the best long-term interests of the country as a whole — "and that is a duty we intend to perform."

Pretty tough talk for a senior minister in a government whose attempts to govern may lack it in an election campaign as the drop of a hat — or more correctly, at the drop of a socialist's support.

"We are not prepared to seek short-lived political or economic advantages at the expense of Canada's future," Mr. Turner said.

Conservative Leader Stanfield should welcome such an assurance. It is exactly what he said should be the attitude of all parties in the Commons when the House sits on Jan. 4. Canadians, too, should all be pleased. It could only be a refreshing change to see a government put a clear policy before the Commons and let the chips fall where they may.

But in the current situation, the position of the Liberal Party is like that of the hog in the joke about the chicken and the pig going in for bacon and eggs.

"For you it's a contribution," the pig says, "but for me it's total commitment."

For the Liberals, the result of stepping out fearlessly is likely to be either an immediate handing over to Mr. Stanfield, or at best another election; while for the Conservatives, the result is all good.

If the government survives the want-of-confidence motions that will come from all parties during the Throne Speech debate, the next delicate matter will be the legislation to implement the proposals of Mr. Turner's budget of last May 8.

Both the Conservatives and the New Democrats are pressing for tax cuts, but their different views on the matter may allow them to support various bills in such a way that the government may squeeze through. If ever the Tories and the NDP unite on one issue, the government will be defeated.

NDP Leader David Lewis has made the corporate tax system the chief enemy. His party will strongly oppose the legislation necessary to implement the fast write-offs and the tax reductions for the manufacturing and processing industries.

But the Conservatives can be expected to support such moves as they are in line with the Tories' own proposals for fighting unemployment. Mr. Lewis is gambling on Conservative support for the Liberals on those items so he can naive his socialist conscience and live up to his election promises without having to risk defeating the government.

It is in the field of personal income tax where the government will be in the greatest danger. What started out as simply a demand that the three-per-cent income tax reduction begun by Edgar Benson be continued for another year, has grown into an articulate campaign to cut personal income taxes as a means of fighting inflation, stimulating the economy and reducing unemployment.

Mr. Lewis brushed off the Conservative move by saying the five-cent tax time by saying that the New Democrats would not be content to call a delayed increase by the dignified name of a reduction. They would be pushing for something more substantial than that.

Well, so are the Conservatives; and now they have the ninth annual review of the Economic Council of Canada to back them up. On top of that, there is growing concern about the increasing complexity of the income tax structure.

Mr. Turner brought out the same arguments that were made in the debate on the tax reform bill and in his budget speech. New deduction schedules will take a million people off the income tax rolls and lower taxes for more than four million more. Senior citizens get a bigger deduction, more medical costs are tax deductible and parents paying for university students can deduct $50 per month.

But now it turns out that even some senior citizens who have not made income tax returns for years will have to fill out the forms to qualify for certain special grants. James Gillies, one of the Tory financial spokesmen, says the new income tax forms are so complicated that even low income persons will need professional help.

Mr. Turner says the government will not "be stampeded into taking actions that are financially self-defeating". But as pressure grows for major tax policy changes, it will become more and more difficult for the liberal government to avoid policies that are not politically self-defeating.

Newspaper's Mistakes Come in for Lashing

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

"I am unstuck, my bowels rumble, my bones cry out in protest. You have gone too far.

I refer to your CP News Roundup appearing Valley Boy Sued for $400 Million."

As an average guy who finds his newspaper — your newspaper rather important to him. I must protest the write-up as printed on page 17, Tuesday, Dec. 5. A fifth count there were at least 42 mistakes in the printing which is inexcusable. The art of orthography has hit a new low.

Recently, on TV, Lord Thomson stated he was proud of all his newspapers and I wondered then as I wonder now about my intell. Good Lord do some thing — anything. Hire a good reader. Up my subscription price, go out of business, anything.

We have received our papers with sentences incomplete, paragraphs left in limbo, words just gone I know not where, pages with the bottom half missing (probably gobbled by a machine in the dank depths). Ann Landers sounding like Al Capp captions misplaced, to name a few of my bang-ups.

But what about me? I cannot cry anymore nor sob, just a shrill giddy wild laugh, all meaningless to me, but always expecting the next edition will put things right. Please don't wait for spring. Do it now. Let the bowl well again, my hockey team win. You can do it.

Now, if you print this, please leave all mistakes in some other write-up. I will await the comfort of my friends, always hoping.

CLYDE H. POPE

Editor's Note: We regret such errors and want to thank Mr. Pope for his interest in making a protest. There is a saying that some businesses charge for their mistakes, others pay for them while newspapers publish theirs. In this case the errors were typographical, they were caught by the proofreader, but the corrected type was mislaid.

Administrator Answers Criticism of Hospital

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

It is, I think, Mr. Editor, a fair assumption that people react when they consider they are unfairly criticized. Hospital Boards, administrators and doctors — and apparently Editors — are no exception.

Dr. Douglas, who incidentally is president of the Medical Staff and therefore a member of the Board of Governors, felt it's remain front page headline unfair to himself and the over 90 percent of the physicians who use the hospital facilities in a comparable way to provide statistical averages. Others appeared to agree with this when your reporter, in a most straight forward way, asked leave to speak at the meeting of the Board of Governors and apologized for the situation.

It was felt that the matter had passed into history until it was resurrected by your editorial. So it becomes my turn to over-react when you state, "A reporter investigating highway accidents can be passed from pillar to hospital administration post in efforts to ascertain a general description of a crash victims' physical condition".

You are aware that soon after my arrival in Belleville in 1967, a Press Code was mutually agreed upon governing our relationship and specifically dealing with such matters. My understanding is that this arrangement — and indeed our public relations generally — has worked well up to this point. If it had not been so, I am sure you would not have hesitated to tell me. Let me make it quite clear that the administrative staff appreciates the relationship that has existed and hopes that by mutual understanding it may continue.

The dissemination of technical information accurately is a matter which is equally of interest, I am sure, to the newspaper as it is to the Hospital. Incidentally, Mr. Editor, the whole point at issue is the degree of overutilization of hospital facilities, a factor for which every hospital in the Province, in fact in Canada, has come under fire. The facts, then, are important.

The average length of stay of Belleville General Hospital is 9.5 days. The Provincial average length of stay in comparable-sized hospitals in Ontario is 9.3 days. The difference is .2 and not 2.59 days as stated in your editorial. Using the Provincial average length of stay for the first eight months of this year would have produced 69,722 patient days instead of the 71,594 active patient days — an overutilization of 1,872, which equals 2.69 per cent.

I would thank you for the opportunity of clarifying the situation.

PHILIP RICKARD
Executive Director

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mr. Rickard is to be thanked for clarifying the exact extent of Belleville General Hospital's above average duration of patient stay.

Kenneth Smith, who covered the last BGH board meeting, denies "apologizing" to hospital staff for any embarrassment that may have been created by Dr. Fuller's remarks concerning inefficiency at the Belleville hospital, although he did express regret that no complete picture may have been presented due to the fact hospital officials declined substantial comment on the BGH efficiency situation.

"Global Villages" Propaganda And The Wives Who Wait

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

It is true that governments and multi-national corporations contact each other through international news and communications wizardry like Telex, satellites or the hot-line connecting the Kremlin and the White House.

But the basic messages which flash back and forth between societies in our world—common human experiences of love, hate, suffering and hope—are rarely transmitted via our communications technology.

In the rarified atmosphere of scientific conferences, or those living in an "electric age" as Professor McLuhan also puts it, what we have communicated in print and how we communicate it, is since the Renaissance, and the dawn of the Renaissance, with which it is changed to make sense in this "electric age."

Most of the great human messages — of love, sorrow, the Christian truths of the Bible which are the most widely printed in the West, and the books of the intellectuals who produced the ideas of the French Revolution—and most profound literature after it, have been misunderstood and twisted by men.

We are definitely not a "global village" when some can say like Joseph Goebbels, one of the greatest propagandists of all time, could have been one of the greatest advertising idea-men of all time, given a little more grace and circumstance for his talent in history. Those who were said, obviously believe it.

There is a current situation which shows how far away we are from sharing common human anguish and fear, sorrow and loneliness.

The powerful and aggressive anti-Vietnam war groups in the United States and in Canada have laid on our doorstep the suffering of the North Vietnamese people from indiscriminate, heavy U.S. air raids.

They have successfully come to communicate to virulent anti-war protesters that the thousands of American prisoners of war held in North Vietnam's prisoner-of-war-camps, are as much the pawn of war makers as the peasants they have bombed.

Does the average Canadian, even one with a recent family experience of loss, truly understand or care, about the torture of waiting for a husband or an only child prisoner in North Vietnam which many American women are enduring, some of them for as long as seven years?

Between 1964 and 1969, a number of U.S. defence department ordered these very unhappy women to dismiss their husbands' imprisonment with the press, or even to condemn each other about their captured husbands. But in 1969, Washington's madness was too much for the waiting wife of a Navy captain, the most senior North Vietnamese prisoner of war.

She told the press the story of her anguish about the man long separated from her, and since there has been no direct negotiation while her family grows and changes during the years of waiting for a father who hasn't seen them.

The result was the formation of a loose-knit association of these wives who had been misunderstood even in their own neighborhoods as to why they would wait for men often not listed as prisoners of war, but definitely not known to be dead.

Think of them at Christmas, these wives now so far from us in the cities and towns of urban and mid-America as your exercise in bringing "the global village" closer to reality.

Unemployment Insurance Benefits

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The Canadian Chamber of Commerce frequently demonstrates its poor understanding of the economic and social ills of the country. A recent statement by the president in relation to unemployment in Canada emphasizes this.

In attacking so-called abuses of the Unemployment Insurance scheme, Mr. John Ellis inferred that remedial action in this direction was what was required. Nothing is further from the truth. The problem is unemployment itself — not real, or imagined abuses of the scheme.

The raucous critics of the new Act seem unwilling to look at the possibility that some people may be getting something for nothing rather than espousing a genuine concern for a solution for the unemployment problem.

First, there is little evidence, indeed, to suggest any undue abuse of unemployment insurance benefits. Next, if civilization seems to stem from certain provisions contained in the act which allow benefits to be paid after only eight qualifying weeks of work, certainly does appear to be overly generous when a person, after only eight weeks of work can draw possibly 26 weeks of benefit. Just the same, at the risk of the invidia any person registered for unemployment insurance declares he is ready, able and willing to work he is not doing anything illegal.

Canada's unemployed are not so by their own choice. They are the victims of our society — a society that elects to live by and under the concept of the free enterprise system.

The free enterprise system depends on a market economy driven by the profit motive. Under the foregoing, the consumer appetite must be constantly whetted by advertising. Advertising calculated to make the consumer dissatisfied with what he has and anxious to purchase anew. Basically, it is this dissatisfaction that creates demand, which in turn creates jobs.

Today, with automation an integral part of the advances of the technological era, more is being produced by less. It is as simple as that. As we become more involved in reacting to the technological advances of our times and it is realized that machines can make more profit than men (without the possibility of profit destruction by strikes) the more men and women will have on the unemployment lists of Canada.

So what do we do with those who are our victims? Take them outside and dispose of them or make provision for their well-being by imaginative legislation such as the new Unemployment Insurance Act.

Quebec Drivers Face Demerit System in '73

Trois-Rivieres Le Nouvelliste: Quebec motorists have just learned they may be subjected to a point demerit system beginning March 1, 1973. Points would be added to their licence according to a graduated scale of highway and criminal infractions.

The motorists who has accumulated nine points would be liable for temporary suspension of licence. Those who accumulate 12 points would see their licence suspended for three months.

Naturally, no one should dare to oppose the principles of this scheme. It is high time the government authorities did all they could to civilize imprudent motorists or those who have the unfortunate tendency to regard the roads as race tracks. This scheme will, perhaps, make them realize the gravity of their behavior when they are behind the wheels of their cars.

Those who are tempted to cry out against such a scheme are without doubt those who are the first to ignore the highway code. Such a system, without a doubt, has its weak gaps, but one must realize that it is already in operation in other Canadian provinces and has proved its worth. All that's left to determine is whether Quebec drivers are more stupid than those in other provinces.

Despite everything, the system has its advantages and we sincerely hope that the department of transport authorities will appeal to the intelligence of both the motorists and the policemen who will be held prisoner in North Vietnam which many American women

Christian Bound To Be an Optimist

By REV. GORDON SMYTH, D.D.

In a remarkable way, H. G. Wells was a symbol of twentieth century man. For most of his life this English novelist, sociologist and popular historian was an ambassador of secular hope. He was an apostle of a new religion intended to provide the dynamic of "the redemption of himself, by himself and for himself."

This religion, to which many educators and medical men are still clinging, repudiates the biblical understanding of man's nature, refusing to acknowledge the hard fact of human sin. It scoffs at the notion of eternal life. It makes an idol of the mind of man. It recently caused a collegiate teacher to say "I see rather cheerfully, "I have no faith" and a medical practitioner, who is supposed to be "great" in counselling young people in trouble, to ask: "How is if he did not know what I was talking about, "What are ethics?"

However, H. G. Wells was unable to maintain his optimistic view of man's natural capacities. (The tragedy often is that commended leaders pull others down with them. In their egocentric speculations and pessimiveness.) Shortly before his death in 1946, Wells wrote, "The bright day is done, and we are for the dark. The world is at the end of its history. The end of everything we call life is at hand, and cannot be evaded." The apostle of the dawn of man's self-sufficiency had become a gloomy prophet of the night.

A few years ago I read the prediction that the time was coming when half the population in our global village would be employed attending the other half in a psychedelic institution co-existence with the globe. I smiled. I no longer smile. Do you know how extensively explosive our human situation has become emotionally. Do you believe that the lid would be blown right off the average community if not for the measure of traditional morality the public has not yet learned to surrender. Do you appreciate how much we owe, in keeping what sanity we have, to the biblical concept of hope

Only now do views his contemporaries as antiquated "Jewish" precepts. Later he defied the Communists when they sought to silence his voice by keeping him out of his church in East Berlin, by force across the boundary. Such was the calm, moral grandeur of the Evangelical faith, that not a soldier dared stand in his way, not a rifle was fired at him.

If H. G. Wells symbolized secular man, Otto Dibelius symbolized the Christian each of us should endeavour to be. Now his words: "It is altogether erroneous to suppose that individuals can exert a decisive influence on the inner life of their church. That inner life follows its own laws. The individual is carried on the wave; he cannot direct it. One can do his duty, his very modest duty. Everything else one has to leave to the providence of God."

So, as we approach another Christmas, let us bring ourselves to the astronomical tick of God's time and leave to the secular world by man's panic or unrest. Focus your faith on the eternal light that has been shed from Bethlehem. Rejoice in hope as you live out the reality of life's morning star.

Columnist Has Book On Christ

Rev. Gordon C. Smyth, whose column appears in this newspaper on Saturdays, has produced a book in time for Christmas. The 82 page paperback is on the life of Christ, under the title "The Human Face of God".

The 17 chapters range in theme from "The Land and the Promise" to the Ascension climax under the caption, "The King on a White Horse".

The foreword has been written by Dr. W. F. Banister, Professor of Practical Theology, Queen's Theological College, Kingston. He considers the book of special value for lay people, in particular Dr. Banister says: "I believe the author is very successful in his venture. Mr. Smyth presents a highly interesting and deeply moving account of Jesus' life and ministry. My general impression of the chapters is that they are evangelical in tone with devotional overtones."

The book appears to be ecumenical in nature. Archbishop J. C. Hanley of St. Mary's Roman Catholic Cathedral, Kingston, described his own reaction. "I set it aside at first," he remarks, "intending to read a section of it at a time, when I had a few minutes. However, after reading the first two chapters I found it so interesting that I stayed with it the same evening until I finished it. I found it very good."

Mr. Smyth is currently minister of Central Lenark Parish of the United Church of Canada. He and his wife and daughter live in Perth. Prior to that Eastern Ontario area after serving three city churches. Toronto (Yonge Street), Ottawa (Parkdale), and Peterborough (St. Andrew's).

Catholic Unity Appears Finished

NEW YORK (AP) — An analysis of attitudes among Americans, published here says their former unity in moral-religious views "seems to be finished" and they are becoming "virtually indistinguishable" from Protestants.

In such groups, similar varieties of opinion have arisen on such matters as church attendance, sexual mores and abortion, the study says.

Citing statistical comparisons between now and 10 years ago, the study says the rapid shifting of Protestants, Catholics, paralleling older Protestant trends, has come even though the Second Vatican Council meetings remain unchanged. The report adds:

"They are shifts that the official church neither recognizes nor appears to be much worried about."

The study, the first in a planned series of yearly monitoring reports on attitudes and behavior of U.S. Catholics, is based on survey statistics gathered by the National Opinion Research Centre at the University of Chicago.

The centre's director, Rev. Andrew M. Greely, a priest-sociologist, and co-author, Rev. Ilam C. McCready, say in the report that a "marked similarity" has developed between Catholics and Protestants in their views on abortion.

Both have quantified their attitudes about it and "there is not nearly the religious difference over this question that conventional wisdom has intimated," says the report, issued initially in the national weekly news-paper Critic.

On sexual morality, the report also notes that Catholics and Protestants now are "quite alike" in their attitudes about premarital intercourse.

In both groups, about 50 per cent think it "always wrong" or "almost always wrong"; 28 per cent of Catholics, per cent "wrong only sometimes"; 21 per cent of Catholics and 24 per cent of Protestants think it "not wrong at all."

Most Roman Catholic laity and clergy now also reject the church's long standing opposition, the study notes, accepting a birth control practice long approved by most Protestants.

Although Roman Catholics traditionally have been more frequent churchgoers than Protestants, the patterns now are becoming more similar, mainly due to changed habits among Catholics under 40, the study says.

It says that 71 per cent of Catholics went to mass at least once a week in 1963, compared with only 35 per cent in 1972, with most of the decline occurring in the younger age groups.

New Rabbis Selected In Israel

TEL AVIV (AP) — Legend says that when the Old Testament was handed down from heaven, a sword was wrapped in the scrolls.

Two men forged by the sword said the Bible are preparing to take over as chief rabbis of Israel.

One is a retired brigadier-general, Shlomo Goren, silver-bearded former chaplain to the Israeli defense forces, veteran paratrooper, winner of a sharp-shooter's badge, and the man who succeeded to middle ancient Jewish law to suit life in modern army.

The other is Iraqi-born Ovadiah Yosef, who as a rabbinical judge in Egypt 24 years ago opposed the authorities and helped hundreds of Jews escape in a modern exodus to Israel.

Goren and Yosef were elected to head the religious establishment by 150 Jewish biblical scholars and politicians who reflect the intolerance of the previous chief rabbis toward Israel's secular majority.

"Anyone who thinks I am going to course revolutions is mistaken," Goren said after the election. "I do not intend to devote one knife from Halachic ancient Jewish law." But he added he intends to prove that "it is possible to live in modern times in keeping with the law."

Yosef said his ambition was to "restore the rabbinate—which has sunk to an all-time low—to its former glory."

Goren, 55, a father of three, and Yosef, 52, who has 11 children, are expected to take office in about two months. Goren was elected to lead Israel's Ashkenazic community of European-born Jews. Yosef heads the Sephardim of oriental extraction.

Goren was considered the more prodigy among biblical scholars. He wrote his first book at 17, and was selected by Israel's first chief rabbi to be "the wonder of a generation and stand among the greatest of Israel."

As chief military chaplain, Goren managed to integrate religious soldiers of the army and western communities, whose different customs often led to violence. The rabbi has said he hopes to carry on the integration among civilians.

To many Israelis, who are not particularly religious, the fine points of Jewish law matter little. But the non-religious are deeply affected by other issues left unanswered—to their satisfaction—by the outgoing chief rabbis. Such as: May Israelis marry? Are conversions by non-orthodox rabbis legal? May public transport and entertainment run on Saturday, the Jewish Sabbath?

And the most divisive of all—who is a Jew?

St. Nicholas Relics Given Greek Church

NEW YORK (AP) — Relics of St. Nicholas, historical progenitor of Santa Claus, were enshrined Tuesday night in a Greek Orthodox church.

The relics had been in the Roman Catholic cathedral in Bari, Italy, since the 11th century, and their gift was described as one more sign of rapprochement between the two ancient churches.

"I hope this will continue to be a sign of our unity in Christ," said Most Rev. Frankin Magavero, the Roman Catholic bishop of Brooklyn. "These remnants of St. Nicholas belong to all humanity."

"We are uniting Christianity under the shadow of the cross and the crucifix," said Archbishop Iakovos, the Greek Orthodox primate of North and South America.

St. Nicholas was the bishop of Myra in Asia Minor in the fourth century. Western Christians brought his remain to Bari after the great schism in the church in 1054.

Most of the relics remain sealed in a vault in Bari, but Archbishop Iakovo donated a fragment of the coffin in which the relics had been buried. Also reported, some skull fragments and a vial of myrrh.

Poor Harvest

KENTVILLE, N.S. (CP) — Growers in Nova Scotia harvested 1.4-million - quarts of strawberries in 1972, about one-fifth million quarts below a normal harvest, the provincial agriculture department reported. The poor harvest represents a loss of $400,000 to growers. The department said wilderkill and late frosts in May bad damaged strawberry plants.

Shulman Says Bales 'Knew'

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Morton Shulman said Friday that the Attorney-General Dalton Bales had prior knowledge of information the NDP member used in a controversial speech in the Ontario legislature this week.

Dr. Shulman told the house that the attorney-general "knowingly" allowed his reputation to be besmirched in the speech in which Dr. Shulman said Mr. Bales was seen at a fund-raising party at the home of a man the NDP member linked with racketeering in the construction industry.

Dr. Shulman, member for Toronto High Park, later retracted the statement when the private detective he said was his source said he had never seen Mr. Bales at the party.

He said that since Mr. Bales had advance knowledge of the information yet allowed him to make the speech "I ask the newspaper editors and the Liberals to look to their consciences as to which member really should resign."

He noted that Conservative and Liberal members, and Toronto editorials demanded his resignation "without strings" because he besmirched the reputation of the attorney-general.

Dr. Shulman said everyone has "overlooked" the role of Mr. Bales.

"As long ago as Sept. 29 I informed a senior government official of the information which was given to me about Dalton Bales, and as recently as last week I was questioned by a senior police official as to whether I intended to mention the alleged visit of the attorney-general in my speech."

Dr. Shulman said Mr. Bales came to the legislature "and pretended surprise" but was not sufficiently upset to forestall the information.

"On the other hand, he awaited my speech with anticipation, knowing it would allow him to completely discredit a political opponent."

Dr. Shulman asked if "the attorney-general's reputation has been besmirched did I do it by presenting information which I believed to be true—or did he do it by knowingly allowing me to do so?"

Earlier this week, Dr. Shulman offered to resign if Premier Davis would call an immediate byelection but Mr. Davis said he would not "bargain" with the NDP member.

He said Dr. Shulman should resign unconditionally because of the erroneous charges.

Police Break Law

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial police officers driving 1973 cruisers are breaking the law, Albert Roy (L—Ottawa East) said in the legislature Friday. All new cars in effect are breaching the Highway Traffic Act, which states that a vehicle must not have headlights of more than 300 candlepower, he said, asking Solicitor-General John Yaremko to change the act.

Province Pays

TORONTO (CP) — Leo Bernier, natural resources minister, announced Friday that under the Conservation Authorities Act he can grant conservation authorities 100 per cent of the cost of any project under the 1972-73 winter works program. Most of the work would involve repairs to picnic tables, fences and signs, general renovations and landscaping and the improvement of undeveloped properties.

Breath Test Can't Wait

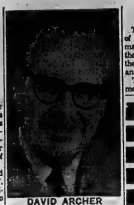
TORONTO (CP) — Police cannot allow suspects to wait for their lawyers before taking breath analysis tests because it would negate any charge being laid, Solicitor-General John Yaremko of Ontario said Friday.

Replying in the legislature to a question by Albert Roy (L—Ottawa East), Mr. Yaremko said that under the Criminal Code the test has to be given within two hours.

Mr. Roy suggested that, based on a recent court decision, "if it is a question between the two hours and the right to consult counsel, the right to consult counsel takes precedence."

Mr. Yaremko replied that the suspect should be given reasonable time to get in touch with either his solicitor or anyone else, "but the police officer should be aware of the fact that there is a time factor involved and if the time runs out, the breath analysis test will not be applicable."

No Parole Until Loot Recovered



WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Four persons were handed jail terms totalling more than 55 years Friday for their part in last December's $1.3-million bank robbery of the main Windsor branch of the Royal Bank of Canada.

Judge Bruce J. S. Macdonald sentenced Donald Derosie, 37, of Tecumo, and George Davison, 44, of Mississauga, Ont., to 20 years each in jail.

Judge Macdonald recommended that the pair not be paroled until the more than $1 million still missing from the holdup is recovered.

James Ernest MacArthur, 40, of Montreal was handed a 15-year sentence and a $75,000 fine or five extra years in jail. Edna Lefebvre, 46, of Mississauga was given an indeterminate term not to exceed 18 months.

All four defence lawyers indicated they would appeal.

DAVID ARCHER

New Minimum 'Big Deal'

TORONTO (CP) — "Big deal," said one union leader Friday when he heard that Ontario's minimum wage will rise to $1.80 from $1.65 Feb. 1.

David Archer, president of the Ontario Federation of Labor, said Ontario's minimum wage comes to $72 for a 40-hour week or perhaps $63 a week after deductions. He said the federation calls for a $2.75-an-hour minimum wage.

All Christians Welcome

TORONTO (CP) — Members of any Christian church now may partake of communion in the Anglican Church of Canada, the Anglican House of Bishops announced Friday.

The House of Bishops, meeting of all Anglican bishops in Canada, also agreed that members of the Anglican church may receive communion in non-Anglican churches where they are welcome.

Indian Upholds Loss of Status

OTTAWA (CP) — Indian women lost their descendants who lost their status through mixed marriages have been justly stripped of their treaty rights, a treaty Indian said Friday.

Vicki Crowchild, a Sarcee Indian from Edmonton, was commenting following a three-day conference on Indian rights for Indian women.

Miss Crowchild, a consultant for the Treaty Voice of Alberta, an organization which works to preserve the Indian Act in its present form, claimed that the resolutions adopted by the conference did not represent the opinions of most treaty Indian women.

About 300 native women, both st... non-status, voted to intervene on behalf of Jeannette Corbiere Lavell, whose fight to retain her Indian status comes before the Supreme Court of Canada in March.

Mrs. Lavell, a 29-year-old Ojibway, lost her treaty rights under the Indian Act in Dec. 1970 when she married Toronto student David Lavell, a white man. In Oct. 1971 the Federal Court of Canada ruled that to deprive her of her treaty status was a contravention of the Bill of Rights.

Several Indian organizations are planning to appear against Mrs. Lavell. They have expressed fear that their treaties will be destroyed if the Bill of Rights is permitted to overrule the Indian Act. They anticipate flooding of already crowded reserves by non-status Indians and white men who have married Indian women.

The Lavell case, Miss Crowchild said, has forced a widening of the rift between treaty and non-status Indians, and threatened treaty Indians' most sacred possession—their land.

3 ways to make it big.

STATION WAGON: Frankly, our station wagon is colossal.
Inside, there's almost twice the cargo space of average wagons, and plenty of horsepower.
In less than average parking spots.

Although it has about 50% more luggage room than the biggest sedan, boasts electronic fuel injection and front disc brakes, there's one drawback.
It doesn't cost very much.

Not so with the 412 luxury wagon. Radial tires, front disc brakes, electronic fuel injection—all standard equipment.
And how many wagons can you think of that are this big on quality, but this small on price.
We can only think of three.

Shirtwaist dress with short puffed sleeves. Designer Pat McDonagh created it in dots and stripes for spring.

Spring Spotlight Shown On Daytime Dress

"Pants are accepted and will stay in the wardrobes," she said in an interview, "but women are ready for legs again and not in minis, but ladylike dresses.

"Today's young girls have never worn ladylike dresses like women were back in the '40s and '50s."

Many of her spring dresses are ladylike and very feminiscent of the kind worn in the above the knees and made of soft, fluid fabrics.

"Shoes are becoming more feminine again with higher heels," she pointed out. "They go with ladylike dresses and are great for a long-legged look."

Although palazzo pyjamas with halter tops and pedal pushers with sloppy Joe tops appeared in her line, most of her pants were very straight and tailored.

"Palazzo pants are a North American thing," she admitted, aware that top European designers aren't playing them up for spring.

Her idea of a smart pant outfit was shown in washable tweed knit of cream and pink. It consisted of a fine knit halter top and pants and cardigan in a heavier knit.

It comes with a matching tweed knit shirt and tailored silk shirt to make a great travel ensemble.

Her fashions are designed for contemporary women ages 18 to 50. "It's not so much age as a life style that counts" she said. "I design for busy women who want to put clothes on and forget about them."

Church Groups

HOLLOWAY ST. UCW

Reverend C. K. Ward, Bridge St. United Church, was the guest speaker at the Christmas meeting of the Holloway St. Church UCW.

Topic of his speech was "What Christmas Should Mean." Mr. Ward commented that people busy themselves too much with external affairs and they become too tired to really enjoy that "One" day Christmas. He said that it is important to remember that Christmas is a family day and the birthday of Christ. Mr. Ward was thanked by Miss Clara Adams.

Mrs. Clara Ironside, who due to ill health is retiring, was presented with a gift.

Another highlight of the meeting was the presentation of a Life Membership Pin to Mrs. Eva Murphy by Mrs. C. Holmes from her daughter Mary and grandchildren.

Professional Tips Given For First Haircut

Long hair for children is possible when professionally styled while kept neat and clean. But, when the child's hair becomes overgrown and uncomfortable, a professional trim and style is necessary.

Gary Hill at the Hotel Quinte Barber Shop uses hair spray for styling according to the hair texture and child. He says children are restless for their first barber's trim, moms and dads usually accompany them to guide the barber and child.

At the Hotel Quinte Barber Shop, a board appearalus is placed on the chair for the wee ones who, have to see their hair styled or trimmed.

Then, there's Paul's Place where the proprietor is wary of adults who say, "Now Tommy, there's nothing to be afraid of, it won't hurt." The words "afraid" and "hurt" never do calm the nervous child.

Paul Clare plays the trim by ear. If the child is uneasy and begins to fidget when Paul uses the scissors and comb, he'll stop and let the child rest.

"It's similar to going to the dentist," said Paul.

Some boys are afraid of the hair - dryer. If so, they're not used.

Paul prefers the parents to sit in the waiting room when he trims or styles a child's hair.

Poetry Featured

Poetry was the main featuring of the November meeting of the Women's Mission Circle held in Madoc. The first poem, recited by Mrs. Wood, was "Come home, it's suppertime" relating the supper as described in the parable in Luke. The second able in Luke. The second "Above the stars my heart shall dwell" concerned the memorial feast instituted by the Lord. The last poem was read by Mrs. Ray, and a final chorus was sung.

Turkey Stuffing Tips Given

Since a full flavored stuffing always adds piquancy to a roast turkey, two different stuffings make it twice as enjoyable. So we suggest the basic poultry stuffing be used for the body cavity of the bird and a smaller amount of one of the other stuffings for the neck cavity.

Some people prefer a very moist stuffing while others relish a dry crumbly one. Some people prefer sage as the herb used while others like thyme, marjoram, tarragon, savoury, poultry seasoning or even a little celery salt. Use just these recipes to your own taste as far as liquid and herbs are concerned.

STUFFING I

Allow 3 slices of bread or 1 cup crumbs for each pound of poultry; stuff bird lightly

Turkey Stuffing Tips Given

(to allow for expansion during roasting; for fullest results, stuff bird just before roasting it; extra stuffing may be baked in a covered greased casserole in a 350 - degree oven for ½ hr. After dinner, and refrigerate separately for safest eating.

BASIC STUFFING FOR POULTRY

(for 8-10 lb. bird)

9 cups coarse soft bread crumbs
½ cup butter or margarine
½ cup minced onion
2 tsps. salt
1 cup diced celery (stalks and leaves)
½ tsp. pepper
2 tsps. thyme, sage or marjoram
2 cups chopped apple

Crumb bread with the fingers or in a blender. When crumbs are coarse the stuffing is not too compact. Cook onion in butter until soft but not browned — about 5 min. Add to crumbs along with remaining ingredients. No liquid is necessary. Stuff body and neck cavities loosely.

SAUSAGE STUFFING

(Makes 11 cups)

Use one-third recipe for stuffing neck cavity only.

1½ lbs. pork sausage meat
½ cup butter or margarine
2 cup minced onion
1 tbsp. poultry seasoning
1 tsp. salt
½ tsp. pepper
1-3 cup chopped parsley
½ cup diced celery and leaves)
2 1-3 qts. soft bread crumbs

In a large frying pan, brown sausage meat, stirring with a fork to keep separated. Remove from pan and discard any extra fat. Melt butter in same pan. Add onion, seasonings, parsley and celery. Cook stir until onion is soft but not browned — about 3 min. Stir in sausage and crumbs. Chill if not using immediately.

TOASTED RICE STUFFING

(for neck cavity of 15-lb. bird)

½ cup uncooked long grain rice
2 cubes chicken bouillon
½ cups hot water or stock
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ cup diced celery
¼ cup diced green pepper
½ tsp. salt
1 small egg, beaten
1 tsp. crumbled sage
1 tbsp. minced parsley or celery tops
½ cup sauteed mushrooms or toasted slivered almonds or diced cripe bacon

Spread uncooked rice in large shallow pan. Toast in a mod. oven at 350 deg. F. until golden brown — 7-10 min. Stir rice or shake pan occasionally so rice will brown evenly. Dissolve bouillon cubes in hot water in a large saucepan. Add vegetables and heat to simmering. Add rice, cover and cook over low heat until all liquid is absorbed — about 25 min.

Remove from heat. Stir in egg, seasonings, parsley and mushrooms. Use to stuff neck cavity of turkey.

Ann Landers

This Cat Howling Success

Dear Ann Landers: When my brother-in-law was divorced and remarried, he and his bride of over 25 years standing confirmed my suspicions and confused to assorted extramarital affairs I was not only shocked but devastated. The period of adjustment was difficult. I found it necessary to embrace not only a new set of values, but every female I could lay my hands on.

I found my new mode of life mildly exhilarating. Before long I discovered that most women are like they are a combination of Mata Hari and Madame Pompadour. It took almost no effort to get every last one of them in bed. What's more, they passed the word to others and in no time I was unbelievably busy.

Now that I am experienced old roue, I'd like to offer some sage advice to my married fellow man. Never pass up any thing. If it's offered, take it. If it's available, get it. Your wife doesn't need all that time to clean the house and go shopping.—Mess Over Miami

Dear Mess: I hope you can take a few minutes off from your sex life to read this. First, before you break your arm congratulating yourself, let me assure you that any man can find a woman to sleep with if he sets his standards low enough. The fact that you've been a howling success as an alley cat is nothing to elevate you in the eyes of anyone worth impressing.

Dear Ann Landers: My parents have been divorced six years but they get along well on those special occasions when they meet. A big event is coming up. My oldest sister is getting married. It will be the first wedding in our family. Our aunt, who is my sister's godmother, is planning to give a big shower and this is the problem.

Aunt Alice is my father's sister. She and mother do not get along. I thought that for this very special event, bygones would be bygones and everyone would be friendly, but such is not the case. Aunt Alice has not invited mother to the shower. I told my sister (the bride) that this was rock bottom and that she should tell Aunt Alice that unless mom is invited she will not allow a shower to be given.

My sister says "It's Aunt Alice's party and she can invite or leave out whomever she pleases." I have already made it clear that I will not attend unless mom is invited. I believe the mother of the bride deserves to share the spotlight on such an occasion. Please comment.—Upset

Dear Up: Here's a Lander's Law of Long Standing: People who say, "If you invite so-and-so I'm not coming," should be told. "Sorry, we'll miss you." By the same token, no one has the right to insist—under threat of boycott—that a hostess invite a guest who was not originally invited.

Dear Ann Landers: My sister-in-law claims she's never had a sick day in her life and does not believe in illness or medicine. Yet every time she turns around she is taking baking soda, or vinegar and water, sulphur and molasses, or some other kitchen remedy. I say she is medicating herself and she should stop pretending. Not a day goes by but what she doesn't mix up some concoction. Any advice for her?—Concerned

Dear Con: She didn't ask me for any. And I'll bet she didn't ask you either. For the sake of those who might want my opinion: Chronic distress could be a symptom of a serious problem. Kitchen remedies might give temporary relief, but they don't solve any problems. A doctor should be consulted.

Girls Become Blacksmiths

ORONO, Maine (AP) — If the ring of sledge on anvil in a certain building on the University of Maine campus sends visons of Longfellow's village blacksmith through your head—look again.

Two girls, as a matter of fact, have graduated from the three-week farrier's course at the university, and a third is enrolled now. Both graduates—from Massachusetts—say they like horses.

Jack Goster, an extension service livestock specialist who originated and has taught the course for a number of years, is well pleased with the work the two girls did.

"They did an excellent job," he said. "One was especially good at making shoes. I don't know exactly what it is but they seem to have a better eye in fashioning shoes...than most men."

Miss Clark said there are a lot of horses in the Natick area and she hopes to chuck her clerking job and become a professional farrier.

Miss Howard, however, said she has no immediate wish to become a professional farrier. She said she wants to work with horses, though.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONNELL

Is a wife happy if she uses her wiles?

CERTAINLY; just because a marriage is happy a husband and wife don't have to give up their individualism. There will be many occasions when a wife wants something that she must use her wiles to achieve. This doesn't mean she needs to deceive her husband. It is just that sometimes a wife feels happier about winning a point if her wiles can convince her husband that it is a pretty good idea to let her have her own way.

Do teachers make good parents?

CERTAINLY; teachers understand that as parents their children want and need what all children do: love and affection. Sometimes, however, when a mother and father are teachers, they feel that their children should be exceptionally bright and quick. Once they realize that their children are independent human beings and not reflections of their parents' personal status, the teacher-parents can be the responsive parents their children want them to be.

NO; that's a common misconception brought on especially by the success of "Old Timers' Day" at many ball parks. Fans enjoy the proceedings when they pull themselves back to the "alloted" time when the heroes of the past are introduced. The bulbs are not overly sentimental; perhaps it is just that they can appreciate the extra step, the added effort made by their idols when they were in their prime and played with the zest that made them lasting heroes.

Colleges Inspire Adults

By DORIS CLARK

"There is a real surge of activity from older people who want to learn the things they do the things, that were impossible when they grew up. The community college can take care of this need through extension courses." So said Arnold Edinborough, noted English-born author and editor, to a Mohawk College (Hamilton) audience.

Statistics about adults enrolling in night classes, right across the country, bear this out. And Mr. Edinborough's comment was that once our family men and women get their coveted two-car, two-TV, two-bathroom set-up, they start "getting wise to themselves".

It is mind-making, not material things, that makes for self-realization at any age.

* * *

Dear Doris: Your column in the paper is one which I nearly always read and find the advice given is sound and practical.

In the past half-dozen years I have been on the point of writing you several times, but by the time I had thrashed out the best way to express the problem in a way which would be clear and fair to all concerned, the clear expression of the problem provided its own answer. — Finally Stumped.

Dear Stumped: So — you have discovered a social worker's secret!

When human relations get too befuddled, we feel like mixed-up kids. Emotions, regrets the unexpected reaction or accusation of a one-time who knows only part of the truth — all these things contribute to confusion and we can't think straight.

Then we cool down enough to try to sort things out. IF we are fair we give some thought to how the other fellow is seeing things. We may write down pros and cons. Or talk them out with a counsellor.

Your report of finding a solution by the mere act of expressing the problem is one of the techniques that make trained social workers effective. They help you lay cards on the table, as a first act in treatment. Then, when you need more help in thinking things through and taking action, they are in there pitching.

I daresay many another of my readers has gone through the same mental convolutions and come out at the same spot before ever putting pen to paper: n an S.O.S. to me

(I have answered the rest of your letter privately.)

* * *

Dear Doris: I went with a I was too possessive. Now I'm boy for several months whom I cared for very much. He dropped me because he said going with a boy who wants to give me a ring. What should I do when I don't really care for him like the last one? — Can't Cope.

Dear Can't Cope: Don't be pressured into an engagement you don't want or feel ready for. On the other hand, don't yearn over the past. No two relationships are exactly alike. Judge each one on its own merit and don't compare boy friends. Another "Mr. Right" will come on the scene.

(Leaflets mentioned by Doris are available to readers for 20 cents and a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope. If you have not received a leaflet requested, it may be that you have neglected to include the necessary eight-cent stamp. Write to Doris in care of this newspaper.)

Steelers Might Change Image

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

For 39 seasons Pittsburgh Steelers have been the "nice guys" of the National Football League. Not that they've always finished last; but they've never finished first.

On Sunday, with a little bit of help from Cincinnati Bengals Saturday, the Steelers can finally achieve that goal, a championship—the American Conference Central Division crown.

Pittsburgh has to beat Houston Oilers and the Bengals have to defeat Cleveland Browns to make the Steeler dream come true.

Atlanta Falcons, in only their seventh NFL season, are within a victory of a title. They need some help, too. If Atlanta can knock off San Francisco 49ers Sunday and St. Louis Cardinals can upset Los Angeles Rams, the Falcons will own the National Conference West crown.

Green Bay, the Arranger"-lo championships, were a pre-season pick this year to be a bystander to the NFC Central match-up between Minnesota Vikings and Detroit Lions.

The Packers, at 8-4, hold a one-game lead over the Vikings and Lions. But, unlike the Steelers and Falcons, Green Bay needs no help to clinch its division. A victory over Minnesota will wrap it up. Even if the Packers and Lions finish tied for the lead at the end of the season, Green Bay would get the title by virtue of its two victories over Detroit.

Sunday's other games have Miami-Dolphins against the Giants in New York, Detroit at Buffalo Bills, Chicago Bears at Philadelphia Eagles, San Diego Chargers at Denver Broncos, Baltimore Colts at Kansas City Chiefs and New England Patriots at New Orleans Saints.

All eyes in Houston's Astrodome will be on Pittsburgh rookie running back Franco Harris, within reach of several of NFL records.

He's 40 yards shy of the 1,000-yard mark for the season, a mark achieved by only four other first-year players, and is 161 short of the 1,105-yard rookie rushing record set last year by Green Bay's John Brockington.

In addition, if he gains 100 yards against the Oilers, it'll be his seventh straight 100-plus game, breaking the record he now shares, with former Cleveland star Jim Brown.

Finally, by going over 100 in each of his final two games, Harris will equal the mark of nine 100-yard games in a season, also held by Brown.

Cleveland, still in the AFC Central championship race, would still have a shot at the conference wild card slot with a loss, but the Bengals must win to keep even those slim hopes alive.

The Falcons hold a half-game edge over the 49ers and Rams. Spearheading their drive to first has been quarterback Bob Berry, No. 2 among NFC passers, and a receiving corps spurred by Dave Hampton and Art Malone.

Brookington has carried the major portion of the Green Bay attack, grinding out 906 yards enough for third place among NFC rushers.

Chester Marcol, the Packers' second-round draft choice has succeeded on 17 of 30 field goal attempts for 105 points, putting him No. 1 in NFC scoring and within two points of league-leading Bobby Howfield of the Jets.

Miami, by winning, would become the fifth team in NFL history to win 13 games in a season and within one victory of the first perfect season since the 1942 Chicago Bears.

Washington, Miami and Oakland have wrapped up divisional championships, but for the remaining 12, it's still a scramble for the remaining five playoff berths.

Bucks In Command

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Milwaukee Bucks continue to lead the National Basketball Association's Midwest Division.

With Kareem Abdul-Jabbar grabbing 27 rebounds to set up numerous fast breaks, the Bucks trounced Golden State Warriors 126-91 Friday night to retain a one-half game lead on Chicago Bulls, who whipped Philadelphia 76ers 118-102.

Jabbar scored 42 points on the fast break," said coach Larry Costello. "That's why we scored 100 points, not 90 or 89 like we've been doing."

Abdul-Jabbar also paced the Milwaukee scoring with 19 points while Bob Dandridge and Oscar Robertson had 17 apiece.

Rick Barry had 26 for the Warriors.

Elsewhere, Boston Celtics downed Cleveland Cavaliers 96-87, Buffalo Braves edged New York Knicks 91-89, Atlanta Hawks drubbed Baltimore 134-115 and movedpast the Bullets atop the Central Division, Los Angeles Lakers crushed Seattle Supersonics 119-100, Detroit Pistons beat Kansas City-Omaha Kings 133-100 and Houston Rockets defeated Portland Trail Blazers 104-100.

Bob Love came off Chicago's bench in the second period, his seven straight shots and five jabbed with 20 to assist in the Bulls past the hapless 76ers, whose Fred Carter took scoring honors with 31.

Dave Cowens' 25 points and 18 rebounds helped Boston turn back Cleveland and take a one-game lead over New York in the Atlantic Division.

Buffalo, which has lost all six starts against the Knicks in New York over the years, beat them for the fourth time in six home meetings.

Dick Garrett was the Braves' high scorer with 21 points. Walt Frazier was high for New York with 26.

Los Angeles used a balanced attack—Happy Hairston's 28 points, Gail Goodrich's 22, Keith Erickson's 21 and Jim McMillian's 18—to romp past Seattle and run their perfect home record against the Sonics to 17-0.

Detroit tied a club record with its sixth consecutive home triumph as Bob Lanier and Dave Bing led a fourth-period surge that turned back KC-Omaha.

Lanier finished with 37 points and 21 rebounds while Bing had 27 points and 13 assists.

Houston survived a second-half scoring spree by Portland's Geoff Petrie and Sidney Wicks to beat the Trail Blazers. Petrie led all scorers with 34 points while Jimmy Walker topped Houston with 24.

Blazers Face Empty Seats

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The 9,000-seat Convention Hall in Philadelphia hasn't exactly been particularly loudly to its most recent tenants, Philadelphia Blazers, but rarely has it been so silent as it was Friday night.

But nobody, well, almost nobody, showed up to see the Blazers finally solve New York goaltender Peter Donnelly's jinks.

Only 700 fans were listed in attendance at Convention Hall when Don Herriman ended Donnelly's string of shutout periods at six and launched the Blazers to a 3-1 victory over the Raiders.

Elsewhere, Bobby Hull led a third-period blitz at Winnipeg that propelled the Jets to a 6-2 win over Houston Aeros; Reggie Flemming's second goal of the night gave Chicago Cougars a 4-3 overtime win over Minnesota Fighting Saints; and Los Angeles Sharks clipped Alberta Oilers 4-2.

Brian Bradley gave New York a 1-0 lead at 13:41 of the first period at Philadelphia before Herriman scored his eighth of the year at 19:19 of the second period.

Dennelly, last year with Jersey Devils of the Eastern Hockey League, handled the Blazers by identical 5-0 scores Oct. 15 and Nov. 19—both at Madison Square Garden.

Andre Lacroix notched the tie-breaker in the second period and Bryan Campbell added an insurance goal in the third.

Hull, playing-coach of the Jets, scored two goals in Winnipeg's four-goal third-period uprising. His first broke a 2-2 tie and his second ended the scoring five minutes later for 4,351 fans.

Steve Cuddie also scored two goals for Winnipeg. The others went to Chris Bordeleau and Jean-Guy Gratton. Ed Hoekstra and Jack Stanfield tallied for Houston.

Fleming's goal at 4:19 of the first period for the 2,858 Chicago fans was the first shot of the period on Minnesota goaltender Jack McCartan whose solid 32-save effort in regulation time set up the extra session.

Jan Popiel and Bob Sicinski also contributed to the Chicago victory—it's seventh of the season—while Terry Ball, Wayne Rivers and Don Lyndon connected for the Saints.

Ted McAskill scored twice in front of 4,217 Los Angeles fans as the Sharks evened their record at 16-16-4 to tie Minnesota for second place in the Western Division, 11 points behind Winnipeg.

Canadian Entry On Top

The Canadian team, led by 1976 Commonwealth Games champion Jamie Paulson of Toronto, displayed solid control in keeping Peru off the scoreboard for the first four matches of the nine-game series.

The teams were to meet today for the final round. ~

Canada has only to win one more match to advance to the second round of the Thomas Cup against the United States or Mexico.

Jamie McKee of Toronto, Canada's fifth ranked singles player, drew first blood by blanking Peru's Hector Maynetto 15-9, 15-4.

Griese Back

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

SUN, DEC. 10

Aries (March 21-April 19): It's Sunday, leave off even thinking about business and material concerns. Be friendly as you do what your community expects of you.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): You will be told you have taken too much. Along with prayer and meditation, you should spend time sorting out our notes and accounts.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Avoiding overdoing is the art. This rather hectic Sunday, you require a range of activities to share with sister people.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): The demand is for your help in some form or another—and while money is one form, it isn't the only—or necessarily the best you can give.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Resolve not to respond to trivial provocations or irritations. It is all too easy to blow a moment's conflict into an argument.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You are prone to blunder into the one person you need least to meet this Sunday, particularly in crowds or group movements.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your gestures are apt to turn out more grandiose than you anticipated, with far greater costs to all. Romance must be pursued.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Differences of opinion crop up on all sides, and yours are no more exempt from criticism than anybody's.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Avoid public involvement rather than general notice. Curb impatience, guard your energy against a possible sudden need.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): This is the week-end of skeletons in closets, the facing of supposedly difficult subjects, only to find you're not so badly off.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): For once be rather discreet about personal plans, even with claims or relationship will do most of the talking.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Home and family life tend to be larger in your view than any public observances. Living your faith is just as well for now.

MON. DEC. 11

Aries (March 21-April 19): While some people turn out to be less co-operative than you thought, anything you pressure now has to be delivered, eventually.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Minor differences may distract you from costly technicalities. Pay attention to measurements, accounts, details.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Be patient and check what you are about while you do it. Some things can be done over later, but some things cannot.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): More than a grain of skepticism is justified in today's advice particularly where you haven't asked for it. Do your own thinking.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): No great issues are settled today so you may as well go on, but with diligence. Bring home some thing you have been asked to provide.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): It's true that you know exactly how and what you want—and all too easy to be too abrupt and a bit harsh in demanding it.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Take for granted that others have the same facts can lead to difficulty—spell out carefully and precisely what you mean.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be ready to apply the stitch in time that saves nine or more. Settle as you go, and go on without recriminations or echoes.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): It's a great day for problem solving. You get a chance in later hours to change pace and leave routine behind.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Make plenty of notes but skip none for others. All your friends have bright but untested ideas in Kant this week.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Carping over minor imperfections causes costly delay. If it isn't what you want, go ahead with what you have.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Aside from being a bit sensitive yourself, you may inadvertently upset somebody's toes as well. It's a day for keeping the peace.

Often Hip Breaks Before the Fall

By G. C. THOSTESON MD

That's one of the "they say" stories that happens to be true.

Of course a good many broken hips are the result of a fall but in a considerable number of other cases a broken hip is the cause of the fall, instead of the fall causing the broken hip.

Time after time in such cases, the patient says that he (or she) doesn't know why he fell. He didn't slip, didn't stumble. He just fell down and that was it.

The reason is that, as we grow older, our bones tend to become brittle and lose density. The hips bear a substantial part of our weight, and when enough strength is lost in the bone, it can crack as the result of a slight minor movement—or even crack with no added pressure at all.

How to avoid this? Well, our bones are made up of what we call a "matrix," or sort of protein-comb-like structure. The spaces are filled substantially with calcium which gives the bones their strength and density.

Day by day, cell by cell, the bones give up calcium and replace it with fresh calcium atoms. But in some cases the loss is greater than the new replaced. The bones weaken. The loss of density shows on x-ray, the rays passing more readily through the bones.

Some individuals, to be expected as we age, but in other cases a disease, osteoporosis, is at work. The research people have found out some things, although not as much as they want and need to learn, about this disease. The exact cause has not yet been determined, although some of the factors are known.

Lack of protein, lack of calcium, hormone problems and lack of exercise all are involved.

Osteoporosis does not develop quickly, and it cannot be overcome quickly. But making sure that the diet contains adequate protein and adequate calcium is the first step in treatment.

Since women are more likely to develop osteoporosis in the years after menopause, it is assumed that some postmenopausal in the hormone levels have something to do with it. Therefore administration of hormones is another part of treatment.

Finally, bones gain strength with use, lose it with insufficient exercise. In that sense, bones are like muscles. If you don't use them, they become weaker. So far as medicine goes for osteoporosis, little has been discovered other than hormones. However, some physicians believe that small doses of fluoride may help the hardness.

The ways to prevent osteoporosis are much the same as the treatment to overcome it: diet that contains plenty of protein (meat, fish, fowl, cheese, eggs, milk and yogurt products are all rich in calcium) and exercise, suited to your personal situation.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: If one told not rinse dishes after washing them with a liquid detergent, would eating from these be harmful to one's health, especially the blood?—C.S.

No. Most of the detergent mix is not harmful.

Opening lead—four of hearts.

Let's say you're West and lead a heart against three notrump. Partner takes the king with the ace and continues with the queen, on which you duck with the 8—thus telling partner you started with five hearts.

East now leads the jack. South following suit, and at this point—before playing to the trick — you have the 10-7-5 left. Partner's card of the value and it might seem as though it pays to preference which one you played.

But actually, the card you select is of tremendous importance to the discriminating eye. Let's suppose you played the five, which is what most players would do. Eastnot being a mind reader, would probably return a club and South would thereupon romp home with nine tricks.

Now let's suppose you played the ten of hearts on the jack, instead of the five. In that case, assuming you and East use the suit - preference convention, partner would lead a spade. You would take the ace and cash the 7 - 5 of hearts to put the defenders down two.

Playing the suit-preference convention when you have a choice of which card to play from a group of equal cards, the one you choose indicates the suit you would like partner to play next.

A high card asks partner to lead the highest available suit; a low card asks for the lowest available suit.

So, in the present case where East has no heart to return and a diamond return would be downright ridiculous, there are only two suits left — spades and clubs — for him to choose from.

The play of the ten of hearts, a high card, compels East to lead the high suit—spades.

Rats of London Need New Homes

LONDON (AP) — Where will all the rats go when Covent Garden, London's central fruit and vegetable market, closes after 300 years in business?

Local residents fear a break-out of thousands of rodents suddenly robbed of squashed tomatoes, rotten apples, stray nuts and potatoes.

But Westminster City Council, which is responsible for the area, believes it can cope with any rat explosion.

Covent Garden, 54½ fragrant acres tucked away in a maze of narrow old streets behind the busy traffic of The Strand and within hailing distance of plush tourist hotels, is to be closed by 1974.

A new 64-acre site, linked with the railway and equipped with modern facilities, is being built a mile away across the river. The old market, once the location of a convent garden, is rich in old London flavor. It won fame as the place where Prof. Henry Higgins first heard Eliza Doolittle murder the King's English in Pygmalion and then My Fair Lady.

There has never been a reliable census of the rats living in Covent Garden, but they are estimated to number in the thousands, maybe tens of thousands.

The old market still is operating, and there is plenty for the rats to feed on. Anything which is not in cold storage is attacked. The creatures nibble at sacks of potatoes and munch their way through bagged carrots and crates of tomatoes if they are left lying around too long.

"There's one rat that lives round the corner—as big as a cat—so fat it can hardly walk die," said Rory Jacobs, a porter.

Jim Monahan, an executive member of the Covent Garden Community Association, fears that demolition of the market and its surrounding 58 acres will disrupt one of central London's biggest sewers and send the rats scattering outwards.

One fear is that the rats will use the maze of sewers as a subway system to penetrate other parts of the city in their search for food.

Westminster City Council officials say that when a building comes down and it is not going to be used again, they'll see that its sewer connections are sealed off immediately. Rat poison also will be dropped down sewers.

Horizontal Voltage Keeps Planes Stable

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hobby-class enthusiasts on the staff of Johns Hopkins University's applied physics laboratory have discovered a means of stabilizing small-aircraft flight by harnessing the horizontal voltage lines of the earth's atmosphere. Their success opens possibilities for a wide range of applications.

In repeated tests with small, radio-controlled, pilotless aircraft, the newly developed "electrostatic autopilot" provided smooth flights and made possible smooth landings and takeoffs.

The principal inventor, physicist Maynard L. Hill, said the new device, simple and inexpensive enough to be made for about $50, could provide small planes and helicopters with the flying ability now offered in airliners using costly and complex autopilots.

"Outside the autopilot field these instruments should open up new and useful techniques for studying cloud physics on board cheap and rugged RPVs (remotely piloted vehicles)," Hill said.

"Cheap stable platforms supported by helicopter type RPVs or balloons might find use in aerial TV coverage of sporting events or military operations.

"Radioactivity in the earth affects the conductivity of air at low altitudes, so one can envision techniques for airborne prospecting for mineral deposits.

"Detection of pollution sources is probably possible also."

Hill said the principles were demonstrated on about 150 flights of radio-controlled airplanes flown over Maryland, Virginia, Pennsylvania and Ohio.

The basic device, he said, consists of a patch of radioactive source material mounted on each wing tip and on the nose and tail of the aircraft, along with two highly sensitive differential voltmeters.

As the voltmeter in the fuselage monitors the sensors or electrodes, the aircraft responds to the signals through a servo-mechanism called an automatic disturbance compensation unit.

Hill explained that horizontal voltage levels surround the earth, up to about 31 miles, in levels or layers of electrostatic charge, like the layers of an onion.

Potter Says His Decisions On Denturists Not Reversed

And, he said, he knows of instances where denturists charged much more than dentists for sets of false teeth.

His proposed new bill, placing denturists under direct supervision of dentists, fired angry criticism from opposition parties, which charged him with trying to change principles.

The new Potter proposal was dubbed a dramatic departure from the first bill he introduced last spring. It provided that denturists — those who make false teeth — be independent of dentists and deal directly with the public.

But, claimed Dr. Potter yesterday, "there was no question of reversing a decision. The same intent was there from the first."

The health minister was back in his Quinte riding to participate in normal opening ceremonies of new facilities at the Belleville Pollution Control Plant.

Basic intent of denturist legislation was to develop a dental auxiliary providing dentures as economically as possible "and still guaranteeing good health care."

The first bill, introduced in spring was tabled in June to permit a review of the situation, said the minister.

He said his mind was made up after scrutinizing national health services in Britain where "they wouldn't let anybody work in the mouth of the patient unless under the supervision of a dentist."

The denturist issue parallels a review of the whole system of health-care delivery — which "a team approach" is being assessed.

For physicians, this means doctors working with paramedical personnel in clinics, said the health minister.

In this light, then we should also be talking about dentists working with others through a clinic.

It was thus decided the best method was to have denturists do repairs working under the supervision of dentists. This would guarantee health protections and ensure that teeth would fit in all cases.

A core issue is cost — denturists claim they can sell false teeth $100 to $150 cheaper than dentists. About 70 denturists are handling sets of dentures to the public in contravention of the Dentistry Act of Ontario. Some have been convicted after their offences were reported.

Dr. Potter, who earlier denied the change in legislation was due to pressure from dentists, insisted the new bill still meets his ministry's prime intent.

He said a commitment from the dental profession not to charge more than $180 for both upper and lower dentures could not be increased without approval of the government.

And if the individual wants something better then he can pay for it. But we're guaranteeing that teeth can be provided at $180 for a standard set of teeth."

The need for health protection must also be a prime consideration.

"I'm very concerned that people should think we should allow untrained people, unqualified people, to deal directly with the public because they can get something cheaper.

"Just because it's cheap doesn't say in the long run that it will be cheap."

The minister claimed to have recently received a letter from a Kingston man complaining of paying $185 to a denturist for a set of teeth, that didn't fit.

"He couldn't get his money back. He had to go to a dentist where he got them for $180 — a set that fit.

"I have cancelled checks from people that have paid as high as $225 to denturists for teeth," said Dr. Potter. "So let's not get into this hassle of how much cheaper it is, because really it isn't."

Under the proposed dental clinics complete upper and lower dentures will be provided for $180 — "with all the health hazards removed."

He said he is going to ask the dental profession to advertise the areas where such clinics are operating or will be organized.

In districts without clinic operations, dentists are prepared to meet the commitment from their offices, said Dr. Potter.

But, why the resounding criticism when he introduced the revised legislation — with the controversial provision giving dentists supervision?

"The funny part was the opposition weren't in favor of the old bill. They were insisting we have supervision. As soon as I touch the supervision they jump on the other side of the fence. . ."

Environment Minister James Auld Views Belleville Plant

Service for 52,000

Pollution Control Plant Is Opened

Major Ontario centres along the lower Great Lakes — including the Quinte area — could be discharging pollution-free waste water in three years, Environment Minister James Auld declared yesterday.

Mr. Auld said he was confident the province's clean-water programming would reach its ultimate phase — purging of nutrients, including phosphates — by 1975.

He made the forecast while officially opening facilities in Belleville which prepare the Bay of Quinte city for the final stage in water pollution control.

The formalities marked extension of the ministry's St. Paul St. Belleville Water Pollution Control Plant into secondary sewage treatment — a $1,800,000 project, that removes more than 90 per cent of pollutants from the city's waste water.

Now being aimed for is the final — and third — treatment phase: To purify the waste of nutrients, which produce an overfill of oxygen-consuming plant life in waterways.

Since embarking on water pollution control programs in 1967, Ontario has made such strides it now is ahead of "all other jurisdictions" on the Great Lakes, said Mr. Auld.

"I'm confident by the end of 1975 the major communities discharging into the lower Great Lakes will have completed nutrient removal — and secondary treatment where this is necessary."

This would mean Ontario would keep its commitments under the Great Lakes pollution control agreement with the United States, he said.

Installation of nutrient-treatment processes is under test, although an economic solution is not that difficult, G. B. Crawford, vice-president of consulting engineers Gore-Storrie told yesterday's ceremonies.

"Much more is known about it than three years ago," he said. While the cost is additional, it's not something that can't be overcome."

Mr. Auld recalled in 1967, when the province embarked on its clean water program with local governments, the projects "initiated were not welcomed with open arms" in various parts of Ontario.

Yet today, the quality of water in the province has been improved "immeasurably."

The extended facilities — which took 16 months to build and went operational last summer — are designed to service a population of 52,000.

But, Mr. Auld said later in an interview, its basic design is such it can be easily expanded to handle extended demand caused by regionalization of services beyond city limits.

He said it was "immediately easy, at relatively low cost" to mount services for another 15,000 to 20,000 people, to meet even greater demand other units could be added to the plant.

The broader significance of the expansion was indicated by Alderman Robin Jeffrey, who with Mr. Auld and Health Minister Potter cut the traditional redribbon in her first public ceremony since becoming Mayor-elect Monday.

"This facility now makes it possible for services to be extended to our neighbors under special agreements that we will work out with them", she said.

Design and operation of the expanded sewage-treatment installation blends into its attractive site on the Bay of Quinte shoreline — a fact enthusiastically noted by Mr. Auld after a snow-durried plant tour with community administrators and politicians.

"It's interesting to think" he told spectators at the ribbon-cutting, "that what used to be not the most welcome operation in a community can now produce an effluent which is safe and fit to drink — and safe to put back into the receiving streams."

J. B. Raine, Kingston-district manager, Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, noted that the operation of federal and provincial governments had seen $4 million advanced to Belleville for construction of sewage facilities over the years. Of the total, $960,000 had been forgiveable funds.

Ribbon-Cutting

Belleville Mayor-elect Robin Jeffrey, Health Minister Dr. Richard T. Potter and Environment Minister James Auld, team up for ribbon-cutting ceremony at official opening of extension and secondary treatment addition to Belleville Water Pollution Control Plant. Built a cost of $1.8 million, the plant extension has been in use since last July.

Bay Once A "Cesspool" Soon Will Be Drinkable

Having degenerated the Bay of Quinte into North America's biggest cesspool, area communities now are helping retrieve the waterway for human use, says Health Minister Richard Potter.

Its water will "soon be drinkable within years," he predicts.

"We in the Bay of Quinte area have been very abusive [of the Bay]. For 150 years," he told spectators at yesterday's official opening of an expanded Belleville Water Pollution Control Plant.

"In the last 100 years we haven't given the necessary consideration to our environment — and we've found we eventually ended up with what was probably the biggest cesspool in North America."

But, in recent years, Bay-area centres like Belleville and Trenton have co-operated with the provincial government on programs to counteract the 7years-long abuses.

"Now we're finally having our great Bay of Quinte cleaned up. I'm confident within a very few years it will be safe to drink — as it was many years ago."

Yesterday's formalities at the plant, marking operation of a $1,860,000 expansion of facilities to step-up anti-pollution treatment which removes more than 90 per cent of sewage content, had special significance for the health minister.

As former mayor of Belleville, Dr. Potter recalled that first moves to correct the city with treatment of waste water date to 1951.

University Day at CSS For County Students

Every Ontario university will be represented Tuesday at University Information Day at Centennial Secondary School.

The school's counselling services department anticipates 1,000 Hastings County students will take the opportunity to meet with representatives, to aid in program selection and course requirements.

Each secondary school student, from grades 11 to 13, will be able to choose three 40-minute sessions in which a single university will be highlighted.

Sid Allcorn, head of Centennial's counselling department, said "it is the student responsibility to absorb the information and choose their courses."

Students in the county's eight secondary schools and Albert College will provide their own transportation to the three-hour session.

Interested parents are also invited to attend.

Merged Realty Boards Predicted for Next Year

The local realtor indicates that the Ontario Real Estate Board is pushing for the merger that would bring the establishment of a Quinte board.

"I am confident the marriage will take place in the new year," says Joyce.

In recent years, there has been a trend toward the groupings together of such boards. The Great Niagara Board included Welland, and Cobourg and Port Hope have combined their respective boards.

"It only makes sense for us to join with Trenton," commented the alderman, who added that both centres now have common education, assessment and planning services.

Mr. Joyce says the widened Highway 2 between both communities will only make the union more feasible.

With the amalgamation, he says, minimum tariffs for realtor services will be standardized, confidion over areas of jurisdiction will be eliminated and membership will cost a single fee. Realtors with Belleville and Trenton operations now pay to belong to both boards.

The board president also stated that the regional board would give local realtors "a larger voice" in Quinte area matters and the business of the provincial board.

"The joining of the two groups will be a milestone for real estate in both centres," says Ald. Joyce, "and it is certainly the perfect complement to regionalism."

A Quinte board would have a membership in excess of 200.

Carols For Community

PICTON (Staff) — Community spirited county residents this weekend will bring the sounds of Christmas to patients in nursing homes throughout Prince Edward.

Led by Picton United Church choir, volunteers will spend Sunday afternoon caroling in groups. This songfest is sponsored by the Worship and Outreach committees of the United Church to provide an opportunity for citizens to share the holiday with persons unable to take an active part in celebrations.

Youth Jailed

TRENTON (Staff) — A 17-year-old former Cobourg area youth was sentenced to a jail term of six months definite, nine months indeterminate, when he pleaded guilty before Judge R. C. Jackson in provincial court Wednesday to Trenton's most serious recent break-in.

William Ross Black, of 66 Front Street, was charged with break, enter and theft of approximately $5,000 worth of stereos, tape recorders and components from Wortheng TV at 151 Front Street, Trenton, Friday, Oct. 6. Police from Trenton aided by Brighton OPP staked out a barn near Colborne and recovered a truck stolen from Wothing TV, and the goods.

A second youth, Larry Goyetche, 16, of no fixed address, was placed on two years' probation after he appeared in court several weeks ago on charges of break, enter and theft.

Trenton Hospital Awaits Cutbacks

TRENTON (Staff) — Trenton Memorial Hospital officials are still waiting word on anticipated budget cutbacks from the provincial health ministry, but in the meantime are proceeding to draft their 1973 budget.

Hospital administrator John Lupton said Friday the annual budget is being prepared under present guidelines. The provincial restriction call for a five per cent restrict on annual operation increases for next year. The outlines affect all hospitals in Ontario.

Mr. Lupton said in light of Health Minister Richard Potter's recently announced cutback in hospital beds in a ratio of 4.5 per 1,000 population, Trenton has been expected to adhere to this effect.

Last week he said for an anticipated area population of 30,000 Trenton Memorial Hospital has 156 beds, approximately 13 more than the percentage rates.

"Some services will be cut back, but the decision will be up to the members of the board," he said Thursday.

Recent rumors in Trenton that the hospital maternity ward would be phased out, have been completely denied by Mr. Lupton. "That is all it is," he said, "rumor."

Police To Enforce Snow Law In Picton

PICTON (Staff) — Town council has instructed the Picton police department to enforce a by-law compelling Picton residents to shovel their sidewalks within 24 hours of a storm.

Picton councillor Ross Crookwright said that one elderly Lake Street resident had complained to police, because of the snow, creating an unshovelled sidewalk past a vacant lot in her neighborhood.

Mr. Crookwright insisted that "it's time to lift them where it hurts" and suggested the town should shovel neglected walks then add the cost to owners' tax bills.

It was proposed that a closer enforcement of the by-law by police might eliminate the problem of unshovelled walks.

Although council did purchase a snow tractor to clear walks several years ago its use has been restricted to Main Street because of complaints that it ruined lawns and left sidewalks bumpy.

Every Little Counts

At Christmastime every little donation helps in the cause of good works. Too small to reach the top, two-year-old Christina O'Brien, was lifted by mother Mrs. Avril O'Brien, to place her dime in Salvation Army bucket at Belleville's Quinte Mall yesterday.

Brighton OPP Adds Officers

BRIGHTON (Staff) — Strength of the Ontario Provincial Police detachment here has been increased to 28 men with the addition of two officers.

TO MEET GONZALES

NEW YORK (AP) — Frew McMillan of South Africa and Francoise Durr of France scored lopsided victories Friday and gained the semifinals in the men's and women's divisions of the $75,000 Clean Air Tennis Classic. McMillan, the 30-year-old with the two-handed backhand from both sides, downed his match toward the $10,000 top prize when he faces fifth-seeded Pancho Gonzales of Los Angeles in a battle of veterans.

Selects Open With 3-2 Win

HAMILTON (CP) — Moscow Selects opened a seven-game Ontario tour Friday night with a 3-2 victory over Hamilton Red Wings of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

The Selects, who face Orillia Terriers of the OHA Senior A series in Toronto Sunday, held a wide territorial margin over the Junior club, firing 56 shots at Hamilton netminder Steve Mikinkewicz while his team-mate Robert edSveit goaltender Viktor Zinger only 23 times.

The visitors took a 2-1 lead in the first period and each club scored once in the second. The final period was scoreless with Mikiskewicz, a 19-year-old native of Detroit, kicking out 20 shots.

Alexander Martynyuk, Vladimir Devyatov and Yuri Terekhin scored for the Soviet team. Wayne Chrysler, one of four players borrowed from Sudbury Wolves of the OHA Junior A, scored the first Hamilton goal with Dave Staffen providing the second.

Hamilton took seven of the game's 11 minor penalties and a misconduct, called against Glen Ciekelic for disputing a penalty call. Each team scored once while the other was shorthanded.

Defenceman Randy Holt and forwards Bobby Clarke, Tiganic and Eric Vail were the other Sudbury Juniors reinforcing the Red Wings.

Esposito Draws Russian Praise

OTTAWA (CP) — Boston Bruins centre Phil Esposito deserves special mention for his play for Team Canada in their series against Soviet Russia, says the current issue of a magazine published by the Russian embassy in Canada.

The magazine, Soviet Union today, said that because Esposito played in all eight games and demonstrated "powerful play," he drew the special attention of Russian hockey fans and the press.

"That is, possibly, the reason why the condemnation of Phil Esposito's roughness and pugnacity, in the second game in Moscow was so turbulent and unanimous," said the article signed by Vladimir Kirillyuk.

It said that this should not be taken as typical of the play of Esposito and his National Hockey League team-mates.

Canada won four of the eight games. The Russians won three and the other was a tie.

"The more so since, on the whole, the games of the U.S.S.R.-Canada series witnessed a very interesting exciting battle," continued the article.

This was a festival of big time hockey that unquestionably benefitted both teams."

Also given special mention by the writer were Paul Henderson of Toronto Maple Leafs, Yvan Cournoyer and Frank Mahovlich of Montreal Canadiens, and Bobby Clarke of Philadelphia Flyers.

PHIL ESPOSITO

The play of Team Canada "makes an excellent impression with every passing game, they got better, said the article.

It said that the Canadians, after losing the first game in Moscow, took pains to beating the Russians "through ordinary means" and resorted "to deliberate play playing and intimidation."

Such play in Russia "is unanimously condemned and stopped," said the writer.

But when they played "within the rules," the Canadians showed ability not yet acquired by the Russian team.

However the Canadians showed weaker physical condition than the Russians as evidenced by the Soviet team scoring five goals in the last period of the first game in Moscow, noted the article.

It said the Russians played better team hockey than the Canadians and it was only when Team Canada borrowed "the tactics of European hockey" of constant checking that the Soviets learned to their favor, says the article.

It gave credit to a strong Canadian defence—Gary Bergman of Detroit Red Wings and Chicago were picked out especially—for the Canadians' victory in the series.

Bench Goes Under Knife

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds' catcher Johnny Bench, the National League's most valuable player in 1970 and 1972, will undergo surgery Monday morning for removal of a spot on one lung.

Dr. George Ballou, Reds' physician, said tests made on Bench were completed Friday and no new developments were made. Bench will enter hospital today.

Ballou said the decision to go ahead with surgery was made after consultation with Bench's physician and other consultants.

Bench hasn't been available for comment. He changed his telephone number following a deluge of calls about his condition.

Bench, who celebrated his 25th birthday Thursday with a party given by one of the Reds' owners, disclosed Tuesday a lesion had been discovered on one lung during routine examination of players in camp.

Doctors said they believe the spot is benign.

Asked how he managed to perform as well as he did in the National League championship series and the World Series, Bench replied:

"I knew it (the spot) was there but I had to put the thought aside. I knew that after the season there was a good chance they could cut on it."

Bench's outstanding feat of the two series was when he slammed an opposite-field home run to break the fifth and final game of the playoff series 2-2 in the bottom of the ninth inning. The Reds scored another run later in the inning to defeat Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2 and take the series three games to two.

Bench hit some homer and 52 runs during the regular season and batted .270.

Forum Goes to Dogs, Leafs Go to Hospital

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Wave a banner in Los Angeles and you could win a year's supply of hot dogs. Wave a banner in Maple Leaf Gardens and the wind might knock over one of your own players.

It shapes up to be that kind of weekend in the National Hockey League with 14 games on the schedule.

The truculents of hot dogs-catcher of The Forum's many promotional pitches—go to Forum Saturday when the Kings appear to be held prior to tonight's game between the home-standing Kings and Pittsburgh Penguins.

At Toronto, where injury plague continues to hit the Leafs, seemingly vulnerable to any shift in the wind but the directionmation of which will keep going is outstanding.

The defensive corps of Brian Glennie and Larry McIntyre, for example, keeps going despite both complaining about bruises to support their injured shoulders.

"We have two good shoulders between us and that's enough," said Glennie. "We should stretch a rope from brace to brace and clothesline the other guys."

The Leafs play host to Vancouver Canucks tonight while California Golden Seals minus the Canadiens at Montreal, the Rangers and Islanders in New York, Boston Bruins take on the Flyers in Philadelphia, Detroit Red Wings visit Minnesota North Stars and Atlanta Flames go against the Blues in St. Louis.

Sunday, the Leafs are at Philadelphia, California at Boston, Vancouver at Detroit, St. Louis at Atlanta, Minnesota at Chicago, Montreal at Buffalo and the Rangers and Islanders continue their hometown rivalry.

"Maybe this is a good thing," he said. "Maybe we'll get all the injuries over with now and then we can settle down to real hockey."

But the crowd hasn't cheered from the Gardens first aid room.

Ullman, after two days with a sore foot, Henderson with a pulled leg muscle and Sittler has a badly-bruised right hand.

All three may all be back in the lineup but they're not likely to be in peak condition.

Out of the Toronto lineup is defenceman John Grisdale. He won't be back for about six weeks after tendon surgery to his injury to his neck.

Gets Chance

SEATTLE (AP) — Vancouver Canucks recalled their No. 2 draft choice, Bryan McSheffrey, from Seattle Totems of the Western Hockey League, coolest tonight in Toronto against the Maple Leafs. McSheffrey scored 11 goals and had nine assists in 13 games for the Totems this season.

Hockey Canada Earns $97,277

Eagleson announced receipt of the cheques Friday from Arthur Harnett Enterprises Ltd., the firm responsible for sale of commercial time on radio and television.

"Revenue from the sale of advertising and radio rights amounted to $2,375,035," said Eagleson, executive-director of the National Hockey League Players' Association, in detail of the breakdown of expenses which amounted to $2,277,758. The net to Hockey Canada, therefore, is $97,277 from our electronic revenue."

He said income from live sales in Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver had not been determined, but Hockey Canada should have a breakdown next week."

"Expenses included $1,034,000 in the Canadian Amateur Hockey week for production and line charges. The agency responsible for advertising sales earned a commission of $282,000.

"When all receipts from all sources are totalled," said Eagleson, "we expect Hockey Canada and the National Hockey League Players' Association will split $800,000.

"Hockey Canada's share presumably will go to their minor hockey promotions. The players' share goes to the pension fund."

Year Layoff No Handicap

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — Barry Coleman, who moved to Toronto from Saskatoon last February and missed a season of curling, showed Friday his lack of play hasn't hurt his game.

Coleman, with Tom Cushing, Murray Armstrong and Murray Gregus, swept three games in the Ontario Consols challenge round to win the final of the top bracket in the double elimination tournament.

The Coleman foursome beat Don Gilbert of St. Thomas 7-5 in a morning game, edged Alf Phillips Jr. of Toronto 6-5 in the afternoon and defeated Ross Pearce of Toronto 8-4 at night.

The two winning rinks here gain a bye to the Ontario championships at Orillia in February.

Still in the running in the bottom half of the draw are Bob Pierce, Bruce Hunter, Gord Cavanagh and Paul Savage of Toronto, Oshawa's Clare Pocock, Jim Fraser of Brampton and Jim Waite of St. Thomas.

In other games played Friday, Phillips downed Waite 9-7, Pocock defeated Earl Morris Ottawa, 8-5; Dave Pedley, Ot downed Jim Creighton Toronto, 11-6; Cavanagh took Terry Begin, Ottawa, 13-3; Hunter defeated Ken Hunt, Steg, Ottawa, 7-6; Peacock defeated Ron Wellard, Ottawa 8-7; Fraser checked Toronto's Earle Husbaren 8-7; Ken Thompson, London, beat Pete Steen, Oshawa, 7-5 and Munro stopped Pedley 11-5.

BOARD NIXES BOUT

LONDON (AP) — Negotiations for European heavyweight champion Joe Bugner to fight Muhammad Ali in Las Vegas Nev., on Feb. 21 were concluded Friday, giving Bugner 22, his biggest ever pay night, about $175,000. But Ray Clarke, secretary of the British Boxing Board, said Bugner had been told "in no uncertain terms that he must not sign any contract." Several British promoters have been bidding to stage the Ali-Bugner fight here, and the board would receive a percentage of the gate.

Scholarships For Athletes?

by

Eric Emerson

Sports Editor

Saturday morning has broken gently over the green grass, the clinging ivy and the spiralled university towers.

It has broken about four hours ago, maybe five. The university is awakening by twos and threes and bunches. Joe College rolls out of the sack and discovers that foul cotton feeling from his teeth to his tonsils. Susy Co-ed crawls out of bed and remembers that psych essay that was passed up for the pub.

It's Saturday morning at university — Queens, Western, Mac, Lutheran — and students are wedded by a common bond, the Saturday morning miseries. Breakfast is no longer in the dorm or the Versa-food cafeteria, thank heavens. Beds are unmade. Books are unread. Is there anything that can save Saturday?

Sure there is . . . the warm-up party before the Gaels go out and beat hell out of U of T; or Saturday afternoon on the hill as Gaeldom blows another one to Windsor; or the post-game smash-up party where everyone can explain how the bluntangs blew the big one to those lousy Golden Hawks.

School athletics aren't the big, happy unifying force that phys-ed departments like to paint them. College athletes don't trot out on the field, the court or anyplace else to win one for the student union anymore than pro athletes win one for the Gipper. But what other events bring two or three thousand super sophisticated sophomores together on campus singing bouncy renditions of the fight song? It serves as kind of a counter balance to the serious bazaar-ness of Calculus II or the artsy-type talks in the coffee houses.

Recently a number of universities have been questioning the relevance of intercollegiate athletics to the student body as a whole. The argument is that they benefit only the athletically elite.

Students at Waterloo University provided an indication of how they feel about the question when presented with a recent referendum on discontinuing varsity sports. Of the almost 4,000 students who voted on the question only 317 voted for complete discontinuance of varsity sports.

If this sort of figure bears out at other universities, then SOMEBODY must be interested in varsity sports, and this kind of interest does exist why not take athletics from the second-class status they have always held in Canadian schools and recognize them as part of the total educational concept.

Why not athletic scholarships for Canadian Universities?

Certainly it would be sad to see sports placed on the grail level that American colleges seem to hold them, but couldn't financial support of some kind be forthcoming to a talented basketball player who is academically qualified for university. If grants are available for music, academics, art etc., why not athletics? A good hockey player or wrestler has probably put as many hours of practice into his sport as a red hot bassoonist has put into music.

Why should some of our best young hockey and football players have to defect for the chance to have their athletic talents recognized by academic institutions?

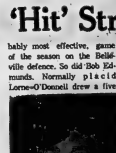
The provincial government has recently increased the number of grants available to amateur sports in Ontario.

The plan is a fine one, but why not carry it one step further. Instead of spending money just for training, travel and facilities, why not give our young athletes a chance to educate themselves while improving their athletic skills?

Why not have athletic scholarships to Canadian universities?

Quintes 'Hit' Stride With 6-3 Win Over Brantford

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Editor



For weeks now Belleville Quintes' coach Wayne Brown has been sounding like Johnny One-Note: "We've got to start hitting! We've got to start hitting! We've got to . . ."

Friday night, the Quintes made "Wiener" a prophet with honor. They hit, and the result was a 6-3 win over the Brantford Foresters. Not only did the Quintes pick up two points, they played their best home game of the entire home season before a paltry crowd of about 300.

"I told them that if they didn't take their man out, there'd be a fine — and not a small one. I meant it," said a happy coach after last night's win.

The team responded with an exceptional checking job, hitting the way they haven't been all season; forechecking in the Brantford zone and coming back with the opposing wingers.

Greg Marchen played his most aggressive, and probably most effective, game of the season on the Belleville defence. So did Bob Edmunds. Normally placid Lorne-O'Donnell drew a five minute major for fighting. Ray Johnston checked three penalties for his pesky checking efforts and players like George Gudson and Lionel Bothy stepped out of character to play a physical type of game.

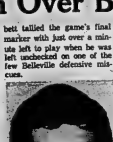
The driveshaft of the Quintes' win, however, came from grafting "an old hockey head onto young legs." Dave Jones played his first game of the season for Belleville, as did Ken Knapton. They combined with Wayne McConnell to form the most effective unit on the ice. They scored three times and were not on the ice for a single Forester tally.

Knapton, a scooter, made a most impressive debut. The little left winger scored two goals, earned an assist and gave a bustling, hitting performance. Brown was even more impressed with the team spirit he helped to supply.

"He's been to practice only one night and he knows everybody by their first name," said Wiener. "I came into the dressing room before the game and all I could hear was him chattering. If he keeps hustling the way he did tonight we've got something."

Knapton opened the scoring for Belleville by sinking a rebound after 47 seconds of play in the second period. Play had been scoreless in the opening frame thanks to Quintes' Karl Bagnell who stopped a hard point drive from Joe Trilaga and a tough chance from Carl Alston, who scored from the slot. Brantford's Stan Woracz responded with an excellent save on Johnston's slapper from the point.

Jones, who was slated for spot duty, played most of the game with occasional relief help from John McConnell. The Senior "A" veteran earned three assists.



Wayne McConnell was perhaps the best player on either team. The speedy right winger scored one goal, made two key assists and provided strong backchecking throughout the contest.

McConnell set up Knapton for his second goal of the game at 8.46 of the final period with the home team holding a slim 2-1 lead. The winger held the puck in the corner as Woracz moved out to stick check him before flipping a pass to Knapton who fired the puck into the empty Brantford net.

On the next Belleville goal, the eventual winner, McConnell slid a low pass to centre Paul Grills who outskated the opposing defence to score as he was being tripped from behind. Grills crashed heavily into the boards on the play, but stayed in the lineup for the rest of the game.

After Brantford had closed the gap to 4-2 on Terry McKnight's goal from the slot, McConnell put it out of reach with a slap shot that bounced off sub-goalie Bob Aiken's arm and into the net.

WAYNE McCONNELL

Karl Bagnell was sharp in the winners' nets. He faced 31 shots in the game while Woracz and Aiken were tested 38 times by the Quintes. Bagnell lost his shut out when Jack Powell scored on a breakaway from the blueline early in the third period.

"He (Bagnell) isn't using his stick enough on plays like that," noted Brown, "he's trying to slide his pads across and the guy is able to pull the puck away and shoot."

The Belleville coach sees Sunday's game in Brantford as a key test for his team. The Quintes trail the fifth place Foresters by four points. "If we skate and check the way we did tonight, there's no reason why we can't beat them," he theorized.

Penalties: Corbett (Rochon) 18.21.

Penalties: O'Donnell, Cochrane (high stick, fight), 9.36; Edmunds, Hall (fight) 12.36.

Greg Marchen of the Belleville Quintes and Brantford's Carl Alston are not trying to bring back the minuet. It's merely a small difference of opinion concerning Alston's right to advance toward the Belleville goal. Marchen came through with an aggressive performance on the Quintes defence to help the team to a 6-3 OHA Senior A hockey win over Brantford.

Brockville Beaten

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pembroke Lumber Kings lengthened their first-place lead and Nepean Raiders edged closer to third in Central Junior Hockey League play Friday night.

A pair of goals by Rod Schutt, one of them the winner late in the third period, lifted Pembroke to a 5-4 win over Smiths Falls Bears.

Raiders, playing on Brockville ice, sidestepped an 11-1 beating to Braves sparked by a three-goal performance by Maurice Leger.

Kings now have a nine-point lead over second-place Ottawa Rangers who were idle Friday. Nepean moved to within a point of third-place Brockville.

Bob Mitchell of Smiths Falls and Bob Wright of Pembroke both drew two fighting penalties and were tagged with game misconducts after their second brawl.

Hornets Lose Ground

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The race in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League tightened up considerably Friday night as the first-place Galt Hornets lost and their chief rivals won.

Barrie Flyers dumped the Hornets 5-2 to pull within two stay even with Orillia Terriers in a tie for second.

The Terriers stayed in the race by outlasting Oakville Oaks 6-4. In Friday night's only other game, Belleville Quintes downed Brantford Foresters 6-3.

Galt's hold on first place may be only temporary because the Hornets have played three more games than Orillia and two more than Barrie.

Orillia's goals were shared by three different players—Jim O'Brien, Grant Moore, Keith Wright. Doug Dunville, Jim Keon and Gary Marsh Scoring for Oakville were Dave Nicholls-Hann, Hank Meredith, Ron McNeil and Duncan McDonald.

Barrie and Oak resume the battle for spot tonight in Galt while Owen Sound journeys to Kingston.

Donwood Institute Cures Many Alcoholics

TORONTO (CP) — Some-where in the LeDain report on the non-medical use of drugs is mention of a Donwood Institute and a Dr. Gordon Bell. The LeDain commission spoke favorably of the institution and the doctor, finding they have achieved a high level of success in working with alcoholics.

Dr. Bell, who has treated addicted drinkers for 25 years, developed his Donwood program five years ago. The commission said he has reformed roughly 50 per cent of his patients. An additional 25 per cent have shown improvement in coping with their problems.

The Donwood Institute works with adult alcoholics, roughly a three-to-one ratio of men to women. The institute does not accept people suffering from brain damage, psychosis, character disorders or inability to understand English.

Dr. Bell said his patients are often offenders on first admitted, and some are so depressed that they must first be treated to iron out their depression before beginning the general program of rehabilitation.

The first phase of the program involves dealing with withdrawal reactions and other acute disabilities. The patient then undergoes thorough examinations for physical, psychological and sociological disorders.

The actual rehabilitation program then begins with patients, admitted at a rate of 10 to 12 a week, meeting for a 28-hour program of group therapy. This is scheduled over a period of 3½ weeks and includes lectures, films, physical training and relaxation.

Dr. Bell insists a patient remain at the hospital for a four-week period and then continue the treatment as an out-patient on a weekly basis for a year.

During the patient's last week at the institute, he meets the people he will be seeing and working with for a year. The "community team" is made up of non-clinical people, housewives for example, hired to keep in regular touch with the patient. The team also includes a former patient of the institute.

Also included in the program is an orientation course for family and those close to the patient. Staff members agree that this course is essential to help treat the patient in a new light as a reformed member of society.

Although Dr. Bell said he is open to new ideas, he stands firm in one line of thought—a reformed person must never take a drink again.

"So we don't try to turn people back into social drinkers," Dr. Bell said. "It is not our job to compromise."

Eskimo Boy Saves Pilot

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — A 14-year-old Eskimo youth, unable to hold out until help arrived, apparently was a major reason pilot Martin Hartwell lived through a 32-day Arctic horror story.

Mr. Hartwell, a 46-year-old West German, was found Saturday near the wreckage of his twin-engined Beechcraft aircraft which disappeared Nov. 8 on a medical mercy mission. The bodies of the youth, David Kootook, and two other passengers were nearby.

The pilot, with only two years' northern flying experience, was in excellent condition today in hospital here. He suffered two broken ankles and a fractured knee in the crash, but was almost untouched by the harsh northern elements.

He refused to tell his story to reporters. However, pieces of the saga were gathered from armed forces personnel who rescued him from his makeshift camp about 50 miles south of Great Bear Lake in the Northwest Territories. The site was about 180 miles off his course and well out of the search area.

One rescuer, Cpl. Harvie Copeland, a paramedic from Canadian Forces Base Edmonton, said Mr. Hartwell told him the Kootook youth chopped firewood, built a shelter under his supervision, and went fishing at a frozen lake.

"I think maybe during the first couple of weeks, the boy contributed a lot to him being here now," Cpl. Copeland, who parachuted into the crash scene, said in an interview Sunday.

The youth died after 23 days in the wilderness and after at least three aircraft had flown over the area without seeing them.

Mr. Hartwell told Cpl. Copeland that, after 18 days, the youth appeared to lose his hope and spirit and began to slip. Five days later, while talking about his brothers and sisters, he died.

Cpl. Copeland said Mr. Hartwell ran out of firewood after the youth's death and by Saturday had been without a fire, hot food or hot drink for three days. Temperatures in the area dropped to more than 20 degrees below zero.

The aircraft had been taking the Kootook youth, Neemee Nulayak, an Eskimo woman in premature labor, and Judith Hill, their 27-year-old nurse, to hospital here.

The youth was to have been examined for what was presumed to be chronic appendicitis. He had not been in any pain at the start of the flight.

All three were from the remote settlement of Spence Bay on the Arctic Coast, but began their journey from Cambridge Bay, on Victoria Island in the High Arctic.

Ken Eec, Gateway's operations manager, said in an interview Mr. Hartwell was flying at 2,500 feet when he switched on the cockpit light to check a map. Minutes later, the plane smashed into a heavily-wooded slope.

Cpl. Copeland said Mr. Hartwell told him Miss Hill, who came to Canada from King bridge, Engla d, three years ago, died in the crash.

Peace Pact Said Near

PARIS (Reuter) — U.S. envoy Henry Kissinger, armed with fresh instructions from President Nixon, was scheduled to meet North Vietnam's emissary Le Duc Tho today for another session of their secret talks which could be decisive.

The two took Sunday off after six meetings last week but there was still plenty of activity on the peace front during the weekend.

Kissinger's deputy, Gen. Alexander Haig, left for Washington where he had a 75-minute meeting with Nixon, and in Paris technical experts on both sides met to discuss the draft text of a possible peace agreement.

Well-informed sources said a copy of the text was taken by Haig to Washington and observers have noted that the talks must have made considerable progress for Nixon to want such a close and personal briefing.

The president is in constant touch with his diplomatic right-hand man in Paris and presidential spokesman Ronald Ziegler said in Washington that Kissinger had been sent further instructions Sunday.

The general will stay in Washington today but Ziegler gave no indication when he will return to Paris.

In the laborious struggle for peace, Kissinger and Tho have been locked together for 23 hours trying to hammer out an agreement. Diplomatic circles say they have overcome all final stumbling blocks to peace.

Saigon Prepares For Truce

SAIGON (Reuter) — South Vietnam relentlessly pressed on today with its conditions for a settlement to the war and braced politically for a ceasefire that could come hours waiting the outcome of the United States-North Vietnamese secret peace talks in Paris.

President Nguyen Van Thieu signalled a morning press conference address at the international Conference of Economic Development for Southeast Asia parently to stay in constant touch with Washington and Paris.

His foreign minister told reporters at the ministerial conference "it is hard to believe" there will be a separate settlement between North Vietnam and the United States which does not have South Vietnam's endorsement.

The South Vietnamese government is ready for a settlement tomorrow, he said "but the Communists have to change something in the draft agreement," the minister said.

North Vietnam would have to agree in writing to withdraw its troops from the South.

Thieu's government has not yet publicly responded to a hint by the Viet Cong of a formula which might go part way to meeting the key condition of Saigon for a ceasefire.

Battle Fought

SAIGON (AP) — Fresh North Vietnamese troops were reported moving today toward Saigon from the Parrot's Beak region of Cambodia. They ran into a battalion of South Vietnamese militia and touched off one of the sharpest ground battles in weeks.

Lunar Craft Ready To Go

HOUSTON (CP) — Apollo 17 astronauts Eugene Cernan and Harrison Jack Schmitt began preparing today for man's last planned lunar exploration for decades, making ready their spider-legged landing ship called Challenger for a plunge to a box canyon on the moon.

The astronauts awoke to music this morning, piped up to them by Mission Control at about 7:43 EST as they completed their 80th orbit of the moon.

Cernan and Schmitt will spend the remainder of the morning putting on their spacesuits and starting up the systems of their lunar module for the 2:55 p.m. descent to the barren surface of the moon 15 miles below.

They ricocheted into orbit around the moon Sunday after a busy but uneventful voyage from Cape Kennedy, marred only by Cernan's digestive problems.

A perfect burn of the Apollo spacecraft's main propulsion engine at 1:55 p.m. EST speed as it hurtled behind the moon, brought it into orbit, ready for the separation of the command ship America and the lunar lander Challenger.

Moon Lab Will Work For 2 Years

HOUSTON (AP) — Apollo 17 astronauts will spend at least half their time during their first moonwalk setting up a lab oratory which is to send information to earth for two years or longer.

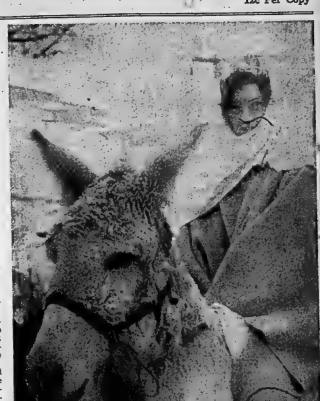
Harrison Schmitt, a geologist, and Eugene Cernan will install a $125 million laboratory, powered by a nuclear generator, it may take four hours of their first seven hour walk.

This will be the fourth nuclear generator operating on the moon. The first went up with Apollo 12 and four of the five instruments operating with its power have continued to send information to earth since November, 1969.

The first generator was destroyed to operate for one year.

The five experiments included in the Apollo 17 experiment package to be installed on Apollo 17 mission are designed to last twice as long.

IRA Members Have Rockets



BELFAST (AP) — British troops in Northern Ireland are preparing for a new offensive from Irish Republican Army guerrillas armed with shoulder rockets.

Army intelligence experts believe the IRA may be planning such an offensive before Christmas. They believe that the Provisional wing of the IRA may have as many as 20 of the Soviet RPG-7 rocket grenade launchers.

Agree to Line

NEW DELHI (AP) — India and Pakistan took a major step today toward implementing their five-month-old peace agreement when two generals signed maps delineating the line separating their forces in Kashmir.

Both governments have said that, once the Kashmir line of control is drawn, 5,130 square miles of territory captured by India and 69 square miles taken by Pakistan in the war last December will be exchanged.

Euromart's Employees Begin Nine-day Strike

BRUSSELS (Reuter) — The European Common Market's complex administrative machine started grinding to a virtual halt today as 6,000 Eurocrats—civil servants—began a nine-day strike here over a pay dispute.

They expected to be joined at noon Tuesday by 2,600 colleagues in Luxembourg. This means the European Economic Community (EEC) will virtually shut down until after the Christmas and New Year holidays.

Unless a solution is found to the dispute that set off the strike, wide-scale confusion, delay and disruption are in the offing just as Britain, Ireland and Denmark join the EEC on Jan. 1.

The situation could become even more chaotic if a censure motion to oust the Common Market's executive commission is approved in the EEC's European parliament Tuesday.

The motion, presented last month by a French Socialist, Georges Spenale, accuses the EEC executive of failing to take a protocol initiative to give the assembly wider powers over the EEC budget.

But the censure motion, the first in Common Market history, needs a quorum of 72 in the 144-man parliament and two-thirds majority to succeed. This makes it doubtful that the necessary votes will be mustered.

If the commission is dismissed, it would stay on in a caretaker capacity until an enlarged executive takes over on Jan. 6.

The decision to strike was taken on Sunday after the Eurocrats rejected a 10.4-per-cent pay increase.

They objected to the fact that West Germany and France no longer considered themselves bound by the terms of a wage raise settlement agreement reached last March after an earlier series of strikes.

Metro School Caretakers On Strike

TORONTO (CP) — About 500 caretakers and maintenance men in Metropolitan Toronto's separate schools went on strike for higher pay today but classes continued.

Supervisory personnel were manning the school heating plants.

The workers, members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, were seeking pay parity with their public school counterparts.

Israel Rounds Up Jewish and Arab Spies

TEL AVIV (AP) — A sabotage and spy ring of Israeli Jews and Arabs, called by a senior police officer the most dangerous network uncovered in Israel in two decades, planned to assassinate Defence Minister Moshe Dayan and other top Israeli leaders, informed sources said today.

Police began the roundup last week, raiding a dozen cities and Arab villages and detaining 16 Arabs and four Jews. During the weekend, two Arabs were released and another three were ordered held.

One senior police official said the network "was the largest, best organized and most dangerous we have come up against since 1948," the year of the first Arab-Israeli war.

Police said the four Israelis were left-wing extremists sympathetic to Arab guerrilla organizations and Arab nationalists who call for a Palestinian state of Arabs and Jews.

They were reported seeking to kill Dayan and other leaders for steadfastly refusing to compromise with their Arab antagonists.

News Briefs

Cuban Firm Bombed

NEW YORK (AP) — Three explosions about 1¼ minutes apart early today heavily damaged a Cuban-owned air-freight office and a travel agency in New York and an air-freight office of the same name in Miami. There were no injuries. Federal agents were investigating all three blasts, which occurred about 3:45 a.m. in Miami and just after 4 a.m. in New York.

Convicts in Control

BORDENTOWN, N.J. - (AP) — Some 100 rebellious prisoners remained in control today of two dormitory wings at the Bordentown reformatory following an uprising Sunday night. Superintendent Ira Mintz talked to the prisoners by telephone this morning in an effort to negotiate an end to the rebellion, said Al Fulling, a spokesman for the state department of institutions and agencies. The convicts told Mintz they were drawing up a list of demands.

Chinese Deny Clash

PEKING (Reuter) — The Chinese foreign ministry dismissed today Moscow reports that there had been a clash in the Sino-Soviet border area of Kazakhstan last month in which five Russian soldiers were allegedly killed by Chinese intruders. "As far as we know there was nothing of the kind at all," a foreign ministry spokesman said when asked about the reports.

Judges Hear Appeal

TORONTO (CP) — A three-judge panel of the federal Court of Appeal is considering the case of Karloton Armstrong, 26, fighting an extradition order that would send him to Wisconsin for trial on charges of murder and arson. After five days of legal argument here, the court concluded its hearing Saturday and a decision is expected early next month.

Japanese Premier Wins Vote

TOKYO (AP) — Premier Kakuei Tanaka's Liberal-Democratic party won a general-election mandate for his plan to remodel the face of Japan. But strong Communist and socialist gains raised the threat of trouble in carrying out the program.

The conservative party that has ruled Japan since 1948 won 271 of the 491 seats in the lower house of the Diet, and support from 14 conservative independents who were elected could bring the government's majority to 79.

That would be 34 votes short of the majority in the last house. The Liberal-Democrats lost 28 seats in the election that drew 53 million voters.

The Socialists again ran second, with 118, a gain of 31, while the Communists nearly tripled their total with 38, the highest ever in 12 post-war elections. In the old house, they had 14.

The big losers, with the Liberal Democrats, were the middle-of-the-road opposition. The Komeito, a creation of the Buddhist Sokagakkai sect which recently broke with its parent, dropped to 29 from 47 seats, the Democratic Socialists dropped to 19 from 29. Two men were elected from minor parties.

Firemen Santas Need Help

Santa's pack is going to be empty this year unless Quinte residents rally to the old gentleman's aid.

A disappointing response to the annual firefighter's appeal for toys has left organizers short of enough Christmas presents to supply the more than 1,000 names on their list.

Ralph Boomhower, director of the firefighters' toy project has found willing volunteers to help him repair and refurbish used toys, but donations are not coming in fast enough, and in sufficient quantities to take care of all the needy children in Belleville this year.

One of the dependable workers who contributes her time and talent to the toy project every year is Mrs. Mary Lloyst of RR7, Belleville.

For the last four or five years she has washed, repaired and dressed dolls for the firefighters, completing 65 this year.

Concerned about the shortage of toys, Mrs. Lloyst came to The Intelligencer this morning with an appeal.

"I think many people with growing children would get a kick out of fixing up dolls to give away, and would be really surprised at how their children will join in and help and enjoy it too," she said.

"It is sort of a ritual here in our home and my daughters Hazel and Beth really take an interest."

With 65 dolls to restore this year, Mrs. Lloyst needed all the help she could get. Beth, 14, played a major role in the project.

Friends give you scraps of material and friends did some of the clothes, too," said Mrs. Lloyst. "We would never have gotten them all done this year if Mrs. Winnie Hales hadn't pitched in and helped."

... Mrs. Lloyst's assistance extended beyond doll repair this year. She helped the firemen shop in Toronto at a store she knew, where they could obtain a large discount and stretch the money they have received in donations.

"They have the need more response so they won't fall short," she said. "They are short on money, toys, games and dolls — everything — because they have such a large list.

And, adds Mrs. Lloyst, donations coming in the last week before Christmas will be too late to be of much use this year.

Brighton Parade 'Best Yet'

BRIGHTON (Staff) — One of the most entertaining of Santa Claus parades held in the Quinte district spread out along much of Brighton's main street Saturday.

...While the crowd was neither huge nor small, many of the spectators got involved in the event ... others were drawn into it. When it was over, praises ran high, although there had been a half-hour delay in its scheduled start.

The Ontario Provincial Police officers were "arrested" by several men dressed in prison garb. First came a resounding snowball and confetti battle between the two forces. But in the end order was restored. The so-called prisoners and accompanying Keystone Kops were actually members of the same OPP detachment, enacting their traditional role in Brighton's parade.

There were clowns, many of whom were brought by Don Foster from Belleville, others were local residents who got involved, to help the 1st Brighton Venturers organize the event for the second year in row.

Dozens were involved in arranging for, or helping build the 20 floats entered. There were floats depicting early Canadian schools (complete with outhouse), a caged, becostumed lion, an old-world butcher shop float entered by a local store, children dressed as Christmas presents, to mention a few.

Three bands added a musical treat to the parade. They were the Brighton Legion Pipe Band, the East Northumberland High School band, and the Trenton Citizen's Band.

Following the parade, all those who participated were invited to attend a small party at the Rotary Broughton Youth Centre. There, the Brighton guides and scouts had prepared hot chocolate and coffee, doughnuts and pastries.

Organizers were well pleased with the event. "This is by far the best we've had," one said at the community centre.

Those entered in the parade were: Brighton OPP in village car, the Brighton Lions Club, two fire engines from the Brighton Fire Department, the Trenton Public Works Department, the Trenton Public Utilities Commission, the Brighton Sports Boosters, Brighton Public Club, Brighton Public School, Spring Valley School, Brighton Dairymen, Brighton Guides, Brighton Scouts, Henderson's Butcher Shop, Swayne's Wrecking Yard, Belleville Shrine Club and the East Northumberland Secondary School float and band.

Most somber entry in the parade was that of Swayne's Wrecking Yard. A wrecked Datsun 240Z and a sign warning of the dangers of mixing hydrauy drinking with driving, was pulled along by a toy truck.

Is The YMCA Doing Its Job?

Decision by United Community Services that support for the Belleville Family YMCA from the United Appeal will be cut off from Jan. 1, 1974, the Y executive has called a meeting for tonight of UCS member agencies — as they say — to air the facts and discuss the direction the Y should take. The UCS position is that the YMCA has done little to meet the UCS request that it change its role in the community. At the same time, the Y is questioning the role of UCS.

With this background, The Intelligencer over the weekend conducted a mini-poll on the question should the YMCA receive support from the community through the United Appeal.

Henry Vos
Parrot Drive

I think the job of UCS should be collecting funds . . . In Belleville, we do not have enough for children to do year-round. The YMCA is a lively building . . . we should promote it. Maybe it is not perfect but if you take it away what is left? It is not the job of UCS to make the Y change . . . It is possible for the children to get membership very reasonably. There is support for other youth programs, why not this?

Perry King
Orchard Drive

The YMCA should have a second chance but I agree with the UCS decision to cut them off at this time. . . It is a problem where the Y's money is going to come from but they should try to expand their services to areas of the city other than the east end. United Community Services has told the Y that the door is always open for them to get back into United Appeal group. It is up to the Y to change so that it is acceptable in a way but will be good for the Y, UCS and the community.

Mrs. Maude Jones
Turnbull Street

I definitely agree with the YMCA receiving money. From all I have heard about their work, I think it is a wonderful place . . . There is no argument there. Transportation is good now and there is a bus by the door (of the Y) every 15 minutes. Something should be done, though, for the families that cannot afford to go — they should be encouraged to go.

Debra Gallagher
Patterson Street

I have never been in a YMCA or YWCA in my life and I really do not know what their programs are like . . . I think the Y should do more work for the underprivileged but I expect it is a matter of money. I really question whether taking money away from them (the Y) will make things better. Each side should get together and come to a solution that is in the best interests of the community.

Mrs. Stella Cronkright
Turnbull Street

They took the Y from downtown and moved it out there and there should be co-operation to keep it going . . . someone has to give a bit. I think our East Hill residents should co-operate. We want places for the benefit of young people . . . Families that cannot afford the YMCA should be given free or cheaper membership. A man with four or five children and one pay cheque doesn't have too much money left.

Paul Westberpe
Applewood Drive

I believe some of the money to support the Y has to come from the people who belong to it but the fees people pay do not cover its costs . . . I helped organize a table tennis tournament last February to raise funds for the United Appeal; the Y was one of the organizations we were interested in helping. I feel the Y has a function to fulfil — providing recreation facilities to the public. I feel they have fulfilled this.

More Seek Jobs

The number of people seeking jobs in the Belleville area and Hastings County in November increased by 113 over October.

The city's Canada Manpower Centre reported 1,545 job applicants at the end of last month. This compared with 1,432 in October and 1,359 in November 1971.

No large layoffs occurred in the area during the month, although winter weather has frozen job opportunities in road construction for another season, said Manpower Centre manager H. W. Karn.

There is a small demand for clerical staff in the trade and commerce industries, much of it now being met by part-time help during the Christmas rush.

Applications for professional personnel — managers and executives are at an all-time low — except for teachers.

The Belleville Manpower Centre administers an area including the city, Ameliasburgh township and Hastings County.

Children Suspected Fire Cause

City fire officials suspect children playing caused a fire Saturday night in a half-built house on Haig Rd.

It took firemen two hours to clean up after a basement blaze spread smoke throughout the house. No damage estimate is available but the burnt area was confined to the basement.

Fire Chief Leo Culhane said youngsters are often a problem around building sites.

"We can't keep them out," he said. "This isn't the first time we've had a call like this."

Firemen were dispatched to the house being built by Charles Lambert Construction, at 8:27 p.m.

Classes Begin In January

Three new series of preparation for parenthood classes will start in the new year at the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties health unit at the east-end Belleville Plaza.

The class for couples, limited to 16, is scheduled for Jan. 2, 7:30 p.m.

Two classes begin Jan. 3 — 1:45 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.

Pensioners' Petition Snowballs

More than 500 pensioned Bellevillians have endorsed a resolution calling on governments to ease the lot of elderly Canadians living on fixed incomes.

The resolution is being circulated by Belleville and District Pensioners Concerned. It requests action from local and senior governments to offset inflation and continually-mounting taxation, blamed for reducing the living standards of pensioners.

The resolution is being circulated by all 18 branches of Pensioners Concerned across Canada.

The Belleville group was organized in October and so far has secured signatures of 500 of the estimated 3,500 elderly men and women living in the city.

Scientist Receives Arts' Award From Mayor

Cultural Award Winner Is Dr. Joan Bronskill

Described as having been a moving force in the city's cultural life, Dr. Joan Bronskill Saturday was given fitting recognition.

In a presentation ceremony on stage at the Pinnacle Playhouse, the research scientist became recipient of the Belleville Cultural Achievement Award.

Mayor J. Russell Scott, in unveiling and presenting the novel sculpture award to Dr. Bronskill, praised her for her dedication to the community since she came here in 1948. Employed by the department of agriculture, Dr. Bronskill moved to Ottawa in June with the phasing out of the department's research laboratories here.

The setel sculpture award, titled The Rehearsal, was designed and constructed by Tony Lassini of Trenton for this fourth annual presentation.

Through the years, Dr. Bronskill has been active in the work of the Community Concert Association, served on the executive of Quinte Arts Council and the Belleville branch of the National Ballet Guild.

She has been a member of the Belleville Theatre Guild Guild for the last 10 years and represented the guild in the Eastern Ontario Drama League.

From 1966 to 1971, Dr. Bronskill served as honorary governor from this region to the Dominion Drama Festival. In 1971, she was chairman of the western section of the Eastern Ontario Drama League.

Frank Seemungal, president of the Belleville Theatre Guild, calls Joan Bronskill "a truly unselfish person who is always giving of her time and energy for the good of others."

Dr. Bronskill expressed deep gratitude for the evening's tribute on the stage she has helped to develop.

"Theatre in Belleville is now operating on a business-like basis," she says.

A reception in the theatre's Green Room followed the night's three - play performance and for the cultural award winner it was an opportunity to reminisce with friends.

Dr. Bronskill says she plans to work with Ottawa's Canadlot Players perhaps helping with set design.

Benefit to Aid Fire Victims

PICTON (Staff) — The Singing Post Family will entertain at a benefit show in Kente School, Ameliasburgh this Friday night to raise funds for Edwin Brown and his family who were fire victims recently.

The Browns' new home burned to the ground as Mrs. Brown waited helplessly in the family car outside. There was no telephone installed at their new residence.

Admission for the evening will be $1 per person with all proceeds to go to the Brown family.

MY SINCERE THANKS

To the 4,294 citizens of Belleville who voted for me as a Trustee to serve on the Hastings County Board of Education.

I would also take this opportunity to wish all of you the compliments of the season and to ask for your continued support at the polls in December 1974.

DON THRUSH

In three minutes, you'll know what kind of copying and duplicating equipment you need.

Do you need lots of high quality copies in a hurry?

Our best Quick Copies System shoots out printed copies at a rate of 150 a minute. Yet it's efficient for making as few as seven copies from an original.

You have a choice of two offset duplicators. The automated table top model 3250 is easy to operate because one level controls all the duplicating functions. The 360 automated offset is better if your copying volume is very high, because it can be programmed to run the desired number of copies.

Add a sorter and your copies will be ready as soon as they're printed...

Is economy your main concern?

A Spirit System is the most economical copying system there is. It'll make copies for as little as 4¢ each. And you can make masters directly from an original with the 294 master/transparency maker. This system is ideal for small offices, or operations that need a lot of inexpensive copies for internal use.

Do you need a few copies in a hurry?

Then you'll need the convenience of a copier. If a lot of people make a lot of copies, consider the 680. It makes the first copy in four seconds. So people won't waste their time waiting for copies.

Our 625 copier is an economical solution for small volume needs. Yet is has many features found in more expensive copiers. Like the flatbed design to keep your original safe, outside the copier.

Do you want the best combination of quality and economy?

If you need lots of copies, but don't need offset quality, a Mimeograph System is the answer. It requires a smaller investment than offset. You can make stencils directly from your original using a 595 stencil burner which lets you reproduce drawings and photos. And the 550 mimeograph can run copies in several colors.

Serving Remote Areas

The bursary system to encourage medical students to take up practice on graduation, in areas of particular need, is not working according to Health Minister Richard Potter.

Statistics which Dr. Potter gave in the legislature seem to confirm his contention. He said that of 218 students involved in the program, 50 have withdrawn, 20 are now practising in designated have-not areas, and the others are still in university.

But Dr. Potter has been under fire for his statement that the bursaries program "will be phased out soon." At last report he was discussing the matter with Social Development Secretary Robert Welch who is responsible for evolving health policy. Outside the House Dr. Potter had seemed to soften his stand, saying he intended to have a look at the program which so far had cost the province more than $1 million.

In principle the program is a good one. We understand that similar inducements, sometimes with the co-operation of local municipalities, have placed doctors in practice in communities where none existed before.

It would be unfortunate if more remote areas of the province, still awaiting medical practitioners, were to have their chances further jeopardized by elimination of this plan. At the same time the economics of the program must be carefully considered and Dr. Potter clearly has that in mind. Doubtless he will have more to say on the subject in due course.

Research Progress

The number of cancer sufferers who must have had their hopes raised falsely by reports of this or that promising research breakthrough must be legion. Often, if the studies continued have been successful it is only in certain cases, or else it is that they have worked well on mice but it would be years possibly before results or treatment on human subjects could be evaluated.

The same caution must be exercised in reacting to word that Prof. Albert Sabin of polio vaccine-fame and other cancer researchers have arrived at "an exciting result, too good to be true."

The research, according to Rome reports, has to do with anti-cancer viruses which exist naturally in the human body. But the public must understand that the studies are only preliminary. As an Italian colleague of Sabin explains, practical applications — if any — could take five years to develop.

Let's hope these studies will result in time in means of controlling this dread disease which has so many variations and such a comparatively low recovery rate.

Narrow Escape

The attempt on the life of Imelda Marcos, wife of the President of the Philippines, was a particularly hateful incident which fortunately was thwarted, partly by the presence of mind of Mrs. Marcos and partly by the quick action of rescuers.

President Ferdinand Marcos himself has survived several assassination attempts in a land which seems to have more than its share of social disturbances and instability among the populations.

Manila has a reputation as a tough place where knifings are common. We recall a news picture from the city some years ago of a man being stabbed by a knife-wielding assassin, ending with the latter's death on the sidewalk.

Mrs. Marcos happily is out of danger and since her wounds were to her arms and hands she has been spared serious disfigurement.

In Harmony

Some further thoughts on high-rise apartments: in Toronto some of the most recent complexes are clustered in groups near 401 highway entering the city and do not conflict with the suburban scenes all around. Similarly, go to Stockholm for example — and to the suburb of Roslagsmasky reached by suburban train from downtown — and there are high-rise apartments located in groups, close to train and shopping, with attractive wooded areas nearby, even a view north across farm fields to a vast empty horizon and all in harmony with the immediate environment. Play areas are available for the children (can that be said of our high-rise complexes?) And even in downtown Stockholm there is an extensive mall-style area with exhibitions of art. We recall a sandbox there too with children playing in it.

Apparent Russian forbearance toward Hungary and reported signs of at least a slight thaw in Czechoslovakia may serve to raise hopes that Soviet-dominated Eastern Europe is possibly on the way to enjoying an increased degree of independence from Moscow in the determination of its domestic policies.

In any case, Eastern Europe seems to be developing into less of a monolithic bloc of states than it was during the Stalin era.

Definite differences of approach to some issues are emerging, for instance, between Poland and East Germany over the extent to which Western influences are allowed an officially-authorized place in society.

The East Germans are described by some Western observers as taking action in their attempts to exclude capitalist-originated news, in its written form, than are the Poles.

On the other hand, the East Germans are more exposed to television and radio news from Western broadcasting stations than are Polish Communists.

In Hungary, scene of Russian military action against reformelements 16 years ago, the Communist government has been trying for the past year to combine economic expansion and a degree of price and investment curbs—all this coinciding with efforts to increase trade with non-Communist countries.

At the same time, the Hungarians have apparently convinced the Russians that Budapest needs room to manoeuvre in its economic policies, with relative freedom from Soviet control.

Russian party chief Leonid Brezhnev recently visited Budapest and gave what was termed "the entire acquiescence of the Soviet side" to the current policies of Hungarian leader Janos Kadar.

Whether all this merely reflects a Russian need to appear moderate at a time of delicate negotiations with Western countries over European security is, for the moment, unclear.

At any rate the need for great caution in assessing Moscow's intentions and motives is acute, particularly in the matter of Czechoslovakia.

There, the summer of 1968 brought another display of Soviet military might as the answer to local uprisings.

Since the removal of Alexander Dubcek from power in Prague, a wide-ranging shakeup has been going on at all levels of Czech life, designed to banish the man of 1968 from positions of influence.

The result was a withdrawal by many Czechs into a shell of silence and fears of another purge similar to those of the Stalin period.

But lately there has been suggestions from Prague that the clean-out of Dubcek sympathizers might be easing to some extent and there is a degree of mystification about Moscow's views on how Czechoslovakia should be allowed to develop.

Thus for the Czechs, as for East Europeans in general, much still depends on the unpredictable men of the Kremlin, even though the pullback in force is giving rise to a new generation in Soviet bloc countries for whom the Moscow-inspired orthodoxies of past decades might prove profoundly unsatisfying.

State Socialism Is Objective of Guyana

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

What is going on in Guyana? Unlike the other Commonwealth Caribbean countries which are trying to keep the balance between the essential foreign investment and business in their countries and growing nationalism, Guyana is charting a course toward state socialism.

Other than Peru and almost Marxist Chile under President Salvador Allende, the Chinese and the Cubans have no official entrees into South America except through their recently-established offices in Georgetown.

Guyana has already signed technical assistance deals with Peking's local representative. The Cubans, more interested in cultural unity in the Caribbean, have opened an office of Prensa Latina, Cuba's official news agency, in Guyana's capital.

And now comes news of the creation of a Cuja-style militia, including women officers and rank-and-file troops. The reason is much the same as that given for the existence of large military forces in Cuba, defence of the country against encroaching enemies.

Guyana has a stronger case than Cuba, since her big, Spanish-speaking neighbor Venezuela lays claim to a little more than half of Guyana's territory. And a few years ago, a major rebellion, of large and anti-government landowners in the remote but rich Rupununi region had to be put down.

Premier Forbes Burnham was able to quell the uprising but the suspicions about Venezuelan intentions were stronger than ever after many of the leaders of the landowners uprising found refuge in that country.

As a result of the Guyanese-Venezuelan feud, the former British colony on the South American mainland, is not yet a member of the Organization of American States as are Trinidad and Tobago, Jamaica and the Barbados.

This is probably not the main reason, since Premier Burnham appears to share Dr. Castro's loathing of the OAS as a U.S.-dominated and inspired international organization. "to keep Latin America and the Caribbean in bondage to U.S. economic and political imperialism."

The clearest sign of Guyana's direction to "Guyanization" of the entire economy was last year's takeover of Demerara bauxite operations of the Aluminum Co. of Canada.

This is a $150 million facility, relying heavily on Canadian technical and managerial expertise, most of which made the Guyanese are trying to replace from poorly-trained local talent and apparently from the Chinese as well.

In a series of paradoxes which make Guyanaese politics confusing to the outsider, the country's Marxist leader Cheddi Jagan, a defeated candidate for prime minister, believes in a planned Marxist economy as representative of an East Indian community known for its business and money-making enterprise.

Like East Indians who immigrated to East Africa, in Guyana they also make up a large sector of the country's prosperous business community. And now Mr. Burnham's nationalization measures are going to affect them in a way anticipated by Mr. Jagan who was not able to win enough votes to introduce his policies.

A few years ago, there were rumbles U.S. warships would sidestep Barbados and visit Guyana. Or Washington would consider a Marines landing at Georgetown in the tradition of the Dominican 1965 invasion, if it looked as though Guyana would take the Cuban-style route.

Since then, Chile has gone Marxist and the Americans did not, in effect, could not move against her. But Guyana's moves, nevertheless, do worry her neighbors.

Great Wall Of China

The War Cry

The Great Wall, China's magnificent frontier barrier built to keep out invaders, roughly follows the border between Inner Mongolia and China proper. The whole complex was developed by Shih Huang Ti (reigned 246-209 BC).

It was erected by a large portion of the 3,000,000 soldiers who were aided by conscript laborers. Today's structure is not really the original one for many improvements and repairs have been made continually. In many places the wall has caved in. Other areas have been reduced to rubble and sand because of centuries of exposure to erosive elements.

The builders were certain that the wall would keep out invaders forever. But because of the length of the wall it could only serve as a defensive unit when it was fully garrisoned. Poverty prevented this. Also, the enemies could still break through, kill and destroy.

Ontario Hydro and Its Public Responsibility

By DON O'HEARN
from The Intelligencer's
Queen's Park Bureau

TORONTO — Over the years it has been the custom, abetted considerably by the organization itself, to place Ontario Hydro on a pedestal.

As the first such publicly-owned utility of magnitude in our North American free enterprise world there has always been the tendency to give Hydro blind acclaim.

It has been lauded for providing low-cost power, for its professional expertise and for practically everything else short of saying its prayers before it goes to bed at night.

Some of this praise, probably a great deal of it, has been well merited.

As an engineering operation the Ontario electrical utility has had world-wide recognition.

And it has given the province low-cost power, and thereby one much to stimulate its economy.

But also it has had its weaknesses. And in the general adulation these have not been given the prominence they should have been—and the interest of everybody, including Hydro.

The most glaring of these weaknesses has been a poor sense of public responsibility.

The utility has always recognized an obligation to provide cheap power and good engineering (for years it was dominated by engineers).

But it has tended not to recognize its obligation as a public body to the community and to people. And it has at various times taken public protest for it to follow these obligations.

Thus at one time when it was flooding out forest areas for new plants it would merely back up the water and swamp the trees. Public opinion finally forced it to clean out the areas before flooding them.

Then in the early days of the St. Lawrence River development, which displaced so many people, its attitude was atrocious. Its land agents were going in and making every claim they could possible.

This was done despite the fact that as long ago as the early twenties Adam Beck had warned that one of the grave problems of this development would be the displacement of people.

Again it had to bow to opinion.

The most recent example of this private attitude has been the Nanticoke-Pickering transmission line right-of-way.

As you know Dr. O. M. Solandt was appointed a commissioner to inquire into Hydro's methods and reasons in settling out the route of this line.

Evidence of his inquiry indicated thought to the public social interest had been, at best, cursory.

Dr. Solandt, among his many other high attributes, happens to be a conservation-st of note.

In his report, which is due next month, we feel he could see a stern reminder to Hydro that it has obligations beyond cheap power.

Snowmobile Safety Is Aim Of Quebec Regulations

Montreal Gazette

Quebec's new regulations to promote snowmobile safety went into effect recently. Whether they will do the job remains to be seen: they certainly won't help the three men who were killed in snowmobile accidents by killing themselves on these machines.

There is also the fact that a snowmobile that parts a man from his good sense. Those killed last weekend collided with cars on public highways where snowmobiles are banned by the law under both old and new regulations. One was driven into a lake and drowned. All of this is normal. Most deaths last winter occurred on public roads but at least seven were due to drowning, drivers who went into trees or trains; one girl strangled when her scarf caught in the machinery.

The province is attempting to lure snowmobilers off the roads by opening more trails, a step that may possibly help those just out for a ride or those who want to get away from the police. The new regulations make trespassing by snowmobile a criminal offence and provide a permit for operation. Anyone licensed to drive an automobile will be able to take out a snowmobile. Those not old enough to drive a car can still get a restricted snowmobile permit if they are ten years old. That isn't much, but previously there was no limit at all. At a September hearing in Toronto an official of the Ontario Federation of Snowmobile Clubs suggested that the age limit if the child could pass a test.

There is little excuse for encouraging children to drive snowmobiles. These machines, particularly on rough terrain, are more difficult to keep under control than a car. They turn over easily. Lack of experience and they are so noisy they drown out sounds of approaching danger. The new law also making themselves a public nuisance. It prohibits driving snowmobiles altogether for recreation purposes, but such action here is probably about as likely as outlawing guns in Texas.

Nevertheless, additional constructive action can be taken. Vehicle safety is obviously in need of improvement. Why has no one yet built a snowmobile with an enclosed, non - collapsible cab? There is no more reason for a woman to risk catching her scarf in the drive train of a snowmobile than in the wheel of her car.

Noise is a major problem that technology can do much to abate. Many people in their first snowmobile ride are surprised at the intensity of noise. After all, in commercials snowmobiles are always shown in motion. A requirement that commercials reflect the true sound level of the machine would go far to drive the dimensions of this problem into the public. It would certainly alert the manufacturers and advertisers — you couldn't have one spiel. Pending the development of sound suppressors, restricted noise areas might be set up. In Massachusetts, for instance, it is against the law to operate a snowmobile without permission within 500 feet of an occupied house.

Safety and quiet, of course, cost money, so manufacturers probably won't be much help in this. Any concern becomes reflected in government standards of safety and public convenience. The province has a gone part way with the new regulations but it still has quite a distance to go.

Exercise Fitness And All

By Douglas MacLennan

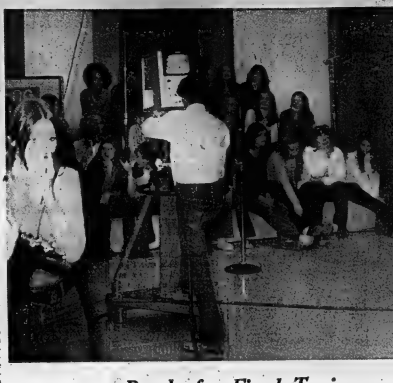
Whether or not a person who exercises regularly will live longer than one who doesn't, and if so, in what degree of duration and precisely there are many long term studies being conducted throughout the world to try to establish the facts. Nevertheless, we do know that who exercise regularly (either formally or as part of their work or lifestyle) do have less trouble with degenerative diseases until late in life. But there is no "hard evidence" that regular exercise will lengthen the life span, at least evidence which is satisfactory to the hard-nosed scientist.

Snowmobiling Allowed In Five District Parks

TWEED (Special) — Snowmobiling is permitted in five of the seven area provincial parks, but on the roads only, advised a natural resources ministry official in a recent report.

W. H. Cantelon, parks supervisor in the Tweed district, states that snowmobiling is allowed in all parks except Sandbanks in Prince Edward County and North Beach near Consecon "where the land forms are delicate and soil stabilization measures are in effect".

Bon Echo Park, located about six miles north of Cloyne, in Lennox and Addington County, and just off Highway 41, and also Outlet Beach Park, about six miles southwest of Picton are open year-round with limited camping facilities after freeze-up, pointed out Mr. Cantelon.



As well, Lake St. Peter, Sharbot Lake and Lake-On-The-Mountain provincial parks are open to snowmobilers. "All park users, especially those on snow machines are cautioned to look out for snow covered or hidden fire place grills, parking lot curbs and other similar park fixtures which could cause serious injury on impact" he cautioned.

Snowmobilers were warned never to go on cross-country trips without at least one companion or another snow vehicle. The safety officer at the Ontario Police Detachment give some pointers for safer use of motorized snow vehicles when driven along a highway.

"Be particularly careful on ice, packed snow or dry roads. Your vehicle's steering and braking systems were designed primarily for operation in deep snow or on surfaces which allow adequate penetration of the track cleats to maintain stability and control."

It is evidentaly difficult for a motorist to see at night and when seen, motorists tend to misjudge the distance to smaller objects.

"Make sure you really know how to handle your vehicle and that you understand its capabilities and limitations," the officers state.

TRENTON (Staff) — This Saturday's 3rd Trenton Guides and Brownies first Santa's Workshop sale proved so successful, organizers hope to make it an annual event.

The event, held at Canterbury Hall, began at 2 p.m. and ran until 5 p.m.

Santa Arrives in Picton

PICTON (Staff) — Santa Claus came to town in Picton last weekend in a gala parade with more than 20 floats, bands and marching units.

This annual event, sponsored by the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce, attracted a record crowd of shoppers on Main Street. Youngsters with their parents lined the sidewalks for a glimpse of Old Saint Nick.

Trophies were awarded by the chamber in four parade divisions. Winner of the prize for best commercial entry was the Bank of Nova Scotia, with a gay train complete with authentic bell. A float entered by Prince Edward Heights captured the trophy for best community effort. The best marching unit was the Kingston Grenadiers. The Prince Edward Hack and Hunt Club took an award for best entry by an organization. Ten equestrians, led by a pair of matched Pintos, rode in formation suitably attired to ride to the hounds.

The trophies were presented at the end of the parade route by Picton Mayor Margaret Ackerman, county warden Ross Benway and James Taylor, MPP Prince Edward-Lennox.

Reform Proposals To Be Announced

TORONTO — Provincial proposals for local government reform in an area east from Toronto close to the Quinte district will be released next week.

The proposals will be outlined to municipal representatives at a meeting in Oshawa Dec. 18 with Ontario Treasurer Charles MacNaughton.

The outline will be based on provincial government studies in Ontario, Northumberland and Durham counties.

In coming months, provincial officials will discuss the reform proposals with spokesmen of involved local governments before any final decisions are made, said Mr. MacNaughton.

Building Permit Said Misused

PICTON (Staff) — A Picton variety store was criticized by town council Thursday night for what appeared to be "a flagrant misuse" of a $1,500 building permit application in completing extensive renovations.

Town solicitor Jack Ward described use of the application in these words and added that a cost assessment should be included in the by-law for building permits.

Although the permit was for less than $2,000 the Stedman five and dime store was revamped completely and many alterations made. The cost of a building permit according to Morley Brooks is $1 per thousand.

'Nativity Scene' Staged At Centennial School

And judging from the near capacity audience attending the annual presentation of the Star of the East at Centennial High School Sunday evening, it was an event that had been looked forward to.

The production, presented by members of Eastminster United Church and accompanied by the Belleville Choral Society under the direction of Murray Irwin, featured a total effort by all involved. This included the creation and design of their own costumes and stage set.

The program included an impressive selection of choral arrangements with the fine blending of voices of the Belleville Choral Society providing a vocal background that tied together all facets of the production.

Simple stage settings and the realistic costuming added to the overall effect of the Nativity as well as entrances and exits through the audience that the cast members made. Particularly memorable were the frequent visitations of Gabriel and the little angels during the high points of the play.

According to members of the audience, the stage performance was a good community contribution with the added excellence of the Belleville Choral Society.

All I Want Is . . .

Santa, a busy man at Christmas time enjoys listening to all requests as seen above with an unknown admirer.

Santa Interviewed In Quinte Area

"Don't stay up too late Christmas eve and do your homework," advised Santa Claus at an interview on his pre-Christmas tour of Bay of Quinte area.

"My time is limited but I travel fast with the help of my reindeer.

"A lot of children ask me about my helpers and reindeer," said this man in his favorite red suit, black boots and black belt.

Some children can't understand how we get all our work in the work shops completed by Christmas eve. I have a lot of helpers and as soon as I finish visiting all the youngsters, we return to the North Pole and start making toys for next Christmas.

"Girls still want dolls, and bake-ovens while the boys favor guns and army toys. It never changes. Each year, I can predict children's preferences.

This one person who is never seen any other time of the year listens to requests from adults also. He doesn't mind who sits on his lap and he always listens.

Incidentally, Santa apologized for anyone not receiving the gifts they requested. But, he admitted, his list is pretty long and he does made a slip sometimes. "I'm only human."

For those who Santa can't see due to his busy schedule, a mail box is found at the Quinte Mall, where Santa will personally answer all letters.

Santa Claus Appears

Ann Landers
Lonesome Plants Died

Dear Ann Landers: Your flogging it. And what a story it is. I knew AA saved people, but I didn't realize they also saved plants. Glad you wrote.

rist in Chicago must have been making fun of the idea that plants flourish when people are nice to them. I got that notion when he said he only speaks to his plants when they speak to him first.

Here's my experience and I swear on my grandmother's grave, may her soul rest in peace, that it's true. I could never raise plants. I just accepted the fact that I didn't have a green thumb. A friend suggested that my plants died because they were lonesome. She told me to move them by the telephone so they could "get in on the conversations."

I did it and it worked like a charm. The little scrawny bods bloomed by that telephone. Pretty soon I had so many luxurious, bushy plants I decided to give a few to my mother. At that particular time my father was drinking a lot. He used to come home, gassed and roam around the house.

Within a week every one of the plants died. Six months later Dad went to AA. Mom asked for some more plants as an experiment. I gave her three. Today those plants are magnificent! — Shamrocks in Michigan

Dear Ann Landers: Our neighbors are nice but they are procrastinators. For example: Their Christmas lights were up through June. An old junk car was in their front yard for seven weeks. They stopped painting their house halfway through the job because they ran out of paint. We've explained that they are the eyesore in the neighborhood. They keep promising to improve, and they do for a while. But then they revert to their old ways. Is it possible for a leopard to change its spots! — Dizzguzted

Dear Dizz: A leopard, no. A human, sometimes. People can and do change, but I suspect the fundamental problem is that your neighbors are slobs. Don't expect any miracles. Your best bet, in the interest of a better-looking block, is to go over and help them do what needs to be done.

Dear Ann Landers: Thanks for the

Mirror of Your Mind
by JOHN CONWELL

Is a go-getter motivated by choice?

YES; whether an ambitious person sets up a single goal or has a general plan for self-improvement, he could be driven by the simple need to achieve his objective. Admittedly, some people who are constantly on the go do have more complicated compulsions than merely satisfying ambitions. If some of these go-getters were to stop for a while and ask themselves why they "go," they might be afraid of the answer.

Does a young 'miser' love money?

RARELY. In spite of how tightly a child seems to hang onto any money he is given or earns. It is not the money he is interested in, but the things that it will buy—and not for himself. Members of his family will often "treat" the thrifty youngster for being so tight with money. Yet when the time comes to spend it, the child will part with it quickly and generously for presents at Christmas-time or for a family birthday or anniversary.

Could a happy wife ever doubt love?

CERTAINLY; that is one of the "fringe" benefits of marital love. It is give and take (not one or the other); it is sadness and joy; pleasure and pain. A wife who has occasional spells of doubt that she loves her husband or he loves her may just be fearful of the "newness" of happiness. In time, she will become confident in her ability to accept her feelings and enjoy them without living in the shadow of doubt.

Christmas Trees— Be Safe During Holidays

Children and adults alike enjoy trimming the holiday Tree. However, remember to take precautions with your Christmas tree and evergreen decorations. The longer they are in the house, the greater fire hazard they become, says R. A. Fleming, horticultural specialist, Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food.

First, be sure the tree you obtain is fresh. Many trees are cut several weeks ahead and can be quite dry when sold. Keep the tree outside until you are ready to decorate it, since the atmosphere in most homes is very dry. To help keep the tree from drying out, the end of the trunk should be set in a container of water. Make sure the tree stand is sturdy enough to support the tree.

Check the water level often. It is surprising how much water is absorbed by the tree and the atmosphere of the homes. There should always be water around the base of the trunk.

Evergreen boughs used in wreaths, centerpieces and other holiday decorations should also be placed in small containers of water and refilled daily if necessary. Disperse of these decorations as soon as possible after Christmas.

Check all Christmas lights for frayed wires and broken sockets. Repair or replace before using. Keep the tree and other evergreen decorations away from fireplaces, hot air registers and radiators.

Successful Living
'Life' Contract Includes Retirement and Leisure

By DORIS CLARK

The prospect of retirement fills Father's heart with glee. But the question Mom keeps asking is, "Whatabout me?" — V. A.

You are right, Vera. But we see it the other way around, too. Mother may regret Father having leisure time; but Father very often finds he wants something to do!

These posers call for thoughtful and loving compromise and imagination. Like Mother giving Father a home responsibility that he will enjoy; and Father thus finding extra time for Mother, in which to share leisure time fun with her.

Then neither needs to say, "What about me?"

* * *

Dear Doris: Some years ago at a business conference my boss was thoughtful enough to have one of the young men walk me back to my hotel. When he asked me to go for a coffee I refused, reflecting to myself that he was probably married and was only inviting me out of courtesy.

It was only much later that I learned from my employer that he was unmarried and my boss hoped he would act as my escort, a night when I was far from home.

I felt terrible about it. Now I think I have met him again, under different circumstances but when I suggested we had met before, he flatly denied he had been at such a conference. I still feel he denied it because he was badly hurt by my refusal.

I think he is carrying an unnecessary scar because of me. But should I let sleeping dogs lie? — Regretful

Dear Regrets: Isn't it a pity the way past social blunders rise up to haunt us. And yet you did what you did in all good conscience.

I'd be inclined to ask the boss if this present acquaintance is the same one who attended your business meeting. I suspect this flat denial means that you are seeing double.

If you aren't, your next move is to explain yourself. You have more poise than you had then and so has he.

Dear Doris: Please send your leaflet "On Being Well Tressed" (20 cents enclosed).

Does it apply to men as well as women — Frank.

Dear Frank: Yes, indeedy. All the hair care parts do. How you shampoo, brush, condition your tresses — and maybe whiskers — all these techniques are universal. Even what you eat affects the shining health of hair, and this is talked about in the leaflet.

When it comes to styling, you may want something different from the ideas in my leaflet. But you couldn't do better than to visit a good men's hairdresser; get a cut and style that suits you and learn how to take care of it.

Five Year Warranty on big, tough Gold Seal Motor
The KitchenAid motor, the heart of the dishwasher, is so strong and reliable, that we give a 5 year guarantee against failure. Should it fail during the first year, we repair or replace it free of charge. You are charged only for labour during the following four years.

Exclusive Flo-Thru Drying eliminates crazing or cracking due to heat

Frenchman Praises Woman

Hijacker, Not Passenger, Tossed Bomb to Safety

PARIS (AP) — A French passenger aboard an Ethiopian jet airliner on which seven hijackers were killed said Saturday it was a female hijacker and not an American professor who tossed a dropped grenade into a section of unoccupied seats.

The report by the Frenchman, Bruno Rouvillois, contradicted a version of an American passenger, Richard Wylie, about Friday's attempted hijack.

Wylie said one of the hijackers dropped the grenade and that Roderick Hilsinger, a professor at Temple University in Philadelphia, picked it up and threw it into an empty seat.

The blast blew a hole in the side of the jet and knocked out one engine and the rudder control. The four-engine Boeing 720b returned safely to Addis Ababa in Ethiopia from where it had taken off half an hour before the hijack attempt began.

In Addis Ababa, Emperor Haile Selassie conferred decorations Saturday on the nine member airliner crew and four security guards.

Hilsinger says he does not remember what happened after a hand grenade he rolled into an unoccupied section of an Ethiopian jetliner Friday exploded during an aborted hijacking attempt.

Hilsinger, 41, said in an interview from his hospital bed in Addis Ababa: "Someone threw a hand grenade and it landed on the floor right next to my seat.

"I picked it up and rolled it up front of the first class cabin so it wouldn't be near anyone. Just as I finished doing that, it blew up," he said. "I don't remember anything after that."

Hilsinger suffered several shrapnel wounds in his feet and lesser wounds in his shoulder and head.

The identities of the hijackers were not disclosed, but it was thought they might have been members of a separatist guerrilla movement in the northern Ethiopian province of Eritrea.

Yugoslav Consul Protests Threats

TORONTO (CP) — A diplomatic official at the Yugoslav consulate in Toronto said Saturday he and his family have been terrorized by death threats since their arrival three months ago.

Consul Josef Subas, one of three diplomats at the consulate, said he kept his two children home from school on five different occasions because of constant threats that they would be murdered.

Mr. Subas said in an interview that frequent demonstrations in front of the consulate have prevented staff from working. Consulate officials have been terrorized by demonstrators, he said, and sometimes have remained in their offices rather than try to leave the building.

He said Toronto police have refused to interfere during the demonstrations.

Mr. Subas said police stood and watched on four occasions as demonstrators burned the Yugoslav flag.

In one eight-day period late last month, he said, the consulate was the scene of five demonstrations.

Almost all the demonstrators are from the Yugoslav federal republic of Croatia, he said.

"In Canada, there are about 200,000 people from my country," he added. "Most of them are quiet citizens who work hard. The trouble is caused by a small group of about 2,000."

Before coming to Toronto, Mr. Subas was posted in Croatia.

In Belgrade, Tanjug, the official Yugoslav news agency, Saturday criticized Canada's alleged "benevolent attitude" toward anti-Yugoslav emigre groups.

The news agency said the Yugoslav government has lodged a sharp complaint following demonstrations at the consulate in Toronto.

Tanjug said: "responsible Yugoslav circles and the Yugoslav public have growing doubts about the sincerity and good intentions of the countries in which such outbursts are condoned without interruption."

Border Clash Is Reported

MOSCOW (AP) — Western diplomatic sources said Sunday that a secret Soviet document reports a clash on Russia's border with China that left five Soviet soldiers and several Russians civilians dead after a shootout with Chinese who crossed into Soviet Kazakhstan.

The incident, which took place last month, could not be officially confirmed. It was the first report of bloodshed on the Sino-Soviet frontier since the full-scale tank and artillery battles between Russian and Chinese troops in 1969.

News of the latest clash was contained in a confidential report circulated among select Soviet journalists on Nov. 27, a few days after the firefight took place, the diplomats said.

The report said frontier troops battled with a band of armed intruders that entered Soviet territory from China's Sinkiang province. A group of Soviet shepherds were attacked. The invaders killed five Soviet soldiers and an unknown number of shepherds before fleeing across the border with a large number of sheep, the report said.

It added that one Chinese was captured, but did not disclose the number of Chinese deaths, if any, the diplomats said. They could not explain why the report did not reveal how many shepherds were killed. A Kremlin protest to Peking was quickly rejected with the assertion that the marauders were bandits and no concern of the Chinese government, the report said.

Bormann Said Dead

NEW YORK (Reuter) — The New York Times says in a report from Buenos Aires that an Argentine intelligence officer credited in news stories with tracking down top Nazi Martin Bormann has said he never saw Bormann, or even looked for him.

The Times quotes Juan Jose Velasco—identified as the main informant in a series of articles researched by Ladislas Farago and carried recently by the Daily News here and the London Daily Express—as saying the documents used by Farago were forgeries.

"I think he's dead," the Times quotes Velasco as saying.

As for the man whose picture has been published around the world during the last two weeks and who was identified by Farago as Bormann, The Times says he is actually Rodolfo Niedas Siri, a 56-year-old high school teacher and a friend of Velasco's.

Farago in a statement issued through his lawyer said: "I categorically state that the statements attributed to Senor Velasco are patently false.

Bayside Cheerleaders Have Reason To

Bayside Secondary School cheerleaders had something to cheer about at the Bay of Quinte championships held at QSD Saturday.

The Bayside girls captured the team trophy, while Naomi Boylan added the senior individual title. Moira's Kim Hornsby took first place in the individual junior category.

In the team competition Bayside collected 42.5 of a possible 45 points to capture the first place, ahead of Trenton with 41.7 points and Moira with 40.0. Teams from Centennial, Nicholson, Picton and Trenton also took part in the event.

In the individual senior category it was the Bayside representative placing first with a score of 41.8. Trenton's Wendy Whalen (40.7) was second while third place went to Martha Bishop of Moira (40.1). Moira's Kim Hornsby captured the junior title with a score of 41.2 to prevent a Bayside sweep as Laurie Ferguson of that school totalled 39.6 for second. In third place was Bonnie Harvey of Picton (36.4).

Cheerleading Champs

Naomi Boylan of Bayside and Moira's Kim Hornsby captured the individual championships at the Bay of Quinte cheerleading competition held at the Deloro Saturday. Naomi won the senior title in addition to helping Bayside to the team championship, while Kim took first place in the junior section. A total of seven high schools took part in the competition.

One Line Insufficient As Quintes Lose 7-3

LORNE O'DONNELL

O'Donnell marked up the goals for the Quintes while Ferguson added a single in the Belleville's 7-3 loss at the hands of the Foresters.

The Quintes, who are tied with Kingston Aces in sixth place in the standings, also tie the Foresters in their four games played. Each team has two victories to its credit.

"We didn't play as well as we did on Friday," said Lionel Bally, who coaches the Quintes when Wayne Brown N is on shift work, "they hustled more than we did."

Ray Johnson spent 11 minutes in the penalty box for the Quintes. Johnson's five minute major for fighting with Forester winger John Gignac nearly ended in a donnybrook. Intervention of the fisticuffs in the penalty box according to Bally.

Though the shots on goal were nearly even at 35-38 with the Foresters coming out on top, the 7-3 score indicated the Brantford superiority in the nets. Goalie Stan Woresz kept the Quintes scoreless in the third period while Carl Ahsten and winger Jim Cochrane tallied for the Foresters.

Bobcats Discover Christmas Spirit

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Editor

The Belleville Bobcats ran an entire gamut of Christmas experiences Sunday night.

They passed out an early Christmas bonus to Whitby, giving the visitors a goal in the first minute of play. They made like Scrooge for the next 39 minutes, building a 5-2 lead on some light defensive hockey and then they played Santa Claus for the final period as defensive mistakes allowed Whitby to tally three times.

In the end, however, 'twas the season to be jolly as the Cats held on to a 6-5 Metro Junior B hockey win over the visitors.

Coach Moe Hunter let it be known that he would prefer less generosity from the Belleville B's in their own end of the rink. "We played well for the first two periods," he noted, "but we were running around in our own end during the third. We weren't playing positional hockey."

Doug Wood opened the scoring for Whitby after only 34 seconds of play when he sailed unmolested down the right wing to beat goalie Bobby Moore from in close.

The Cats came back to even it at 7:10 with Mark Coates deflecting the puck into Whitby's net on a power play. Defenceman Dave Taylor, a call-up from the Western Tire juveniles, made it 2-1 when his sizzler from the point caught the top left hand corner.

Hunter was impressed with Taylor's efforts on the Belleville power play. He played well — as well as any player on the ice, I thought," said the coach. The Cats increased the Bobcats' lead to 3-1 with the best individual effort of the night. The third-year defenceman single-handed the length of the ice before deking goalie Kim Crouch for the goal.

Whitby cut the margin to 5-3 in the final period when Don Nickolson scored on a breakaway, but the Cats appeared to be in a victory when Paul Lavender scored on a rebound at 9:10 to restore his team's three-goal lead.

The home team's defence came close to collapsing after that as the wingers failed to pick up their opposing checks and Belleville defenseman retaliated with errant lead passes from their own end.

Les Sergley made it 6-4, scoring from just off the post and Al Bathe cut the margin to 6-5 with a goal at 17.17. Bathe was one of three Whitby forwards who had slipped, unchecked, behind the Bobcats' defence on that play.

Bathe came within inches of tying the contest in the dying minutes when he broke in alone only to rattle a drive off the cross bar. The visitors pulled their goalie with a minute left to play but failed to get a good scoring opportunity. The strategy came close to backfiring when Wally Dainard drove a shot off the empty Whitby net in the final minute.

Belleville were without the services of Andy Ricketts, out with a leg injury, and Wayne McGeachy, at odds with the management, over playing time.

Both goalies performed well in the game, although Crouch was caught out of the net on both rebound goals. He faced 38 shots in the game, while Bobby Moore was tested 24 times.

Apollo Lifters Carry Weight

The Apollo Barbell Club weightlifter was awarded the club's trophy for the lifter making the biggest gain in his weightlifting total at the annual Christmas Teen Age Weightlifting competition Saturday.

Smith upped his total by 100 pounds last year to win the award and join former teammate Price Morris as an award winner at special presentation ceremonies following the meet. Morris, who retired from active competition last year received the "champion of champions" trophy as the lifter making the best individual total in Ontario.

The Belleville club fared equally as well in the competition itself, winning three of the nine classes against lifters from across the province.

Robbie Kornblum captured the 114-pound championship with a two-lift total of 220 pounds. In the 148-pound class it was Jeff Carr-Brain placing first with a mark of 232 pounds while Richie Bly gave Apollo its third title with a 275 pound effort in the 242 pound class.

Ottawa's Dan Robitaille emerged as the top lifter of the meet with a 485-pound total. The 160-pounder included a 200 pound clean and jerk in his winning total.

Bob Davidson of Ottawa won the 181-pound competition bye tallieting 496 pounds and Lester Williams of London lifted 274 to take the 198 pound honors.

A total of 57 lifters competed in the one day meet.

Final Honor

Former Apollo Barbell Club member Price Morris captured the last trophy to elude him during a 16-year weightlifting career when he was awarded the Ontario "Champion of Champions" trophy at the annual Christmas Teen Age weightlifting championships Saturday. Apollo teenagers won a few honors of their own at the one-day competition by placing first in three of nine classes.

Something Missing

Beth Alexander of Trenton High School has perfect lay-up form in Saturday's Bay of Quinte midget girls' basketball tournament. Unfortunately, she doesn't have the ball, as Quinte's Susan Taylor makes a successful check. Despite this minor setback Trenton managed to cruise through the tournament undefeated handing Quinte a 10-7 loss in the championship game.

The Pack Is Back

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Green Bay Packers are back in the playoffs, San Francisco 49ers are back in first place, Pittsburgh Steelers are back a game ahead of Cleveland, Browns, and Miami Dolphins are where they've been all National Football League season.

"We deserve the championship," Green Bay coach Dan Devine said after his Packers had nailed down the National Conference Central Division championship, their first title since 1967 when they were in the Vince Lombardi era.

They literally brutalized Minnesota Vikings 23-7 Sunday, speerheaded by running backs John Brockington and Mac-more. Arthur Lane and rookie defensive back Willie Buchanon.

Brockington became the league's first player to rush for 1,000 yards in each of his first two seasons as he churned up 113 yards against the Vikes. And Lane added 98 yards.

Buchanon in the third period intercepted a Fran Tarkenton pass and ran it back 25 yards to set up Lane's score, then picked off another Minnesota pass at the Green Bay 18 on the last play of the period.

In Sunday's other action, San Francisco blanked Atlanta Falcons 30-0, Pittsburgh slipped past Houston Oilers 9-3, Miami downed New York Giants 23-13, St. Louis Cardinals upset Los Angeles Rams 24-16, Detroit lined Lions tied Buffalo Bills 21-21, goals of 24, 39 and 13 yards Kansas City Chiefs beat Baltimore Colts 34-10, Denver downed San Diego Chargers 38-13, New England Patriots defeated New Orleans Saints 17-16 and Chicago Bears topped Philadelphia Eagles 31-17.

Tonight, New York Jets face the Raiders at Oakland.

The 49ers made a pair of Gossett field goals stand up for three periods, then broke open with a pair of Ken Willard and Roy Gerela of Powell River, B.C., kicked the Steelers into overtime in their history with Errol Mann. The NFL playoffs for the first time in their history with Errol Mann.

Shooters Warm Up

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was chilly in Kansas City and Cleveland, but Nate Archibald and Rick Barry got hotter as Sunday evening wore on.

Archibald scored only four points in the first quarter but wound up with 41 to lead Kansas City-Omaha Kings to a 126-115 National Basketball Association rout of Atlanta Hawks.

Golden State's Barry went scoreless in the opening period and finished with 38 as the Warriors shaded Cleveland Cavaliers 103-101.

Saturday's NBA scores: Boston Celtics 123, Cleveland 100; New York Knicks 120, Philadelphia 76ers 109; Baltimore Bullets 120, Kansas City-Omaha Bullets 111; Chicago Bulls 100, Buffalo Braves 94; Detroit Pistons 107, Milwaukee Bucks 103; Phoenix 118, Portland 97.

KC-Omaha led Atlanta all the way in snapping a four-game losing streak and the Hawks' five-game winning string. Lou Hudson of the Hawks took game honors with 42.

Golden State trailed Cleveland from the outset-by 15 points in the third quarter—until Barry, who made all 12 of his free throws, scored a pair with 3:50 left for the Warriors' first lead.

Los Angeles romped to its 17th triumph in 18 games behind Jim McMillian and Gail Goodrich. McMillian sank his first nine shots and wound up with 28 points on 11-for-13 shooting while Goodrich scored 24.

Spencer Haywood scored 32 points and grabbed 16 rebounds to pace the Sonics over the Suns.

Arsenal Blunts Spurs

LONDON (CP) — Arsenal boosted its championship challenge by beating Tottenham Hotspur 2-1 as league-leader Liverpool was held to a 1-1 draw by struggling West Bromwich Albion in their England League First Division soccer matches Saturday.

After a goalless first half, Arsenal scored twice in four minutes through England international striker John Radford before England World Cup player Martin Peters reduced the deficit eight minutes from time.

Arsenal now has 29 points from 22 matches, two points less than Liverpool, which has a match in hand.

Leader Liverpool led 1-0 at half-time after Phil Boersma scored in the 21st minute. Alan Ball equalized through Tony Brown in the 69th minute.

Leeds United remained one point behind Arsenal in third place with a 4-0 victory over West Ham United following a hat-trick headed goal by England striker Mick Jones.

Ipswich Town moved into fourth place with 28 points with David Johnson scoring both goals in its 2-1 win over Manchester United at Old Trafford.

Ian Hutchinson celebrated his return to soccer after a 22-month absence through injury by getting two of Chelsea's goals in the club's 3-1 win against Norwich City. Bill Garner opened the scoring for Chelsea.

Manchester United crashed to a 2-0 defeat against Stoke City in their relegation battle. Goals by Mike Pejic and John Ritchie provided Stoke with its first away league win of the season.

Manchester City drew 1-1 away to Sheffield United in a tense match in which City's England striker Francis Lee was sent off for fouling Trevor Hockley in the 65th minute.

Second Division leader Burnley, whose match was postponed because of the influenza epidemic, saw second-placed Queen's Park Rangers close the gap to two points with a 2-2 draw against Luton Town.

There were no goals in the second round of the English Football Association Cup, involving Third and Fourth Division clubs and the few non league survivors.

League Leader Glasgow Celtic lost its first successive Scottish League Cup final when it was beaten 2-1 by Hibernian.

Hibernian sank Celtic with two goals in six minutes. Pat Stanton broke the deadlock in the 60th minute and then Alex Cropley added the second with a header.

International Kenny Dalglish pulled a goal back for Celtic 18 minutes from time, but Hibernian managed to hang on to gain revenge (or its defeat in last season's Scottish FA Cup final).

Bulldogs Show Grid Teeth

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Louisiana Tech's second-ranked Bulldogs took their anger out twice Saturday—physically on Tennessee Tech and verbally on national college division football champion Delaware.

After smothering Tennessee Tech 35-0 in the Grantland Rice Bowl at Baton Rouge, La., one of four NCAA college division regional championship games, the Bulldogs filled their dressing room with shouts of: "We want Delaware! We're No. 1! Bring on those Delaware mules!" A sign proclaimed: "Delaware is chicken."

At issue was Blue Hens' refusal to play in one of the post-season games, although as the top team of its class in the East they could only have gone to the Boardwalk Bowl in Atlantic City, N.J., while Louisiana Tech, the top team in its region, was limited to the Grantland Rice Bowl.

Delaware objected when it was offered a game against Lowell-beaten Massachusetts, feeling it had nothing to gain. Massachusetts, however, jumped at a trip to Atlantic City and whipped the University of California-Davis 33-14.

Elsewhere, Tennessee State trounced Drake 29-7 in the Pioneer Bowl at Wichita Falls, Tex., and North Dakota outscored Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo 38-21 in the Camellia Bowl at Sacramento, Calif. In the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics championship at Commerce, Tex., East Texas State turned back Carson-Newman 21-18.

Leafs' Squawk on Level Claims Vancouver Goalie

TORONTO (CP) — Bruce Bullock, making his first National Hockey League start in goal for Vancouver Canucks in Saturday's 9-4 tie with Toronto Maple Leafs, admitted after the game the Leafs had a legitimate squawk.

Bullock, a 23-year-old graduate of Central and Western hockey leagues, became the centre of a controversial call by referee Bill Newell when he threw his stick at the puck located about 15 feet away on RON Ellis' stick.

The puck was deflected off the Leaf winger's stick when he should have had an unimpeded path into the Vancouver goal with Bullock far out of the net.

"Ellis had me beat, all right," the goaltender admitted later. "I took a chance on throwing my stick, and the ref missed it.

"I've done it once or twice before and got caught.

"The guys who subsequently got the penalty shots? Yeah, they beat me . . .

"I was just playing the percentages against Ellis. He would have scored if I don't throw my stick. If he'd got a penalty shot, like he should have, I'd at least have another chance to stop him."

Ellis and Leaf captian Dave Keon charged referee Newell, calling for a penalty shot as prescribed under NHL rules.

"I'm sorry," Newell told them. "My view was blocked and I didn't see what happened."

Oilers Drilled In Overtime

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ottawa's Wayne Carleton and Minnesota's Ted Hampson scored sudden-death overtime goals Sunday night, and Mike Byers pulled the skids from under Alberta Oilers with his three goals at Los Angeles.

Carleton took just 43 seconds of overtime to score his second goal of the night and give the Nationals a 7-6 win over Quebec. Les Nordiques while Hampson notched the winner in a 4-3 Fighting Saints' victory over Cleveland Crusaders.

Byers' three goals led the Sharks to a 5-3 win over Alberta, leaving Los Angeles and Minnesota in a second-place tie in the World Hockey Association's Western Division, 11 points behind Winnipeg Jets.

The Jets began a seven-game road trip Saturday night by edging Cleveland 3-2. Quebec defeated Chicago Cougars 4-2, Philadelphia Blazers romped 7-1 over Ottawa and New England Whalers beat New York Raiders 4-2.

Two games are scheduled for tonight, Winnipeg in Boston against the Eastern Division-leading Whalers and Chicago at New York.

Ron Climie, Jack Gibson and Bob Leduc added the other Ottawa goals. Defencemen J. C. Tremblay scored once and assisted on four other Nordiques' goals. Alain (Boom Boom) Caron, with two, Frank Golembrosky, Michel Parizeau and Andre Gaudette also tallied for Quebec.

Ted Hampson's goal at 2:29 of the overtime, slapping home Bobby MacMillan's rebound behind Cleveland goaltender Bob Whidden, knocked the Crusaders out of a first-place tie in the east with New England.

Wayne Connelly, Billy Klatt and Mike McMahon provided the other Saint's scores for 2,155 St. Paul, Minn., fans. Gary Jarrett, with two, and Joe Hardy scored for Cleveland.

Sports Briefs

VANCOUVER (CP) — Wayne Maki of Vancouver Canucks of the National Hockey League underwent four hours of emergency surgery Sunday for removal of a brain tumor.

General manager Bud Poile said the 32-year-old left-winger was under intensive care at Royal Columbian Hospital in nearby New Westminster and that doctors declined comment on his condition.

Poile said Maki had been sent back to Vancouver from Atlanta because of headaches while the Canucks were on a road trip earlier this week, and was admitted to hospital Saturday for observation.

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto skaters dominated senior competition at the four-day annual Central Ontario skating championships which ended Sunday.

Robert Rubens, 19, from the Toronto Cricket, Skating and Curling Club, was first in senior men's competition, followed by Stan Bohonek, 18, of the Toronto Granite Club and Roger Uuemae, 18, also of the TCSCC.

Darla Pyychuck, 16, a former Winnipeg girl now skating with TCSCC, came first in senior women's competition while club member Carol Farmer of Dundas, Ont., finished third behind Heather Moore, 14, of Toronto.

Allen Carson and Linda Tasker, both of Toronto, won the senior pairs competition.

Several skaters received byes in the competition, which leads to the Canadian championships in Vancouver, Jan. 15-21.

Troller Cranston and Ken Polk, both of Toronto, received byes in senior men's competition; Cathy-Lee Irwin, of Toronto, in senior women's; Barbara Berezowski and David Porter of Toronto in senior dance and Sandra and Val Bezic, Canadian pairs champions from Toronto, in senior pairs.

Soviets Drub Ontario 8-2

TOURNOTO (CP) — Two goals each by Valery Belouzov and Sergey Kapustin led Moscow Selects to an 8-2 exhibition hockey victory over Ontario Selects before 12,281 fans at Maple Leaf Gardens Sunday night.

Vladimir Devyatov, Vyacheslav Solodukhin, Eugene Kotlov and Alexander Lobanov got the other goals for Moscow, which picked up its second win in as many games on a three-game Canadian tour.

Doug Dunville and Jim Keon scored for Ontario.

The smooth - skating Soviet squad overpowered the home team, which had players from six Ontario amateur sides who had not practised together before Sunday's game.

Devyatov started the scoring at the two minute mark and Belouzov added his two to give Moscow a 3-1 lead at the end of the opening period.

Ontario goalie Jean Lavesseur of Orillia Terriers of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A league had little chance on the first three goals, all of which came on shots from close in.

But in the second period, he was beaten cleanly by Kapustin who got both his goals by breaking in on the wing and firing hard shots from long range.

Dunville's goal in the first period came on a power play and Keon narrowed the score to 5-2 in the third period when he scored during a goal - mouth scramble.

Doug Pennington of Galt Hornets, also of the OHA Senior A league replaced Lavesseur in the Ontario goal for the third period, but he too was beaten on long shots by Solokuhin and Kotlov.

The Soviets were most impressive when they were two men short for almost two minutes in the second period. They controlled the puck for much of the time and allowed Ontario few chances at Goalie Viktor Krivelapov.

Late in the third period, Moscow was one man short, but again, the Soviets controlled the puck and Lobanov skated straight in on Pennington to score a short-handed goal.

'Swinging' Junior A Contest

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

North Bay Trappers and Aurora Tigers might have been wise to have held their Ontario Hockey Association Provincial Junior A game in a boxing ring Sunday night.

The two teams accumulated 153 minutes in penalties, 80 to Aurora and 73 to North Bay. Five game misconducts were handed out.

The Trappers, playing at home, won the game 6-3 behind the three-goal output of Peter Driscoll. Brent Bowen, Steve Wallace and Terry Agnew added one each.

In other games Sunday, North York downed Weston 5-3, Wexford and Downsview played to a 6-6 tie, Ajax took Dixie 8-5 and Richmond Hill trounced Kingston 9-1 at Kingston.

Saturday, Dixie nipped Wexford 3-1.

French Connection Clicks

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The French Connection has a connotation of international intrigue. Be that as it may, Buffalo's interpretation of the best-selling novel comes under the heading of Gil Perreault, Rick Martin and Rene Robert.

And there's nothing mysterious about that threesome.

The trio once again cashed in Sunday night as the Sabres defeated Montreal Canadiens 4-2 to stretch their unbeaten streak at Buffalo auditorium this year to 15 games.

Martin's 21st of the year provided the insurance margin after Jim Lorentz broke a 2-2 deadlock early in the third period.

The three French Canadians emerged as a line late in the 1971-72 season and began the current year as they ended the initial stint—terrorizing opposition goaltenders.

After 29 games, the line is tops in the NHL with 51 goals and 116 points. Robert, a fringe player for several years before joining his linemates, has 18 goals and 39 points, the same number of points as Perreault. Martin is another point behind.

Elsewhere Sunday the scores were: Boston Bruins 6 California Golden Seals 4; Chicago Black Hawks 5 Minnesota North Stars 1; Vancouver Canucks 3 Detroit Red Wings 3; New York Rangers 4 New York Islanders 1; St. Louis Blues 5 Atlanta Flames 4; Philadelphia Flyers 5 Toronto Maple Leafs 2.

In Saturday's action, Montreal Canadiens nipped California 3-1, Vancouver rallied for a 5-5 tie in Toronto, Rangers took the opener of their home-and-home series with the Islanders 4-1, Boston tripped Philadelphia 4-3, Minnesota blanked Detroit 7-0, Los Angeles Kings defeated Pittsburgh Penguins 3-1 and St. Louis edged Atlanta 2-1.

St. Louis visits the Islanders and Chicago is at Vancouver in games Tuesday night.

Buffalo, inspired by the scoring feats of the young French Connection line—so named because of their French-Canadian background—and an improved defence, got away to a fast start this year.

Louella Parsons Dies

Attendants said she died in her sleep at a Santa Monica convalescent home.

Miss Parsons, a powerful figure in the motion picture industry for 40 years, had suffered since 1962 from a series of ailments including pneumonia, shingles of the optic nerve, fractures of hip and shoulder and the debilities of advanced age. Earlier she had suffered two heart attacks and tuberculosis.

Just two months later, Hedda Hopper, Louella's perennial rival, died at the age of 75.

Trudeau Draws Fire

LONDON (CP) — Veteran columnist John Gordon of the Beaverbrook-owned Sunday Express aims a barbed remark at Prime Minister Trudeau for keeping his British hosts waiting at London airport while he visited the duty-free shop.

Remarking on what he calls Trudeau's "performance" on departure last Tuesday after his three-day official visit, Gordon says all the passengers were on board the plane and the usual crowd of officials, including cabinet minister Julian Amery, were on hand to bid him farewell.

"But suddenly he turns about and his car races off again. Everyone has to wait, champing, until he returns half an hour later.

"Where had he been? He went to buy some duty-free liquor and a present for his wife. He had forgotten them. But in remembering, obviously forgot the official duty of being polite to his hosts."

Jane Fonda Engaged

ROEROS, Norway (AP) — Jane Fonda, 35, the actress and anti-war campaigner, announced Saturday she is engaged to be married to fellow American Tom Hayden, 32-year-old former leader of Students for a Democratic Society.

"The couple plan to marry early in the year in the United States following Miss Fonda's divorce from French movie director Roger Vadim," said Miss Fonda's official spokesman, Michael Maslansky.

Miss Fonda and Hayden met six months ago in the U.S. when both were active in the U.S. election campaign.

David Lewis Defends Unemployment Benefits

TORONTO (CP) — A near-crisis in procedural wrangles and the noisy impact of a small, Waffle-like radical group overshadowed a speech by national leader David Lewis to the weekend convention of the Ontario New Democratic Party.

Stephen Lewis, who became leader two years ago, easily defeated his only rival for the post, Douglas Campbell, a Toronto taxi driver, by a 753-to-124 vote.

In his convention-ending speech, the elder Lewis defended unemployment insurance, saying attacks on the system are popular even with the working class, but are largely unfounded.

"This is a great pity because by these attacks we are insulting hundreds of thousands of Canadians who, through no fault of their own, are forced into the ranks of the unemployed by government incompetence, by the corporate ripoff and by a lack of planning."

He said the emphasis should be on eliminating unemployment, and not on attacking abuse of the system. There was anger against an individual who chisels a few dollars but not against "the corporate chiseling of a few million dollars in government handouts."

Party in Debt

TORONTO (CP) — The outgoing treasurer of the provincial New Democratic Party painted a grim financial picture for the more than 1,800 delegates attending the convention here Sunday.

The party is $120,000 in debt and needs to raise the money in the next three months, said Joe Eurich.

The 75-member Left Caucus, the remnant of supporters of the radical ultranationalist Waffle wing drummed out of the party at a provincial council meeting last June in Orillia, were noisy and demonstrative through the three days of discussion.

But they were only able to elect one of their members, Steve Penner of Toronto, to the executive. Eight Wafflers, no longer in the party, were elected to the executive at the convention two years ago.

Mr. Lewis told reporters he planned to take no action against the reformists, asserting they are "not unlike the left wing groups" the party had before "the Waffles.

"It was inevitable at this convention that the left assert itself with unusual vociferousness in order to compensate for the disappearance of the Waffle. It was their own form of overcompensation."

NDP Leaders Win Procedural Battle

TORONTO (CP) — A relieved party executive claimed victory Sunday in helping solve a constitutional crisis which might have made a shambles of the weekend annual convention of the Ontario New Democratic Party.

The convention's afternoon session Saturday collapsed, with no business done, when the Left Caucus, a small reform group within the party, sought to defeat a motion to permit the affiliates of parent unions to be represented at conventions.

The Left Caucus contended this would give parent unions, who control their affiliates, too powerful a voice at conventions.

Party leader Stephen Lewis leaped into the fray to argue that such a ban would affect a lot of veteran affiliate members who normally could not afford to attend conventions without the help of the parent union.

He had trouble making himself heard above the shouts and rush to the floor microphones that dominated the afternoon session, and brought the meetings to a near standstill.

In a complex procedural wrangle that followed, Jane Bigelow, mayor of London and convention chairman at the time, accepted a motion from the Left Caucus to have the issue reconsidered, which meant it would not have been decided at this convention.

When the convention broke up in chaos, night-long, backroom lobbying, led by Mr. Lewis and others on the executive, began between trade unionists and rank-and-file members.

It continued into the early hours of Sunday and, when the convention resumed at 10 a.m., Gordon Vichert, outgoing party president, ruled that Miss Bigelow had been in error in accepting the reconsideration motion. A vote was held to sustain Mr. Vichert's ruling, and the resolution itself was endorsed after only minor wrangling.

"It was simply a question of a lack of knowledge," Mr. Lewis said later. "After it was explained to the members, we had no flak."

But Mr. Lewis admitted to "some difficult moments," particularly Saturday afternoon "when I thought the convention was almost out of control."

Mr. Lewis said the lobbying

Quebec Farmers May Join One Group

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec farmers may soon be the first in Canada to be represented by a single professional body collecting funds from all agricultural producers in the province.

It depends on a referendum which marks the third stage of a process started last spring, aimed at giving farmers a single spokesman operating from a sound financial basis.

Provincial legislation passed last May gave Quebec farmers a right to join a union.

In September, the province recognized the 30,000-member Agricultural Producers Union (APU) as the representative of the majority of Quebec's 51,160 farmers meeting the income requirement.

The last ballots are due today at the Quebec Agricultural Marketing Board from a referendum asking all $1,160 to vote on compulsory payment of the APU's $15 annual membership fee and giving the APU the right to a maximum 20 per cent of the fee paid by farmers to joint marketing boards.

The APU starts its annual three-day convention Tuesday.

"If the referendum passes, there will be nothing like it anywhere else in Canada," Albert Allain, APU president said in an interview Sunday.

The APU is not a trade union in the normal sense of the word, Mr. Allain explained.

"We represent the interests of farmers, inform them of developments which affect them, share in the organization of cooperatives, speak for farmers on joint marketing boards and fill a co-ordinating role.

"If the referendum passes farmers who remain outside the APU will have to pay union dues.

"We will be able to put the organization on a solid financial basis and give it the legal status of a professional group now enjoyed by industrial workers, teachers, and even doctors and lawyers."

For the move to come into effect, 60 per cent of the more than 50,000 eligible farmers must participate, in the referendum and 60 per cent of the ballots must approve the check-off. All ballots must be turned in by today.

Mr. Allain said that on Friday, 25,000 ballots had been mailed in, about eight per cent more than required to make the vote legally binding.

Mr. Alain, 45, a beef farmer from the Alsinki region of northwest Quebec, is ending his third one-year term as president of the APU, formerly known as the Catholic Farmers Union.

Lost Eight Days, Trapper Rescued

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — A 46-year-old trapper was found Sunday by two snowmobilers after he spent at least eight days lost in the bush north of here.

Andy Mavracic of Gravenhurst, Ont., was taken to hospital where an official described him as "super tired." He lost 30 pounds in the ordeal, but his condition was good.

Mr. Mavracic was found near the main road at Batchawana Station, 40 miles north of the Sault.

One of the snowmobilers, Brian Skagen, said Mr. Mavracic looked like he had "bush fright."

"He thought I was going to hurt him and he was afraid. I thought he was delirious. I talked to him and told him we would help him—but I assisted him up an embankment. He kicked off his snowshoes and offered them to me as well as his gun. He said 'I will give you everything, just get me out of here.'"

Mr. Skagen said the trapper was no hungry that when he was given beans he cut his face trying to stick it into the can.

"He told us he ate squirrel, partridge and even three mice that he killed in a shack. He told us he had been walking for eight days and eight nights and I could believe it.

"He said he had been hunting at Grey Owl Lake when the hunting party left. He was to meet a trapper friend at the cabin a few days later, which was early October."

Mr. Mavracic said he waited as long as he could and then decided to walk out of the bush when his food was gone, said Mr. Skagen.

Mr. Mavracic told his rescuers that his trapper friend was dead, but Mr. Skagen said he thought the trapper was delirious.

The hospital official said Mr. Mavracic plans to return home today.

Bomb Explodes

MONTREAL (CP) — A bomb exploded in a two-storey commercial building early today, smashing windows and tearing out walls and partitions.

No one was in the building at the time of the explosion.

A police spokesman said the Montreal police technical squad, still on the site this morning, has determined that a bomb was the cause of the explosion.

Crash Kills 26

BERLIN (AP) — An express train plowed into the rear of a freight train near the Bulgarian Black Sea resort of Varna Sunday, killing 26 persons and injuring 10 others, the East German news agency ADN reported.

Heart Unsteady

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A medical report of "more frequent abnormalities" in the rhythm of Harry Truman's heart has cast a cloud over renewed optimism for the former president's recovery.

Truman had been taken off the critical list and was described as in serious condition Sunday after doctors noted some improvement. He remained on the serious list following a new report Sunday night.

Receive Prizes

More than 3,000 guests, including members of Scandinavian royal families and ambassadors, packed the ceremonial hall for the occasion.

'Recall' Babies

NEW YORK (Reuter) — A Bronx hospital is "recalling" all the babies it has delivered this year following the discovery that three of the medical staff have contracted tuberculosis.

Symptoms of the infectious disease, which can be fatal to an infant, were confirmed last month in an obstetrician, a pediatrician and a nurse's aide working in the delivery room.

City Health Commissioner Joseph Cleron said Sunday babies born as far back as Jan. 1 will be examined for tuberculosis "just to be on the safe side."

Meeker Hurt

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Howie Meeker, former National Hockey League player, was injured in an automobile accident near here Saturday night.

Meeker, a St. John's sports announcer and frequent hockey analyst for televised CBC games, received a chipped pelvis and bruises to his body.

Guard Airport

TORONTO (CP) — Traffic control will be among the duties of a new group of special security guards at Toronto International Airport.

Inspector Lyndall Winters, commanding officer of Toronto RCMP sub-division, said Sunday the new force of security guards will be on duty at Toronto and other Canadian airports by April.

Initially about 50 to 60 men will be recruited for airports across the country.

The men stationed at Toronto airport will be under the supervision of 10 regular members of the RCMP, said Insp. Winters.

To be called special constables, the men will not be particular RCMP uniforms and carry guns.

End Training

WELLINGTON (AP) — Prime Minister Norman Kirk announced today the withdrawal of New Zealand army training teams from South Vietnam and the abolition of national service training.

Kirk said the government has advised the United States, the South Vietnamese and Cambodian governments it wishes to withdraw two training teams from South Vietnam as soon as is practicable.

Rose Acquitted Of Kidnapping

MONTREAL (CP) — Jacques Rose was acquitted Saturday of the October, 1970, kidnapping of Pierre Laporte, then Quebec labor minister, and returned to jail 1 await trial on a charge of murdering Mr. Laporte.

It was the second trial for Rose on the kidnapping charge, the first ending in a hung jury May 11.

Rose, who has been detained since he was captured in a farmhouse 20 miles southeast of here in December, 1970, shouted "Solidarity, we'll win," after the jury foreman announced the verdict.

Defence lawyer Robert Lemieux said he would ask the Quebec justice department for bail. Previous requests for bail have all been refused.

Jacques' mother, Rosa Rose, who applauded and cried with other sympathizers in the courtroom when the verdict was announced, said she was confident Rose would be with the family by Christmas.

Mr. Lemieux called the 11-man jury's decision "a verdict of the people," rather than "a verdict of the establishment."

"There will be roses in the snow this winter," he told the courtroom, in a play on the family name.

It was the first major case the Crown had lost in a series of trials stemming from the October, 1970, terrorist crisis involving the Front de Libération du Québec.

Jacques' older brother Paul is serving concurrent life terms for the kidnapping and strangulation murder of Mr. Laporte. Francis Simard was sentenced to life for the murder of the provincial minister and Bernard Lortie is serving 20 years for the kidnapping.

During the trial, Lortie, the man the prosecution said "would have condemned Rose," refused to testify and was sentenced to five months consecutive to his other sentence.

The jury deliberated for 17 hours, and at one point, the foreman told Mr. Justice Noel Barbes of Court of Queen's Bench, "we're not in agreement."

The jury requested and received the transcripts of the testimony of three key witnesses and was permitted to examine several exhibits.

The Nov. 14 testimony of Louise Laporte, Mr. Laporte's sister-in-law, and Claude Laporte, his nephew, and the Nov. 22 and 23 testimony of Mrs. Gerard Laporte were re-examined by the jury.

Aussies to Go

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (CP-AP) — Duncan Suttles, chess master from Vancouver, won praise from world champion Bobby Fischer as the international chess tournament drew to a close here Sunday.

Suttles finished with nine points, along with Soviet Grigoric of Yugoslavia and Vlastimil Hort of Czechoslovakia. However, Gligoric still had an adjourned game to finish after Sunday's play and could increase his total.

Soviet grandmasters Tigran Petrosian and Anatoly Karpov whisked through draws with their opponents Sunday, and settled for a three way tie for first place with Lajos Portisch from South Hungary. Each had 10½ points.

Shutt Finds Home

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Steve Shutt, former Toronto Marlboro junior star, didn't waste much time before making a favorable impression on Halifax hockey fans.

Demoted Saturday from Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, Shutt scored two goals Sunday his American Hockey League debut as Nova Scotia Voyageurs defeated Boston Braves 5-1.

In other games, Cincinnati Swords edged Providence Reds 3-1, Cleveland Barons trampled Richmond Robins 7-1, Springfield Kings and New Haven Nighthawks tied 3-3 and Rochester Americans played to a 2-2 standoff against Tidewater Wings.

In Saturday's matches, the Swords downed the Robins 3-1, Cleveland defeated Providence 8-3, Springfield bounced Boston 6-3 and New Haven and Hershey settled for a 4-4 deadlock.

Shutt's performance Sunday was matched by another AHL rookie, Ed Gilbert. Larry Robinson scored the other goal for the Voyageurs.

The rookies also got a taste of roughouse tactics early in the first period when a brawl broke out in front of the Boston net.

Nine penalties, including four to two miscreants and one game misconduct were called and when the fighting continued in the penalty box police officers were asked to intervene.

Richard Robinson of the Braves was ejected the game misconduct, although he did not appear to be directly involved in the fisticuffs. When team-mate Tony Featherstone began fall backwards over the bench from the penalty box, Robinson came to his assistance. The official ruled Robinson was the third man in a fight and ejected him from the game.

"I just have been the most innocent guy on the ice," Robinson said.

Nova Scotia goalie Michel Dion was also a relatively quiet night but he fingered in the scoresheet, picking up an assist on Shutt's second goal.

Rod Anderson was the only Brave who managed to beat Dion, guise with a shot midway through the second period.

Rollins Rolled

The Belleville team opened with a 6-1 loss to Kitchener before recording a 3-0 victory over Oshawa in consolation play. A 4-1 loss in the hands of Brampton eliminated them from further play.

Rollins started slowly in their opening game, allowing Kitchener to take command from the start. The lone goal for the losers came from Gary Frederick. In the second one contest, the Belleville team got two goals from Garry McInroy and a single from Frederick to give them the 3-0 win.

Their final loss came despite a strong effort against the powerful Brampton entry. Gary Frederick, Belleville's best player in the tournament scored their only goal.

Kingston Wins Pair

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kingston Aces probably would prefer to play out the rest of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A season against Owen Sound Downtowners.

The Aces scored a double weekend victory against the Downtowners, winning 4-3 at home Saturday and 5-2 Sunday in Owen Sound. The wins lifted Kingston out of the cellar and into a sixth place tie with Belleville Quintes.

In the circuit's only other game Sunday, Brantford Farmers defeated Belleville 7-3. A game Sunday, Brantford Farmville was postponed because several Orillia players played against the Moscow Selects in an exhibition game in Toronto.

Saturday, Mike Doersam's goal after just eight seconds of overtime gave Galt Hornets a 4-3 victory over Barrie Flyers.

In Galt, Hornets defeated Saturday and John Beachey added the other one.

Bob Cunningham, Bob Baird and Frank Binks scored for Barrie.

Loyalist Suffers Weekend Losses

In Friday's meet with Ottawa's Algonquin College, the Lancers fell in a 98-84 decision. Brian Sutherland was the top scorer for the Algonquin Cats with 23 while Bill Kyle, who will be joining the Lancers after Christmas, dropped 15 into the cat's bucket.

St. Lawrence College's Jim Rorison and Harvey Sharpe led the Cornwall club in a 78-72 victory over the Lancers, while Sharpe added 31. Lancers' top scorer was again Kyle with 30 markups.

The Lancers held a 45-31 lead at the end of the first half, but failed to keep their scoring rate up. "We kept putting up shots," said Loyalist coach Robb Simons, "but they weren't going in."

The Loyalist hockey team, in what coach Bruce Cameron called "the worst game we played all year" lost 8-2 in Friday's game against Algonquin. Reid Mallory and Bill MacDougall scored the Lancers two goals.

In Saturday's contest against St. Lawrence Cornwall, the Lancers now their loss record increase to three over five wins as they fell on 11-6 decision. Goal getters for the Loyalist team were Dave Ferguson with two Dave Wright and Reid Mallory with single tallies. Delwi Hutchinson and Carl Naumoff scored their first goals of the year for the Lancers.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Aries (March 21-April 19): Self-assertiveness comes easily this morning and may land you in a confrontation situation. If so, make the best of it.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Try a novel or humorous approach to an old job problem. New methods and short cuts work, at least for a while. Be alert.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Those of less authority co-operate without fuss, any who fancy himself stronger shows competitive traits.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Use whatever social contacts and amenities you have to present your ideas at the highest level you can reach in the simplest way possible.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Your persuasive powers are at their peak, and there is good reason to use them. Any selling effort promises well.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Getting along with people you know than coping with business contacts today. You may extend, well and care about is easier. Often (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Even people who do not agree with you are at hand and willing to be helpful, given any reasonable request.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Luck has two sides, one of them determined by what you do or fail to do. Check facts so that what comes from your side holds up well.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Imagination suggests to you symbolic extremes which may not lend themselves to ready expression. Try, nevertheless.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Work conditions change at midday, include more consideration of social factors. Divert your creative mood toward improving your home.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Use the morning for rehearsal, then plunge into efforts to meet new contacts with fresh communications. There's a sentimental touch.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Circumstances change little, but the little they do change is enough to give you a different idea, spoil some personal plans.

Night Blindness May Be Due Diet

By Q. C. THOSTESON MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How does a person get night blindness? Is is hereditary? Can it get serious?

The person who has it said he has had glasses for about four years but never wore them. Now he has been wearing them about a year. He's 17.

Not as simple a question as you may suppose, because there are various causes of night blindness which are quite different. Some are quite serious, which can be serious. So when there are indications of developing night blindness, examination of the inner eye should be done by a specialist.

Retinitis pigmentosa is a hereditary condition, so if others in the family have that condition, or have indications of night blindness, it is reason to be especially suspicious.

The fact that the young man has had glasses for several years but didn't wear them may have nothing at all to do with his night blindness.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Will you please explain something about an abdominal aneurysm? What is it? Is recovery from operations in the high or low percentage bracket? Is it connected in any way with cancer?

Well, you know what an aneurysm is—a bulgy, weak place in a blood vessel. An abdominal aneurysm, therefore, would most likely be in the aorta, the main artery from the heart, which proceeds down through the abdomen and finally branches, with one branch going to each leg.

If the aneurysm ruptures, you are, of course, in real trouble.

In the past dozen years, more or less, there has been substantial success in repairing aneurysms, with various techniques in use. If the aneurysm is operable, prospects of success are very good now. If, for one reason or another, the aneurysm is too far advanced to be operable, there's nothing to do except wait for rupture.

It usually has nothing to do with cancer, although in rare instances a cancer, already established, could spread and make the artery weak.

Now, if, for one reason or another, the aneurysm is too far advanced to be operable, there's nothing to do except wait for rupture. It usually has nothing to do with cancer, although in rare instances a cancer, already established, could spread and make the artery weak.

Dreams Are What Best Toys Made Of

NEW YORK (AP) — Dreams are what toys are made of—the best toys anyway. And Christmas is the season for dreams.

And some dreams last forever, and some never make it.

Raggedy Ann doesn't blow bubbles, but she's still there when a lot of little girls get up in the morning.

"Potato Head," a brand version of creating a character out of a potato, is 20 years old as a brand toy.

It says something of the needs of children. What they remember is what they give something of themselves to.

Iranian Coins Offered

OTTAWA (CP) — For $260.30 there is a complete set of special gold and silver Iranian coins available from the Royal Canadian Mint that probably will contribute to the mint's 1972 profits.

A certified cheque or money order to the mint, or payment through an American Express credit card, will do the trick.

It's part of the new commercial image the mint has taken on since becoming a federal Crown corporation rather than simply a branch of government.

The Iranian coin sets are advertised in a richly colored pamphlet with an accompanying letter from Gordon W. Rutter, master of the mint, through a widely dispersed direct-mail campaign. The letter is directed to coin collectors as valued clients.

For many years, in addition to turning out coins for general domestic use and specially ordered collectors' issues, the mint has made money by making coins for other countries. It recently minted 100 million coins for Venezuela. An order from Brazil took two years to complete.

It also has produced numerous collectors' sets for other countries, including many of the islands of the Caribbean. The Soul, Haiti and Togo. But the mint's biggest order, an official said, but it is being advertised in the most impressive way.

It should be profitable not only for the mint and to the Iranian government, but to the Iranian government's agent in the case, Paramount Coin Co. of Englewood, N.J. It is one of a number of firms that undertake such promotions for foreign governments.

The Iranian sets of nine coins—four in gold and five in silver—are arranged in royal blue presentation cases, accompanied by a certificate declaring the coins to be legal tender. No similar coins are being minted, however, for general circulation in Iran.

Brochures declare that Empress Farah Diba personally selected the coin designs, two of which show replies of herself and theshah. Other designs show the ruins of Persepolis and the Cylinder of Cyrus, described as the first edict on human rights ever to be promulgated.

The advertising bears signs of American super-salesmanship. It refers to the Royal Mint of Canada, and emphasizes that the coins might be a good investment. It cites the rare case of an Israeli coin issued in 1958 at a cost of $1.25 that recently sold for $200.

"The price of these coins will increase after this offer," says the brochure. But the covering letter also reads that U.S. treasury regulations prohibit U.S. citizens from purchasing gold coins.

Instant Death Relief

LONDON (CP) — The father of British nurse Judy Hill, killed in the mercy plane crash in the Canadian Arctic, said Sunday he and his wife had been "comforted" that their daughter died instantly on impact rather than from exposure to the severe weather conditions.

L. J. Hill, a civic official in the Devon town of Kingsbridge, said in a BBC radio interview they had been "hoping all along that some miracle would come up." When one survivor was announced late Saturday, that hope revived, but Hill said they had felt Judy "would be the one to give her life" because she would have been tending her Eskimo patients, and possibly was not strapped in.

In Ottawa, Health Minister Marc Lalonde paid tribute Sunday to the "selfless devotion to duty" of Miss Hill.

Mr. Lalonde said in a statement that nurses who work for his department's northern health services are "a special breed."

"They are expected to deliver babies, sew up minor wounds, sometimes pull teeth if the patient cannot wait, perform minor laboratory tests, know how to take x-rays and most important, know when to refer patients onward to doctors sometimes many hundreds of miles away. . . ."

There are about 150 nurses employed by the department in the North.

Pilot Starts On Pablum

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — The 45-year-old pilot who survived 23 harrowing days in the Arctic has been restricted to a diet of baby food.

Described by a doctor as "in excellent condition" for someone who had been through so much, Martin Hartwell was fed a first hospital meal of baby food—pureed chicken, mixed vegetables and banana custard.

"Baby food is all he'll be on for a while," said Dr. Warren Harrison of the Canadian Forces, who explained the body cannot retain much food until it recovers from a starvation diet.

Royal Romance 'Silly'

LONDON (AP) — Rumors of an imminent engagement between Princess Anne and a young army officer were dismissed as "silly" by his father Saturday.

The 22-year-old daughter of the Queen has spent several recent weekends with Lieut. Mark Phillips among other friends.

"Just because they have been seen together on a few occasions people keep jumping to silly conclusions," landowner Peter Phillips told reporters.

He said he had no idea whether his 24-year-old son, who is serving with the Queen's Dragoon Guards regiment, was with the princess this weekend.

Prof Queries Search Policy

WOLFVILLE, N.S. (CP) — The professor whose letter to a Toronto newspaper was partially responsible for resumption of an Arctic search that resulted in the finding of bush pilot Martin Hartwell alive Saturday says Canada's search and rescue policies for downed aircraft should be re-examined.

Dr. K. David C. Haley, chairman of the mathematics department at Acadia University, said Saturday night that he has mixed emotions following the rescue.

He said he is "glad and thankful" that at least one person survived, but feels "a sense of tragedy" for the two Eskimo patients and the nurse who did not survive the ordeal.

Dr. Haley's daughter, Susan, is engaged to the surviving pilot. She and Mrs. Haley have been in the Northwest Territories for the last 30 days acting as spotters in search planes.

"I hope that what will come out of this is a complete re-examination of the whole search and rescue mission for downed planes," Dr. Haley said. "I have seen and read and people have told me of terrible irregulies where the search has gone on for a few days and then has been called off, and the relatives and friends have never known what happened."

He said there have been "really terrible" cases in which the victims have actually lived on after the search was abandoned.

He said it was a piece of luck that the people of Canada became aroused enough "to bombard the national government to the point where they resumed the search." But he said it depresses him to know that in dozens of other cases the people were not so lucky because the media and the government may not have been as responsive.

"Primarily it resolves itself down to a question of national ethics," he said.

"In the Maritime Provinces where we have fishermen out risking their lives every day for fishermen who are lost at sea, and where we have coal miners who dig until a man is found, there is an ethic about this that apparently the rest of the Canadian people don't understand.

U.S. Diplomats Bugged

WASHINGTON (AP) — State department security officers in the last year have found a tiny eavesdropping radio transmitter secretly placed in the heel of a shoe worn by an unsuspecting American diplomat in an East European country.

At another American embassy in East Europe, they located a miniature spy radio hidden in a seemingly innocent binder holding curtain samples.

Two Die
Buses, Truck Crash

ST. BLAISE, Que. (CP) — "Children were lying all over the road, bleeding and screaming for help."

That was the scene described by a policeman moments after a crash involving two school buses and a loaded 10-ton gravel truck.

Two high school students were killed and 47 persons were injured in the crash and eight remain on the critical list today in hospital.

"Some were stuck in the bus," said Constable Alain Racicot of the provincial police.

"Many just lay there, moaning, unable to move. I saw a young girl with a big gash in her arm. She was trying to help people out of the bus."

The dead students were identified as Claude Lapreat, 16, and Raymond Hebert, 17, of Lacolle, Que., near this community 30 miles south of Montreal.

Guy Girard, and Emile Hamel, the two bus drivers, and Gilles Tetreault, the truck driver, were among the critically injured victims. Police said one of the drivers lost a leg.

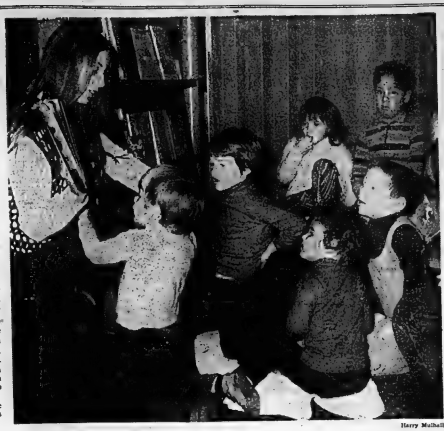
The accident occurred as the buses were transporting the students home from school.

One policeman said one of the buses collided with the truck, flipped over on its side and the second bus crashed into it.

Another report said the two buses collided, and then one of them continued along the road, veering out of control until it collided with the dump truck heading in the opposite direction.

November Food Costs Reduced

OTTAWA (CP) — Food prices eased downward last month, but the three-cent cost of living rose moderately because of higher housing and clothing prices.



Statistics Canada, surveying more than 200 consumer goods and services, said today its consumer price index rose to 142.3 in November from 142.0 in October. This was a smaller increase than usual between these two months, the bureau said.

Food prices declined over a wide selection of commodities, except for vegetables. Both canned and fresh vegetable prices were higher.

Faulkner, Whitelaw To Confer

BELFAST (CP) — Brian Faulkner, former prime minister of Northern Ireland, was due to meet British administrator William Whitelaw today for talks aimed at pitting over his Unionist party's viewpoint before the government, reveals its intentions on the province's future.

It will be Faulkner's final meeting with Whitelaw before the expected release of a government white paper early in th new year detailing Britain's plans for the British province.

The meeting follows Faulkner's success at averting a potential crisis within the Unionist party Monday when he avoided a vote on a bill by moderates which would have expelled party members who also belong to the militant Ulster Vanguard Movement.

The measure had been opposed by Unionist hardliners who threatened to establish a new party in the North if the motion went through.

Vanguard is closely aligned with the Ulster Defence Association and its members in the party are pressing hard for a Unionist statement of intent to declare Northern Ireland independent if the British government does not announce retoration of the provincial parliamoon landings ever achieved. Cernan and Schmitt brought Challenger to rest only 300 feet from their aiming point.

A few hours later, Cernan, then Schmitt, climbed down a ladder to start the first of three surface excursions which will cover more than 20 miles of the moon's surface. They will collect some 200 pounds of rock.

They unloaded the little lunar rover and turned on a television camera, giving Mission Control the first view on earth of Taurus-Littorw.

Boulders larger than panel trucks, coated with glass and pitted from the impact of meteorites, choked the valley floor like icebergs floating on a grey, dead sea. They saw glass sparkling in craters and looked long at the mountains, which appeared soft, as though covered with fur.

The floor was rolling and pocked with craters of all sizes, including a shallow one in which rested one leg of the sturdy Challenger.

Cernan drilled an eight-foot bit into the moon, using an electric drill, and then tried to pull the bit out for a core-tube sample.

First he tugged by hand. No go. Then he attached a jacklike tool. No go. Then Cernan threw his weight against the jack, bouncing down into the dust on his hands and knees. No go. Again and again he tried, his breath coming in bursts. Still no go.

Mission Control warned him several times to slow down, saying he was building up too much heat inside his space suit.

Mission control told him his heart was pounding at a fast rate and advised him to rest for a while. He did.

Schmitt joined Cernan, and together they worked the cores free.

The astronauts deployed the sciencs station, a series of instruments attached to a central power station by wires which wiggled and twisted as if alive in the low lunar gravity.

Tardily, but still game, the astronauts made a short drive in the lunar rover, going to craters a few hundred yards away to collect samples.

They must have forgotten something!

Astronauts Busy
2 Spacemen Bone-tired

HOUSTON (CP) — In the valley of Taurus-Littorw, a grey geologic wonder dotted with auto-sized boulders, two Americans rested on the moon today. Tonight they search a lunar landslide for perhaps the most ancient rocks ever seen.

Astronauts Eugene Cernan and Harrison Jack Schmitt slept late in their craft, Challenger. They were bone-tired from a near-perfect lunar landing and seven hours spent setting up a sophisticated scientific camp and scouting the surrounding terrain.

Singing, joking and sometimes gasping their way around the moon, Cernan and Schmitt—the happiest astronauts—were away from their spaceship for seven hours 18 minutes before they returned at 2:01 a.m. EST today.

They fell behind schedule as they grappled and strained to set up the science laboratory and lost more time when they briefly lost their way as they set out in the lunar rover to find a crater called Emory.

Tonight, the 11th and 12th—and perhaps last—men to visit the moon in this century, will drive their electric-powered car to a mountain side on the South Massif which spilled rock debris across the valley in some ancient time.

There they hope to find rocks created in the process by which the moon was formed and shaped, material dating perhaps to lunar beginnings 4.6 billion years ago.

Overhead, alone aboard the command ship America, the third Apollo spacemen, Ronald Evans, also rested. Tonight he will operate an array of science instruments and cameras which study the moon from orbit.

UN University Approved By General Assembly Vote

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The General Assembly has endorsed the idea of a new "world university" to deal with such problems as pollution, world politics and technology.

The assembly passed a resolution Monday, by a vote of 101 to 7 with four abstentions, to establish a United Nations University, first proposed three years ago by former UN secretary-general U Thant.

Canada, which had abstained on an initial vote in an assembly committee, was among those voting in favor of the proposal. The East European bloc, fearing lack of political control over the project, voted against.

Fourteen countries sponsored the proposal, which Holland said would provide centres for research "where men and women from all countries, whether socialist or capitalist, developed or developing, could meet to find solutions to urgent world problems."

Unlike other colleges, the UN University would not be located in one area but would have its facilities scattered throughout the world, dealing with specific areas of need according to location.

It would not grant degrees or have a main campus but would attempt to co-ordinate research being carried out in various areas.

Although Canada voted in favor of the university, Canadian Ambassador Saul Rae told the assembly Monday that Canada still was concerned about financing, academic freedom, how personnel would be selected and what the possible legal implications might be.

Rae indicated that continued Canadian support would be contingent on how the problems would be dealt with by a committee which is being established to handle the planning of the new university and report to the next General Assembly.

Canada joined Mexico and Cuba in abstaining on the proposal when it was passed by the assembly's economic committee. Mauritania and Sierra Leone joined Mexico and Cuba in abstaining on the vote Monday.

NFU Wants to Become Farm Bargaining Agent

WINNIPEG (CP) — The National Farmers Union is convinced the only way to ease the economic plight of Canada's agricultural producers is to become a bargaining agent to negotiate collective agreements with processors, but the union will have to strengthen its membership and financial condition to do so.

Draft legislation to provide for the union to become the bargaining agent in each province was introduced for discussion as the organization opened its annual five-day convention Monday.

The radical concept would allow the union, as the designated bargaining agent, to negotiate on behalf of the producers of any agricultural product with the processors to obtain the best possible price.

It means the union, in a role similar to that of trade unions, would negotiate as the union gaining agent between the farmer and the purchasers in both the domestic and export markets.

However, the draft provides that to become certified, the union must be approved by 51 per cent plus one, of the registered producers of any product who also are members of the farmers union.

This means the union would have to increase membership considerably to meet the requirement.

In August there were 34,780 members of a total of about 335,000 farmers in Canada.

In addition to sweeping powers given a marketing agency under the proposed legislation, the union as agent could decide to withhold products on which a suitable contract could not be reached in less than 30 days.

With the approval of the farmers involved in the product, no supply of the product could be made available to "the ultimate consumers."

The legislation would provide for a service fee to be paid on the price received under a negotiated contract and this would go into the coffers of the union, after deduction of operating expenses.

These moneys would be placed in investments "for the sole purposes of paying producers who participate in a properly called and certified withholding action."

The expenses of the actual negotiation incurred by the union would be paid by the purchaser and a similar amount would be deducted on a pro-rata basis from the farmers.

The legislation would also provide that the union negotiate contracts for the supply of the goods used by farmers, including farm machinery, fertilizers, fuel products, petroleum products, tools, repair and replacement parts.

Failure to reach an agreement on prices could result in the union proposing a boycott of the product involved which would be voted on by the farmer-members.

Hospital Beds Ordered Cut

PICTON (Staff) — The board of governors for Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital has announced the withdrawal of "a small number of beds" from service to meet a recent Ontario government directive for a reduction of $45,000 in the 1973 operating budget.

At this time such beds directed out of service cannot be reactivated for any other purpose.

Hospital administrator William Cooke said this bed reduction will influence the number of medical and surgical patients admitted in future. He said it is expected that all other patient services, particularly obstetrics and pediatrics, will be retained for the present time.

It is not anticipated that any of the present nursing staff will leave the hospital but instead nurses now on staff will be integrated into other hospital departments. Future appointments for the replacement of some staff positions, however, will necessarily be curtailed.

Mr. Cooke said, "Every effort is being made to maintain the accreditation standard of services to patients as in the past with a minimum of inconvenience to the patients and the citizens of the community."

The administrator added the bed reduction is being made by the board of governors to meet the government restraint requirement on a voluntary basis instead of entertaining a possible mandatory order to eliminate a specific number of beds or a service.

He said, "It is anticipated the general public will understand the position of the hospital at this time of severe government financial restraints."

See You Later, Alligator

Residents Object To Scrap Piles

A petition bearing the names of 18 East Moira Street families objecting to their junk yard view has been received at city hall with a request that something be done.

The letter said council had been approached on the matter 16 months ago at which time Safe stated Mr. Safe had been given a few months to fence in his yard.

But since then nothing has happened.

Yesterday council was told that the problem was one having public commission jurisdiction and the matter was referred to that body.

Rezoning Request Gets Turned Down

City council has turned down an application from Vincent and Francesca Graziani for spot rezoning of a part lot on the northeast corner of College and Shamrock streets to allow construction and operation of a small coffee shop and snack bar.

The rezoning application was received by council last August and was referred to the various city boards for comment.

Since then the city traffic committee has recommended the requested rezoning not be approved, stating the area is not adaptable to the traffic which would be generated on Shamrock Road.

The subordinate planning committee has taken the same view and, following a planning staff report, had concluded establishment of a restaurant at the corner was unacceptable for several reasons.

A restaurant would create traffic problems on Shamrock Road which now is a quiet residential street; and would also mean an intrusion of a commercial use in an area which is residential in nature.

Creation of a restaurant on the subject lot would create a precedent and it would be difficult to refuse any further conversions from residential to commercial use on Shamrock Road or on the frontage of College Street.

Sewage Operation Cost Close to Half Million

The city's cost for operation of the extended bayfront sewage disposal plant and the new trunk sanitary sewer system the Moira River will be close to $500,000 a year.

This was stated Monday at city council following receipt of letters from the Ministry of the Environment setting rates for the two facilities.

The city's cost for the river sewer, which goes into operation January 1 next year will be 38.7 cents per 1,000 gallons, which is expected to work out at about $3,000 for the initial one year period.

The city's cost for operation of the new extended sewage plant has been increased from 16 cents per 1,000 gallons to 17.3 cents and is expected to work out to about $35,000 a month.

Total annual city cost for operation of the two facilities will be approximately $492,000.

Over the past two years the Ministry of the Environment has extended the bayfront sewage plant and added secondary treatment. The new facility went into operation during the past summer.

The sanitary trunk sewer up the river was reconstructed to serve the city's Hillcrest residential and northeast industrial areas and also to provide service to Thurlow township.

When sewer service is provided in the township, Thurlow will pay on a fallowage basis for use of the sewer and the sewage disposal facilities on the bayfront.

Ore Train Strikes Again

BATAWA (Staff) — A Batawa resident is recovering in Trenton Memorial Hospital today from injuries suffered when his 1971 Meteor was struck by a Canadian National ore train at a level crossing on Murray township's fourth concession road Monday morning.

Belleville detachment OPP report William Brak, 52, of Batawa was crossing the tracks in his vehicle when the train struck the left front side fitting of the car several yards.

Mr. Brak was admitted to TMH with multiple abrasions and minor chest and rib injuries. Investigating Constable Robert Barkhouder said the car was demolished, the train undamaged.

Blood Clinic Tomorrow

TRENTON (Staff) — On Wednesday, Dec. 13, a blood donor clinic will be held at the Trenton Royal Canadian Legion Hall.

Hours for donors are from between 2 p.m. and 5 p.m. and between 7 p.m. and 8.30 p.m. Refreshments will be served to members of the American Church Women of St. George's Church.

ETV Use Restricted

PICTON (Staff) — Educational television isn't "all it's cracked up to be" Prince Edward county board of education was told last night.

Jeremy Vincent, vice-principal of Prince Edward Collegiate Institute, brought that report back from a Toronto meeting of the Educational Research Council.

Trustees were concerned that although a great deal of money is spent on educational television productions, they are not very useful in schools at the moment.

Prince Edward county schools have television sets and video tape recorders for delayed playback of programs.

But, said business administrator Ernest Shortt in this morning, it is impossible to guarantee that a teacher can preset a program at the time wants it. Because of scheduling difficulties, TV isn't working; they're not using it.

Council Promises Better Shovelling

The city public works department will be asked to do a clearing job this winter in the city's downtown areas.

The better snowplowing job will be in the form of hand ridges left by the plows which later turn into ice and inconvenience pedestrians.

The request for the additional shoveling and removal effort came from the Belleville Business Improvement area and was prepared to pay for the work against merchants to be collected next year from downtown improvements.

But the stickler is that there will be no money in the special fund until after the first of the year.

Alderman Ben Corke noted that some downtown merchants had been damaged by loss of business during the sewer installation on Bridge Street and at the danger of being accused of conflict of interest, suggested that the city works department do a good sidewalk snow clearing job and forget about the money.

Council went along with the suggestion.

Also at the meeting, council received letters from two North Front Street property owners objecting to the proposed construction of a new sidewalk from Tracey Street to Bell Blvd.

The two objectors said the sidewalk would benefit only the school board.

Council voted to forward the objections to the Ontario Municipal Board.

Bell Rate Boost Brings No Protest

The city of Belleville will not officially protest new increased rates being asked by Bell Telephone.

Included on Monday's City council agenda was a letter from the telephone company setting out its requested rate increases.

Mayor J. Russell Scott expressed the opinion that Bell needed the extra revenue for expansion of services and admitted that opposition to the increase "looked like an exercise in futility."

He suggested that Belleville's position was different than in many other centres.

The Bell training school in Belleville is of considerable money into the local economy, while also Bell had made higher capital expenditures for lines and other facilities in the Belleville area than was the average across Canada.

Council moved that the Bell letter be "received".

Cabin Saved

TWEED (Special)—Prompt action by Tweed's volunteer fire department saved a two-storey log cabin from going up in flames last night.

The house, with logs 12 inches thick in its walls, belongs to V. J. Goulah and is located on the Bogart Rd. at RR1, Stoco.

Firemen were called to the house at 8:10 p.m. to extinguish a chimney fire. This prevented the spread of the flames to the adjacent attic area and reported little damage to the structure.

Duct Fire Hits Plant

TRENTON (Staff) — Trenton fire department responded to two emergency calls Monday. One was to an industrial fire, the other a well-intentioned false alarm.

At 6:53 p.m., Morton-Parker Silverware plant production manager Lawrence Bonin reported fire had broken out in exhaust fans and heating ducts at the Dufferin Ave. factory.

Within less than an hour firemen had the flames extinguished and smoke cleared.

Plant owner Ted Parker this morning reports workmen worked into the early hours of the morning to restore heat to the plant.

"There was quite a bit of smoke in there too," he said.

Neither the extent nor an estimate of damage was available at this time, but Mr. Parker says loss is minor. He believes an exhaust motor that controls air flow and heat flow was burned out. Two baffling wheels used in silverware finishing were blown. Some finished stock is stored in the area.

At 11:56 p.m. a resident of the downtown area phoned firemen to report she had bought she saw smoke near the Salvation Army building on Elgin Street. However, this proved to be a false alarm.

Communication Agreed Needed Between UCS, Family YMCA

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Battle lines were replaced with lines of communication and negotiations Monday night between the United Community Services and the Belleville Family YMCA, spelling the possible re-entry for the Y into the United Appeal.

Two weeks ago, the Y was notified by UCS president Andrew Robb it would not be included in the fund campaign for 1974 operations because of its failure to meet "community needs."

The major question at last night's meeting was, "Does the UCS have the right to dictate the policies and operations of the appeal's 13 member agencies?"

Bob Ord, representing the UCS as its past president, reading from the original charter of the parent agency, claimed it did.

UCS president, Mr. Robb, after issuing the original statement expelling the Y could not attend the meeting last night because of business in Europe.

Isadore Cooperman, executive director of the UCS earlier this week said he would not attend the meeting, saying, "there is nothing to be gained".

The forum, to which all executive members of all agencies were invited, spotlighted Mr. Ord and Dr. Doug Horne representing the Y, each offering his side of the conflict and rebutting the other's presentation.

The original concern of the UCS was the lack of Y initiative to reach out into the community to offer expanded programs catering to a broader group of people.

Dr. Horne explained the Y had become involved in a community study to determine the status of the Y and what programs should be included.

The UCS decision to expel the Y from the appeal came before both groups could get together to discuss these added programs and the final results of the survey.

"We felt the Y was not interested in co-operating with us in surveying the need and because of their tardiness to get back to us, we thought they were putting us off," said Mr. Ord.

"the major thing the UCS has learned here tonight is the Y is sincerely interested and committed to reaching into the community to supply programs to more people," he said.

Dr. J. G. Deeness, acting as chairman for the meeting, summarized the situation saying, "there is a breakdown in communication and understanding and perhaps one body was expecting the other to do something now that it could not possibly do at the moment."

Members of the Y explained they were being asked to go out into the community to expand their programs but were already in a difficult financial position in handling the existing programs.

"To get more support from the UCS we have to provide more programs, but we need more support now to get the programs," said Dr. Horne. "It's what came first the chicken or the egg?"

The agencies represented at the meeting were all concerned with the UCS power to withhold funds and said that stronger lines of communication be kept open.

Because of the forum last night, both the UCS and the Y will meet in the early part of the new year to discuss the survey which began last fall and will work co-operatively to evolve and develop Y programming.

Hugh Pepper, chairman of the UCS financial committee said, "if things go well in introducing new programs, the Y could be re-included in the United Appeal, beginning next fall.

The Y can at any time, approach the UCS for funding of individual programs which meet with the approval of the UCS, said Mr. Pepper.

Fund allocation to the Y this year will be made public Dec. 15.

"To look a little further ahead, they can re-apply to UCS once their survey is on the way and it is quite possible they will be re-admitted," he said.

Dr. Horne, after the meeting, said the Y had already begun an enriched program that would become operational in the coming year, which would serve as an indicator of their intention to comply with UCS requests.

"We have always been supporters of the United Way and we do better when we are a part of it," he said.

Three suggestions from last night's meeting are — Y and UCS expand their survey — UCS clearly outline its role to the agencies — that the UCS use its annual meeting to present this outline.

Dr. Deeness said, "we are a direction - taking body not a decision - making one.

"Our job was to open lines of communication, to get all agencies working for the benefit of the community," he said.

Controversial Bylaws Tabled At City Council's Last Meeting

Belleville city council has wound up its business for 1972 and unless some emergency arises will hold no further meetings this year.

This was the decision at city hall yesterday when council members decided to cancel the last scheduled meeting of the year which would have been held December 18.

However, if necessary, the mayor is empowered to call another meeting before the year end.

The 1973 inaugural meeting will be held January 2.

Yesterday's meeting saw a proposed bylaw amendment to restored on-street parking to two hours in the vicinity of the hospital again delayed.

The bylaw was before council at its last meeting but was tabled after a hospital worker claimed it was discriminatory.

The bylaw was tabled on the recommendation of Alderman Gerald Joyce to allow the city traffic committee to meet with hospital authorities to discuss parking.

Yesterday Alderman Joyce said the meeting had still not been held and he recommended further tabling until after the meeting.

Also, the proposed meeting of East Hill residents with the subordinate planning advisory committee to further discuss subdivision plans for land east of Elizabeth Crescent will be postponed until January.

The bylaw would give council approval for a zoning change to allow construction of townhouses which are being objected to by area residents.

Alderman Arnold Orr as chairman of the advisory planning committee, said the meeting had been scheduled for this Thursday evening and that notices had already gone out.

Alderman Corke said the reason for not holding the meeting as scheduled was that council now had no authority to enter into an agreement with the subdivider.

At last night's council session was last of the year, the meeting saw retiring speeches from two council members who will not be at city hall next year.

Alderman Enos David, retiring from municipal life after two decades of service on school board and council, reviewed his experiences over the past 20 years.

Also Mayor J. Russell Scott, defeated at the polls by Mayor Elect Robin Jeffrey in last week's municipal election, formally congratulated re-elected members and repeated his election night offer of co-operation with the incoming mayor.

Two of the four new aldermen-elected — Joseph Cox and Roger Porter — attended the meeting.

Hawk Shot, Fined $50

Alfredo Ricoli pleaded guilty to the Nov. 11 killing. Under the Game and Fish Act, maximum penalty for shooting protected birds is $1,000.

School Trustee Seriously Ill

Everett Fallman, retired school principal and trustee on the Hastings county board of education is seriously ill in Kingston General Hospital.

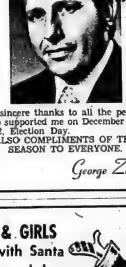
He was transferred to Kingston Sunday, after being in Belleville General Hospital for about a week with shingles.

Snowmobile Classes Popular

TRENTON (Staff) — First of three snowmobile safety classes for this winter season has been considered a success by organizers and the instructor, town safety officer Constable Roy Miller of Trenton police department.

This is the third year for the Trenton Rotary Club-sponsored free safety classes. Two more will be held at St. Peter's School in January and February.

Constable Miller lectured on various laws pertinent to the operation of snowmobiles. They are the Snowmobile Act, Criminal Code of Canada, the Liquor Control Act, the Railway Act, various town bylaws and the Mechanics Lien Act.



Following the screening of two films on the subject, a large quantity of safety literature was distributed to the 50 people who attended.

Such classes are becoming increasingly popular across North America, Constable Miller says, as the death and accident toll climbs in direct proportion to the number of sales of the popular winter sports vehicles.

Mobility Issue

Timothy Lash, a member of the Metro Toronto airport review committee, has an interesting point when he suggests Canada should not spend money on airports because they are only the travelling elite. Instead he would have the Government devote the money to providing mobility to the general population.

According to Mr. Lash a United States study indicated 17 per cent of the population do most of the air travel, suggesting that a Canadian study would show similar results.

The paradox of this reasoning is that airports — Toronto a prime example — are bulging at the seams, with resulting discomfort and even exasperation so far as both the travelling public and airport staff are concerned. So many people, in effect, but with so little space to accommodate them. Indeed, we are forever seeing reports of increasing travel by air and we recall one recently which put Canadians at the top among the latter-day travellers. We may be regarded then on a per capita basis, as the leading jet setters of the day.

Be that as it may there is a vastly greater number of the population which does not fly anywhere and has difficulty — especially in areas where train service has been abandoned in recent years — even in finding a bus or train to get from A to B.

Toronto, Hamilton and Ottawa may be heading for an era of rapid transit, but broadly speaking there is a dearth of public transportation facilities in the province. As it is, not everyone has a car and those who don't — like many of the young people — hitchhike which has its disadvantages. But just how the mobility Mr. Lash envisages for the general population could be achieved economically is another matter. The airports and jet transports meanwhile are vital, not only for vacationers, but to the businessmen who are such a mainstay of our economic progress.

Movie Etiquette

We are not acquainted with the calorie content of popcorn, but as any moviegoer knows, popcorn, along with some soft drink or other, is the staple of many a patron of the flicks.

Those who don't like the stuff, or the noisy digestion of it by those seltsame addicts, followed by the familiar sharp thump as the empty container is dispatched unceremoniously to the floor, just have to lump it. For popcorn is as Canadian (American) as cherry pie, or as actor Peter Sellers said, apropos some other unrelated topic, a movie is never over at the Mall just recently: "don't knock it, it's up there with the flag and apple pie."

Disconcerting though, or should we say downright appalling, was the spectacle of spilled popcorn plus discarded container on the floor as we took our seats for the second house presentation.

Then there is that other bugaboo: smoking. We are not sure if there is a "no smoking" edict at The Mall theatres, but people smoke anyway, there being no special loges for that purpose. Perhaps areas should be set aside for those who wish to indulge, say along the sides of the theatres.

In addition maybe plastic bags, of varying size according to individual consumption, should be provided for the popcorn eaters, rather than have them scatter container and dregs to the floor.

Here and There

Rotary exchange student Peter Cox, according to the local club's bulletin, is becoming a keen cricketer in South Africa. The Belleville student also writes that he has travelled some 2,000 miles throughout the republic thus far.

Meanwhile South Africans Sonja Johnson and Dale Lumley leave on Belleville this month. They are returning to their sunny land having seen much of Canada. What a marvellous experience it has been for these young people. Exchanges such as these can only augur well for the future.

Recently, in New York, there was another coming together of people that was noteworthy — a young Arab and a young Jew spoke to President Nixon while he was mingling with crowds who turned out to greet him. Nixon had the pair shake hands, which they apparently did without rancor. Yes, as the song says, the world can be a better place — if we only allow it.

Public Is the Loser

How the Government Inflates and Debases The $

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — So like a lot of other people you think of inflation in terms of the climbing cost of living.

And of course you are right, for the pocketbook is where you feel it first.

But did it ever occur to you, that for all their decrying its evils, inflation is a completely legal if sneakily immoral way for the government to chisel its creditors?

And its creditors include you and me and everyone who buys its bonds and annuities, pays into its pension funds or lends it money in other ways.

The older term for inflation is debasement of the coinage.

And history records that it was resorted to as deliberate government policy for the first time in English history during the later years of Henry VIII.

With his debasement of the currency went, too, a general debasement of other values.

The government inflates and debases by overspending, borrowing and finally and crudely by expanding the supply of money.

Why is a government tempted, generally yielding to the temptation, into a course of action which can be thought at once dishonest and ineffective?

The answer is that the government borrows money and inflation and debasement is one of the obvious ways of cheating its creditors.

The time which it borrowed 10 years ago is repaid now with a dollar worth less than 70 cents.

And the dollar being borrowed currently will be repaid in future years — unless the government suddenly reverses this process of short-changing everyone, even ultimately itself — with a similarly discounted dollar.

The special merit of this transaction lies in the fact that the government's creditors are seldom of any political importance, being the pensioners, widows and the great mass of those small investors who out of nothing more than habit take the government on trust with their money.

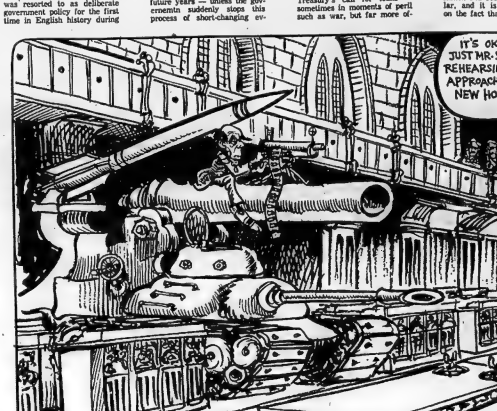
Few men of great wealth will lend money to the government if they can possibly avoid it, for this, they know, is a game in which the Treasury holds all the cards.

The government's creditors are people, therefore, who, necessarily unorganized and unrepresented, have answered the Treasury's call for loans — sometimes in moments of peril such as war, but far more often in times of peace.

Added to them are people who have been compelled to loan whether they like it or not, the contributors to the government's own pension plans, and of their own volition, to its public annuities plans.

There is no earthly reason, the government seems to think, why people of this sort should receive more than a fraction of the sum to which they might think themselves entitled.

They should normally be thought lucky to get even that in the detached view of the government, and its ministers and mandarins are naturally inclined to ignore them altogether.



From the government's point of view, there is always a good solid case to be made for inflation and debasing of the dollar, and it is based securely on the fact that the victims of this financial manoeuvre are not the kind of people from whom it has anything further to exact.

They are, in fact, merely those who already have contributed most of what they had to give, or had to spare, and are therefore, by definition, politically expendable.

Much of inflation is government - made through high unemployment benefits and welfare, higher taxation than most other western countries, high civil service wage and salary settlements and habitually increasing and expanding the money supply.

It all combines to make government bonds, government annuities, government pensions, taxable hands, with inflation running four to five percent, a losing game.

What inflation doesn't discount in the yield, taxation does.

Chilean President Seeks Financial Aid in Moscow

By PETER BUCKLEY

WASHINGTON (CP) — Denied credit and loans from some of the traditional sources, President Salvador Allende of Chile has turned to the Soviet Union for increased financial and technical aid for the troubled Chilean economy.

His reception in Moscow has been warm. He has been receiving support from Soviet officials and media since his Marxist-based coalition came to power after elections in September, 1970.

Allende's visit has given the Soviet leadership an opportunity to re-emphasize its approval of efforts in Latin America to expel foreign monopolies, change the "outdated social structure and end economic backwardness," as Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny phrased it.

The United States has generally maintained a discreet silence about Chile, on the ground that almost anything it chooses to say will only make the situation worse.

In two years of gradually deteriorating relations between the U.S. and Chile, both governments have usually avoided direct comments about each other, especially the sort of heated accusation and rhetoric which often characterizes such situations.

A break in the silence came earlier this week when Allende told the United Nations General Assembly of a "financial and economic blockade" which he said has "strangled" the Chilean economy. The U.S. state department replied that the charges were "confusing and inaccurate."

Among Allende's targets in his speech—apart from American-owned copper and communications firms whose subsidiaries he has nationalized—were the multi-national development banks based in Washington and private banks operating mainly out of New York.

Chile has been cut off from most American aid as a result of the nationalization. Its applications for low-interest loans and short-term credits have largely been unmet.

In addition, the government has felt itself harassed by lawsuits filed in Europe by Kennecott Copper Corp., seeking to prevent Chile from selling the products of its nationalized mines until the company obtains compensation for its expropriated property.

One of Allende's responses has been to try to organize the main copper-producing countries of the world into a cartel which could develop alternative markets and credit sources as a means of improving their bargaining power.

Until such a cartel can develop clout, however, Allende will need assistance to restore the country's depleted foreign currency reserves, cut back on an alarming inflationary trend and pacify the outraged Chilean middle class.

With important congressional elections scheduled in Chile for next March, Allende is under pressure of time to revive his own political prospects. Substantial financial aid from the Soviet Union could help him meet the deadline.

Cambridge

Salary Schedules Under Fire

Galt Reporter

The range of salaries recently announced for the top 15 administrative appointed offices for the new City of Cambridge, is receiving sharp criticism.

They run from a low of $15,112, for the economic development commissioner, to a high of $25,619 for the chief administrator.

Criticism of the salary schedules, as announced last week, is coming from persons of varied walks of life and affluence who declare they are much too high.

No one denies the importance of the roles to be played in the new City of Cambridge by the key employees, but few have been heard to feel that the salary ranges are justified.

Comparisons of existing salaries were not provided coincident with the new schedules for become effective January 1.

Mayor Claudette Millar said the matter, however, that of the 15 salaries considered only three of the personnel received "significant increases over what they earned while employed by Galt, Preston and Hespeler."

The word "significant" can mean many things to many people.

Personnel and salary discussions by municipal councils have, in the past, all been held in camera and there is no reason to believe that this will change with the creation of the City of Cambridge.

There is considerable justification for such meetings being held behind closed doors.

Invariably the end results of these meetings become public property either through statements issued by officials, or at the time of their ratification at open council meetings.

Unfortunately, in the process, the reasoning which prompted the recommendations of the committee and ultimate endorsement by council, is not provided. Consequently the press, and in turn the citizens and taxpayers the media seeks to serve are unable to fairly judge the decisions which are actually made on their behalf.

Have Parents Abdicated Responsibility Toward Kids?

Quebec L'Action

A school in Boucherville was the scene of a drama . . . when a student killed himself after shooting a teacher and another student.

Every day we read news which shows an inexplicable and disorganized behavior on the part of some young people . . .

And parents, a great majority of them, have literally resigned. They have found the problems of their children; they have understood nothing of what is going on and by renouncing their duty to make at least a small effort to help their children, they have simply abandoned them to the mercy of unscrupulous revolutionaries who preach the abolition of all social, moral and human values which are the basis of our civilization.

The youths are inserted, like numbers in a file, into a school system that becomes more and more dehumanizing, in order to prepare them to take their place in an amorphous society that often does not have any utility.

What ideal can one develop when all efforts are, from the start, destined to be shortlived . . . when one looks at an adult society where the illiterate earn their living more easily than university graduates or skilled workmen.

Why be surprised by a particular drama such as the one in Boucherville? It was only the logical conclusion to the series of barbarities that our society has tolerated . . . We will see many other similar dramas while waiting until we have enough courage to bring together the debris of civilization to build a new and more human world.

Perils Of A Modern Traveller

The Globe and Mail

Medical science was confronted at the weekend by a baffling phenomenon: the physical change which takes place in the ear of an urban commuter between the time he leaves home in the suburbs and arrives at his office or place of work in the city. It is for the renaissance given to Toronto's anti-noise by-law during a recent test in the courts, next people would have remained ignorant of a person's level of hearing could change that way.

As determined by Judge A. E. Newell that Toronto's bylaw could not be applied to protect, say, office workers from techno noise because they could not be considered "inhabitants" — the key word in the bylaw. At home, they might be on solid ground invoking that municipal law to suppress clamor.

But not at the office. There, following the mysterious transition which will probably cause to be known as the Newell, the pneumatic drills can have their trillish way. Air recipes may be rest-run next door.

If the drafters of the bylaw did quote momentarily over the word "inhabitants", it can only have been to brush aside the vagrant thought that anyone working in an office in the city had any need to concentrate, or that in fact, he was capable of being disturbed by noise of any kind.

It may turn out to be a self-fulfilling assumption. By the levels of urban noise increase and why shouldn't they, with loudspeakers you could drive a horse and cart through — probably over obstructions), the office worker will go progressively daft or deaf or both. The short, therapeutic interludes of relative tranquillity he may enjoy as an "inhabitant" away from the office will only slightly retard the process.

Mark the herald angels. . . ? Maybe, if you are prepared to take a firm stand at home. But you'll still have to give at the office. At least until Toronto's new City Council can summon powers of concentration and think of a better way to phrase the terms of the bylaw.

News Roundup

NFU Says Food Firms Exploiters

WINNIPEG (CP) — A book designed to illustrate how producers and consumers are exploited by the concentration of economic and political power in Canada's food industry is to be prepared by the women of the National Farmers Union.

Evelyn Potter of Biggar, Sask., NFU women's president, told delegates as the third annual convention opened Monday that the project is to involve women at "all levels."

Mrs. Potter said the union should provide a greater awareness of the food industry and "serve in building stronger alliances with rural-urban groups throughout Canada."

Originally planned to be completed by the end of 1972, the project was suspended because of inadequate financing, she said.

"We plan to begin this project in the near future."

Mrs. Potter said the union could not "do a proper job without making use of women's energies and capacities".

"We in the union should be proud that we have recognized the need for special status for women and have built this principle into the constitution."

Abortions Up

OTTAWA (CP) — The number of abortions in the first six months of 1972 increased by nearly 33 per cent over the same period in 1971, Statistics Canada reported Monday.

Hospitals reported 18,801 abortions on Canadian residents in the first half of 1972, up from 14,168 for the same period in 1971. As well, there were 16 abortions performed on women with foreign residence.

Garbage Rumor

HARRISTON, Ont. (CP) — Reports that Metropolitan Toronto plans to dump 400,000 tons of its garbage in this area annually were termed "strictly speculative" Monday by Mayor Donald McPhail.

Mr. McPhail said in an interview that council has received no official notice that this area, about 45 miles south of Owen Sound, has been selected as a dump for Toronto. It is just one of five potential sites under consideration, he said.

No Leave

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Harold Ballard, president of Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens who is serving three years for fraud and theft at nearby Millhaven prison, won't get a Christmas leave, a prison official said Monday.

Delay Action

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The General Assembly's legal committee voted Monday to put off for at least one year any action against international terrorism. The committee adopted by a vote of 73 to 34 with 16 abstentions a resolution sponsored by 16 non-aligned countries under which the assembly would merely ask all member countries for their views on terrorism. A committee will study the replies and report to next year's assembly.

Parole Case

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Two convicts charged with possession of stolen goods while on day parole Sunday were remanded without plea when they appeared in provincial court Monday.

They are George Trotter, 33, of Oakville, and John Joseph Richards, 27, of Toronto.

Police said two men posing as doctors entered the rest-home room of an 81-year-old woman Sunday and took a radio and two pens. The men placed the articles in a rented car and were about to re-enter the home when they were arrested.

Appeal Order

TORONTO (CP) — Gould Manufacturing of Canada Ltd. has appealed an arbitration board order to reinstate an employee dismissed for falsifying his application form to hide the fact he once had been convicted of rape.

The appeal will be heard in divisional court.

Owen Shime, arbitration board chairman, in a decision announced Monday, upheld the company's right to fire the employee but exercised the board's discretion to order his reinstatement on social grounds.

Drivers Poor

MONTREAL (CP) — The Star says a government experiment letting private driving schools, as well as government examiners, test applicants for driving permits has loopholes allowing corruption and is producing drivers who could not pass a standard government test.

Supreme Court Asked To Define Joyriding

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada was asked Monday to establish the difference between the offences of joyriding and car theft.

Car-theft convictions carry fines of up to $500 or jail sentences of up to 12 months, or both. Convictions of joyriding — taking a car without the consent of the owner for the purposes of driving it only — carry small fines.

Toronto lawyer John Morin told the Supreme Court that in order for a judge to convict an accused of car theft, it first must be proved that the accused had the intention of converting the car to his own use, not just taking it for a drive.

Otherwise, he said, police officers and Crown attorneys themselves had the choice of charging a youth with the more serious crime.

Before the court is the case of evidence to support the issue of Leo Lafrance, 18, of North Bay, Ont. Along with friends, he was involved in taking a car Sept. 24, 1970, and driving it for about four hours before being stopped by police.

He was charged with car theft but the trial judge acquitted him saying there was no intent to commit theft.

The Crown appealed the decision and the Court of Appeal for Ontario set aside the acquittal and recorded a conviction of theft, it ordered that the case go back to the trial judge for sentence.

The court reserved decision.

Margaret Trudeau Fine Cook - - Barrett

OTTAWA (CP) — Margaret Trudeau is an excellent cook.

That verdict was pronounced Monday by Premier David Barrett of British Columbia after lunching with Prime Minister and Mrs. Trudeau at 24 Sussex Drive.

She cooked the meal herself, he assured reporters later, but he wouldn't tell what she fed him.

"I'm not going to share the menu and start a rage in Canada," he said, but added: "It was excellent."

The premier spent about three hours with Mr. Trudeau during his visit, one of a series of informal meetings the prime minister has been holding with provincial premiers.

Ottawa Agrees to Pay More for B C Scheme

OTTAWA (CP) — British Columbia Premier David Barrett announced Monday that the federal government has agreed to make a greater contribution toward the province's guaranteed income plan for pensioners.

He also said that the two governments have agreed to continue discussions on certain sales tax payments rather than have B.C. pursue the matter through the courts.

Mr. Barrett said the government's change of heart on the $200-a-month guaranteed income plan for old age pensioners was a "major step forward."

B.C. raised its guaranteed income plan to $200 a month shortly after Mr. Barrett was elected the first New Democratic Party premier of the province this fall.

He called then for a greater federal contribution, but got no satisfaction. Now, he said, the government has agreed to increase the fixed assets level of the Canada Assistance Plan.

This would permit the senior government to make a greater contribution toward the B.C. plan, which was expected to cost $85 million a year. Mr. Barrett said he thinks the federal government should pay 50 per cent and that Mr. Trudeau's undertaking would be a step in that direction.

Gets Late Calls

CALGARY (CP) — The Salvation Army suicide prevention and emergency counselling bureau handles about 100 telephone calls a month, with most of the calls coming after 11 p.m. Capt. Noel Sorley says people prefer to talk over the telephone rather than across a desk because there are no barriers between the caller and the listener and callers can remain anonymous.

Seek Youth Ranch

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP) — Representatives from five Indian reserves are considering establishment of a boys' ranch in southern Alberta to help fight the high incidence of juvenile offences on reserves. Counsellors would work with Indian youths convicted of crimes and follow-up services would be provided.

Helicopter Hunt Won't Resume

OTTAWA (CP) — The search for four men missing in a helicopter in northern Manitoba since Nov. 3 will not be resumed unless new information is presented, a defence department spokesman said Monday.

The four men were on board a helicopter chartered to pick up ballot boxes in the Churchill, Man., riding after the Oct. 30 federal election.

They were on a flight from Norway House to Winnipeg when they disappeared.

The search was suspended Nov. 17.

The spokesman said the search, which covered an area of 30,000 square miles, was called off because the search-master was satisfied the area had been covered as adequately as possible.

He noted that the department had received letters and telephone calls asking that the search be resumed, but said Defence Minister James Richardson as well as the search and rescue command concurred in suspending operations.

A letter from Mrs. D. Ferguson of Orangeville, Ont., criticising abandonment of the search appeared Saturday in the Winnipeg Free Press.

Mrs. Ferguson, a friend of the missing pilot, Al Giekmans of Winnipeg, said she had tried through several government channels for a resumption of the search, which "I would imagine . . . will go down as the shortest search on record."

Log Prices Peak

VANCOUVER (CP) — Gordon Dreseke, president of the Council of the Forest Industries of British Columbia, says lumber prices have reached their peak in B.C., barring "an unusual combination of circumstances." He said the adverse circumstance could include a labor strike coupled with a severe winter, which would create a lot shortage and drive prices up.

Solution Forecast On Income Security

QUEBEC (CP) — Claude Castonguay, Quebec social affairs minister, says recent statements by his new federal counterpart encourage him to hope the long-standing Quebec-Ottawa dispute over control of income-security programs may finally be resolved.

Mr. Castonguay said Monday he met Marc Lalonde, federal health and welfare minister, Friday and discussed issues in the income-security field.

"Sunday, that is two days after this meeting, we saw Mr. Trudeau, made the statements on a CBC French-language public-affairs program Sunday.

sity for an integrated income-security system and on the necessity of eliminating present incoherencies," Mr. Castonguay said.

"I believe that is the first time — to my knowledge — that a federal government minister has declared himself in agreement on the need for an integrated regime," he told the national assembly.

Mr. Lalonde, former principal adviser to Prime Minister Trudeau, made the statements on a CBC French-language public-affairs program Sunday.

WEDDING

Doran — Sine

Rev. W. C. Cox officiated at the recent wedding ceremony in Bethel United Church for Betty Darlene Sine and John Douglas Doran. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Sine, Stirling. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Doran, Stirling. Mrs. William Heath rendered appropriate wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. W. C. Cox.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a long peau de soie satin gown with a lace yoke, Bishop sleeves and rail collar. A long train fell from the empire waist and a wedding ring headpiece highlighted her gown. The bride carried a bouquet of red roses.

Maid of honor, Miss Marylou Sine, Stirling, sister of the bride chose an empire style gown with a wine velvet skirt and white polyester bodice. She carried a single white mum.

The bridesmaids, Mrs. Ed Durkin, Read, and Miss Cheryl Burley, Belleville wore identical gowns to the maid of honor and carried the same flower.

Brian Crossman, of Ottawa was best man and Ed Durkin, Read and Burton Sine, Bowmanville ushered guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Doran will reside in Sault Ste. Marie.

Cut Your Own Christmas Tree

Stores are decorated for the holidays and soon Christmas trees will be available. However, instead of buying from a lot, you and your family can enjoy an outing in the country and cut your own tree, says W. J. Devins, Farm Products Inspector, Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food.

Plan an excursion to one of the Christmas tree plantations in Ontario that has a "cut-your own" operation. Some of the bigger ones also have sleigh - rides. If you decide to cut your own tree, allow plenty of time for the outing. Christmas tree plantations do most of their business in the three weekends before Christmas.

Usually the plantation owner will indicate the areas where trees can be cut and where the different trees are located. There are usually Scotch pine or various spruce species to choose from.

There are a few things to remember if you decide to cut your own tree. Use the parking lot on the site if at all possible. If you must park on the side of the road, make sure your car is not blocking normal traffic. Dress warmly. It can be cold in the open areas of a tree farm. Some farmers will supply saws to cut the tree of your choice, but to be safe, take along a sharp saw or axe.

Cutting your own Christmas tree can be an enjoyable outing for the whole family, enlivening the spirit of the holiday season.

Euchre Played

The Neighbors' Aid held their euchre recently with 12 tables in play and the following winners: Mrs. Edna Sullivan, Mrs. Bes Bowes, Mrs. F. Langabeer, Jim Hilton, Jim Higgins and Mrs. Lillian Dearden.

Mrs. Arnold Mitchell had the lucky draw.

Laura Secord Opens In United Kingdom

After only just over a year in the U.K., Toronto - based Laura Secord Ltd., makers of high quality chocolates and confectionary, "has opened its first retail - only outlet in Nottingham, England.

Planned on the same open, clean - looking lines as the company's 215 Canadian stores, it is located at a new indoor shopping plaza called the Victoria Centre in the downtown part of the city. Floor area is over 1,000 square feet and there is a staff of four.

Agent General, Ward Cornell, last month officially opened the store and the ceremony received widespread local coverage by both press and radio, attending on behalf of the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food was L. G. Hooker, the Director of the Branch at Ontario House.

The store is selling mostly everything carried in its Canadian outlets, including "Laura Secord" ice cream, made to a special recipe and representing a new venture in Britain for the company.

According to D. Orsborne Handley, Managing Director of the British subsidiary, business during the first few days after opening was "very brisk," and he was sure this would continue. "We want to construct more retail shops like this in Britain," said Mr. Handley, "as part of our planned program of expansion."

First year sales in the U.K. were above expectations, he said, and this augured well for the company's future in Britain.

Social And Personal

Prior to her recent marriage, Mrs. Tim Doran (nee Betty Sine) was honored at showers given by: Mrs. L. Stephens, Belleville; Cheryl Burley and Joanne Kiru and Mrs. Raymond McConnell. A community shower was given by Mrs. Ivan Sarles and Ruth Sarles.

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Ward, Belleville, are pleased to announce the engagement of their daughter, Marilee to Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Stanley Timothy J. Amo, son of Mr. Amo, RR5, Belleville. The wedding will take place at College Hill United Church, Friday, January 12, 1973, at 7 p.m.

Trees Trimmed According to Dickens

TORONTO (CP) — Anyone who would like a little of the cheerful ghost of Christmas past around the place this year should be able to have some fun helping to evoke him.

You may not be able to chop down your own tree, but making the sort of decorations people made a century ago is not difficult. You might decorate an outdoor tree for the birds, using real things instead of plastic.

The Toronto Historical Board is decorating three 19th-century homes for Christmas.

Colborne Lodge will have a tree done as Dickens described one, with tiny antique toys and marzipan fruit.

Mackenzie House is done to an earlier era predating Christmas trees, with kissing balls, ropes of evergreen and of popcorn and cranberries.

Gibson House will have an outdoor Christmas tree for the birds hung with suet, nuts and seeds, just as they were a century ago.

Marie Oldhafn, a board staff member, says every year staff and their children help to make trimmings as families once did.

"A drum is the easiest ornament to make because you can use the tubes from wax paper or whatever."

For each drum, you need a cardboard tube 1½ inches long, red felt ½ inch longer than the tube, black construction paper, a piece of cardboard 1 by 4 inches, two round pieces of cardboard, 12 pins, string or embroidery thread and a needle.

Cover the tube with felt, leaving ¼ inch extra at each end. Sew felt in place. Roll extra felt into each end of the tube. Cut two round pieces of cardboard using the inside diameter of the tube as the pattern. Press the round pieces into each end of the drum. The rolled cardboard already inside, will prevent them from slipping too far.

Cut a narrow band of black construction paper and place around each end of the drum. Paste or sew to secure. Place six pins on each black band. Lace white string between pins.

For cornucopias, you need a piece of white cardboard with a radius of 4, 6 or 8 inches, cellophane tape, pieces of fabric ¼ inch larger than cardboard, ribbon for handle, scissors, needle and thread. For trimmings you might use velvet, flowers, ribbon, lace, braiding.

Cut a quarter circle from lightweight white cardboard with a radius of 4, 6 or 8 inches. Roll into a cone shape. Overlap edges and secure with invisible cellophane tape.

Cut fabric—brocade satin, velvet—half inch larger than the cone and tape on, turning in fabric edges neatly. Sew overlap. Tape a handle inside cone for hanging.

Colored eggshell baskets were filled with candies.

To make the baskets, you need: clean eggshells with the small end cut off, white glue, box of artificial snow, scraps of trimming such as rickrack, beading, sequins, gold-colored gift wrap cord, scissors, tiny shells, seeds.

Cover the shell with glue and pat on a thick coating of snow. Attach a tiny band of trimming around the top edge or a row of sequins or tiny shells.

Attach a cord for a handle, using glue. Hold the ends in place until the handle is set. Make a little picture design or inscribe initials on egg shell.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONWELL

Must parents reveal family troubles?

THEY don't have to; the children already know something is wrong, though they haven't been told nor overheard the specifics. Sometimes, too, parents will wonder if the children are heartless because they don't seem to worry about a family crisis which has been explained to them. Yet the children may be acting normally because of the crisis. Instinctively, they probably know that their parents want their youngsters to be themselves.

Can a perfectionist ruin marriage?

NOT really; not unless a wife or husband is a compulsive perfectionist. Then the struggle to make every moment and aspect of a marriage a flawless little gem can be a joyless experience for a man and wife. If a woman, though, is able to enjoy marriage even though she sees a need for improvement and she works to attain it, then she and her husband can be happy together even though the woman tends to be a perfectionist.

Do car pools have the best drivers?

THEY should have. Of course, this assumes that all the drivers in car pools are mature, well-adjusted adults. Then each driver in a pool gets a chance to drive and be driven. Over the long period of being together, the drivers learn they don't have to prove how skilful they are behind the wheel. This factor alone should reduce tension in the car no matter who is driving, and that can help anyone be a good driver.

Guests Are No Bother Just Plan Your Meals

By DORIS CLARK

We like our friends. We want them to come and see us, but we are often stumped when it comes to serving a meal, aren't we

Sally Hamilton, who writes for and talks to the more mature segment of our population, has written us a leaflet with the title "Guests Are No Bother — I Merely Feed Them!" Some of the story comes from the letter of a natural born meal planner whose informal and delightful dinners keep her friends coming to see her. There are ideas for deserts, easy ways to handle potatoes, homemade soups, and some very special tea biscuits.

Write in for your copy, enclosing 20 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

* * *

Dear Doris: I read the letter from the lady who paid $250. for her dentures and thought it was too much. I want to thank you for your reply; I couldn't agree more.

Making a set of teeth which will suit not only the comfort but the personality of the wearer takes some doing. I have devoted the past 30 years of dental practice to just this job and I know what I am talking about.

If a denture doesn't fit, to the very tiniest fraction of an inch, the wearer's nerves wear down until he isn't fit to live with. If he takes the teeth out of his mouth he is self-conscious about his looks and also can't enjoy a good square meal; probably exists on "slops."

So I make him free to call me again and again while he is getting used to his false teeth and they are getting used to him. He comes in and I make adjustments which are almost microscopically tiny, at the exact spots where flesh-which changes with reduced swelling—is being rubbed. This takes time — heaps if it — and one lifetime of study and experience. ◆

Incidentally, no patient of mine ever leaves our first conference without knowing exactly what his artificial teeth are going to cost him, right down to the last visit, and adjustment (which may happen a year later). And, also incidentally, when the governess does, on rare occasions involving health and poverty, foot the bill, its set allowance is $280. — Canadian Prosthodontist.

Dear Pros: Thanks for your point of view. Knowing your work and some of your grateful patients, I am sure all you say is true.

* * *

Dear Doris: My legs are quite bowed at the knees and I feel so self-conscious about them that I can n longer wear dresses. I am fi.

Recently I took a job where uniforms were supplied, short skirts and tops. I quit that same day because I was sure everybody was staring at me. Is there any method for straightening my legs? — Sick of Pants.

Dear Sick: Now that dresses can come well below the knees and still be fashionable, I doubt whether the bowlegs will be noticeable to anyone but yourself. Take your mother into your confidence; get her to help you choose a stylish dress, or to find a dress maker who will design something to go with your general shape.

And meanwhile — aren't you lucky that girls can wear pants these days without anybody even suspecting that they are covering up a figure fault

Motorcycle Tragedy Upsets Doctor's Wife

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 23 and expecting our first child. Last night my husband, who is a physician, came home later after servicing the hospital emergency ward. I have never seen him so upset. His clothes were splattered with blood and though he always work in a lab coat.

The patient, he told me, was a 14-year-old boy who had been riding a motorcycle when he was struck by a car. His spinal column had been severed. He had tire tracks over his neck. His head was bashed in and his face mutilated beyond recognition. The boy died on the operating table in spite of the efforts of two surgeons who did every thing they could to save him.

My husband shook his head and said, "No child of ours will ever ride a motorcycle."

I remembered how my own father (also a physician) forbade me to ride on a motorcycle with a boyfriend. But I used to sneak rides behind his back. I thought my father was an old goat who didn't know what he was talking about.

After seeing my husband's agony tonight over a boy he didn't even know, I've changed my mind about motorcycles. I hope all young people will read this will listen to you.—Mrs. Stephan K., Montgomery, Ala.

Dear Mrs. K.: A message from the emergency room of a hospital might have stronger impact than a warning from an old square like me. Thanks.

Dear Ann Landers: My newly-married daughter is one of those spoiled, lazy, worthless, ungracious, ill-bred brides who did not write a thank-you note for three wedding gifts although she was married four months ago. Her name is undoubtedly mud with several people but she can't help it because she doesn't have the slightest idea who sent the gifts. No cards were enclosed.

She could not phone the place of purchase to check because the gifts were beautifully wrapped by the senders and not by a store or shop.

So please, Ann, tell people that before they condemn a bride, to consider all the possibilities. Your suggestion that a person who has not had a "thank you" within six weeks telephone and ask if the gift was received is a good one. I wish those three senders of those beautiful gifts would call my daughter.—Mother of The Bride

Dear Mother: Perhaps after they see this letter they will. In some instances the caller will sense that she has embarrassed the delinquent bride—and that's perfectly all right. A bride who doesn't write thank-you note within six weeks deserves to be embarrassed.

Dear Ann: Are there any figures to indicate how many more city people get lung cancer than country people due to the factory exhaust and fumes from automobiles? I need to know before I make an important decision.—Earth or Cement

Dear or C: If you fear lung cancer, the most important decision you can make is not to smoke cigarettes. Although there are studies that show congested areas have nearly twice the incidence of disease as unpolluted areas, the evidence produced over the last 10 years names cigarettes as the major culprit.

Legislature Briefs

University Tuitions Standing Pat for '73

NO TUITION RISE

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario won't raise university tuition fees in the 1973-74 academic year, Premier William Davis said Monday. He was replying in the legislature to Opposition Leader Robert Nixon who quoted Jack McNie, minister of colleges and universities, as saying at Peterborough that more of post-secondary education costs could be transferred away from taxpayers to students. Tuitions increased $100 this year.

DISLIKES HYDRO ADS

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal Leader Robert Nixon complained in the legislature Monday that Ontario Hydro currently is conducting a "Triple Sure with Hydro" newspaper advertising campaign that serves only to glamorize the publicly-owned utility. Hydro should be told the public was no longer prepared to pay for such advertising. A. B. R. Lawrence, resources development secretary, said he would investigate.

WORD SOON ON WORKS

TORONTO (CP) — Charles MacNaughton, minister of intergovernmental affairs, said Monday the province will be ready "within days" to begin approving municipal projects under the winter works program. He told the legislature applications are "still coming in" and plans are well advanced for the make-work projects.

SAYS APPLICANT MISLED

TORONTO (CP) — Maurice Engels of Sarnia applied for the position of executive administrator of Sudbury Regional Council but then declined the job, Charles MacNaughton minister of intergovernmental affairs, said Monday. Bud Germa (NDP—Sudbury), who had asked about the post, vacant since Oct. 15, said later in an interview Mr. Engels refused the job because he was "led down the garden path" about his duties.

Signs Posted on Stud Warning

TORONTO (CP) — Solicitor-General John Yaremko said Monday the Niagara Bridge Commission, an international body, were responsible for posting signs advising United States motorists of a winter ban on studded snow tires in Ontario.

Mr. Yaremko told the legislature the signs were posted as a matter of information" for unknowing tourists entering Ontario.

He said police did not set up road blocks, but enforced the law in the same way as any other law.

He was replying to Murray Gaunt (L—Huron-Bruce) who asked the minister last week to comment on reports that police had stopped hundreds of American motorists driving with the studs and that this was adversely affecting the winter tourist trade.

Mr. Yaremko said the law will be enforced.

'Bootleg Dentistry' Discussed

TORONTO (CP) — Dental technicians must "bootleg" to earn a living in Ontario, Toronto denturist Ben Sweet told an Ontario legislature committee Monday.

The committee was hearing submissions on a government bill that would place denturists under the supervision of dentists. Denturists, who make and fit false teeth, are currently not allowed to practise in the province.

The bill has received second reading, approval in principle, and could be proclaimed law soon after it finishes the committee stage.

Mr. Sweet said dentists make $60 to $100 an hour while dental technicians seldom make more than $125 a week.

The hearing drew an overflow crowd, forcing the morning session to be postponed until larger accommodations could be found.

People arrived in busloads from St. Catharines, Kitchener and other centres.

The audience, mostly women, seemed to be split—between wives of dentists and wives of denturists.

Committee chairman Sidney Handleman (PC — Carleton) warned the crowd of more than 600 that he would not tolerate interjections when people clapped and shouted.

There were suggestions the committee and the legislature were attempting to "gag the public with the principles of the bill" but Mr. Handleman replied that "we're not trying to gag anyone."

The bill, which would prohibit denturists from selling false teeth directly to the public, reverses the government's position of last June.

At that time, legislation—introduced but not passed—would have licensed a new form of worker in the dental field called a dental technologist who would have been allowed to fit, manufacture and sell dentures directly to the public.

Health minister Richard Potter surprised the legislature last week by withdrawing the bill and introducing the one that now is under consideration.

Opposition parties have criticized the legislation but dentists, who have promised that anyone in Ontario can purchase a full set of false teeth from a dentist for $180, have praised it.

H. E. Cook, solicitor for the Ontario Denturists Society, said the government's intention to pass the legislation this week is "totally unfair" to denturists who were not given sufficient time to properly oppose it.

"Anybody's entitled to change their mind but three or four days just isn't enough time to prepare to speak before your people," he said.

Reg Gisbon (NDP—Hamilton East) agreed with the approach of postponement but was overruled by Mr. Handleman.

Enumeration Cost Close To $2 Million

TORONTO (CP) — Last fall's voter enumeration will cost the province almost $1.8 million, Revenue Minister Allan Grossman told the legislature Monday.

He denied that "patronage" was involved in the picking of enumerators and that the enumeration was inadequate.

Ian Dean (NDP—Wentworth) said patronage was involved in the selection of enumerators in that jobs went to supporters of the Progressive Conservative party in the last provincial election, but not to some who worked for opposition members.

He said that when such jobs are available they "should be made available through the Canada Manpower office so that every single person who wants to work has an opportunity to apply for the job."

Mr. Grossman replied that enumerators were hired by regional assessors and recommendations for jobs were forwarded, in some cases, by opposition members.

Crash Plane on Block

EDMONTON (CP) — A twin-engined Beechcraft 18 which crashed in the Arctic Nov. 8 was scheduled to be sold because it had no passenger appeal.

"There was nothing wrong with the plane," Doug Rae, operations director for Gateway Aviation Ltd., owners of the aircraft, said Monday night. "We planned to replace it because it had no passenger appeal."

Mr. Rae spoke after Gateway's role in the search for the Beechcraft and its four occupants was be waited in company offices at Edmonton Industrial Airport for the return of pilot Martin Hartwell, only survivor of the crash.

Gateway acquired the plane when it purchased the assets of a charter firm in northern Saskatchewan a few years ago, said Mr. Rae, a former bush pilot with 15 years experience in the north.

He said he doesn't believe the plane's silver color, which blended into the snow-covered terrain, prevented it from being spotted sooner. A bright orange color would have assisted searchers, but he noted that it would be easier to spot a silver plane in the summer than a colored one.

Gateway had insurance on the plane for about $40,000, Mr. Rae said. The company also spent $60,000 on the intensive search, working with the Canadian Forces.

He said Gateway had an average of six aircraft in the air every day of the search, even when the Canadian Forces suspended their search for three days in late November. The forces search resumed after a wave of protest from native groups and friends of the missing persons.

When the forces resumed their search, "They were looking for dead bodies; they didn't want to go back."

Mr. Rae said he wasn't criticizing military efforts, but: "We concentrated more after they pulled out.

"We put more effort in covering areas we felt were not covered . . . for our own peace of mind."

When the military planes returned, Gateway asked to widen the official search area. But Mr. Rae said he was told the military had instructions to concentrate on the area of highest probability.

"On searches of this nature, a wider area has to be looked at after the original area has been tracked out."

Mr. Rae spoke angrily about persons without any knowledge of the north who criticized search efforts. He singled out Dr. K. David Haley, chairman of the mathematics department at Acadia University in Wolfville, N.S. who said the search had been conducted in a half-hearted manner.

Northern Nurses Critical of Care

KAPUSKASING, Ont. (CP) — Doctors in Northern Ontario have their hands tied by lack of hospital facilities and supporting qualified personnel, the Northland chapter of the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario said today.

In a brief to the Ontario Medical Association committee studying the medical profession, the association said northern communities have the right to expect the same high standards of health care that is taken for granted in southern Ontario.

"We are not interested in the relative economic position of the physician," the nurses said. "We are concerned with the expenses concerned in transferring critically-ill patients to larger centres for treatment not available in this area. . . .

"We believe less attention should be paid to the method of payment of the medical profession and recommend more thought and attention be paid to the provision of health care facilities."

The Kapuskasing United Church Women, Centennial Unit, suggested the government look into fees charged by doctors, and also the number of doctors.

The women's submission said that the provincial health program should provide only for "good basic care, no frills, no padding."

Truman Persists In Fight

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Former president Harry Truman continued to hold his own today as he ended his first week in hospital for lung congestion and related complications.

All three medical advisories issued Monday by Research Hospital and Medical Centre described the 88-year-old former president as resting. Although Truman's doctors cautioned that his condition "still is serious and will continue so for an indefinite time."

Truman was taken to hospital last Tuesday after he displayed symptoms of lung congestion. He failed to respond to antibiotic medication and was classified as critical Wednesday when kidney and heart problems developed.

Doctors closely monitored irregularities in Truman's heartbeat Monday night; but, during the final briefing, a hospital spokesman said the doctors made no further comments on his heart rhythm.

The 10 p.m. EST medical report said: "At President Truman's age, arteriosclerotic changes are expected. They affect the central nervous system and the kidney and heart functions in varying degrees."

Truman was taken off the critical list Sunday after he showed signs of general improvement.

Elections Support Status Quo

FREDERICTON (CP) — Liberals add Progressive Conservatives held their ground Monday in three byelections called to fill vacancies in the New Brunswick legislature.

The Conservative government retained Saint John East and Charlotte with reduced majorities. The Liberals held on to Bathurst, again by a slimmer margin.

The byelections gave the Conservatives 33 members in the 58-seat legislature, but J. C. Van Horne, former tourism minister in Premier Richard Hatfield's cabinet, said last month he planned to sit as an Independent Conservative.

The Liberals have 24 seats in the legislature while one vacancy remains. George McInerney, chairman of the New Brunswick Electric Power Commission and Conservative member for Saint John Centre, died last month but a byelection for the seat has not been called.

The victorious candidates grabbed early leads as the first ballots were counted Monday night and never looked back.

Canadian Car Firm Approved

MANILA (AP) — The Philippine government has approved a Canadian firm's application to put up a 100-million-peso ($14.71 million) automobile body stamping plant in Bataan, just west of Manila, Trade Secretary Troadio Quiazon Jr. said today.

Quiazon said Ensite Ltd., the subsidiary of Ford of Canada based in Windsor, Ont., will establish the plant at the Mariveles export processing zone and organize a subsidiary to operate it.

The U.S. Securities Commission (SEC) said Ford of Canada owns 999,986 fully-paid shares of Ensite's one million issued and outstanding common shares. Each of the five directors of Ensite owns one fully-paid share of the common stock of Ensite, the SEC said.

The SEC also said Ford of Canada owns 97,700 fully-paid shares of Ensite's 100,000 issued and outstanding preferred shares. Last year the company's net earnings declined to $12.9 million from $18.1 million the SEC added.

Trapper Afraid Of Bush

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — A man who wandered in the bush 40 miles north of here for eight days said Monday he would never go back to trapping.

"I am afraid . . . I would not want to go back into the bush," said Andrew Mavracic, 48, before leaving by train for his home in Gravenhurst, Ont.

In his luggage were several pelts, including those of animals he ate to stay alive. As he boarded the train, Mr. Mavracic tried unsuccessfully to give away his 20-calibre rifle and his snowshoes.

He was found Sunday by two snowmobilers as he tramped on the snowshoes near the main road at Batchawana Station, 40 miles from where he had left a cabin Dec. 3 after running out of food.

He had lost 30 pounds on a diet of squirrel, partridge and mice. He was described as "super tired" by hospital officials, but his condition was good and he was released Monday.

Mr. Mavracic, who had been trapping for six months, said he often went into the bush in his native Yugoslavia.

"But it is not like Canada . . . here it is so big . . . there is so much bush."

Although only 40 miles from the cabin from which he started when found, Mr. Mavracic believed he walked many times that distance after becoming lost.

Pentagon Paper Case Mistrial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The judge in the Pentagon papers case declared a mistrial Monday and ordered that a new jury be chosen to judge Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony Russo on charges of conspiracy, espionage and theft.

In an unusual move, both defendants waived their right to protection against double jeopardy in order to get a new jury and a fresh start.

The defence had wanted a new jury, contending that the jurors who had waited at their homes four months during a series of appeals probably had been prejudiced by publicity.

Ellsberg, 41, and Russo, 36, are charged in connection with the leak to news media in June 1971 of top-secret documents

Morning-after Birth Control Pills Said Cancer-causing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many university health centres are prescribing a cancer-causing drug as "morning-after" birth-control pills without warning co-eds of the risk to themselves and their possible offspring, Ralph Nader's Health Research Group reported Monday.

"College women are being used as guinea pigs, without even the most rudimentary observance of professional standards and informed consent," the organization says in a letter to the National Student Association.

The use of diethylstilbestrol (DES) as a post coital pill is not approved by the United States Food and Drug Administration, the report says, and may increase the risk of cancer in women with a family history of breast or genital cancer.

In addition, DES is not 100-per-cent effective in preventing pregnancy within 72 hours of sexual intercourse

Minister Stresses Social Sciences

OTTAWA (CP) — Jeanne Sauve, the new federal science minister, considers social science research one of the important duties of her ministry and says research policies in any country have to include social sciences.

"People are the ones affected by science and technology," she said in an interview Monday. "We are very far ahead in our technology and we have to address ourselves to the ways that we can adapt our technology to people."

Although she would not comment specifically on any policies of her ministry—"You couldn't expect me to, I'm still being orientated"—she did say in general terms that she considers social sciences extremely important.

"In developing a national policy for research, we certainly have to include the social sciences," she said.

"There's no doubt in the world that they would be part of policy. . . . It's so obvious."

Mrs. Sauve, 50, a former journalist-broadcaster and a fresh-man MP for the Montreal riding of Outremont, was given the science portfolio two weeks ago in the cabinet shuffle following the October election.

The champagne-blonde trim-figured minister is the first woman in the cabinet since Judy LaMarsh, then secretary of state, retired from politics at the time of the 1968 election. Only three women Liberals were elected Oct. 30. All were from Quebec and Mrs. Sauve was the only one appointed to the cabinet.

Her appointment pleased her, she said, and she is anxious to take up the challenge of a cabinet position. It did create some difficulties in arranging her personal life, however, although she already had adjusted to the idea of a heavy work load because a minority government was returned.

One major problem was breaking into the new job so quickly.

"I would like to go into a new field gradually."

She will continue to keep her home in Montreal where her husband, former Liberal forestry minister Maurice Sauve, now is a vice-president of Consolidated Bathurst Ltd.

She will live in Ottawa with a widowed sister during the week and commute on weekends to Montreal, where she also will look after constituency responsibilities.

Her role in Ottawa now will be much different from when she was here as a cabinet minister's wife, she said.

"That was a social role," she said. "I never opened my mouth then."

Asked if she was concerned about her appointment to the science position when her background was not in science, Mrs. Sauve said she felt she had a lot to learn, but she was not unduly disturbed.

She had been one of the founding members of the Institute for Research on Public Policy, a government-sponsored think-tank which was appointed to advise the cabinet on future policy for Canada.

This institute has looked into some of the areas where science policy might be applied and has considered some of the problems that she now is likely to meet in her cabinet post.

As well, she was a free-lance broadcaster preparing public affairs programs for both English-and French-language networks, so she is informed on policy areas in a general way.

Despite her lack of specific knowledge on science subjects, she feels she can contribute to the ministry from these points of view.

Welfare Payments Only Half of Needs

TORONTO (CP) — The financial problems of low-income families and those on welfare in the Toronto area were indicated Monday by a report of the Metropolitan Toronto Social Planning Council.

It said a family of four in Metro requires $578.18 a month to "maintain physical and social well-being." The report was prepared for the council by a team of volunteers from private and public agencies.

Last month Operation Family Rights, a self-help group of welfare mothers, said in a report the typical family of four on welfare in Metro receives $260 a month. It also receives free medical care for which the average working family pays $40.44 a month.

Rene Brunelle, community and social services minister, said last week the Ontario government now is considering an increase in welfare rates to reflect the rise in the cost of living.

But a spokesman in his ministry estimated that for every estimated that for every person receiving welfare in the have less take-home pay than they would receive on welfare.

Chicken Run

BREST, France (AP) — Jordan sent two refrigerated trucks here to pick up 40 tons of French chickens for King Hussein's Bedouin troops. If the trucks make it back to Jordan without too much cargo spoilage, a regular chicken run will be set up, officials here said.

Bombed Firm Deals With Cuban Company

MONTREAL (CP) — The owner of a company located in a building bombed Monday says his business involves dealings with a United States company whose Miami and New York offices were damaged by explosions.

Leo Michael, owner of Michael's Forwarding Co., said in an interview his company deals with, among other companies, VA-Cuba Forwarding Co., the offices in New York and Miami also were hit by explosions Monday.

While his company, a bonded freight-forwarding operation, sends consignments to other countries, Mr. Michael said the major part of our business is forwarding parcels to Cuba."

The VA-Cuba company sends parcels to Cuba from the U.S. via Canada and Spain and Mr. Michael said some of the consignments his company handles are received from VA-Cuba for shipment to Cuba.

He had received no threats prior to the explosion.

In addition to the explosions at the forwarding companies, the Cuban-owned Calypso Travel in New York was also damaged in an explosion Monday. There were no injuries in any of the four blasts.

The Montreal explosion heavily damaged the second floor of the three-story Construction Centre Building on Cote St. Luc Road. Michael's forwarding comapny is located on the second floor of the building.

No one was in the building at the time of the blast which police said was caused by a bomb apparently consisting of dynamite and a timing device.

Second-floor windows and office partitions were smashed, the acoustic-tile ceiling destroyed and doors knocked from their hinges in the blast. Elevator doors on the second and third floors of the building were knocked off their tracks by the explosion.

Police, who refused to speculate on the motive behind the explosion, said the bomb was planted outside the office door of Nat Burck Co., a distributor of handbags and wallets. Estimates of damage in the building, which contains four stores and more than 20 offices, were not available.

Measured Growth Seen For Exports of Oil

WASHINGTON (CP) — Measured but significant growth up to 1985 was forecast Monday for Canadian oil and natural gas exports to the United States. The forecast was made in a U.S. petroleum industry study which also called for heavy stress on domestic energy supplies to meet future demand.

U.S. Energy Outlook, the title of a report prepared by the industry-dominated National Petroleum Council at the request of the federal government, predictably came out against either greater U.S. reliance on imports or a reduction in energy demand in coming years.

Instead, it called for a variety of measures to encourage the production of energy from U.S. sources.

These included greater co-ordination of government energy policy, the setting of "realistic" environmental standards generally and "realistic" health and safety standards for mining in particular, freer access to publicly-owned lands for exploitation, "improved" tax incentives and an end to federal control of natural-gas prices.

Of particular interest in Canada were two other recommendations.

The council said maintaining oil-import quotas is "essential" for national security, for a sound U.S. balance of payments and for expanded domestic development.

And it said maintaining the current policy of restricting uranium imports "is necessary if a healthy domestic industry is to survive."

Both import restrictions have been opposed in the past by Ottawa.

Asked later about the apparent contradiction between the report's forecast of increased Canadian oil sales, particularly as a result of development of Alberta oil sands, and its call for import quotas, Warren B. Davis said that in the industry generally "we rather tend to assume that the ceiling on Canadian oil are going to go away soon."

He said the industry's main concern was with maintaining quotas on Eastern Hemisphere supplies.

Davis, director of economics for Gulf Oil Corp. and a co-ordinator of the council report, said quotas are generally regarded as "temporary" because foreign oil seems certain to be more easily eventually than domestic supplies and quotas would not then be needed to protect U.S. suppliers.

Montreal Scientist Seeks Leprosy Cure

DAKAR, Senegal (CP) — A Montreal scientist has been working in the leprosy-ridden jungles of South America and Africa in a search for a cure for the age-old disease.

Dr. Laszlo Kato is attempting to cultivate artificially the leprosy bacillus. If he succeeds in doing so, medical authorities say leprosy could become a minor problem in the world in the next 25 years.

There are an estimated 10 to 15 million sufferers in the world now. With the present trend, the number could double in 20 years. Canada has no known cases at present.

Dr. Kato, head of the Montreal Institute of Microbiology's leprosy research laboratory, is a member of the World Health Organization's expert committee on leprosy. For 21 years he has been studying the composition of the leprosy bacillus, a micro-organism discovered in 1873 by G. H. A. Hapsen in Norway.

Working in the Montreal laboratory, Dr. Kato discovered the key enzyme of the bacillus. It displayed the self-nourishing, or autotrophic, characteristics of soil micro-organisms.

This discovery supported the view that leprosy is connected with the soil. Dr. Kato believes that human excrement, when absorbed by the soil, undergoes transformation into infectious leprosy micro-organisms.

Pilot Tells How Boy Saved Him

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — A weird but incomplete tale about an injured pilot and a frightened Eskimo boy, protecting each other from death in the Arctic, was unfolded here Monday.

Martin Hartwell, the 46-year-old pilot who fought the vicious Canadian north for 32 days and won, related parts of the epic at his abbreviated news conference in his hospital room.

The pilot was flown to Edmonton Monday night for treatment.

He told reporters that the Eskimo boy, 14-year-old David Kostook of Spence Bay, N.W.T., was inept at survival techniques yet saved his life. The boy died in the wilderness, 60 miles south of Great Bear Lake, 23 days after the aircraft carrying himself, Mr. Hartwell and two women, crashed into a dense forest of evergreens.

The aircraft, a twin-engined Beechcraft 18, was on a mercy flight to Yellowknife from Cambridge Bay in the Arctic. The boy was suffering suspected chronic appendicitis while another passenger, also an Eskimo, was in premature labor.

The third passenger was Judith Hill, 27, a northern health service nurse who emigrated to Canada from Kingsbridge, England three years ago.

Mr. Hartwell, who had refused to speak to reporters until the hastily-called news conference, said Miss Hill died when the aircraft smashed into the wooded slope. Neemee Nullayok, the pregnant woman, died about five hours later, muttering something in Eskimo which the pilot didn't understand.

Unable to move because of two broken ankles and a fractured knee, Mr. Hartwell said he relied upon the boy to act as his arms and legs.

"He was my assistant and the saver of my life. Without him, I couldn't have done anything."

However, Mr. Hartwell, a native of Cologne, West Germany who appeared remarkably well after his ordeal, said the youth was unable to look after himself.

"He was very, very scared. He could not do anything. I had to tell him everything. He couldn't handle an axe, he couldn't make a fire. He didn't know where to find dry wood."

Mr. Hartwell, gaunt from weight loss and wearing long hair and a beard, said he instructed the youth on how to cut logs for a tent frame. Two canvas aircraft engine covers were draped over the logs.

"The tent was very well built and inside the tent it was warm. We didn't have to cover our cars they didn't freeze. It warmed up quickly when there was two of us in there."

Aboard the aircraft were five sleeping bags and plenty of warm clothing. Survival stores, enough to last five people at least six days, ran out on the 16th day after strict rationing.

Mr. Hartwell said he then sent the boy to a lake to fish through the ice but the young boy couldn't make it.

He returned after almost three days, then "decided to die."

"He didn't want to get up, and three days later he was dead."

He died talking about his brothers and sisters. There was no indication from Mr. Hartwell that the youth died of appendicitis.

At least three aircraft passed over the area before the youth died, but none spotted the snow-covered wreckage or the nearby camp.

Mr. Hartwell said he knew he was off course when the aircraft went down, and he didn't think he would be found.

"The first days it was not too cold so I wrote letters and even a last will."

Later, temperatures plunged to at least 20 degrees below zero, his fingertips became frostbitten and he was unable to continue writing.

He quickly ran out of firewood after the youth's death, when rescuers reached him Saturday, he had been without a fire for three days.

"It was like a movie, like in a dream," he said, describing the almost simultaneous arrivals of two Canadian Forces' paratechnists and a Voyageur helicopter. "It could be real. It could not be real."

He refused to answer any questions about how the Beechcraft crashed, because the ministry of transport is investigating the accident.

Transport ministry investigators and RCMP flew to the crash scene Monday. The three bodies were moved to Edmonton while police and civilians stayed overnight to continue their investigation.

A spokesman for Gateway Aviation of Edmonton, owners of the aircraft, said Mr. Hartwell was 180 miles off course and well out of the search area.

Doug Rae, operations manager for Gateway, said Mr. Hartwell was flying at 2,500 feet when he switched on a cockpit light to read a map and determine his position. Moments later, the aircraft ripped into the trees and apparently cartwheeled into the ground.

'Americans Skinned Us'

Barrett Says Ottawa May Ask Reopening of Columbia Treaty

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has agreed to consider asking the United States to reopen the Columbia River power and flood-control treaty for more money, Premier Dave Barrett of British Columbia said Monday.

"The Americans skinned us," he told reporters after a three-hour meeting with Prime Minister Trudeau where the Columbia issue and other subjects were discussed.

Inflation wrecked the financial formula established by former premier W. A. C. Bennett and the federal government and B.C. needs $307 million just to complete projects envisaged when the 60-year treaty finally was ratified in 1964, he said.

The premier cited figures saying it would take another $351 million to finish the power-generating work at Mica Creek dam, largest of three built on the Columbia river system.

Prospects for federal agreement to request renegotiation, or if U.S. concurrence, are unknown. Legally, the treaty can be reopened but nothing says the U.S. has to pay anything more.

The Barrett statement, heralded in remarks since he became premier, echoed the criticism raised against the controversial treaty from its inception.

Studies began as early as 1944 and gained momentum under the Progressive Conservative government of John Diefenbaker.

The treaty was signed early in 1961. But, before it took effect, revisions were negotiated by the Liberal government of Lester Pearson in 1963 and it was finally ratified Sept. 16, 1964. Throughout, Mr. Bennett played a key role.

Opposition led by the late Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton saw the treaty as eroding Canadian sovereignty, exporting jobs and penalizing future resource flexibility through its provisions for controlling the seasonally-turbulent Columbia.

Official figures given at ratification said the U.S. would pay $344.4 million for flood control benefits from the three dams and for half the extra power to be generated at extensive U.S. power projects as a result of the Columbia control being fashioned in B.C.

The power sale is for 30 years.

Against that, the government said then, the cost of the three dams was estimated at $446 million at projected interest rates of five per cent.

It was calculated that the B.C. government would earn enough in interest from investing the lump-sum payment to run the over-all income figure from the U.S. to $501 million or more.

It was estimated this would leave at least $254 million for installing half the generating capacity at the big Mica dam, 90 miles upstream from Revelstoke.

As the statement said then:

"It is estimated that the total amount received, together with interest earned on portions not immediately required, will substantially exceed the full cost of the storage dams. . . ."

Monday Mr. Barrett said Mr. Bennett's need for capital to keep construction going had nullified the expectation of gain from reinvestment. He said the U.S. cash and interest totalled $458 million against a cost of $785 million.

Thus the province was short $307 million instead of having funds to cover the three storage dams plus half the generating capacity at Mica.

The three storage dams are finished. Mica was to be completed next April 1.

Mr. Barrett said he hopes to have a submission before the federal government in about six weeks on B.C.'s case for asking the U.S. to pay more money.

Finance Minister John Turner and Energy Minister Donald Macdonald played leading roles as young Liberal MPs in the lengthy Commons committee study preceding ratification. Environment Minister Jack Davis, a B.C. member, has indicated he feels a better deal is needed, the Barrett statement said.

Only the New Democratic Party opposed the treaty is finally shaped.

Also constructed, backing Kootenay River water more than 40 miles into southeastern B.C., is the Libby dam in Montana.

Gen. McNaughton had urged building a dam in Canada to retain control of that water.

Mr. Bennett's insistence on the final treaty reflected his hydro policy that produced the big Peace River project in northern B.C. He preferred to sell the B.C. share of Columbia power that was produced in the U.S. through river control in B.C.

Tots at Work: Expression In Their Own Environment

School Advisory Groups Flop

Attempts to involve parents in school affairs through advisory committees have failed.

But Hastings county trustees last night sent their superintendents back to their associated groups to try again.

Each of the eight associated school groups (a high school and its feeder elementary schools) in the county had advisory committee composed of trustees, superintendent for the ASG, principals, parents and students.

But most of them failed to encourage the public to act as advisors on school planning, school projects and procedures. Most have stopped meeting.

Superintendent J. C. Garrett, in charge of the Bayside and Centennial ASGs, said bluntly in his report that the advisory committees are not fulfilling their purpose.

"The principals have tended to appoint to the committees people with similar views on education to themselves. They have tended to ask to come to the meetings students who thrive within the establishment. Little of a controversial nature comes up and members of the teaching profession, parents, trustees and even students tend to put each others' backs and utter soothing words of comfort and joy," he said. trustees tended to agree, although the Centre Hastings and Bancroft ASG advisory committee had had more success than Trenton and Belleville groups.

Mac Smith noted that the recent Revelle report recommends such advisory groups be made compulsory.

"It hasn't worked here on a voluntary basis," he said. "I'm concerned that the minister may make it compulsory."

James Clarke remarked on an advisory committee meeting he had attended and had sparked discussion of tests, marks and report cards.

"It was so heated we never had another meeting," he said. "If you have a stormy meeting you may never have another one."

"We're probably running scared because we don't want parents involved; we don't want pressure groups," said Mrs. Jean Hutchison of Trenton. She termed the advisory committees "a total loss".

Director of education, Eric Runacres, put the problem in perspective. He noted that those ASG "family of schools" concept is new, almost unknown outside Hastings county.

Parents and public as partners in school planning and program assessment frightens teachers, he intimated.

"Teachers are cautious: they're timid, it's a matter of survival."

They have seen places where parents' groups, good times for political reasons, have taken over, Mr. Runacres said.

Advice on organization of parents' advisory committees coming from other areas is negative.

They all tell us not to touch it with a 10-foot pole. resist it as long as you can," Mr. Runacres said.

But principals and teachers had schools where the board supported the parental involvement principle and an individual schools the local level have established programs to get parents and others interested in, and using, the schools.

"We should start at this end," suggested Nelson Mc Isaac, who served as a trustee at the end of Monday night's meeting. "Set up a list of tasks for the advisory committees and let each choose what it wants to discuss. After all, the people at the top are supposed to be the idea men."

Trustees Object to New Student Record Cards

Ontario's ministry of education has changed its permanent student records in schools, and the switch will cost Hastings county Board of Education $5,500.

The initial cost of the microfilming of all records, current and dormant, includes $3,000 for temporary staff to operate a mobile unit and $2,500 for equipment. But in addition, the board will have to buy a microfiche reader for each of the 56 schools in the system at a cost of $270 each. Each reader will be purchased from the regular equipment budget of the schools.

The Ontario Student Record card accompanies each student from kindergarten through grade 12 and must be stored in his last school for 70 years after he leaves. One school now has 40 years of files occupying most of its basement, the board was told.

Sid Alcorn, guidance head at Centennial Secondary School told the board last night of the system a committee of guidance department heads had devised to transfer the old records to the new type of OSR card. It involves blotting out certain sections of the old card, now forbidden on the new card, photographing the cards and storing the microfiche film in the new record folder. When a student leaves school the information on the new card is copied photographically on the same microfiche card and stored. Savings are expected because of the reduced bulk of the microfiche files and elimination of much storage space.

Mr. Alcorn said all teachers' comments have been eliminated from the new cards and in recording marks no failures can be noted. The student's legal guardian or any student over 18 can ask to examine his card and have anything he objects to removed. The results of psychological test, IQs and the like, cannot become part of the permanent record, but can be placed in the file on a loose slip of paper until the student leaves school.

Although parental permission is not obtained before psychological testing, the student can refuse the test and will be given his score if he asks.

"Way have a file at all," asked trustee Mac Smith when he learned it would include a record of birth, years of school attendance, only passing marks and not much else.

"This is ridiculous that we have to remove everything from this card," agreed Jumer Clarke. "Some say it is an offence against human rights to note that a child was, say, suspended. This is the result of do-gooders getting carried away by human rights."

With teachers' comments on students' problems and peculiarities forbidden, "teachers will be passing boiling notes to the next teacher," he said.

"I'd like to see us refuse to have anything to do with OSR cards," Mr. Clarke said.

Marks on a set of standardized examinations taken by grade 13 students going to university will not be included in the new cards said Mr. Alcorn.

SACU, (Services for Administration to Colleges and Universities) cost $11, with students who cannot afford the fee being permitted to write the examinations anyway.

But SACU exams may be on the way out, Mr. Alcorn indicated, with only nine of Ontario's 15 universities requiring them this year.

Grant Supports Nursery School

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

STIRLING — The initiative of a clergyman's wife has paid a $12,000 dividend for this community — and its small fry.

The woman: Mrs. Beth Staples, mother of three, wife of Rev. Charles Staples, St. John's Anglican church rector.

The funds: One of the first two federal Local Incentive Program grants approved this winter for Hastings County.

"The cash will underwrite operation of the Stirling Co-operative Nursery School." The project first opened its doors last year after Mrs. Staples fostered interest among other mothers of pre-schoolers in the village.

LIP funds mean an expand ed centre — more facilities, schooling, students — and lower fees.

It also will create five new full-time or part-time jobs— thus meeting LIP basics that a project must benefit a community and create employment.

The school first took shape some time after the Staples moved here from Toronto two years ago. The area had no pre-school facility.

Its original impetus stems from Mrs. Staples' belief that young children should be encouraged to socialize with their peers and develop in their own milieu.

"We don't realize children live in an adult world and we try to force them to come up to our norms," she says. "They should have experience in dealing with life on their own level."

About 12 other women sharing the same outlook joined Mrs. Staples in the co-operative effort and launched the school.

Karen Bock, a qualified nursery school teacher living near Bowmanville, north of here, took over the schooling — in the basement Sunday school rooms offered by St. Paul's United Church. Mothers rotated as volunteer helpers — a key contribution of the program. Students in early childhood education did field work on the project, which through music, story-telling, art and other media encourages the young students to express themselves.

The school — held three half-days a week — drew 16 children last year, some coming from other centres, including Marmora, Crookston, Moira. Fees were $12 a month per child.

News of the project reached Bancroft, said Mrs. Staples, where a group sought out the co-op's format — then set up a fully equipped as LIP grant.

This started her group thinking on similar lines, said Mrs. Staples. This year the women drew up a submission for an LIP grant and forwarded it in October through the Canada Manpower centre in Belleville.

Came another school year and the project was re-opened. This year the fees had crept up to $14 a month.

As the week passed with no word on their LIP application, the group began feeling apprehensive. Then, Susan Hall, Manpower counsellor who processes LIP projects on the local level, phoned the good news: A grant of $12,114 had been approved.

Yesterday, Mrs. Staples was busy organizing an open-house and registration day for this Friday with the grant giving the project a secure base and broader dimensions.

A supervising teacher, assistant and driver-handyman to help pick up youngsters from outlying areas — can be hired full-time. Part time jobs now exist for an administrator-bookkeeper and janitor.

Schooling can be lengthened to five half-days a week and monthly fees cut to $8. The program can handle about 30 children and there are hopes it now can become more accessible to other families in the area who can take advantage of the project.

But one thing remains unchanged.

Mothers in the group should still be able to volunteer time to the school, says Mrs. Staples. Parental involvement is a basic feature of the operation.

Beth Staples: LIP Funds Awarded

Judge Dismisses Sandbanks Suit

An Ontario Supreme Court judge has dismissed one of two suits against Lake Ontario Cement Ltd. and the province's government over shale quarrying at the Sandbanks.

"An action brought by Lorne Green, a former researcher for Pollution Probe, was termed frivolous by Mr. Justice Mayer Lerner in a judgment released Monday.

Judgement on a second suit brought by Toronto sexagenarian Ada Rayner, is still pending.

Mr. Green said there had been a breach of trust in the Lights Stolen Man Charged

TRENTON (Staff) — Theft of Christmas lights from outdoor decorations comes with the season, either as a prank or for some other criminal reason. Because of this, Trenton's police department is cracking down on such thefts, as one young resident found out.

On Friday, Dec. 1, a resident across the river from the Front Street municipal parking lot, observed someone tampering with a large Christmas tree, set up there by the Public Utilities Commission. He called police.

Sergeant Bruce Westfall began an investigation which eventually resulted in recovery of three missing strings of lights.

Police Monday announced Andre Soulard, 22, of Front St. has been charged with theft under $200 and is scheduled to appear in court shortly.

Shoplifter Jailed a Day

A Shannonville woman who stole $7.13 worth of odds and ends was sentenced to one day in custody Monday.

Mrs. Ruth Dunkley, 12, was in Towers Department Store Oct. 31 and took, among other items, a child's shirt, hamster chew sticks, a baby suit and a cat collar. She paid for some of the goods but was found with the others in her pocket and under her smock when stopped outside.

In passing sentence, Provincial Court Judge J. L. Clendenning commented that when merchants are particularly susceptible to shoplifters just before Christmas.

removal of the sand, but Mr. Justice Lerner ruled that a declaration of statutory trust was not proven in Mr. Green unless he has a special interest above that of the general public.

The cement company leased a 16-acre parcel of land in Hallowell Township, Prince Edward County, from the government Jan. 12, 1968.

Two years later, the province established Sandbanks Provincial Park adjoining the acreage leased to the cement company.

Mr. Justice Lerner said Mr. Green's action was frivolous because he "had no knowledge of the existence and terms of the lease and that it predated by a substantial period of time the establishment" of the park.

Mr. Green's action was brought on his own behalf and on behalf of all other people in Ontario and future generations.

Churches Co-operate To Receive LIP Grant

Ecumenism with a practical touch has created winter jobs in the northern townships of Hastings County.

One of the first two federal Local Incentive Program grants in the county has been awarded a project drafted by a Catholic parish priest and a Protestant clergyman.

Their combined effort has drawn $29,600 in federal funds to set 11 men to work on restoration of church properties which also are focal points of community events in the North Hastings - Madawaska Valley region.

The clerics who evolved the scheme were Rev. Louis Casartelli, parish priest at Maynooth and Rev. Paul Lennox, of the Maynooth - Madawaska United Church pastoral circuit.

Projects include renovations and insulating of Father Casartelli's church of St. Ignatius, roofing and repairs to United Church buildings at Maynooth, Musclow, Madawaska and Lake St. Peter.

A vault for winter entombment will also be built on St. Ignatius' property for use by all families in the area, regardless of religious denomination.

Churches in the area also serve community social needs and are widely used by such groups as 4-H clubs and scouts, explained Father Casartelli, a trustee on the Hastings - Prince Edward Catholic school board. The churches also have historic values dating back to the first days of community settlement. The original St. Ignatius building is more than a century old.

The project was first proposed by Father Casartelli several months ago. Lutherans and Anglicans in the area were also invited to join, but were not in need of such work at the time, the parish priest said.

In discussions with Rev. Lennox, both men agreed as community venture it would be a welcome enterprise. It was very well received by all the people".

"The main idea was to provide some employment for the next six months. That's the major concern," said Father Casartelli.

Work on the projects begins next Monday.

The second LIP grant — for $12,000 — goes to a co-op; $12,000 — goes to a co-operative nursery school at Stirling.

They were the first approvals for more than 20 applications from individuals, community groups and public bodies from the Belleville and Trenton area for LIP grants totalling about $1 million.

Essentials Overlooked

PICTON (Staff) — Handling their school supply budgets has proved a problem for some Prince Edward county schools.

The board of education learned last night the reason for reports of skimpy supplies of pencils, paper and other essentials in some classrooms.

Each school is allotted a budget to spend as needed for basic classroom supplies and other equipment.

"The odd school was going out and buying fancy gadgets and not buying the essentials," said business administrator Ernest Shortt this morning.

Corrective measures will be taken in the new year to ensure that each school buys the basics from its allocation for 1973-74.

Woman Backs Into Conviction

A Deseronto woman who drove backwards into a parked car was fined $130 and prohibited from driving for three months in Provincial Court Monday.

Mrs. Evelyn Sparks pleaded guilty to charges of impaired driving and driving without a licence. Her lawyer said the car, a manual shift, rolled back down a hill before colliding with the parked car.

The Dec. 4 accident caused $65 damage.

Damage $1,000 In Collision

TRENTON (Staff) — Daniel M. Evans of 12 Whitley Lane was slightly injured Sunday morning when his 1970 Plymouth struck a hydro pole on Sidney St.

Town police report at 2:30 a.m. he was proceeding north on Sidney. The car left the road, skidding 107 feet into the pole.

Investigating Constable Roy Miller estimates damage at $1,000. Mr. Evans was treated at Trenton Memorial Hospital and released.

New Member Knows How System Works

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Slightly more than a year ago, Romeo LeBlanc packed his belongings and moved his young family from Ottawa back to his native New Brunswick.

He had been in Ottawa since 1967 as press secretary to former prime minister Lester Pearson and then Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau.

Now the 44-year-old articulate Acadian is preparing for a return trip to the capital.

Mr. LeBlanc, a former CBC French network reporter and school teacher, returns to Ottawa as a member of Parliament.

In an interview at his comfortable Moncton home, Mr. LeBlanc said his "days in Ottawa working for two prime ministers could have "built-in advantages" now that he's an elected member. He easily won election Oct. 30 for the Liberals in the riding of Westmorland-Kent.

"My accumulation of knowledge of how the system works will be helpful but there are dangers," Mr. LeBlanc said.

"I worry about this . . . . People sometimes expect more than any one person can do. I hope my expectations aren't too high."

Mr. LeBlanc, who spent the last year as assistant to the president of the University of Moncton and director of public relations, said he was introduced at a number of political rallies throughout the 1972 election campaign as "the man who can open all the doors."

"What do you do for an encore?" he asked. His main goal now is to be a good member of Parliament for the people of Westmorland-Kent.

"I'll try to be a voice for the people and represent them to the government."

Mr. LeBlanc said he has learned a great deal about the life of an MP since he entered the political arena.

"I have more respect for MPs now that I had to go through it in an election campaign. Not too many political commentators would put their jobs on the line every three or four years."

Mr. LeBlanc said he's not interested in becoming a national political figure. Instead he wants to look after the problems of residents concerning their villages and employment. Many national programs are not adaptable to local problems and there is greater need for flexibility in the application of rules and regulations, he said.

Mr. LeBlanc said he plans to concentrate much of his time in studying the federal bureaucracy.

"I'll say more on that later. . . . I don't want to give you my maiden speech."

The former journalist said he likes to go to a particular area in his riding to see the problems at first-hand.

"Perhaps, that's the journalist in me. . . . I want to go and see the problem."

Mr. LeBlanc, who holds bachelor's and bachelor of education degrees along with post-graduate studies in French and history, worked in the news media from 1950 to 1967.

He was a staff reporter with the Moncton French-language newspaper L'Evangeline laught school in northern New Brunswick for several years and then joined the CBC in 1959.

He served as correspondent for the CBC's French network in Ottawa, London and Washington.

Since his victory Oct. 30, Mr. LeBlanc has been confronted with the problems of an MP. He has been asked for help concerning unemployment insurance, establishment of small industries in the riding and many personal

Rockies Are Rising

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The intermountain area of the United States is moving up in the world—physically.

Vertical network division chief Samuel P. Hand says the Rocky Mountain states are rising while other areas are slowly sinking.

Hand says the Houston-Galveston area in Texas has sunk as much as five feet in 20 years, while the Los Angeles area has dropped a foot in 25 years.

"We have determined through measurements that much of the earth's crust is moving vertically—one way or the other—at a slow but significant rates," said the 56-year-old Rockville, Md., scientist.

Hand said his studies are based on 100 years of measurements.

"Mountain-building processes are causing the land to rise in the Western states," he said, "while the area from the Great Lakes to the Rockies may be rebounding from the weight of glaciers thousands of years ago.

The map shows rises from one to five centimeters for most of the intermountain area. Hand said, with more uplifting in the Yellowstone Park area, crossing through Idaho and to the boundaries of Washington and Oregon. He said another area with larger rise is northern Utah and Nevada, roughly the area of prehistoric Lake Bonneville.

Bootblacks Becoming Scarce

WINNIPEG (CP) — Gone is the pride that once swelled the heart of the dedicated bootblack when he saw his smiling reflection in a well-buffed brogan. There are few to take a shine to the honored trade.

But Thomas (Call Me Carrots) Ostopavich and Harry Rakowski, like two old artisans clinging with affection to a dying trade, see nothing lackluster about shining shoes.

Harry operates the Olympic Shoe Shine Parlor in downtown Winnipeg, an establishment that has been in operation continuously since 1902, and Carrota is his highland man.

Carrots, a personable 43-year-old red-haired shiner, put his first dab of polish to a shoe when he was eight years old and hasn't looked back since.

"Shines were a nickel then. And prices ain't changed as fast as the cost of living has," he recalled.

Then the price increase set in — 10, 15, 25, 35 and now 50 cents a buff—and the shoe-shine parlors caught in the squeeze of inflation and seasonal work began to close their doors. Carrots recalled some of them—Super Shoe Shine, Boston Hat and Shoe and Beacon Shine.

"Most guys like to get their shoes shined," said Harry. "It picks them up on an off day, and everyone knows there's off days. Like a woman going shopping when she feels low."

Harry, who took over the stand in 1941, said the establishment used only one brand of polish. "It's the best you can get and, besides, some of the other stuff ruins shoes."

Both shiners are dead set against sprays for shoes.

"We had a salesman come in here a while back and try to sell us some of that spray," Harry said. "He wouldn't use it on his own shoes.

"Gave us a can of it. We use it on the wall moulding to make it shine."

Stained Glass Windows Placed In Commons

OTTAWA (CP) — Five stained glass windows now have been installed in the Commons chamber in another year seven more will be in place.

Slowly, all the windows in the chamber are being converted to stained glass, partly for beauty, function and partly to solve an old problem of the late-afternoon sun shining into the eyes of opposition members.

Each window depicts the floral emblems of a province. The five installed represent Ontario and the four Western provinces. They are on the west wall.

The five on the east wall will represent Quebec and the Atlantic provinces.

Two small windows over the public gallery will represent the Yukon and the Northwest Territories.

Izvestia Quotes Jesuits

MOSCOW (AP) — Izvestia has cited two 17th-century Jesuit missionaries as supporters of Russia in her simmering, centuries-old border feud with China.

The appeal to this unlikely source of support came in the government newspaper's review of a new book on the border dispute which began when Russian czars and Chinese emperors vied for the land.

The book is the second volume of a documentary series called Russian-Chinese Relations in the 17th Century. It focuses on Russian-Chinese treaty talks in August, 1689, in the Siberian town of Nerchinsk.

The treaty of Nerchinsk ceded hunks of Siberia to the Chinese.

Russian explorers and settlers moved into the lands in the early 17th century and Czar Alexis annexed them to Russia in 1700. But the powerful Ching, or Manchu, dynasty expanded northward and overran the sparsely settled lands, forcing the treaty talks.

Russia has always claimed the treaties were "unequal." Now Moscow says the two Jesuit missionaries thought so, too. Izvestia said a document published in the book shows the missionaries—P. Gerbillon and T. Pereiri—served as interpreters and mediators on the Chinese side during the talks.

The reviewer, a history professor, says the Chinese clerks were supported by the force of arms. The Ching authorities concentrated about 17,500 crack troops in the vicinity of Nerchinsk during the talks.

Izvestia said publication of the documents dispels "the myth which exists in Chinese historiography that the Nerchinsk treaty was mutually beneficial and entered voluntarily by both sides."

Russia regained the lands under the treaties of Aigun in 1858, and Peking in 1860. The Chinese say these treaties were "unequal." But the Soviets say they were valid because they were signed by "equal" powers.

Badakshan's Winter Drives Folk to Opium

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — "This addiction differs from the addiction of the civilized countries," the doctor said. "In Badakhan, the people have nothing to do for six to seven months of the year when the snow cuts off the country. They eat and sleep. They take opium."

The isolated northeastern province of Badakhan is famous for its rare sheep, horses, semi-precious stones and poppy fields, which Western investigators believe produce some of the 100 or more tons of opium smuggled from Afghanistan each year.

About 350,000 people are scattered across Badakshan's 17,500 square miles and for the first time the government is admitting officially it has a problem with the opium addicts there and plans to do something for them.

The admission is tucked in a relief plan for the province, where the government is rushing wheat before the snow falls in an effort to head off famine over the winter.

The plan document says, "Opium addiction, a major health problem in the distressed area, requires immediate attention." Western diplomats in the Afghan capital said until recently the government was reluctant to admit there was a problem whenever the subject arose in connection with talks on smuggling and the growing of opium-yielding poppies.

Authoritative surveys indicate in some parts of Badakshan 80 per cent of the population is addicted to opium, and whole villages are populated by addicts, many of whom must sell their land or their entire food crop for the year to get opium.

Dr. M. A. Wahavzada, the public health ministry's chief of preventive medicine, said in some locations the Turkomen women who work from dawn to late at night wearing carpets dose their children with opium to keep them quiet during the long hours of toil, creating addicts virtually from birth. Others take opium to soothe hunger pangs.

Familiar Story On NHL Scene

MONTREAL (CP) — Boston Bruins, Detroit Red Wings, Chicago Black Hawks, Minnesota North Stars, St. Louis Blues, Phil Esposito and Rod Gilbert all have one thing in common today.

The five National Hockey League teams occupy the same positions in the team standings that they did one year ago, this time in the 1971 season and Gilbert of New York Rangers hold down the identical spots they held in the individual scoring race as they did at the same time last season.

But other than the five teams and the two players, things have changed drastically in the year in both the team and individual standings.

Excluding New-York Islanders and Atlanta Flames, newcomers to the league this year, this is how the standings looked at this time in 1971.

—East Division—New York Rangers, 43 points (3rd, 36); Boston, 3nd, 40 (2nd, 30); Montreal Canadiens, 3rd, 40 (1st, 41); Toronto Maple Leafs, 4th, 30 (6th, 23); Detroit Red Wings, 5th 23 (5th, 25); Vancouver Canucks, 6th, 20 (7th, 20); Buffalo Sabres, 7th, 18 (4th, 35).

West Division—Chicago Black Hawks, 1st, 43 (1st, 34); Minnesota North Stars, 2nd, 39 (2nd, 33); California Golden Seals, 3rd, 29 (6th, 14); Pittsburgh Penguins, 4th, 24 (5th, 23); philadelphia Flyers, 5th, 23 (3rd, 30); St. Louis Blues, 6th, 22 (6th, 25); Los Angeles Kings, 7th, 18 (4th, 30).

The divisional races this season are much closer with six points separating the top four teams in the East, compared to 13 points one year ago. Only four points separate first and fourth places in the West Division, compared to 19 at this point last season.

Individually, Esposito is where he was one year ago in the individual race and has the same lead, one point.

The Boston centre is behind his pace of a year ago with 17 goals and 43 pints in 28 games so far this season, compared to 23 goals and 51 points in 27 games last season. Esposito finished the season with 66 goals and 67 assists for 133 points.

This season, Montreal centre Jacques Lemaire, who leads all non-scorers with 27, is one point behind Esposito with 42. Lemaire was 21st a year ago.

Centre Jean Ratelle of the Rangers, who had 50 points at this time in 1971 season and tied for 11th place with 35 points.

Right winger Rene Robert of Buffalo and centre Bobby Clarke of Philadelphia weren't in the top 33 a year ago, but they are tied with Gilbert of the Rangers and Gilbert Perreault of Buffalo for third place this season with 39 points each.

Left winger Richard Martin of Buffalo and centre Fred Stanfield of Boston were next in line with 36 points each.

Whalers Flex WHA Muscles

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Boston sports fans are spoiled.

For years their Boston Celtics have been a National Basketball Association power. In recent years, they've had the power-laden Bruins to support in the National Hockey League and Boston Braves started their American Hockey League franchise last year with a divisional title.

This year there's more hockey and the Boston-based New England Whalers aren't letting their World Hockey Association supporters down.

The Whalers stretched their unbeaten streak at home to 11 games Monday night, edging Winnipeg Jets 4-3 to move four points ahead of idle Cleveland Crusaders in the Eastern Division race.

Tonight Minnesota Fighting Saints visit Los Angeles Sharks, Philadelphia Blazers are at Quebec Les Nordiques and Alberta Oilers are at Houston Aeros.

Light-scoring Mike Hyggman and Kevin Ahearn scored about three minutes apart in the third period to break open a 2-2 game with the Western Division-leading Jets who remained 11 points ahead of Minnesota and Los Angeles.

The Saints, however, have seven games in hand and the Sharks five.

Chris Bordeleau beat New England goalie Al Smith with his 31st of the year to end the scoring at Boston in the final minute.

Mth Black of the Jets and Whalers' Tom Webster exchanged first-period goals and the score remained deadlocked until Jim Dorey sent New England into the lead at 5:36 of the third period.

Norm Beaudin evened the score again about four minutes later in front of 9,119 Boston fans.

It was a different story in New York's cavernous Madison Square Garden where only 2,917 paid to enter the 17,000-seat arena to watch the Raiders turn the tables on Chicago in the second period.

Ron Ward hammered his 27th of the season past Chicago goalie Jim McLeod late in the middle period to break a 3-3 stalemate.

Bob Whitlock, Butch Barbour and Reg Fleming connected for the Cougars, tall-enders in the Western Division, who ever came 1-0 and 3-1 Raiders leads.

PHIL ESPOSITO

ROD GILBERT

Raiders Poor Hockey Relatives

The coach's office is next door, a room accessible in size to your friendly, neighborhood telephone booth.

Coach Camille Henry and his New York Raiders are clearly are hockey step-children in the Garden, endured but hardly pampered for the approximate $25,000 that the Garden gets in rental each time the World Hockey Association plays a game in the big arena.

The Rangers were home Sunday night and the usual 17,500 fans showed up. The Raiders were home Monday night and, as usual, about 3,000 fans attended.

Do the numbers make a difference? Sometimes.

"Sure, I think the size of the crowd has something to do with it," said Raiders defenseman Bill Hay. "I just step on the ice and I'm in a different world," said Ward.

"It's hockey. It's my game. It's my life. There can be one person or 1,003 or 34,000—it's all the same for me."

For Ward, the Raiders and the WHA have offered a chance to vindication, a chance to prove something he's suspected for a long time. His days of pains against Chicago gave him $0 for the season, increasing his WHA scoring lead to nine points over Chris Bordeleau of Winnipeg Jets. He had two goals and nine points playing part-time for Vancouver Canucks in the NHL last season.

"All I ever wanted was a chance to play," he said. "I've always thought I could be a capable hockey player."

Given the chance to play, Ward has proven himself and might win the scoring title in the WHA's first season. The thought fascinates him, and imagine what it does to his employers in Vancouver.

If Ward's success loathers the Canucks' front office, the brass can always console themselves with the school crowds Vancouver draws regularly, compared to the rows of empty seats surrounding Ward and the Raiders.

That's why the Raiders can't wait for Sunday when those seats are certain to be filled at last. Winnipeg and Bobby Hull are coming to town, and the advance sale is around 10,000 for Hull's first New York pro league appearance this season.

Two Goalie System Not For Wakely

SANTA ANA, Calif. (CP) — Ernie Wakely may be living proof that the modern two goalie theory in hockey isn't all it's made out to be.

Before the World Hockey Association started its first season last fall, Wakely and Joe Daley formed what was considered one of the best netminding duos in the league.

The pair started the season impressively enough, keeping Winnipeg Jets at, or near, the top of the WHA's Eastern Division. Then Daley broke a thumb and Wakely took over as the first man.

At the time, it was taking an average of seven shots to score on Wakely, a save percentage of .857. Now, after playing 29 of Winnipeg's last 21 games, Wakely's figures have improved to a .905 save percentage. His goals-against average has improved from 4.00 to 2.84 and Winnipeg's combined goals-against average of 2.77 now is second-best in the league behind Cleveland Crusaders.

Wakely is also the league's leader in wins, having participated in 16 victories against nine losses and a tie.

In the scoring department, Ron Ward of New York Raiders has taken a six-point lead over Winnipeg's Chris Bordeleau. Ward has 28 goals and 31 assists for 47 points while Bordeleau has a 21-28-41 record.

Dionne Returns To Detroit Practice

MIAMI, FLa. (CP) — The suspension of Marcel Dionne of Detroit Red Wings has been lifted and he will be at practice today, Al Eagleson, Dionne's lawyer, said in a telephone interview Monday.

Eagleson said there was a misunderstanding between Dionne and coach Johnny Wilson which now has been resolved.

Dionne, the leading scorer for Detroit, didn't show for Sunday's National Hockey League game against Vancouver Canucks and he was suspended indefinitely.

He apparently was angry when Wilson ordered him off the ice during a practice early Sunday. Wilson said he was disappointed with the 21-year-old's performance this year—he has 12 goals and 22 assists.

Dionne set a scoring record for rookies last season—77 points and he "could be leading the league by 30 points," said Wilson.

"He's going at half speed. I haven't been him in High gear all season."

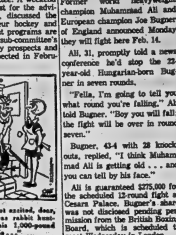
When Wilson sent Dionne off the ice, he apparently told him not to return until he was ready to perform.

Eagleson said Dionne thought that meant he was suspended and therefore didn't show for the Vancouver game—it ended in a 3-3 tie.

Beauchamp Charged

CINCINNATI (AP) — Al Beauchamp, starting linebacker for Cincinnati Bengals of the National Football League, was charged Monday night with assault and battery in a parking incident outside a department store here.

Dave Harris, Jr., a tow truck driver who is five feet seven inches tall and weighs 125 pounds, said: "This big bruiser (Beauchamp) took off his coat, grabbed me by the collar, threw me up and threw me to the ground."



Harris said he had been called to tow away a car blocking the store's loading area. When Beauchamp showed up as Harris was preparing to tow away the car, he told Beauchamp he could pay required $10 fee for his efforts and the car would not be towed away.

Beauchamp, who is six feet two inches tall and weighs 227 pounds, was drafted by the Bengals in 1968.

Ali To Fight Bugner

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Former world heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali and European champion Joe Bugner of England announced Monday they will fight here Feb. 14.

Ali, 31, promptly told a news conference he'd stop the 25-year-old Hungarian-born Bugner in seven rounds.

"Fella, I'm going to tell you what round you're falling," Ali told Bugner. "Boy you will fall; the fight will be over in round seven."

Bugner, 43-4 with 28 knockouts, replied, "I think Muhammad Ali is getting old . . . and you can tell by his face."

Ali is guaranteed $275,000 for the scheduled 12-round fight at Caesars Palace. Bugner's share was not disclosed pending permission from the British Boxing Board, which is scheduled to meet Wednesday in London.

SEEK OLYMPIC OVERHAUL

BROSSHART IN SHAPE

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Flyers of the National Hockey League recalled defenseman Willie Brosshart Monday from their Richmond Robins farm club in the American Hockey League. Brosshart, who spent two weeks in Richmond playing himself into shape, notched eight assists there, the club said.

Bench Placed In Intensive Care

CINCINNAI (CP) — Cincinnati slugger Johnny Bench, the National League's most valuable player in 1970 and 1972, underwent surgery Monday for removal of what the Reds team physician termed a benign lesion on his right hand.

JOHNNY BENCH

Dr. George Ballou told a news conference Bench will be in hospital for a week to 10 days and should make complete recovery within about eight weeks.

If that prediction holds true, Bench would be ready for the opening of baseball spring training in late February.

Ballou said the surgery, performed by Dr. Luis Gonzalez, Bench's personal physician, had been "less complicated than anticipated" and lasted slightly more than two hours.

"Examination of the lesion revealed the existence of a malignant tumor," Ballou added. "Tests are being run on this to determine the cause.

"All of these things, barring complications, would indicate a quick and complete recovery."

Bench, whose 29th birthday was last Thursday, was listed in fair condition.

Bench disclosed only last Tuesday that routine x-rays taken on Cincinnati team members in September had revealed a spot on his hand.

He said doctors had checked the spot each week, but that he had tried to push the problem out of his mind during the National League playoffs and World Series.

"I had a job to do and it gave me extra determination to go out and do it," Bench said.

Mr. Ballou said Bench with league-leading totals of 40 home runs and 125 runs batted in, will be ready to ask the top spot in MVP balloting.

Bench's condition was reported as fair shortly after surgery.

A medical bulletin Monday evening said Bench was placed on the Intensive-care unit in good condition.

1,000-Yard Club Crowded

NEW YORK (AP) — A record eight runners have galloped into the National Football League's 1,000-yard club during the "Year of the Hashmark."

The membership with one week to play:

—Larry Brown, Washington Redskins, 1,216.

—O.J. Simpson, Buffalo Bills, 1,150.

—Ron Johnson, New York Giants, 1,129.

—Larry Csonka, Miami Dolphins, 1,046.

—Mike Garrett, San Diego Chargers, 1,026.

—John Brockington, Green Bay Packers, 1,022.

—Franco Harris, Pittsburgh Steelers, 1,021.

—Calvin Hill, Dallas Cowboys, 1,018.

SIX OTHERS CLOSE

There are six more in the shadows, including quarterback Bobby Douglass of Chicago Bears, with varying chances at the 1,000-yard plateau.

Those nearing the mark:

—John Riggins, New York Jets, 944.

—Mary Hubbard, Oakland Raiders, 941.

—Dave Hampton, Atlanta Falcons, 930.

—Mercury Morris, Miami, 905.

—Bobby Douglass, Chicago, 841.

—Floyd Little, Denver Broncos, 814.

Riggins was crumpled with an injury for Monday night's game at Oakland, but could heal in time to meet Cleveland Browns in the season-closer next Sunday.

Hubbard had an excellent chance with two appearances to go—Monday night against the Jets and the season's 14th game Sunday against Chicago.

The previous high 1,000-yard club membership was six in 1962. Only two accomplished the feat in 1970 and, in 1969, Gale Sayers of the Bears did it alone. Five, including Csonka and Brockington, made it last year.

"Give the hashmarks a lot of the credit," says Csonka, "but don't shortchange any body who hits a thousand.

"You still take a helluva beating."

The hashmarks were moved tighter this year, opening the outside for runners and loosening defences for tackle-to-tackle shots.

The football is placed within the hashmarks for the start of all plays. In past seasons, hashmarks were 20 feet from each sideline. That was increased by 10 feet, 9 inches on each side, giving offensive units a total of more than seven yards additional operating room for wide plays.

Changing the hashmarks, plus the unusually talented bunch of runners, made the mythical 1,000-yard club less than exclusive. But, it pumped life into offences in an era when sophisticated NFL defences were beginning to dominate games to the point of dullness.

Brockington, Hill, Garrett and Harris cracked the 1,000-yard barrier during the weekend. The Packer strongman became the first man in NFL history to attain the figure in his first two seasons.

Harris is the only rookie in the group.

If Morris, the darting speed star of the 13-0 Dolphins, can romp for 95 yards against Baltimore Colts Sunday, it will make the Miami the first team ever to have two 1,000-yard men in one backfield.

Namath Steals Show From Winning Raiders

OAKLAND (AP) — Even in defeat, New York Jets' quarterback Joe Namath has a knack for upstaging other football players.

"Joe was on target all night," Jets' coach Weeb Ewbank said Monday after Namath passed for 40 yards in a 24-16 loss to Oakland Raiders that killed the Jets' hopes of making the National Football League playoffs.

"He has these kind of games," admitted Raiders' coach John Madden, "but I feel our guy was pretty good too."

Oakland quarterback Daryle Lamonica, throwing a lot less than Namath, passed for 202 yards and two touchdowns.

Raiders' fullback Marv Hubbard and Jets' receiver Don Maynard were two other players whose feats were overshadowed by Namath's passing show.

Hubbard gained 118 yards to become the ninth NFL rusher to hit the 1,000-yard mark this season. He now has 1,059 yards. The 35-year-old Maynard caught seven Namath passes for 121 yards and reached an all-time high of 632 career receptions.

"Nothing takes the place of winning," Maynard said later.

The Raiders, as champions of the AFC West, are 9-3-1 and play heading toward a playoff opener on the road against either Pittsburgh Steelers, or Cleveland Browns on Dec. 23.

The Raiders kept the Jets out of the end zone after Namath hit Oakland Rich Caster on a touchdown pass play covering 69 yards in the first quarter. That score put the Jets ahead 7-3.

Two interceptions near the goal line helped the Raiders.

"He had good success against our zone. Then we used a threeman rush and he had pretty good success against that, too," said Madden.

"Still, he didn't put it into the end zone a lot."

Lamonica put the ball into the end zone on a seven yard scoring toss to Fred Biletnikoff and the Raiders took a 10-7 lead in the second quarter, and a pass to Ray Chester in the fourth quarter produced a 62-yard touchdown play and the final 24-16 margin.

The Oakland quarterback also called on Hubbard and other running backs for 169 yards. The Jets gained 36 yards rushing.

Namath left the game briefly after suffering a slight ankle injury. He waved a hand in appreciation as he limped off the field to the loud cheers of Oakland fans.

Then he came back to pass as the Jets ran into Oakland territory in the final minute of play.

Namath completed 25 of 46 passes, Lamonica 19 of 17. Biletnikoff caught five passes for 96 yards, and his 53 receptions for the season puts him among NFL leaders.

The touchdown pass to Chester was the biggest Oakland offensive blow of the night. It came right after Bobby Howfield's third field goal had cut Oakland's lead to 17-16.

After Chester's touchdown, Namath moved his team downfield quickly, but first Raider Jack Tatum intercepted a long pass in the end zone and returned the ball 56 yards to the Jets' 46, where he fumbled with a team-mate being credited with the recovery.

"The ball was on the play called it for the Jets. The other 30 yards down the field called it for the Raiders," Ewbank said later.

As the Jets left the field, Ewbank yelled at the back of one of the stripped shirts: "Did they give you the game ball?"

Carleton Leads Eight Categories

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Steve Carlton, pitching for Philadelphia Phillies, who had the league's worst won - lost record, led National League pitchers in eight categories as official statistics released today showed.

The 27-year-old left-hander had a 27-10 record for the most victories, despite playing for a team that finished 59-97.

Carlton's earned-run average, of 1.98 shaded Cincinnati Reds' right-hander Gary Nolan, 15-5, who had 1.99. He started the most games, 41; completed the most, 30; and pitched the most innings, 346.

Carlton faced the most batters, 1,351; allowed the most hits, 257; and had the most strikeouts, 310. Unbeaten from June 7 through Aug. 17, his 15-game winning string was the league's longest.

Right-hander Don Sutton, in his seventh season with Los Angeles Dodgers, had the most shutouts-nine to Carleton's eight.

Tom Seaver of New York Mets was runner-up to Carlton in victories, 21-12, and strikouts, 249. Seaver served up 23 home-run pitches, exceeded only by the 32 thrown by Canadian Ferguson Jenkins, 20-12, of Chicago Cubs.

Jenkins, of Chatham, Ont., and Bob Gibson of St. Louis Cardinals were tied for second in complete games with 23 each.

Clay Carroll, Cincinnati righthander, set a major league record with 37 saves. Wayne Granger established the old mark of 35 in 1970 with the Reds. Carroll and Mike Marshall of Montreal Expos appeared in the most games, 65 each.

Steve Arlin of San Diego Padres, 10-21, lost the most games and gave up the most bases on balls, 122, six more than teammate Clay Kirby. But the 115 runs Arlin allowed were exceeded by a 120 total for Reggie Cleveland, Cincinnati Cardrest, Sauk., native with St. Louis.

There were three no-hitters, all by righthanders—Burt Hooton of Chicago against Philadelphia, April 16; Milt Pappas, 17-7, Chicago, against San Diego, Sept. 2; and Bill Stoneman, 12-14, of Montreal against New York, Oct. 2.

Club pitching statistics had the Los Angeles Dodgers on top with a 3.78 ERA to 2.81 for Pittsburgh Pirates. The Dodgers shut out opponents 23 times, and the Cubs were next with 19.

Atlanta Braves' 4.21 ERA was the league's worst, their four shutouts and 732 strikeouts were low marks and the 730 runs and 165 home runs given up were league highs.

Cathy Irwin Wins Womens Singles

MOSCOW (CP-AP) — Cathy Lee Irwin of Toronto won the women's singles title Monday at the International Moscow Skates figure skating competition.

The 20-year-old - Canadian amassed 260.40 points, with a total of seven ordinals, to beat Isabella Novarro of West Germany. The runner-up had 252.20 points and 19 ordinals.

Miss Irwin led after Saturday's compulsory figures, with 23.4 points to Miss Novarro's 79.3.

In its report of the competition, the Soviet news agency, said Miss Irwin "has probably the only contestant to have put up a faultless performance."

In addition to her natural elegance and grace, Irwin has "amazing technique," Tass said. "Experts only noted that her jumps were not high enough, although they were performed faultlessly, bravely and confidently."

The blonde Torontian, coached by Ronald Baker and Ellen Burka, placed third in the 1972 Canadian women's senior championships, 13th in the 1972 Winter Olympics and ninth in the 1972 world figure skating championships.

B.C. Signs Pivot

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League announced today that they have signed Don Douglas, a recent quarterback prospect with Baltimore Colts, for the 1973 CFL season.

Douglas, who quarterbacked Texas A and I to consecutive National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics championships in 1968-70, was first on the Lions' negotiation list two years ago but signed with the Colts of the National Football League.

He spent the entire 1971 season on Baltimore's taxi squad and was released one week before the 1972 season.

In next summer's tryouts the black 25-year-old will face Lions holdover quarterbacks: Don Moorhead, Don Bunce and Eric Guthrie.

In a trade announced today, the Lions acquired veteran defensive back Chip Barrett from Toronto Argonauts in exchange for defensive back Wayne Holm.

Barrett, 28, has played five seasons in the CFL after graduating from the University of British Columbia.

Holm played two seasons with the Lions after graduating from Simon Fraser University.

Film-making Courses Grow

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "A generation ago, college students were writing novels. Now they want to make movies."

This comment by a film educator reflects the growing trend of movie studies in United States colleges and universities. The growth has been recorded by the American Film Institute, which annually surveys the number of film schools.

This year, the institute reports, film courses and training programs are being offered at 427 schools of higher education, an increase of 128 from last year.

Students can major in film at 96 universities, a 40-per-cent rise within a year. Forty-seven schools offer advanced degrees in film. Some 2,262 courses, ranging from movie appreciation to how to make your own, are being taught.

The survey about 400 applications from students each year," reports Hugh Gruel, head of the film school at the University of California Los Angeles campus. "We can only accept 50 to 70. Depending on how many of our students have graduated."

The film school at the University of Southern California, oldest in the U.S., has a two-year waiting list. It was founded in 1929, when movies were considered unworthy of academic study.

The big question is: How well can universities prepare students for film-making careers?

This has been a source of disillusionment for many film students after graduation. Some of them complain that "amateurs" are taken in preference to be-a-teurs." UCLA and USC have tried to cure that by having such film greats as King Vidor and the late Josef Von Sternberg as visiting professors.

Still, recent graduates of USC grumble that "learning art in a university is a bad beginning."

The real disillusionment comes when the students try to make it in the movie world. They are faced with an industry that is depressed and unions are restrictive.

But Miss Novak's agent here, Donald Bradley, told reporters as he met the blonde star that "she has come to London for talks about the film, just talks."

However, as embarrassed aides edged Miss Novak toward a limousine, she insisted: "I'm here to take Miss Hayworth's part in the film. I was asked about a week ago."

A few days ago, Miss Hayworth, 53, walked out of the production, Tales That Witness Madness.

MP Helps With Health Centre

MADOC (Special) — Jack Ellis, newly elected Member of Parliament for Hastings, lost no time this past week in going to work for his constituents in the Madoc Centre Hastings area. On two occasions he was in Madoc meeting with the executive and directors of the Centre Hastings Medical Centre on matters involving the federal government.

Earlier in the fall the directors had applied for registration as a charitable organization with the income tax department. This meant that if the application was approved, official receipts could be issued to people making donations, which could be used for deduction for income tax purposes.

This week Mr. Ellis called Mrs. Vera Hill, secretary, to inform her that necessary approval had been received and that official receipts could be issued for income tax purposes. Mr. Ellis drove to Madoc to discuss the details of the receipts with the president and secretary. The directors wish to inform the public that official receipts will be issued to all who have made donations to the Medical Centre as soon as they are prepared. Donations will of course continue to be necessary in 1973 but persons interested in making a donation in 1972 and receiving a receipt for income tax purposes in 1972 are urged to send their donation to the Medical Centre or leave it at the bank in Madoc.

On Monday of this week Mr. Ellis was again in Madoc to meet the directors, contractors and suppliers to lend his assistance and professional experience in completing an application for assistance under the Federal Government Local Initiatives Program. If successful, a grant will be received under the project which will be used to employ people who would otherwise be out of work because of the seasonal nature of their employment.

Mr. Ellis's experience in the building industry was most useful to the directors and they are appreciative of his assistance. Mr. Ellis, as our representative in Ottawa will be responsible for putting our applications through the various government departments.

The directors remind the public that there is no guarantee of approval for this grant and that additional contributions are still necessary. Public response to date has been most encouraging and it is hoped that the various community groups will continue their support.

ANAF News

Now is the time for all good members to come to the general meeting and the nomination of the executive that you consider are the best to carry on the business in the best interests of the Unit. There will be a number of new members to be initiated and this will start at 7:30 p.m. The meeting itself will start at 8 p.m. Thursday Dec. 14. There will be a social hour downstairs after the meeting is completed. Be sure to be there.

The annual turkey draws will be carried on every Friday and Saturday from now until the weekend before Christmas. The prizes this year will be bigger and better than ever and will grace the Yuletide table and be a welcome addition to help you enjoy the spirit of Christmas.

Sorry, comrades, if you haven't got your ducats for the New Year's Eve Ball, but that is all there is, there aint any more. You've missed it.

Well, the battle of the six-series is over and the male members of the Unit can hang their heads in shame that it had to depend on the so-called weaker sex to bring back a trophy and glory to the Unit. Last Tuesday the No. 49 Ladies descended on the Legion Ladies with a do or die expression on their lowly faces, with their miniature harpoons and their eyes sharpened to chase the elusive double. This was a two-match event, one to be played in each club, total points to count, for the Leonard Mason Memorial Trophy. The first match, played in the ANAF Club saw the Legion Ladies go home with a two-point lead. However, the ANAF Ladies dug in their heels and gradually tied it up. Now came the team play and they forged ahead and finally were victorious by three points and enthusiastically and triumphantly carried home the trophy. This has just been donated and will be played for semi-annually.

The date of the next contest, probably some time in the spring, will be announced as soon as the two sports chairmen decide on a date suitable to both clubs. (Note: Why not give the furliest thunderroug to the losers).

Two comrades are still in the Belleville General Hospital. There are J. Carr in room 311 and J. R. Boyle in room 721. Still in Princess Margaret's Hospital in Toronto is Sit Gat Sun and he hopes to be home before the Yuletide holidays and Al McKenna taking treatment in the compensation hospital also in Toronto and he hopes to spend Christmas in his own home.

A late report received states that that grand old soldier, Private Tommy Tooke that they are all well enough to enjoy the Yuletide festivities and why not drop them a get well and season's greetings.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Aries (March 21 — April 19): Continuity is important—carry on with what you started, loves. Undo what you do not understand, but leave new expert ments to others.

Taurus (April 20 — May 20): Legal or philosophic guidance comes in good stead today, and apparently at about the last minute you could use it.

Gemini (May 21 — June 20): Personal attention makes the difference for the better; be generous with your time, candid with your comments.

Cancer (June 21 — July 22): You learn much from circumspect listening, more from meditation once you've heard the story. You have all the co-op eration you've earned.

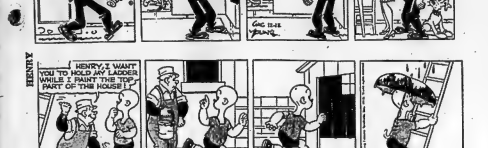
Leo (July 23 — Aug. 22): If you want it done well, perhaps if you want it done at all, you may have to attend to it yourself. Give due notice all concerned.

Virgo (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): What you get is in proportion to what you have done for others and what they are capable of giving. Work in a team.

Libra (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Step right up, put in your bid for advancement if you think you merit it. Good work attracts co-operation, early response.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 — Nov. 21): Bring in your scattered possessions and resources for reorganization, redeployment. Your home can be improved.

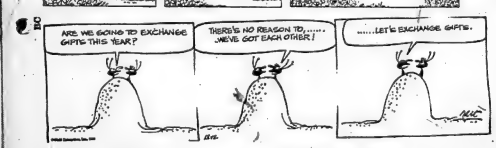
Sagittarius (Nov. 22—Dec. 21): Progress takes on a more tangible or material expression today. Be in there pitching, bright early.



Capricorn (Dec. 22—Jan. 19): Building better relationships is your challenge at present. Getting notes into sensible sequence is an ideal sort of activity.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 — Feb. 19): Avoid speculation or gambling. A streak of luck seems more likely to show in finding interesting facts in the course of personal co-operation.

Pisces (Feb. 19 — March 20): Be a bit bolder, pursue a specific goal you've set for yourself. Whatever progress you make can be shared and discussed later.



To Your Good Health

X-rays, Radium Basically Alike

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Years ago when a person had a cancer operation the treatment afterward was called x-ray or radium treatment.

Then for years the treatment was called cobalt.

Recently I was told of someone with cervical cancer and then of an operation; that at first he was going to have radium, but now I'm told it will be an x-ray treatment.

Are radium, x-ray and cobalt all the same thing? If not, what's the difference.

Cobalt, radium and x-rays are basically the same thing. They are all "gamma rays," but produced in different ways.

With radium, the rays are given off steadily by a quantity of radium. Therefore it is sometimes preferable to implant a small capsule of radium, and the rays from it kill the surrounding tissues.

With x-ray, the rays are of the same nature—gamma rays—but produced by an x-ray machine. These rays are focused on the appropriate tissues, and a strong dosage is given for a brief time, instead of having a lower intensity over a longer time, as with radium.

Cobalt again is a matter of where it comes from. In this case the source is a pellet of cobalt which has been made radioactive by exposing it to a stream of neutrons in an atomic reactor. It throws off gamma rays continuously just as radium does but in vastly greater amounts.

With cobalt it is possible to focus the rays in a sharp and intense beam. Intensity of x-rays from tube machines of very high a voltage can be used in the tube.

In all cases, the gamma rays attack the cancerous tissue far more vigorously than they do the healthy tissues, which of course is why they are used.

Thus, sometimes radium can be implanted right at the site of the cancer or at the site from which cancer has been removed, to destroy any cells that may remain.

Other times this is not possible or practicable, so x-ray or cobalt rays are used. They are not implanted; they are aimed right through the body, which means that healthy tissues will have to be exposed, also.

Those are the best known sources of gamma rays, but there are others. Caution provides a beam similar to cobalt. Or a variety of much weaker sources of radiation may be used for other purposes, one of them being radioactive iodine, which gives only a small amount of radiation and exhausts itself quite rapidly. But these are still useful for some purposes, and without the dangers that are found to accompany the very powerful sources of gamma rays.

Advises On Credit

SASKATOON (CP) — Saskatchewan high school students are being discouraged from borrowing from finance companies and encouraged to open savings credit plans. Emile Lautermilch of the Saskatchewan Co-operative Credit Society talks to about 11,000 secondary school students a year, recommending banks and credit unions as the source for credit. He also advises students not to play the stock market.

Opening lead—five of clubs.

Some plays go against the grain, but this is a good reason for failing to make them when the occasion warrants it.

Consider this deal where West leads his singleton club to partner's ace and East returns the queen of clubs. Let's assume South covers with the king, ruffed by West, and that West returns a low heart. There is nothing declarer can do now to save his contract, and eventually South loses two more club tricks to go down one.

Yet the contract is cold as a mackerel if declarer, conscious that the opening lead may be a singleton, takes steps to guard against that possibility. All that South has to do is duck the queen of clubs!

True, this is a rather unnatural play, but it is clearly the right play because it guarantees the contract against anything except a volcanic eruption. The danger of West having a singleton club and four trumps is very real, and the advantage of ducking the queen of clubs is self-apparent once declarer gives the matter some thought.

After the queen holds, East can do declarer no harm, even if he continues with the Jack of clubs — which South ducks again. West scores a trump trick at this point, but that is the end of the line for the defense.

The virtue of ducking the queen of clubs can be better appreciated if you consider that South is looking at ten top tricks at the point when East wins the club lead with the ace. All that declarer has to do is make sure that one of them, the king of clubs, does not get liquidated by being placed on the chopping block at trick two. Ducking the club return provides 100 per cent safety.

Moore Injured in Practice

The Metro Junior "B" Bobcats took their practice too seriously Monday night as goalie Bob Moore incurred an injury and is a doubtful starter for Thursday's away game with Whitby Dunlops.

Moore, who practiced without his face mask last night, was hit in the forehead by a Neil Turner slap shot. Woolmer Moore will be in the lineup against Whitby will depend on his condition prior to the game.

The Bobcats have alternate goalie John Burnside to take his place between the posts.

The Belleville team's newest acquisition, Andy Ricketts, is still laid up with a leg injury. According to general manager Jim Matthews, Ricketts may not appear in the Bobcat's line-up until the new year.

Wayne McCeachy's problems with the management have been trailed out according to Matthews, and he will likely appear with the Bobcats against the C Dunlops Thursday.

Rowbotham Scores For Award

Wilson Concrete defenseman Chuck Rowbotham, who played centre against Rosebush Fuels Monday night, skates past a Rosebush defender to chalk up two goals in Wilson's 7-2 victory over Rosebush Fuels. Rowbotham won this month's O'Keefe Player of the Month award presented to a Gas House League member.

Retta Herrington Paces Kawartha

The final night of Kawartha Downs inaugural fall meet will take place on Saturday, December 16. The evening will see the winner of a draw held at the end of the seventh race receive $200 from track officials in appreciation for season long fan support.

For the first 39 nights of racing, bettors close to 2,000 per night wagered a mutuel average of $50,811 while purses paid have exceeded $105,000.

Kawartha Downs is planning a 71 day race schedule for the 1973 season on the basis of the success of this year.

Over the past 39 meets, Retta Herrington has chalked up the greatest number of wins. Herrington's win total is 18, while her closest competitor is Carman Hie with 15 victories to his credit.

Wilsons Flattens Rosebush 7-2

Wilson Concrete solidified their entrenchment in the top half of the Gas House Hockey League with Monday night's 7-2 victory over last place Rosebush Fuels. Wilson's victory places them in a two way tie with second place Hospital Generals.

Pete Enright and Chuck Rowbotham were the individual stars in last night's performance as Enright netted a hat trick against Rosebush while Rowbotham chalked up two goals. Wayne Whitley and Bruce Stickle tallied single goals for the concrete workers.

The Pope brothers, Norm and Terry, had a hand in Concretions 4-2 victory over Cassidy Electrics as they scored a goal apiece. Ron Mitchell and Vern Boomhower marked up the other tallies for the capacity.

Despite Chester Thompson's single and Doug Jarvis' double tallies, the Electrics failed to move up the league standings ladder.

Moira and Quinte Split Wrestling Wins at Meet

The first regular season wrestling meet between Moira and Quinte Secondary Shools ended in a 10-10 tie Monday night.

Napanee scheduled for the triangular meeting of the wrestler failed to attend due to a mix-up in the scheduling according to Quinte coach Wally Uhrynuk.

Though neither Moira nor Quinte fielded full teams in all 14 weight categories, the matches at Quinte Secondary produced several highlights.

Moira's Dick Spencer temporarily came out of retirement to wrestle arch - rival Vic Power of Quinte. In the "closest match of the night" according to Uhrynuk, Spencer defeated Power by a point total of 3-1.

"Many of the matches were won by pins, rather than by points," said coach Uhrynuk. "Dave Brant (98 pound class) pinned Moira's Dave Buckley in 15 seconds," Brant's victory was the fastest of the night's activities.

Neil Laforte in the 136 pound class won by the widest point total as he defeated Quinte's Bob Andrews 13-4.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids . . . and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute, after a period of many months, has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painfully. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

Best hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Volcanic Crater Found

Spacemen Plan 8-mile Drive

HOUSTON (CP) — Intriguing orange soil around a moon crater called Shorty gave the Apollo 17 astronauts their biggest find and sent scientists bubbling with excitement today.

If laboratory tests confirm first impressions, it means Shorty is the first volcanically created crater, or fumarole, yet found on the moon. To judge by the shallow depth of the orange soil, it is also the youngest material yet discovered—perhaps less than 100 million years old and dating back to the last fiery gasps of a dying moon.

This would finally lay to rest the theory that the moon has been stone dead for the last three billion years.

And it also revives controversy over whether the moon had water at some stage of its history.

The jubilant astronauts wind up their exploration today. Astronauts Eugene Cernan and Harrison (Jack) Schmitt, on their last geology field trip in the moon valley of Taurus-Littrow, take an eight-mile drive along the base of a high mountain and at the foot of wrinkled hills, using an electric car with a patched fender.

The astronauts, saying they "like to cover new ground," travelled a mile farther than planned on Tuesday night, gathering many bags of lunar samples, including scoops of the orange dust never before found on the moon.

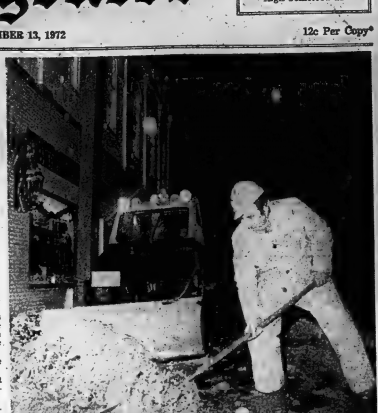
The orange material was found during exploration of an ancient avalanche, 4.1 miles from the landing camp in Taurus-Littrow valley. By coincidence, it was found by Cernan, not Schmitt, a geologist and America's first professional scientist in space.

"Hey," exclaimed Cernan as he stumbled into the soil at the rim of Crater Shorty. "Wait a minute . . . there is orange soil."

"Well don't move until I see it," said Schmitt.

"It's all over," Cernan went on excitedly. "Orange. I've stirred it up with my feet.

"Hey, it is," shouted Schmitt. "I can see it from here. It's orange."



On earth, scientists said the orange soil may have originated from "the last gaseous gasp of volcanism" on the moon.

"One of the most important finds in Apollo geology" was how Australian Dr. Robin Brett, chief of the geochemistry division at Houston, described the discovery.

In effect, the orange material is like rust. It almost certainly resulted from the eruption of volatile substances from the moon's interior, which could include water.

While Cernan and Schmitt motored on the moon, their crewmate, Ronald Evans, labored in the command ship America orbiting overhead. Evans is operating an array of science instruments which are photographing and probing large slices of the moon.

Cernan and Schmitt are to begin the moon's surface Thursday, rejoin Evans in the command ship and begin the journey home toward a Dec. 19 splashdown in the Pacific.

School Boards Lack Power

HAMILTON (CP) — The Ontario education ministry has such a firm hold on the purse strings that county education boards are "wasting their time" trying to set their own spending priorities, an official of the Hamilton - Wentworth separate school board said Tuesday night.

Patrick Brennan, the board's superintendent of education, said trustees "would be better to ask the ministry where, when, and what we should build," rather than making their own decisions.

His comments came after the education ministry rejected several proposed additions to local schools.

Agriculture Minister Got $3,000 in Grant

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Agriculture Minister William Stewart said Tuesday he has received $3,000 in farm improvement grants under programs run by his department, but said he does not consider the grants a conflict of interest.

The grants, he said, are part of agriculture department programs available to any farmer who qualifies.

He received $1,000 in early 1969 to assist in paying for a new cattle barn on his farm north of London, Ont., and $2,000 in February, 1972, for a new concrete silo.

This is the maximum a farmer may receive under the provincial program of capital grants for farm improvement.

Drunk Drivers' Offered Special Layaway Plan

MONTREAL (CP) — A local cemetery is offering a Christmas special with a difference. Jack McIntyre, president of Memorial Park, is offering one free plaque and a bronze memorial plaque valued at $600 to anyone who signs a form saying they plan to drink and drive during the holidays. But to win the prize, they must be found drunk and dead behind the wheel of their car. "And we have enough graves in here to bury drunk drivers for the next 25 years," Mr. McIntyre said. The offer, backed with funds raised by a local Rotary Club, has been sent to every major radio station and newspaper in the city.

Quebec Group Gets Right To Speak for All Farmers

MONTREAL (CP) — The Agricultural Producers Union has won the right to represent and collect dues from 31,160 Quebec farmers earning more than $1,000 per year.

Benoit Lavigne, chairman of the Quebec Agricultural Marketing Board, said Tuesday the union had gained the right as the result of a province-wide poll of farmers.

"I don't know of any other farm organization in North America with this kind of power," Mr. Lavigne said.

Provincial legislation passed in May gives farmers earning more than $1,000 a year the right to join a union. The government recognized the 30,000-member APU in September as representative of the majority of farmers meeting the income requirement.

The referendum gives the union the right to collect $15 from all farmers meeting the income requirement, including non-APU members. It also entitles it to a maximum 20 per cent of the fee paid by farmers to joint marketing boards.

Condition Still Serious

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Harry Truman's condition remained serious today as the 88-year-old former president entered the second week of his struggle with heart, lung, chest and kidney problems. Kissinger and Hanoi's Duc Tho At End of Negotiation Road

PARIS (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho met for six hours today at what could be the end of their current session of secret peace talks.

The U.S. embassy advised Orly Airport that Kissinger would leave for Washington tonight, airport officials said. His plane has been standing by since it arrived from an American base in West Germany Tuesday night. He will report to President Nixon.

There was no immediate indication whether Kissinger and Tho have reached agreement, or whether they planned to meet again in the near future.

Before the president's national security adviser and North Vietnam's politburo member met in a suburban villa, a subcommittee of experts held a 90-minute session to discuss details of a settlement.

There was no comment from either delegation on persistent rumors that Kissinger, Tho and their experts have hammered out a far-reaching compromise in more than three weeks of talks.

The newspaper La Nation, which supports France's ruling Gaullist party, said agreement is "a matter of hours."

Kissinger's U.S. Air Force plane flew into Orly Airport Tuesday night. Airport officials said the plane was ordered to stand by for departure immediately, but this was later postponed to permit Kissinger to attend one more session this morning.

The departure time was now set for some time this afternoon, the officials said.

Unconfirmed reports in the French press said a compromise had nearly been reached on the withdrawal of North Vietnamese troops from the South, one of President Nguyen Van Thieu's chief demands.

The stories said the ceasefire agreement would not specifically mention withdrawals, since Hanoi has not admitted publicly that its troops are fighting in the South.

"It's Kissinger from Paris. They're having another finale talk."

North Vietnam Tanks Cross Mountain Pass

SAIGON (AP) — Nearly 100 tanks and several thousand fresh North Vietnamese troops have crossed the mountain passes that feed the Ho Chi Minh Trail, and American B-52s and fighter bombers are harassing them as they make their way south, U.S. sources reported today.

Some intelligence reports indicate the armor may be headed for the Plain of Jars in Laos rather than for South Vietnam. Several of the tanks have been knocked out, military sources said.

Publisher Says Takeovers Financed with Own Money

EDMONTON (CP) — Canadian corporations have been sold to foreign firms with Canadian money while this country is actually a net exporter of capital, publisher Mel Hurtig said today.

Mr. Hurtig, co-chairman of the Committee for an Independent Canada, made the points in a lengthy submission to the Alberta government's select committee on foreign investment.

He asked the committee to recommend that Alberta call on Ottawa to take strong steps to curtail the growth of foreign ownership, which he said is much more of it than any other developed country and, at the same time, has higher unemployment than any other developed country.

These problems will continue as long as we have a branch plant economy, he said.

"The greatest irony in the sellout of Canadian business and natural resources has been the massive funding of foreign takeovers by the Canadian money. Less than $1 in every $5 used in the current buy up of Canada during the last 10 years came from outside Canada."

Mr. Hurtig said that at the same time he knows of no evidence that backs the allegation that Canadians invest more outside of Canada on a per-capita basis than foreigners invest in Canada.

Canadian investment outside of Canada may be in the neighborhood of $17 billion but a substantial portion of this is actually investment made by foreign subsidiaries operating in Canada.

Mr. Hurtig, an unsuccessful Edmonton Liberal candidate in the Oct. 30 federal election, said he believes Canada has been a net exporter of capital for at least 30 years.

"In any case, in the decade starting in 1961 . . . new direct investment in Canada by foreigners was less than the outward flow in dividends and profits to non-residents."

Hartwell Faces Crash Inquiry

EDMONTON (CP) — One official has ended for Martin Hartwell but the pilot who survived 32 days in the Arctic faces two more inquiries into the investigation of the crash which left him stranded.

His twin-engined Beechcraft 18 crashed on a medical mercy flight Nov. 8 with three other persons aboard and Mr. Hartwell was the only one alive when rescuers found him Saturday. He was flown here from Yellowknife.

(CP Photo)

The Beechcraft wandered off course on the 300-mile flight to Yellowknife from Cambridge Bay on the south coast of Victoria Island in the Northwest Territories. It crashed into a range and overturned and it was not until last Thursday that a scheduled Canadian Forces flight between Inuvik and Yellowknife picked up a signal from a crash position beacon held by Mr. Hartwell. The crash scene was about 180 miles west of his planned flight path.

He has refused to answer any details about the crash because the ministry of transport is investigating the accident and details probably won't come out until Mr. Hartwell talks to the federal investigators.

But Roy Wager of Edmonton, president and general manager of Gateway Aviation Ltd., the owners of the Beechcraft, disclosed information about Mr. Hartwell Tuesday which is bound to have a bearing on the outcome of ministry of transport decision.

"He doesn't have his instrument rating, nor did he ever have it," said Mr. Wager.

Richard Beattie, a ministry of transport inspector in Edmonton, said a pilot without an instrument rating normally is restricted to flying only when in visual contact with the ground—land or water. He is not authorized to fly on instruments only.

Mr. Hartwell told reporters he was flying under heavy overcast when the crash occurred. Together with the fact he was on a mercy flight, it could be a mitigating factor but it obviously won't be clear until the federal department comes to its conclusions.

End of One Ordeal

Martin Hartwell, the pilot who was rescued after surviving an aircraft crash and a 32-day ordeal in the Arctic, is placed on a stretcher at Edmonton Industrial Airport Monday night. He was flown to Edmonton from Yellowknife.

Smoke and Dust Main Moira Air Pollutants

Smoke and dust emissions are the main air pollution problems in the Moira River watershed with sulphur dioxide fumes and odor from the chemo factories following in that order.

The objective of the project, carried out by Marlene Johnston, a graduate of the Environmental Science Technician course at Loyalist College, was to assemble federal, provincial and municipal legislation dealing with all aspects of pollution with emphasis on topics relevant to the Moira watershed.

For her report Miss Johnston interviewed pollution control officials at all three levels of government.

One of these was E. J. Newman, district engineer of the air management branch of the provincial Ministry of the Environment at Belleville.

Mr. Newman said the dust problem could originate from citizens burning leaves and garbage all the way to plants emitting dust from industrial operations.

While these emissions constitute a nuisance and health hazard within the immediate area, he said a more serious situation arises when dust emissions are extensive enough to reduce visibility.

The odor problem resulting from chemo factories was said to have been present for a number of years and still continues to be somewhat prevalent.

The only permanent air monitoring device within the watershed, located at the post office building in Belleville, has shown that the suspended particulate matter readings are 22 micrograms over the criteria for desirable ambient air quality.

Investigations are currently being undertaken to determine why the particulate reading of 42 micrograms is so high at Belleville.

The provincial industrial wastes division, through its district engineer's office, discusses industrial waste programs with individual industries in the watershed keeping in mind the water quality criteria.

However, no formal agreement as such which specifically what the industry may discharge into the watercourse is signed.

All industries are inspected at least once a year, while some may be visited on a quarterly or monthly basis. The larger industries generate as part of a continuous inspection programs check.

District engineer for the provincial industrial wastes division, John Vogt, says that cooperation from industry within the watershed is good.

He admits, however, there have been highlights of problems with respect to waste discharges from several larger industries along the Bay of Quinte as well as the still existing arsenic problem at the closed site of Deloro Smelting and Refining Company Ltd. at Deloro.

Dealing with waste management control, the report says the objective of the provincial department is to have a landfill garbage sites only in the more densely populated area south of Highway 7.

Areas north of Highway 7 are designated as dump sites and the branch is not currently attempting to replace these sites with landfill operations.

In summary, the report says that merging of separate responsibilities for controlling air, water and land pollution has been a significant development toward administration.

But, unfortunately, operational inadequacies and political implications often take away from what observers would be valuable tools in the management of natural resources.

"The onus for policing contamination of our air, water and land should not lie entirely with federal and provincial authorities," concludes the report. "If it were not for the selfish grasping of industries and individuals for economic gain with their indifference to the resultant, despoilation of our environment, the watchful politics of the liable authoritieS would not be relied upon so heavily.

"It is unfortunate that evidence of misuse of our natural resources must be present before steps are taken to recognize and alleviate existing problems."

W. Graham Bell, chairman of the Moira Authority pollution control advisory committee agrees that it should not be necessary to resort to legal action to prevent environmental pollution.

"We (the Moira River Authority) are not a policing body," says Mr. Bell. "Cleanup of our environment will be mainly a matter of education."

CONNRIGHT — In ever loving memory of our dear father, Frederick Connright, who passed away Dec. 13th, 1966.
We loved him in the old home,
And he loved the best,
But God looked over the sun's last hill,
And saw him resting.
Gone down in the far off west,
We miss you more as the years roll by,
Since we did on the day of your death,
For absence can never close our hearts,
The lamp of our love is still glowing,
To cheer the path we tread in the world,
We have the best to recall,
For no one could be more kind,
Than our father was to us all.
—Sadly missed by wife Clara and family.

CROSS — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Ernest Cross, who passed away December 13th, 1962.

In our hearts your memory lingers,
Loving, patient, kind and true,
There is not a day our loved one,
Is not remembered by you.

And the place in our hearts,
He marked that way too.

York River Plan To Be Reviewed

Provincial government departments will review the York River Development report and will make a new submission to county council in January.

The York River development project has been urged for several years by North Hastings municipal officials and resort interests and last year a feasibility study on the proposal was prepared by the ministries of industry and tourism, natural resources and agriculture and food.

However, the report submitted to council at the September session indicated the benefits - to - cost ratio were not sufficient to make the estimated $7½-million expenditure feasible.

But county councillors were not satisfied and voted to again approach provincial authorities.

Three weeks ago, county officials went to Toronto and, along with Hastings MPP Clarke Rollins, discussed the report with the three ministries.

Yesterday, county council was told by Clerk-Administrator Carl Bateman that it had been admitted by ministry officials that some of the numerical values contained in the report were without basis in fact.

As a result, it has been agreed that the report will be reviewed with special emphasis on the benefits that might be derived from the proposed development and a new submission will be ready for council in January.

Main feature of the proposed York River development project would be the construction of a dam in Carlow township to form a large man-made lake.

Such a dam, he said, would not be built for some time.

A fish and wildlife area had been established in Thurlow township in an attempt to regenerate wildfowl population like ducks and smaller bird life. He stressed the need for public education in this kind of enterprise and praised Mayor-elect Mrs. Judith Jeffrey for her efforts in getting people in closer touch with conservation activities.

Mr. Bell also mentioned former public school principal Bert Frink and his outdoor education classes at the conservation areas of Thomasburg and Plainfield. More than 2,000 students from the Belleville area were receiving on-the-spot instruction annually.

Pollution control is another facet of the board's work and Mr. Bell referred in this context to the red tape involved in dealings with environmental agencies and also as a result of the reorganization of the natural resources ministry.

Moira Authority History Outlined

The evolution of the Moira River Conservation Authority and the applications of its policy in recent years were traced by authority member Graham Bell in an address to Belleville Rotarians.

Mr. Bell, who was recently elected Reeve of Marmora and Lake townships, spoke of the initial efforts of the late Col. Roscoe Vanderwater to establish the authority and the emphasis at that time on providing forest cover to prevent rapid spring runoff and reduce flooding.

Originally, acquisition of some 100,000 acres had been recommended for reforestation, but only about 16,000 acres had been acquired to date. There was little prospect of more, he said, because of inflated land prices.

Touching on other aspects of conservation, Mr. Bell mentioned water control. He said ministry officials were still investigating the prospects of an ice control dam here, with particular emphasis on how it might affect the Walleye run.

University Bound

Representatives from Ontario's 16 universities, the armed forces and the ministry of education were at Centennial Secondary School yesterday to answer questions from the district's senior high school students. With enrolments declining, the universities' high school liaison officers are actively recruiting students across the province. Doug Geddie from Carleton explains what his university has to offer to Doug Martin and Mary Ellen Brinklow of Trenton High School.

Home for Aged Study Advocated by Council

Appointment of a joint county-city committee to investigate the need for non-ambulatory patient accommodation in he homes fr he aged category, is being recommended by Hastings county council.

The recommendation came following receipt of a letter from Belleville city council indicating there was a need for 34 more beds at Hastings Manor outside Belleville and asking that consideration be given toward the construction of another county home.

Under the city's agreement with the county, the city is entitled to 72 beds at the manor outside Belleville but currently has about 100 residents in the manor with another 30 or so on its waiting list.

County clerk-treasurer Carl E. Bateman told council the additional city residents at the manor had not worked to the county's disadvantage as the extra beds have not been needed by the county.

Now, however, he said the county home was just able to accommodate county residents and there would soon be a waiting list.

The pressing need, he said was for nursing home accommodation, rather than further county home accommodation.

In any event, with the county already having two county homes, he doubted if approval would be given for another.

Tweed Reeve Barbara Allen brought in the motion for a special joint committee to investigate needs for non-ambulatory accommodation and the recommendation was approved following brief discussion.

The town of Trenton will be invited to attend committee discussions.

In other business at this week's December session of county council, council endorsed the proposal of the Belleville United Community Services to conduct a study throughout the county to determine the need for day care nursery services.

The recommendation called for application to be made of a local initiatives grant to pay for the cost of the study.

Councillors Suggest YMCA, UCS Meeting

One of the first actions of Belleville city council following its inaugural meeting early in January may be to call a meeting with the Belleville YMCA and the United Community Services in an effort to sort out differences between the two organizations.

Last week the UCS announced that following 1973 the YMCA would no longer be paid monies out of the united campaign fund.

At yesterday's council meeting, however, Mayor J. Russell Scott said the council had a responsibility and suggested the two organizations would have to be brought together.

He suggested that an impartial audit of the two organizations' books should be made — not on the basis that anything was wrong, but to permit a true accounting to the public.

On recommendation of Alderman Paul Russell, council voted to recommend to the 1973 council that the YMCA and the United Community Services be asked to meet with city council to help the two organizations solve their problems.

The Human Element

In our day-to-day professional and business dealings the human element as often as not is submerged. We are intolerant of error — ignoring the fact that to err is to be human — and we are as equally intolerant of delays and of incompetence, real or imagined.

There have been some such problems in Quinte area municipal affairs of late. Take the planning scene here. To criticism that this firm's preparation of Belleville's official plan was falling behind schedule, Roger Truemner of Totten Sims Hubicki Associates, said the Quinte Planning Board staff "are at odds with us. It is basically a matter of philosophy and approach."

He said when the schedule for the job was prepared he had only just joined the firm and did not know how long it would take, adding, "consultants are only human." Alas, yes, we are all just that — but how often is the fact acknowledged in this hard old world?

From the Quinte board's standpoint, deputy director Frank Stokmans told the board that 20 pages of questions and comments were sent to the consultants "but we have just had satisfactory answers since May." Noting that the QPB wants land use allocation to be specified, Mr. Stokmans asked why his staff's view should be wrong after seven years' experience, while the consultant had had one year involved with Quinte planning.

Here we have a classic example of the differences that are bound to erupt between local planners and consultants.

When consultant Truemner went on to say he could not promise satisfactory answers by his firm to "some of your questions" (addressing Alderman Orr), we can only imagine the difficulties to come. Meanwhile, we note that a further meeting, this time with another representative of the consultant firm is scheduled by the planning board on December 21.

We may sympathize with the problems of the individuals concerned in getting this plan all together, but at the same time there must come a time when the goods, as it were, are delivered. Even then there is no guarantee of satisfaction for the community or region.

Meanwhile, the human element has also been to the fore at a candidates' evening in Picton. It was prior to the recent election of course and James Bird, then deputy reeve, was under attack from the then reeve, Albert Pirolh. Mr. Bird complained that as chairman of the public works committee he was "the sitting duck" for criticism. He stressed that he was simply "an ordinary person" capable of making errors. He had done his best at all times and he observed that no matter what course of action the individual took, praise seemed rare.

How true . . . how true, Mr. Bird! We are all too aware of the "can't win" syndrome in human affairs, and it takes some courage to give voice to it publicly.

For Mr. Bird, however, he was the exception that proved the rule. In the succeeding election the deputy reeve's ship came in and he defeated Mr. Pirolh in the contest for reeve by 1122 votes to 657.

Given the earlier circumstances of candidates' night, victory for Mr. Bird must have been sweet.

Judge's Warning

He said anyone who sells it to children "is a merchant of death." As chairman of the drive for Christmas Seals in Ontario, Judge Little said: "My concern is related to children, the 8, 9 and 10-year-olds. Cigarets are loaded with potential to kill those children."

His words took on added meaning for us at the Mail recently. A woman employee of a drug store there told a little girl — she was perhaps 9 or 10 — she could not buy cigarets for her parents.

Sending the children for cigarets is a common practice with some adults and the drug store employee was correct in informing the child as she did.

Like most people, we were also under the impression that tuberculosis had been virtually eliminated. But according to Judge Little 527 people died of the disease in 1970.

Right now a lot of the usual colds and flu symptoms are making the rounds. They are health problems enough without increasing the risk of respiratory or heart ailments by the kind of addiction Judge Little speaks of.

PEI's David MacDonald
Ex-Clergyman Is Opposition's Question Time Tactician

By FARMER TISSINGTON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Putting some punch in the party performance is the job handed recently to a 36-year-old United Church clergyman by Progressive Conservative Leader Stanfield.

David MacDonald, who gave up full - time church work when elected Member of Parliament for the Prince Edward Island riding of Egmont in 1965, has been assigned by the Tory chief to take charge of the party's question period strategy when the Commons opens for business January 4.

Passed over for a major job as a caucus chairman and departmental critic at Parliament's two more senior Conservative members from his province, Mr. MacDonald's role is, in many respects, more important.

Basically, he will act as chairman of an early-morning meeting of the top brass when decisions are taken on how best to attack the government when the session opens later in the day.

The daily get-togethers are not an innovation, having started in 1967, not long after Mr. Stanfield's leadership victory. David Pullup, the former MP and Justice Minister, was the first chairman of the meetings. George Hees and Gordon Aiken took over later on.

Now the job has fallen to one of the youngest and most enthusiastic of the members and Mr. MacDonald is determined to organize the tactical sessions in a way not attempted before.

Until now, the meetings have been a bit haphazard. The shadow cabinet members were expected to attend but not all of them did, all the time. Other Conservative MPs were invited in or, especially if they had some special problems they wanted to bring to the floor of the house, But attendance was spotty and interest often lagged.

The results were all too painfully apparent to veteran Commons-watchers. Many days the official opposition seemed bufflydisorganized. An attack on one of the government's sensitive areas often scattered to an embarrassing halt. There was little continuity in the questioning or the questions failed to hit the mark with the expected impact.

If the Liberal ministers did become complacent and arrogant, as is so frequently charged, at least part of the reason was the knowledge they were facing an official opposition that only rarely lived up to its title.

Mr. MacDonald believes the minority government situation is a voter-sent opportunity to prove that the Conservatives are actually a credible alternative. In parliament, the question period is the one major forum where this can be clearly demonstrated.

This is the time when the public galleries are packed and when parties and individuals in them are under the pitiless gaze of a cross-section of the public as well as media representatives, senior bureaucrats and even visiting ambassadors. A very large percentage of the grist of the Commons mess mill is developed in those crucial 40 minutes and in the following one microphone interviews outside the chamber.

This is the time when parliament can be at its best, or its worst, and a period when personal political reputations are often made and destroyed. As minister may be one of the greatest administrators in the country, but it won't do him much good if he keeps tripping over his tongue in the give and take exchange of the question period.

There is a good chance the question period will have even greater influence in the future on the public's opinions and judgments. Pressure for live or taped broadcasts and telecasts of Commons' sessions has been increasing since the election. The minority situation with its suspense-filled possibility of a government tumbling down before the nation's eyes and ears is the sort of drama not even Mannix or Cannon can match.

Mr. MacDonald would jump at a chance to prove his fellow MP's perform on this stage and has long been a strong unofficial advocate of allowing cameras and microphones into the green chamber.

For these reasons, and others, Mr. MacDonald intends to run a very tight ship. The morning meeting will be well organized, scanned with care for the important national and international developments. Any possible chinks in government armor will be probed. The party research staff will be on standby to come up with facts and figures in the short hours before the opening bells ring. The MP's will be given their priming - order for the day, depending on the importance of their interests and areas of responsibility. The grand strategy for each day's battle will be planned in fine detail.

If the Prince Edward Island MP has his way there will not be any reason for complacency on the cabinet benches. Ministers had better do their homework well — or else!

But it is not only the party rank and file who will have to display new skill, finesse and discipline. The chief responsibility still rests on Mr. Stanfield who, by tradition is recognized by Mr. Speaker for the first question.

In the last parliament he often hurt the party image by stumbling and fumbling. Words do not flow easily from his lips. He rarely showed that instant flash of fire and anger and the cutting wit that marks the great parliamentarian. The attack often bogged down at the start by his habit of following up his initial query with a series of supplementary questions, each more convoluted than the last.

If, Mr. MacDonald is to be a complete success in his new role, he must encourage his leader to be more incisive and allow his lieutenants a greater chance to shine. The management or demotion of some of the tired old Tory front benchers and the injection of young, more exciting performers, the party can protect the image it seeks.

For the Tories, the daily question period will start early with Mr. MacDonald on deck. He promises to give added life and lustre to the entire parliamentary process.

Armed Forces Role Cast in Varying Shades

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

This column has discussed the Canadian Armed Forces twice recently in the context of other events which have had considerable influence on the present and future roles of our military.

It has analyzed the state of preparedness of the Canadian Armed Forces for a post-truce, peacekeeping role in Vietnam. A few days ago, it severely criticized the indifference of the present government, re-shuffled from the previous one, with defence minister appointments.

There have been four of these in just over two years and such sudden changes in defence ministers are bound to have their effect on military morale.

Two further events caused further comment on the future roles of the armed forces: the rescue of the Beechcraft pilot in the Canadian Territories after 30 days of incredible survival in 30 below temperatures and far away from our North, in Bras sels, the continuing diplomatic double-talk about the future of NATO.

They may seem isolated in the context of military morale, but in fact, they are closely related, since the armed forces, according to the last White Paper on Defence published in late 1971, suggests is clearly defined ways that our men in uniform will continue to function in national as well as international affairs.

Depending on whom you talk to within the armed forces, by that I mean on the basis of rank, age level and personal experience, a wide variety of opinions and views are expressed by military people themselves about what they should be doing in the 1970s and beyond.

Though most of the 83,000 officers and men have joined since Korea (that war was 20 years ago), the senior management of the armed forces is largely in the hands of generals and colonels whose personal service experiences go back 30 years to the Second World War.

Too many of them are still imbued with the spirit of the military as a "force in being" for future adversary roles—justifying more and more costly capital defence expenditures for equipment which becomes obsolete at more quickly accelerated rates.

Many of them feel strongly the 1969 decision to cut our NATO forces in half was wrong. But since 1969, they have been faced with a growing dilemma. NATO has been assessed—mostly recently by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp—as having had a role which led to detente in Europe, not to another European war.

In the long run, the quid pro quo Canada remaining in NATO has meant a part in deterring Warsaw Pact forces. In its own way, NATO has been a type of peacekeeping.

The recent Trudeau-Kosygin détente and death in our high North always where a good deal of our military competence exists, and where even more of it should be placed. The criticism of Arctic rescue procedures which has resulted from the latest forces' rescue effort, should not be laid at the military.

After all, it was a CAF Hercules on regular patrol which picked up the Beechcraft's weak radio beacon signal. Northern Command, the smallest of the armed forces under General Ramsay Withers, the first of several youthful and innovative Canadian generals promoted, had high rank in peacetime, is a futurist about an expanded CAF Arctic role.

Senior officers like General Withers, and many junior to him, throughout the various commands, should have a larger say in military policy making. The new defence minister should listen more to them than to the lightweight and not "spear carrier" generals in headquarters, certainly where better use of purging the military in the North for rescue operations and other essential Arctic military activities are concerned.

Munro May Have Eyes on Party Leadership

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's Queen's Park Bureau

There is one man who could probably fill the job, and the leadership of the Ontario Liberal party calls for.

But he isn't available now. And chances are that he won't be in the future.

The man in mind is John Munro, federal minister of labor.

Mr. Munro has qualities that could give the Liberal party an injection it has needed now for near 20 years. It appears that he most probably could revive the party and perhaps even lead it back into power.

The first of these qualities is that Mr. Munro is a political animal, always has been, and now is not only dedicated but is highly politically astute.

He is one man who could probably whip the provincial Liberals into an effective, fighting political machine.

And his dedication he also has tremendous energy. The recognition of this in itself, could give the party new vitality.

He has shown that he has intelligence, can get to the point on complex issues, and, as an opposition leader should be able to pick holes in government programs and actions.

Further, he has the common touch and he's shown he can get through to the people. His authorities in his home riding in Hamilton have been massive. And in his former health and welfare portfolio he quickly became one of the best known Trudeau ministers.

Most importantly of all, he has stature. He is and has been a somebody. And in the highly intangible business of political success this is most important. Prestige can carry a great influence.

With this combination of qualities, Munro almost certainly would be the best prospective leader the Liberals could hope for.

However, as noted, the possibilities of his being available are almost non-existent.

He certainly wouldn't switch from the Trudeau ranks and into the present minority circumstances.

And even if these were changed, the measure from Munro's point of view, is largely from time to time he's thought about the provincial politics, he quickly has made up his mind against it.

And his decision was finally made, it is said, not because the Ontario job didn't have its attractions but there was another prospect which was far more alluring.

This prospect is the national party leadership.

The word is that Munro definitely will contest the national Liberal leadership when it becomes vacant and that he feels he has a strong chance of winning it.

This is a feeling that not too many other people would share, but as it is now, between the man and his mirror he is dreaming a great dream.

Right to Strike Can Mean Hardship for Public

Sherbrooke La Tribune: A society evolving about democratic rights usually grants its workers the right to strike . . . because it relies on the intelligence and good judgment of those who exercise this right to support their demands and feels the workers, while defending their point of view, will not forget the common good and will not forget that the public must insist its essential services are maintained.

Unfortunately, society sometimes presumes too much about certain persons who, in order to prove their action is serious, deny other citizens privileges and rights which are undisputedly theirs. The Hydro-Quebec strike, despite the motives which sparked it, has exposed itself to actions which are flagrant contradictions to democracy.

To endanger the health of the people, make them suffer heavy material losses, these are certainly not the objectives of the Hydro Quebec unions. And yet, by their actions, this is what they have done and this remains totally inadmissible. . . .

The population should not have to suffer the consequences of this fight and become the hostage of parties which employers and employees periodically face each other. . . .

The unionists have nothing to gain by work stoppages which endanger public safety. The freedom of expression which they grant themselves should not paralyze the liberty of the people and menace their safety. This is perhaps what has been forgotten during the current conflict.

Harlem Schoolteachers Have Special Problems

NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. Bennye Boswell's third graders were letting down their homework assignment when the slender young man entered the classroom. He walked slowly toward the teacher. One hand held a plastic bookbag; the other was jammed in his jacket pocket.

Mrs. Boswell looked up, expecting an inquiry. There was none. Please check in at the principal's office, she told the youth politely. His reply was calm but curt:

"There are a lot of children in your class. Walk behind your desk and sit down. If you move, I'll blow your brains out."

Quickly, the man, who was about 20, dumped the books from the plastic bag, replaced them with the teacher's purse and fled.

It was over in moments and the terrified Mrs. Boswell of Public school 181 in Harlem had become one of 15 teachers robbed during a two-week period in New York City schools. Most of the incidents happened in full view of school children; the takes ranged from $1 cash to $3,000 in jewelry.

The sudden upsurge of robberies against teachers has provoked cries of outrage from city officials, teachers and parents alike and demands for intensified security in the schools.

"We were positively terrified," said a 27-year-old woman teacher, recalling how she and a colleague were robbed while they lunched in a classroom at another Manhattan school. "If there were a policeman around the school building all the time we would feel a lot better."

The teachers are plainly angry and calling for strong action. During a meeting at his Richmond Hill High School in Queens, where a teacher fought off two teen-aged robbers, one teacher drew cheers with a declaration it was time to "knock heads, make arrests, get rid of the garbage."

They have been joined by their union, the United Federation of Teachers.

"Elementary schools are like candy boxes—easy to get into and full of goodies," said Edward Mutz, a member of a special Joint UFT-board of education team studying school disruptions.

While high schools and junior highs have a 400-man security force, the system's 650 primary schools generally have relied on makeshift security arrangements, with teachers, school aides and parent volunteers—nearly all women—assigned to check in visitors, supervise lunchrooms and patrol entrances.

In response, the school system has accelerated steps to hire and train 1,500 unarmed security aides, at a cost of 24 million, for assignment mainly to elementary schools.

School authorities also are seriously considering the use of color-coded photo identification cards to help weed out intruders, as well as the issuing to teachers of pocket-sized silent alarm devices initially developed for an experimental electronic security system at a Sacramento, Calif., high school.

The New York city school system has long been plagued by such incidents as corridor shakedowns, gang fights, rapes and knifings. And it is not the only major American city facing the problem. But because of its size—1.2 million pupils—its problems are perhaps more glaring.

Board of education files show that the total of "untoward incidents," as school official prefer to call them, increased to 580 during the 1971 calendar year from 353 in 1970. Through September of this year, there were 642 reported incidents.

Factors contributing to the apparent rise in school crime, school officials say, include widespread drug trafficking, a resurgence of youth gangs, proliferation of weapons—particularly handguns—among students, and lack of enough alternate facilities to handle unmotivated, unco-operative, potentially disruptive pupils.

Also aggravating the situation is a truancy rate of about 60,000 students a day, with many incidents blamed on truants barging into other schools to victimize younger pupils.

Roughly 80 to 85 per cent of the reported incidents occur in high schools and junior highs. But the board's records indicate that conditions at some elementary schools are not always placid. Teachers have been robbed, assaulted by pupils and beaten by angry parents.

Postal Strike Before Christmas Unlikely

OTTAWA (CP) — Chances of a postal strike seriously disrupting Christmas mail diminished Tuesday after it was learned that a conciliation board report dealing with the dispute between mailmen and the government would be submitted Thursday.

Should recommendations of the three-man conciliation board not be acceptable to the parties involved, the unions would have to wait seven days before they could legally strike.

This would mean that a postal strike, if any, could begin at the earliest on Thursday Dec. 21, late enough so that only last-minute Christmas mail could be disrupted.

Officials on both sides have expressed hope that an agreement can be reached without resort to strike action.

Jacob Finkelman, chairman of the public service staff relations board, said he expected to get the report of the conciliation board Thursday.

The report, setting out conciliation board recommendations in the dispute, then would be made available to both unions and the government.

"WHERE YOUR DOLLAR BUYS MORE"

Presenting the new Mark II. The most Toyota.

For those of you who thought a Toyota wasn't big enough, or powerful enough, or luxurious enough, we've got good news for you.

The new Toyota Mark II.

The Mark II is the biggest Toyota you can buy. And while you couldn't exactly call it a big car, it has all the things you'd expect to find in a much larger car.

More Power.

The Mark II comes with a powerful six cylinder, 2.6 litre, overhead camshaft engine. The biggest standard engine you'll find in the class. It produces a healthy 140 gross horsepower.

That's powerful.

More Luxury.

The Mark II even has a few things you wouldn't expect to find in a big car. Power steering for instance, isn't an expensive option. It's standard equipment. As are power front disc brakes and a manual 4-speed transmission. So, amazingly enough, is an AM/FM radio. An electric clock. Wall to wall carpeting. An interior that includes rich vinyl and fabric upholstery. A stabilizer-controlled suspension for a smooth, stable ride. You can also have an optional automatic transmission, for even more luxury.

More Room.

In the Mark II, legroom and headroom abound. Rear seat passengers aren't belittled either. The back seat is four and a half feet wide from door to door. A 41 footer can relax without his knees touching the back of the front seat. All round, that's roomy.

More Comfort.

The Mark II gives you a smooth ride. The seats were designed to fit the shape of your back. Contoured for comfort. Firm enough to support you while you're driving. But they also recline all the way back so you can relax when you're not.

More power. More luxury. More room. More comfort. 2-door Hardtop, 4-door Sedan, 5-door Station Wagon. All in all, the Toyota Mark II is a whole new kind of Toyota.

It's the most Toyota.

Toyota cars are sold and serviced from coast to coast in Canada and throughout the world.

Fascinating Books Offered For Your Child's Christmas

By JOANNE MacKENZIE
Staff Reporter

Parents often overlook the obvious when it comes to trying to decide what to get Johnny for Christmas. Midst mountains of toys and a bombardment of commercials, the thought of giving a child a book is often forgotten. But there is a growing selection of children's books with good illustrations available on the market.

Miss Jean Williams, children's librarian at the Corby Library, calls attention to the paperback editions available in book kits. The "Anne of Green Gables" series is still a popular favorite among young female readers as is the collection of pioneer tales written by Laura Engels.

One could go on and on naming "the old standbys" that still manage to fascinate a child — in fact you need only look back on your own favorite childhood stories to come up with gift ideas.

There's "Winnie the Pooh" and "Wind in the Willows", "Peter Rabbit", and "Grimm's Fairy Tales", "Mary Poppins" and on and on.

You shouldn't forget the modern and ever popular Charlie Brown books which according to Miss Williams are gone before they reach the library shelves!

Fascinating and beautifully illustrated Canadian books are available in the form of "The Wind Has Wings", a collection of Canadian poems, which will no doubt appeal to any and all ages; "Sally Go Round the Sun", by Edith Fowke, which features 200 songs, rhymes and games of Canadian children.

One need not stop there. The local library is a good place to visit and get ideas.

Of course, children's books are not the same any more. There is a trend toward more realism and telling it "like it is" even in fiction books. There is a trend toward stimulating a child's creativity, and an attitude that children's books should instruct at all times. Children's tastes are maturing in their selection of reading material and all in all they seem to be a more sophisticated crowd.

But at the same time books can be a primary source of entertainment and recreation, fantasy and fairy tales. Along with other forms of media that are increasingly relied upon today for entertainment the book can contain a new world for a child as well as being a private treasure.

As Miss Williams says "A child is never too young to receive a book and know the joy of possessing a book as his very own."

Last, but unfortunately not least, are prices which tend to run rather high, especially for illustrated editions. But once you start browsing in a local bookshop you may find it hard to resist.

Once Upon A Time..

Miss Jean Williams, children's librarian at Corby Library, leafs through a new edition available to young readers.

Ann Landers

This Homosexual's Happy Ann Says Majority Aren't

Dear Ann Landers: Let me begin by saying I am a homosexual, over 30, who neither flaunts his mode of life nor makes excuses for it. I would like to comment on the letter from the younger homosexual who signed himself On Edge. He asked you to help persuade his friend to let him move out of his parents' home into his place. The friend balked on the grounds that two single guys living together might look ill. Well post a sign. We are gay. Your advice was "You have all the problems you can handle. Don't add another by trying to move in with an unenthusiastic roommate. Get a place of your own."

I heartily agree that the young man should find a place of his own, but I take issue with your assumption that a homosexual is automatically burdened with problems just because he is gay. Homosexuals are no unhappier than anyone else. True, our lives aren't all peaches and cream, but then whose is?

I hope you will disabuse the public of the old myth that homosexuals are wretched and miserable. Please help tear down another wall of ignorance. — Avid Reader

Dear Avid: It is foolish to make a statement that all members of any group are one way or another. Groups are made up of individuals and each individual is different.

I do not agree with your statement that as a group, homosexuals are no unhappier than others. My mail reflects the opposite. And don't tell me my mail comes from the troubled, the unbalanced or the lunatic fringe. I hear from everybody.

Some homosexuals are content with their lot, but most of them would be straight if they had a choice. The most poorly-adjusted homosexuals are the closet queens who have a crippling fear of being found out. The anxiety and conflict in their lives are hideous. The saddest of all are the homosexuals who have been read off by their families. They feel abandoned, despised and guilty—and their name is legion.

Dear Ann Landers: In as much as the most persistent source of your correspondence seems to be from the short leg of the matrimonial triangle, I would like to propose the following theorem:

The ratio of spouses unfaithful to the marriage contract by the sweet act of commission is directly proportional to the number of spouses unfaithful to the marriage contract by the covert act of omission.

Let me start your list of "covert acts" by giving you an example.

1. Passive submission is the next thing to being out of town. It does nothing for anybody.

2. Set-with a profit motive is prostitution. I know because I'm there now.—Overt spouse But Not By Choice

Dear Overt: Your theorem, translated into ninth grade English, is:

1. Husbands who cheat do so because their wives are dead from the neck both ways.

2. If a man has to offer his wife a special bonus for bestowing her sexual favors, she is nothing more than a prostitute. Your signature suggests that you are getting set on the far side because the home-grown variety is unsatisfactory.

No one can judge the merits of a sexual relationship except the individuals involved. But this I can tell you, some men would rather eat garbage in a restaurant than a wholesome meal at home. Why? Don't ask me. It's one of those mysteries. It's one of those mysteries pending on who is doing the answering.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CORWELL

YES; and the roguest of rogues can—and often does—get away with anything as long as he claims he did it for love. Even notorious figures operating constantly outside the law who happen to be connected in the most tenuous manner with love will have public sympathy on their side. Nothing will change that forgiving attitude either, though it may become obvious that a "lovable" rogue has as much contempt for love as he has for everything else.

Can therapy help a chronic liar?

YES; if he sincerely wants to be cured of the problem that causes him to lie all the time. A therapist must be skilful in all cases, of course, but he really has to be on his toes in dealing with a chronic liar. It would be no trick at all to detect intentional lies. The difficulty in treating a chronic liar, though, is that very often the patient is sincerely anxious to please his therapist—even if it means telling lies.

Are children 'put down' too often?

YES, but parents could be forgiven since they may belittle their children without realizing it, in many cases, the various pressures of bringing up their family will prompt parents to decide a matter without considering the impact on a child's emotional well-being. A boy, for instance, might want a football helmet, yet his mother, fearful of his being injured, will say he can't have it because he hasn't been very good lately.

'Come Off-Season'

VERNON: B.C. (CP) — P. D. Crofton of the British Columbia department of travel industry says the department is trying to encourage more tourists to visit the province in the off season. More skiing holidays and conventions are being provoked and more funds will go into research on off-season tourism, he said.

Successful Living

Don't 'Gulp and Run' Breakfast's Important

By DORIS CLARK

Did you know that nutritionists urge us to get one-third of our day's nutritional needs from each of our three meals? This means you, and means breakfast.

Breakfast, the first meal of the day, is often not a real meal in a nutritional sense. Today, with about 50 percent of all women with school-age children working outside the home, it is increasingly an individual meal, prepared and eaten at different times by individual family members.

It is only on weekends that breakfast is likely to become the family social and communication occasion it once was.

The third national household menu census, done by the Market Research Corporation of America, states: About seven percent of our population selects no breakfast at all and another four percent chooses coffee only. Then come the toast - and - coffee brigade, before we start getting into something substantial: cereal with milk, or egg, bacon — and that Vitamin C stronghold: orange or other citrus fruit or juice.

How does your family stack up? Remember, you are what you eat!

Dear Doris: Many of your readers who write in about troubles of alcoholics in their family do not know anything about Al-Anon. Here in St. John's, Nfld., this organization has celebrated 11 years of existence. It helps the families of alcoholics whether or not the alcoholic himself thinks he has a drinking problem.

Alcoholism is in every sense a family and social illness. It is tremendously involved in home and highway accidents, crime, delinquency, industrial costs. Al-Anon and Al-Ateen help prevent family tragedies.

Through this world-wide organization, people are helped to understand a husband's or parents' problems with compassion and love. Here in St. John's you can find the A.A. number in the phone book. There are three Al - Anon meetings a week in St. John's and a meeting for Al-Ateens on Sunday night. — Concerned in Al-Anon.

Dear Concerned: It is wonderful that such an action group is helping the families of alcoholics in St. John's. I am publishing your letter in all the newspapers carrying my column. Since there are now many groups across Canada. Usually the A.A. number can be found in the phone book, and a sympathetic ear will put the caller in touch with a member of A.A., Al-Anon or Al-Ateens right away.

This kind of help can make all the difference to the happiness in a home.

(Leaflets mentioned by Doris are available to readers for 20 cents and a large stamped, self - addressed envelope. Send your letter in care of this newspaper.)

The Experts Say
Thawing Tips Suggested For Christmas Poultry

OTTAWA (CP) — If you want to thaw poultry by letting it stand at room temperature, wrap it in a brown paper bag or cover it with a towel. This prevents the outside of the poultry from thawing faster and getting warm before the inside thaws.

The current Dispatch, published by the educational services of the federal health and welfare department, contains handy hints on how to thaw, cook and store your holiday poultry safely.

It says poultry is a carrier of potentially harmful bacteria called salmonella. They are easily destroyed at recommended cooking temperatures, but sensible handling is also needed.

The safest way to thaw poultry is in the refrigerator or in cold water in a watertight bag or container. If you want to cook it frozen, the cooking time should be 1½ times the normal.

If you buy fresh poultry, keep it in the coldest part of the refrigerator. Remove the store wrapping and cover the bird loosely with waxed paper or aluminum foil. The giblets should be removed and stored separately as they spoil rapidly. Cook the bird within two or three days.

Even though time is usually of the essence during the holidays, don't stuff a bird before you're ready to cook it. Stuffing cools slowly and is an ideal place for bacteria to grow.

Stuff any bird loosely for cooking to allow heat to penetrate quickly through the dressing. For safety's sake, a meat thermometer is recommended to determine the temperature in the centre of the stuffing, not just in the meat. The temperature must reach 185 degrees.

If you buy a cooked, stuffed turkey from a caterer, remove the stuffing and keep both turkey and stuffing hot until you are ready to serve.

If the bird is delivered well ahead of time, remove the stuffing and refrigerate both turkey and stuffing until it's time to reheat it. To reheat, cover the bird with aluminum foil and baste occasionally. Put it in a 300- to 350-degree oven and heat until the meat thermometer reaches a temperature of at least 140. Keep in mind the turkey may have been held in the danger zone for several hours during delivery.

The danger zone is temperatures between 40 and 140 degrees. Bacteria-causing food born illness can grow and multiply rapidly between these temperatures.

When turkey has been cooked, cool it for storage as quickly as possible. You may want to take the meat off the carcass immediately.

A cooked bird should not be left on the table or the counter for more than two hours.

To store leftovers, it's safest to remove the meat and make it into separate meal-sized packages. Store them in a covered container, a plastic bag or aluminum foil for three or four days.

Stuffing should be removed and wrapped separately. It will keep only a day or two in the refrigerator.

Cooked poultry may be stored up to a month in the freezer.

SLICK TRICK

● Better than sandpaper to roughen slippery soles of small children's shoes — a metal mesh scouring pad, usually used on pots and pans.

Overcooking Pork?

Do you offer your family burnt offerings? Many people still overcook pork. If you and your family prefer a hicker roast of pork, you may safely lower the internal cooking temperature to 170 degrees F.

Mrs. Copp Finds Camera Owner.

TRURO, N.S. (CP) — Friends thought Mrs. Fulton Copp was "crazy" for her camera bag caper but in the end she was really "happy" about the way things turned out.

It all began last August when Mrs. Copp and a friend were visiting a park near here. As they were about to leave, Mrs. Copp found a camera bag containing a flash and film.

A gardener was unable to help Mrs. Copp locate the owner and calls to the lands and forest department, police and a tourist information centre also proved fruitless.

There was no identification in the camera bag. Then Mrs. Copp decided to have the film developed in the hope that there might be some clue as to the owner in the film slides.

Without a slide projector, she went to another friend's home, viewed the slides and found one containing a picture of a car with Quebec licence plates.

She returned to the RCMP where she traced the owner of the car, wrote the owner and mailed the camera bag to the owner's address.

Several months later a letter appeared in the Truro news paper signed by Ronald Tees of Ste. Marthe sur le Lac, Que. It read: "A big vote of thanks to Mrs. Copp who proves there are still honest people in this world."

Mr. Tees wrote: "I can't express enough my gratitude for someone who would go to the trouble to do what this wonderful person did."

What would motivate a person to go to all that trouble to find the owner of the camera bag?

Mrs. Copp said in an interview she didn't want the bag "hanging around here . . . it didn't belong to me and I knew someone would be looking for it."

Mrs. Copp said most people in the area thought "I was crazy for going to all that trouble. "I'm really happy he got it back safely."

Exchange Pupil Adjusted to

HALIFAX (CP) — For a 16-year-old Mexican girl arriving in Canada on a one-year student exchange program, the first hurdles were learning the language and getting used to her first snowfall.

And then she had to acquire the knack of making beds and washing clothes.

At her home in Celaya, Mex., the family of Silvia Gomez Guzman employed four servants to look after the household chores. But during the exchange program sponsored by the Rotary Club, the visitor is expected to assume the same responsibilities as other students in the host family.

When she arrived here in late August, Silvia said she only knew three sentences of English: "My name is Silvia Guzman. I am 16 years old. Don't ask me any questions."

But with the help of her host family and students in her Grade 12 class she is rapidly becoming more familiar with the language.

During her stay, Silvia will live for three months with four Canadian families and said that so far the trip has been "a good experience for knowledge."

There appears to be much more freedom here compared with the conservative society of Mexico and the young student said she welcomes the chance to make her own decisions.

Doing so many things for the first time was an "incredible sensation," she said, and she was particularly enthralled with the first snowstorm of the season.

"I wrote seven letters to Mexico that day, I just couldn't believe it."

A major difference, aside from the weather, said Silvia, is that she can't readily tell the difference between the rich and the poor in Canada. In Mexico, she says, the distinction is obvious.

Cooking Times

Cooking times are difficult to judge. Wise chefs use a meat thermometer to indicate when the meat has reached the desired internal temperature. For example, with beef a temperature of 140 degrees - rare; 150 - 160 degree F. indicates medium; and well done, 170 degree F. A meat thermometer eliminates guess work.

Flood of Mail Reaching Peak

The seasonal paper flood is rain in mercy spate.

The deluge of cards, letters and parcels moving in and out of the Hastings-Prince Edward counties' area through the city's postal terminal, should peak next Monday estimates Belleville postmaster Roy Wainwright.

By that time, more than a half-million pieces of mail may be moving daily through the terminal's postal processes.

The 1972 Christmas - mail rush cranked up against a background of predictions that labor restlessness over long-drawn negotiations could see a strike/daily - timed strike.

But, it now seems that rumors haven't scared people from the mail boxes.

The volume of mail moving through the Belleville terminal has been on its traditional spiral in recent weeks.

By Monday, 423,000 pieces of mail — including every thing from postcards to parcels — had been processed in and out of the city post office, says Mr. Wainwright.

This compares with an average-day total of about 175,000.

The volume is definitely up from other years, estimates the postmaster, although it's difficult to immediately pinpoint exact statistics because of an administrative refinement. This year, cards that once were sorted at 22 smaller, outlying post offices, now are being processed directly at Belleville, to speed up dispatch.

As usual, part - time reinforcements have been fed into the regular 78-member workforce to offset pressure of the mounting mail volume.

To date, about 100 men and women have been hired as casual sorters, loaders, carriers to expedite the mail flow. At peak, 170 part-time helpers will have been hired — about the same number as last Christmas.

However, earlier - than - usual mailing deadlines still are in effect, after which 'we cannot guarantee delivery in time for Christmas," cautions the postmaster.

For Christmas cards being mailed out of the town, the deadline is today. Last day for local mail is Dec. 17.

This Saturday stickets at the post office are open eight a.m. to noon.

Unwieldy Councils May Be Cut

The 13 additional deputy reeves who will come to Hastings county for the January session may have their county council membership cut short.

This was indicated in council Tuesday as members voted to have a private bill placed before the Ontario Legislature, which if approved, would cut county council membership almost in half.

Because of recent changes in the Ontario Election Act, the number of electors in 13 county municipalities was boosted above 1,000 which means they are entitled to a deputy reeve.

These council members were duly elected at the December 4 vote and the 13 additional members will take their seats on the county body.

This will boost council membership to 41that if the private bill is approved, council members would be reduced to 28, and only two deputy reeves — those from Sidney and Thurlow townships would remain.

The Hastings county petition will be based on petitions from Victoria and Simcoe counties already approved by the legislature.

Under these bills, municipalities with less than 7,500 municipal electors are entitled to only one member and one vote on county council.

When there are between 7,500 and 2,000 electors, municipalities are entitled to a reeve on county council, both with one vote each. Where the municipality has more than 15,000 but less than 7,500 electors, the reeve would have two votes in county council and where there are more than 7,500 both the reeve and deputy reeve would have two votes on the county body.

Mr. Bateman explained to council the private bill would not cut out the position of deputy reeve, but would serve to reduce the number of councillors sitting on county council.

The clerk - administrator said the private bill would become effective immediately it is passed by the legislature.

A Brotherly Hand

Mailman Bruce MacKinnon had helping hand from within the family as, in true postal tradition, he went rounds in yesterday's snow storm. Assigned to assist him deliver Christmas mail was brother, Roy. Close to 170 casual workers will be hired by Belleville post office before seasonal mail rush is done.

Best Lights Get Cash

Two lucky people of the Tracey Park Limited income housing project will be honored tomorrow night for their outdoor Christmas lighting schemes.

Rollins Construction, manager of the 77 - unit project south of Tracey St. and west of Sidney St., will give two prizes for the best lighting in the subdivision.

Pete Petio, property manager for Rollins, said today the judges will be Gerald Joyce, Ald. Jean Smith and Lloyd Syers, city park director.

The three judges will leave the annual year-end dinner meeting of the parks board to do the judging for the construction company. Mr. Petio said.

First prize for the best exterior lighting will be $25. Second prize will be a basket of groceries for a complete Christmas dinner.

Christmas Trees Are Fire Hazards

Christmas trees come in many configurations these days. For anywhere between $1 and $20, you can choose from a variety of styles and shapes — tall or short, green or silver, metal or plastic — even good old wood.

But there's one thing all trees have in common. They are potential fire hazards.

Belleville has been lucky in recent years. The last fire to occur here that could be traced to a Christmas tree was on Dec. 26, 1958.

Fire Chief Leo Culhane and members of the Belleville Fire Prevention Bureau hope the good record keeps up. To help prevent a Christmas tragedy, they have issued a list of holiday reminders for all tree owners.

— Don't buy a dried out tree. Those brittle branches can turn into charged sticks in 10 seconds if ignited.

— Store the tree outside until it is ready to be erected. If it must be stored inside, recut the butt and immerse it in water, maintaining the water supply constantly.

When the tree is erected, make sure the butt is cut diagonally before immersing it. That way, there's more area to absorb water and keep the tree moist. Otherwise, it will be tinder dry within a week.

— Keep trees away from heat sources and do not place them near exits. Smoking and the accumulation of wrapping material are also dangerous around trees.

—Metallic trees are conductors of electricity and should not be decorated with strings of lights, but illuminated with floodlights. Among plastic trees, those made from styrene materials are flammable, unlike those made from polyvinylchloride.

—Lighting equipment should bear the Canadian Standards Association label of approval and be checked before it is used. And along the same lines, use only decorations made of non combustible or approved slow-burning material.

—Use of fire - retardent chemical sprays for trees is no substitute for best intentions and is not recommended. The spray cannot cover the entire tree.

—Finally, parents are urged to guard the safety of their small children during the holiday season by making sure they are not left alone in the house. If you're going out, hire a babysitter to watch the children and assure your freedom from worry.

Lawyer Protests Dismissal of Case

Dismissal of the case against the provincial government and Lake Ontario Cement Ltd. over the sand quarrying operations at Sandbanks will have Ontario-wide implications.

"Since no concept of public trust is inherent in the Provincial Parks Act, the provincial government can dispose of or make use of parkland in any way it wishes with no means of recourse or public consultation," said David Estrin of the Environmental Law Association.

Mr. Estrin acted for the plaintiff in the case, Energy Pollution Probe researcher Larry Green.

Mr. Green, in his action, said the government had committed a breach of trust in allowing the cement company to remove sand from its 16 leased acres adjacent to Sandbanks Provincial Park.

Mr. Justice Mayer Lerner of the Ontario Supreme Court said Monday Mr. Green's action was frivolous, adding that a declaration of statutory trust was not open to Mr. Green unless he has a special interest above that of the general public.

Mr. Green's action, taken in conjunction with Pollution Probe and the National and Provincial Parks Association of Canada, was brought on his behalf and on behalf of all other people in Ontario and future generations.

The associations are rallying support for protection of provincial parks.

They were joined Tuesday by the Federation of Ontario Naturalists and the Algonquin Wildlands League in urging the provincial government act immediately to protect provincial parks in light of the court's decision.

Meanwhile, removal of sand from the cement company's site ceased in September pending the result of this suit and another brought by Terra Nova secretary Agda Rayner.

The cement company had been denied a licence under the Pits and Quarries Act but the court cases were resolved.

Bruce Price, LOCL vice-president, has said a major source of raw material has been denied the company and "this has reduced our revenues considerably."

"We have not found a replacement for that material and we have continued our search for alternative sites."

It is understood the company has requested permission to dredge sand from the waters near Amherst and Wolfe Islands, but the request was denied.

It is reported that Ontario Hydro expects some difficulties from a sandbar in the Adolphus Beach near its new hydro generating plant at Bath. The plant will pump heated waste water into the reach and it is thought the sand bar may prevent dissipation of the heat. The bar may have to be removed to allow free flow of the water.

The Ontario government has stated its intention of regaining the leased site from the cement company through negotiations. But Mr. Price has repeatedly said no other source of sand can be found. Bert Lawrence, provincial secretary for resource development promised company officials in Nov. 27 that he would arrange a meeting between representatives of the workers and technical personnel from his own department to discuss finding other sand sources. The meeting has not yet been arranged.

Mr. Price has been quoted as saying his company has made no public statements because it did not want to indulge in public controversy.

Trenton Committee Predicts Surplus

TRENTON (Staff) — Based on a financial report presented by town treasurer Brian Fagan Tuesday night, Trenton's recreation committee is predicting a capital surplus, for the first time since its formation.

Although the actual figure could fluctuate between now and the end of 1972, Mr. Fagan believes the surplus could be in the neighborhood of between $2,000 and $3,000, he told the committee.

Most influential figure shown on the November end of-month report concerns the income from the Tam O'Shanter Hockey School. At budget time, income of $2,300 was predicted. To date, income is well over the $10,500 mark. After totals were taken, the income variance amounts to slightly less than $15,000 above the budget.

At the same time, expenditures were up to $6,218. Most expensive of those budgeted for was a building repairs, which had climbed $2,187 from original estimates.

"Surplus of $6,422 at this time is expected to dwindle with purchase of a new concenser for the arena, at a cost of $3,000.

Said committee member John Hogg, "this is definitely a major step forward." This is the first time members do not participate a deficit in annual operations of the department.

Junk Yard Bylaw Is Under Review

A city bylaw calling for fencing of junk yards in the municipality is currently under review by the city police commission.

This was stated today by City Police Chief Douglas Crosbie, who said the type of fence to be required was one of the matters under review.

At Monday evening's city council meeting a petition was received from residents on Raij Moira Street complaining of their across the river view of the Ben Sale junk yard premises on Station Street. The petitioners stated the matter had been brought before council 18 months ago and said they were later informed Mr. Sale had been given a few months to fence his yard.

Today, however, Mr. Sale told The Intelligencer he had received no order to fence his yard, either from or rear.

Police Chief Crosbie said that when the review of the bylaw has been completed, all junk yard dealers will be informed of its requirements.

Fined $195

A Belleville man was fined $195 in Provincial Court Tuesday after he was involved in an accident Oct. 27 while impaired.

Brian Hayes, 19, of 7 Elm St., was stopped on Leland Rd. when a patrol officer noticed him speeding and made a stop sign. It was later discovered he had been in a Dundas St. collision several minutes earlier.

The Loyalist College student was also fined for driving without a licence and failure to produce proof of insurance. He was prohibited from driving for six months.

Stores Bilked

The man, who confined himself to Front St., talked his way into a $50 payoff at Kresge Department Store and $20 at Toys Discounts. In addition, he is suspected of hitting at least one more store.

City police describe the man as in his 30s, about five feet seven, 150 to 160 pounds, clean shaven with medium length black hair and wearing a three-quarter length brown coat.

Scuffler Fined

Involved in a scuffle Nov. 23 at Tim Horton Donuts, John Robert Bunnett, 28, pleaded guilty to resisting a peace officer in Provincial Court Tuesday. Three other charges arising from the altercation were withdrawn.

Bunnett, who lives at 138 Charles St., was holding a man against a wall after the man threw coffee in his face. Two city police officers, called by store employees, told Bunnett to release his grip but he was resisting to do so.

Bunnett was fined $50.

Square Dancing Santas

Rallying to the call, the Quinte Twirlers Square Dance Association has presented the firefighters' Christmas appeal with 200 gifts and a cash donation. Ralph Boomhower, left, director of the fire fighters' project, says more gifts are needed to supply the 1,000 names on Belleville's needy list. At right is Bill Downing who helped organize the dancers' drive.

Weather Forces Plane's Return

TRENTON (Staff) — Due to freezing rain that hit the Quinte area mid - afternoon Tuesday, controllers at CFB Trenton were forced to order a regular armed forces passenger flight to return to Ottawa.

A spokesman for the control centre said the plane, on a regular, eastbound run from Edmonton to Ottawa, and then to Trenton, had already departed Ottawa when the bad weather set in. However, the diversion due to bad weather was not an unusual occurrence.

This was the only delay reported at the air base. Snow plows kept runways clear and throughout most of the fall of mixed snow, sleet, freezing rain, flights were maintained at regular pace.

Even Lord Nelson Had Motion Misery

TORONTO (CP) — If you suffer the miseries of motion sickness, you're in good company.

Lawrence of Arabia got sick when he bumped across the desert on his camel; Lord Nelson got sick when his ship rolled and pitched on the Atlantic; and Julius Caesar got a tummy ache when thundering along on his chariot.

"Another famous case," says physiologist Dr. K. E. Money, "was a naturalist Charles Darwin.

"Apparently, he got so seasick that he got off his boat at every chance he could."

Motion sickness plagues mankind in airplanes, boats, automobiles, and swings and on other moving objects such as camels, elephants and roller coaster rides.

Dr. Money, who works for the defence research board of the forces and civil institute of environmental medicine in Toronto, said scientists are making some progress on the subject but they still are puzzled.

Dr. Money who has studied the problem with world authorities on the subject, said in an interview a good contemporary example was a Russian cosmonaut who vomited all over his capsule.

"At one point, he said he felt so bad that he thought he was going to die."

The most frequent signs and symptoms of motion sickness are pallor, cold sweating, nausea and vomiting.

Some persons are so seriously afflicted that they get sick by just looking at a ship, a phenomenon Dr. Money described as a conditioned reflex.

Dr. Money said scientists are missing a link in the chain of acause and effect and that there probably is a chemical within the body that, if isolated as the missing link, might lead to rapid discoveries and treatment procedures.

Some interesting discoveries have been made: For example, women are more susceptible than men and the rate of motion sickness is 25 times higher on ships than on airplanes.

Dr. Money said commercial drugs are reliable but also offered advice for those who suffer from the sickness.

For those who get sick in cars, he suggests that they keep a steady eye on the horizon because the visual stability appears to help the sufferer.

"It is simply folklore to believe that static electricity from an automobile's tires causes motion sickness and that a chain dangling from the rear bumper will solve the problem."

For those who get seasick, Dr. Money suggested they watch the distant horizon while on deck. If below deck, they should lie down, close their eyes and think of anything else but getting sick.

"If you are able to talk to someone below deck while lying down, that usually helps."

He also said that those who get sick while flying should try to look at the horizon and make sure that they use the head rest so that the head does not move too much.

Dr. Money's department gives instructions about motion sickness to medical officers in flight surgeons' courses since proven effective in overcoming motion sickness to people planning new vehicles or an alteration of an old one.

Blocks Build Grammar

SASKATOON (CP) — Grade 1 students may soon find themselves building with blocks—creating sentences this time, instead of the castles of their pre-school days.

The blocks, developed by Prof. Robert Scott of the University of Saskatchewan's English department, are designed to teach Grade 1 students the grammar and semantics of written sentences.

Two sets of the color-coded word blocks have been developed—one to teach English and one to teach French. The blocks are based on a new kind of grammar developed by Prof. Scott.

The grammar, called "transformational rhetoric," has all sentences regarded as variations of one basic pattern, subject-verb-object-qualifier. Once this pattern is understood, students can experiment with all possible variations and move from writing sentences to constructing paragraphs, stories and essays.

Prof. Scott found that first graders, without realizing it, already know a variety of sentence patterns which they pick up while learning to talk.

The word blocks enable them to use the language they already know in new ways and to develop a more critical awareness of patterns and meanings.

The blocks, resembling children's construction blocks, can be cut from wood or folded out of construction paper, with words painted or pasted on the sides. The words, selected for children at the Grade 1 level, are arranged according to their functions in sentences—verbs on one block; nouns another, adverbs on another, and so on.

Related words are on blocks of related colors: red for nouns; pink, orange and salmon for the pronouns, adjectives and numbers which replace or qualify nouns; blue for verbs; blue-green for auxiliaries; yellow for adverbs; black, white and grey for punctuation and structural words.

The two sets of word blocks have been tested with English and French-speaking students in Saskatoon with favorable results. The French-language blocks have also been tested in Paris and a Tunisian school official recently asked about their use.

Turk Law Going Way Of Veil

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Mejelle civil code, pride of the Ottoman empire and once a widely respected body of law, has been sentenced to final extinction in Israel's parliament.

The Mejelle took effect in 1869 and survived the empire that created it by 52 years.

Israel, whose territory was part of the Ottoman empire when this area was called Palestine, is the last country whose legal code still contains remnants of the Mejelle. A bill to abolish these scattered remains has been accepted into committee in parliament without fanfare, and the death of the Turkish code, once symbol of a powerful people, was a virtual certainty.

"It became an anchronism," said Zvi Sivan, a Justice Ministry spokesman.

Some of its 1,851 clauses were still theoretically acceptable in Israeli courts. One law ruled that a wet-nurse was entitled to payment even if the baby would not take her milk. Another made provision for signing contracts in towns where, if a deaf-mute could make himself understandable by sign language, his word was his bond.

All these still are applicable, but since its establishment 24 years ago, Israel has painstakingly been working the Mejelle out of its legal system and replacing it with laws built on European lines.

But pockets of the Mejelle—pronounced Me-jell—remain in Israeli law books. The new bill will make them automatically void as they pop up in the courts.

Basically, the Mejelle was a civil code drawn from Islamic law and liberalized by including large tracts of the Napoleonic code. When the British and French armies captured and truncated the Ottoman empire they allowed the Mejelles to remain in force.

Kemal Ataturk, father of modern Turkey; abolished the code along with the veil, the fez and Arabic script, and replaced it with modern Western law. Arab countries once under Ottoman rule eliminated the Mejelle as they won independence.

Professors Scrutinized By Students

BOMBAY (CP) — One of India's biggest universities has begun a bold experiment in student participation in academic affairs.

Henceforth, all appointments of professors at the Banaras Hindu University at Varanasi in Uttar Pradesh state will be "scrutinized" by student representatives who will be included in the selection committees.

University officials said the students on the selection committees will have only the status of observers but will have no direct voice in choosing their professors.

But the university student union is jubilant over the decision.

"It is a victory for the student community which has been agitating for more rights and responsibilities," one union official said.

The Banaras authorities hope that the move to involve students in the decision-making process will bring peace to the troubled campus.

"This is a challenge to the wisdom and maturity of our youth," said a member of the academic council.

But not everyone is happy about the Banaras experiment.

A professor of the University of Bombay asked: "How long will it take for students to get a real voice in appointing and even dismissing their professors?"

Fear Toxicity

U.S. May Limit Vitamin Doses

WASHINGTON (AP) — Citing a danger of "acute and chronic toxicity" in high doses, the Food and Drug Administration today moved to limit the strength of Vitamin A and D products.

"The availability without prescription of these vitamins in high dosage levels contributes significantly to their misuse and the occurrence of serious adverse effects," the agency said.

Interested persons have 60 days to comment on the proposal, which will be followed "in the near future" by broad regulations covering most other vitamins, minerals, and other food supplements.

The immediate effect of the A and D proposal would be to require reformulation of an undetermined number of multi-vitamins, the FDA said.

The restrictions would apply also, FDA added, to vitamin products marketed as foods for special dietary purposes and as over-the-counter drugs.

The FDA said it has received reports of heavy promotion of both vitamins A and D for the treatment of acne, night blindness and arthritis although neither is proven effective for these conditions in well-nourished people.

The proposed daily limits are 10,000 international units for Vitamin A and 400 for D, which the FDA said would be "within the recommended daily dosages" established by the National Academy of Sciences.

Some products now on the market contain 10 times the recommended intake of D, the FDA said.

Natural sources of Vitamin A, necessary for growth and good eyesight, include liver, butter, margarine, yellow cheese, carrots, sweet potatoes, apricots, cantaloupe and green leafy vegetables.

Fortified milk and sunlight provide vitamin D which helps build strong bones and teeth.

The FDA said overdose of Vitamin A can cause a wide range of complications, such as anorexia, growth retardation in children, drying and cracking skin, increased pressure in the skull, pain, irritability and headaches.

Unemployed Benefits 165 Per Cent Higher

OTTAWA (CP) — Benefits paid to unemployed persons under the Unemployment Insurance Act were 165 per cent higher in October than in the same month last year. The number of those claiming benefits was 63 per cent greater than a year ago.

These figures were released Tuesday in a monthly report issued by Statistics Canada.

Changes in unemployment insurance laws last January reduced the waiting period before benefits can start and increased the level of payments.

Benefits paid in October increased to $138 million compared with $52 million in October, 1971. They were eight per cent higher than the $128 million paid out in September this year.

At the end of October 700,000 claimants were registered for unemployment insurance compared with 436,000 in October last year. The monthly rise was 3.4 per cent from the 677,000 registered in September this year.

The figures are overstated by up to 25 per cent because claimants who become employed after applying for benefits are not transferred to the inactive file for five weeks.

New and renewal claims for insurance totalled 195,000 in October, up 15 per cent from the previous month and 21 per cent from October, 1971.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

All drivers know, or should know, that keeping at least one car length between themselves and the car ahead for each 10 miles of speed is one of the basic rules of safety. In theory this practice works well until the motorist discovers how difficult it is to determine accurately the number of fee tthis manoeuvre requires. The Canadian Auto Association's "time measure" method, called "Two, Twelve-and-Adjust," here's how it works.

At the moment the vehicle ahead of you passes a fixed road mark, such as a sign, pole or mail box, count "A-thousand - one, A - thousand-two". When the two second count is completed, the fixed point should be just passing by the front of your car.

If you find that it takes less than two seconds to reach the fixed point, that's a signal that you are following the car ahead too closely.

An important advantage of this rule is that it automatically adjusts to any speed. Remember though, that when confronted with fog, rain, or poor road conditions, motorists should add an extra second to the formula.

Down-road vision is another extremely important factor. By positioning yourself properly in the traffic flow, you can usually prevent yourself from getting "boxed-in". Again choose a fixed point down the road at about the distance you normally concentrate your attention. Once you have chosen a point such as the crest of a hill, a bridge or a bend in the road, count off the seconds it takes you to travel to this point by the same "A thousand-one" method. The result should be 12 seconds.

If you find that it is only six to eight seconds, there is no reason to worry. That's the average "score" for a person not trained in this technique. Practice will enable you to expand your visual attention to the road scene even more than 12 seconds ahead.

Like the first rule, the visual lead time technique adjusts to all speeds. There are exceptions to it, of course, such as when driving round a corner, under a bridge, into fog or in "stop and go" city traffic conditions but it should always be kept in mind as an optimum goal.

The "adjust" part of the formula merely means correcting the position of your bicycle within the traffic pattern by accelerating, braking and steering. And once the two-and twelve-second time rules are applied, these key manoeuvres can be made much more effectively.

QUESTION: Several of our friends have suggested that we spend our winter vacation at Panama City in Florida. They say that rates for accommodation are lower than elsewhere in Florida. Is this true? What sized place is it?

ANSWER: One of the leading ports in Florida, Panama City is on St. Andrew Bay, a three-fingered indentation of the Gulf of Mexico. Spanish expeditions visited this site between 1535 and 1569. However, the earliest English settlement was not made until 1765 at St. Andrew, now part of Panama City.

This once sleepy fishing village is today recognized as one of the most progressive industrial and resort cities in the state, with a population of 32,000. A $7 million municipal marina, at the foot of Harrison Avenue, includes the city hall, an auditorium, library and berths for about [illegible] boats. Another marina in St. Andrews has facilities for [illegible] boats. Fishing boats may be chartered for full or half days on St. Andrew Bay; fees vary, check locally.

West of Panama City, the drive to Fort Walton on US 98, a part of the Gulf Coast Highway, is picturesque.

Located as it is in the northern part of the state, it is looked on as more of a summer rather than a winter resort area. Consequently, low-season rates for accommodation are generally in effect from September to May.

Abortions Keep Japan Births Low

TOKYO (AP) — To an Asian continent desperate to hold down its population growth, a Japanese official suggests the method that worked in Japan—condoms and abortions.

Japan's population growth rate dropped to 9.0 per 1,000 in 1957 from 19.3 in 1947, and Nobuo Shinozaki of the Institute of Population Problems in Japan's welfare ministry says he thinks it will work effectively in other Asian countries.

"However much money you dump, you cannot control the population growth in underdeveloped countries with oral pills and other contraceptive methods," Shinozaki says. "The pill is too complicated to use for the uneducated farmers." Peasants make up most of Asia's population.

"How can you expect them to see a doctor regularly for physical examinations and take the pill every day—even if it was given out free?

"And many of these countries cannot wait for educational improvement or economic development which will lessen the pressure of huge population," Shinozaki said in an interview.

"An ideal contraceptive," he added, "must be inexpensive, easy to use, safe, effective and unobjectionable to sexual activity.

"The condom is it. . . ."

"Why not distribute condoms widely in the countries with serious population problems? And at the same time, send experienced doctors there to train local doctors and nurses in groups for abortion operations?" he asked.

"This way, I believe, we can solve the population problem in many underdeveloped countries in a matter of a few years.

Abortions, legalized in Japan soon after the Second World War, are believed to have exceeded the total number of live births for many years in this country.

Some 70 per cent of Japan's married couples use condoms, some combining them with other contraceptive methods such as the rhythm or safe period—method, the intra-uterine device and foaming tablets, officials say.

These Czechs Won't Bounce

by

Eric Emerson

Sports Editor

Friends and fans of the Belleville Quintes have been worried about the fate of our Senior A hockey entry when they face the Moscow Dynamos — they have reason to.

However, behind every black barrage of rubber is said to be a silver lining and in the Quintes' case that saying holds true. After all, they could be meeting the Czechs on Jan. 5th.

On paper, at least, the puck representatives of Czechoslovakia figure as prohibitive favorites in the 15-day tournament that gets under way December 26.

No less than 12 members of the Czech national team that held Team Canada to a 3-3 draw in September will be representing the Tchrra hockey club. Included in that contingent will be Jan Nedomansky, who has been called the "Super Star of Europe" and is quite possibly the best hockey player on the entire continent (or world). The centre is a 10 year veteran of the Czech national team.

The Czech entry seems to be a little contrary to the concept of the entire tournament. CAHA president Joe Krycka explained that the significance of the event would be that for the first time club teams from Europe, and not a national squad picked from the best players in the country, would be competing in Canada.

Krycka assured the motley assortment of sportswriting types gathered for free food and press releases in the Maple Leaf Gardens Hot Stove lounge that, "I think that you'll find the calibre of competition in this tournament is going to be very close and one reason for that is, of course, that the teams that will be competing in this OHA Sr-A International Tournament, from Sweden, Czechoslovakia and Russia are club teams." He then went on to explain that tournaments scheduled for the same time in Europe would preclude any of the visitors from stacking their teams.

There is one small question that comes to mind concerning this: If the Tirnra Hockey Club has a dozen players from the national team, including the Czech Phil Esposito, how did they manage to finish only third in their country's league?

Gordon Juckes, executive director of the CAHA shed some light on this matter when he informed that. "the Czechs are not really a club team. Since many of their players are involved in European tournaments, they asked permission to select players from two or three clubs."

Matched against this prospective powerhouse will be the Russians, Swedes, Galt Hornets, Owen Sound Downtowners and Kingston Aces.

An ironic point is that Gord Renwick, one of the tournament's prime organizers, is also president of the Galt Hornets and one of his aims in organizing the tournament is to "give hockey fans a better understanding of the calibre of play in the Senior A league and their ability to compete on an international level."

This is a fine, noteworthy aim-until certainly the eastern of Senior A hockey will be boosted immeasurably if the Canadian teams can compete with the Europeans.

But 12 members of the Czech national team—Canada's John Beecher, Vance Millar and Steve Deptuck—scored where Yvan Courtnoyer, Serge Savard and Phil Esposito failed to surpass the talents of the Czechs?

My heart says," "maybe"; my head, no way."

And in case Belleville residents are pledging any fears over the plight of Galt, Kingston and Owen Sound, it might not. urt to save a few for the Quintes. Three members of the Moscow Dynamos, who will play an exhibition game here on January 5th, were members of the Russian National team. In all probability Georgi Godom will take the opening face-off against Alexander Maistev.

Comrade Maistev, in case you have forgotten, was the centre between Alexander Yakushev and Valery Kharmamov on the Soviet's top line in September.

If the Quintes can come within five goals of players of this calibre, I would gladly eat every derogatory word I've directed their way in this trying season (a la Dick Beddoes and his newsprint borscht). The nicest sound in this city could hear January 5th would be our beloved sports editor choking on one of his split participles — but don't bet on it.

Gaiety's Jule Faces Threat

Pacing mare Gaiety's Jule, in the second-to-last race at Frontenac Downs fall meet, will be trying for her seventh straight win in the featured ninth race tonight.

The four-year-old mare, owned by the estate of the late Clarence Carson, could be in plenty of trouble against a horse back from the Golden Horseshoe Circuit.

Chris Siamonis, who is the close race for leading percentage driver with John Hunbarck, will drive Gaiety's Jule, while J. McDonald will guide Dominion Lad towards the wire.

Din's Knight, Ace's Choice, Rusty Pete, Jim Dusty, Check Mark and Marion Maud round out the field for the ninth race.

'Game Rough': Says Mayorov

MONTREAL (CP) — The theme was familiar.

After the bolstered Montreal Red, White and Blue battled to a 3-3 tie against Moscow Selects in an exhibition hockey game Tuesday night, Soviet coach Boris Mayorov complained about the Montreal team's rough and aggressive play.

"The game was very rough," Mayorov said in a post-game news conference.

"We came here to play hockey not to fight. Hockey is a game of brains, not boxing and wrestling.

"This game was the toughest we have played thus far. Maybe it was because this team was stronger and rougher."

Mayorov said three Russian players were hurt in the game, one of them seriously. Eugeny Kotlov took a seven-stitch cut on the back of the head in the first period after being flattened by Montreal defenceman Larry Robinson, who normally plays with Nova Scotia Voyageurs of the American Hockey League.

"First he body-checked Kotlov," Mayorov said. "Then he cross-checked him. Kotlov did not know where he was for a while after he left the ice."

Yury Shatalov suffered a charley horse while Michael Tylow had a gash over his right eye.

Mayorov did not complain about the refereeing of Marcel Vaillancourt, but Montreal coach Roger Bedard did.

Junior Competition Next Step Taken by International Hockey

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Editor

TORONTO — What direction is international hockey heading?

It's heading for Belleville and Kingston and Orillia and Brantford and a lot of other familiar places. That was the major item of hard news forthcoming from Tuesday's press conference at Maple Leaf Gardens.

The conference was staged by the Royal Bank of Canada, which is sponsoring a forthcoming tournament between club teams from Russia, Czechoslovakia, Sweden and members of the OHA Senior A league.

Joe Krycska, president of the CAHA was contacted by phone at his Calgary law office. He speculated on a number of issues pertaining to international hockey, but offered few concrete revelations.

The CAHA president did make it clear that he believes the next major step in international hockey will be competition at a junior level. "We're sending the Memorial Cup winners to Czechoslovakia in May for a seven game exhibition series to explore the junior area because we feel that the next, most exciting place that internation-al hockey is going to be played is on the junior level," said Krycska.

The Czechs have indicated that they would like to stage a world junior championship in 1974 and we have had some preliminary discussions in our organization about perhaps hosting such a championship in the year 1975.

The beauty about that area is that we don't have to worry about who's a professional and who's not a professional because the world junior organizations are all the same now."

Asked whether or not he felt that the NHL was pulling an "end around" to bypass the CAHA in setting up future series with the Russians, Mr. Krycska observed that "We're not certain what the NHL is doing. They didn't intend to consult us on their proposed January series with Russia, but until we've spoken to the Soviet officials, we won't know what direction they're taking."

While the CAHA head is concerned about a proposed overtake by the NHL, he seems nevertheless willing to exclude the third member of September's triumvirate that helped lay the groundwork for the Canada - Russia series.

When questioned where Hockey Canada fit into international hockey, if at. all, Krycza replied, "That's a loaded question . . . my reaction is this: the prime objective towards which Hockey Canada was pointed at our last meeting is in assisting us in the area of experimentation, preparation, research, skills and development. A secondary purpose was to explore whether Hockey Canada had any place in international hockey or not, with particular emphasis towards the 1976 Olympics.

"The CAHA's agreement with Hockey Canada regarding its involvement in the fielding of the national hockey team has not been re-negotiated, and at this time I would say that Hockey Canada's position in international hockey is very tenuous now." He added that if Hockey Canada's task force on the Olympics proved worthwhile that the CAHA might then consider its position concerning the national team.

On the future of senior tournaments such as the one being held this year, he said that, "We would have to have a look at it from a financial point of view, but bearing in mind that a lot national overtures it might. be that this kind of a tournament could be staged in the west."

Russian Series Next Season?

MONTREAL (CP) — Negotiations between the National Hockey League and representatives of the Soviet Union's ice hockey federation for an international series between teams from the two groups next season continued here Tuesday.

But Clarence Campbell, president of the NHL, said following a 3½-hour meeting with Andrei Starovoitov, general secretary of the Soviet Ice Hockey Federation, that "no decisions were arrived at" during the session.

Also on hand from the NHL were Bruce Norris, president of the Red Wings, Walter Bush, president of Minnesota North Stars, Detroit vice-president John Zeigler, and Brian O'Neill, executive-director of the NHL.

Campbell said the two sides continued exploration of the proposal for further competition between member teams of their respective organizations there during the 1973-74 season."

"No decisions were reached," he said. "But it was agreed that the negotiations would be continued at a mutually convenient time and place."

Campbell said, in answer to a question, that he did not know if there will be another meeting between the Russian and NHL officials or if it will be a further meeting here or wait until he reports to his federation on his return home in about 10 days. Starovoitov is in Canada with the touring Moscow Selects for a seven-game series against Canadian amateur teams.

Following the NHL governors' meeting in Montreal earlier this month, it was learned that the proposed series would include six games in North America and four in Russia.

However, at that time it was not clear if the Russians would visit six different cities on their tour or restrict themselves to three NHL centres—playing three, two-game sets in various rinks.

And Tuesday's meeting here did nothing to clarify the issue. Campbell admitted only that either format was a possibility.

He also refused to comment on whether or not the Russians would visit Canadian NHL centres when details for the series were worked out. He referred only to the games as taking a place in North America.

Hawks Miss You-know-Who

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Inconsistency has dogged Chicago Black Hawks this season, their first in 15 years without the big shooter, Bobby Hull.

Jim Pappin, a workman-like performer of recent Black Hawk years, gives the Chicago problems on loss of the Golden Jet to the World Hockey Association.

Coach Billy Reay looks on Hull's departure as an opportunity for another star to take his place. Reay goes so far as to say that it was the line of Pappin, Dennis Hull and Pit Martin that pulled the Hawks to the top of the National Hockey League's West Division last year.

The in-and-out Black Hawks of 1972-73 finally opened some space in their bid to repeat as division titlists Tuesday night by ripping Vancouver Canucks 8-1.

It moved Chicago three points ahead of Minnesota North Stars in the battle for first in the West and left the Canucks, sixth in the East, with 20 points, 15 out of fourth spot and a playoff berth.

In the other game Tuesday, St. Louis Blues needed Fran Huck's late goal to salvage a 4-4 tie with the Islanders at New York.

Tonight the Islanders meet the Penguins at Pittsburgh, while Toronto Maple Leafs entertain New York Rangers. Montreal Canadiens are at California Golden Seals, Boston Bruins at Buffalo Sabres, Atlanta Flames at Detroit Red Wings, Chicago at Los Angeles and Philadelphia Flyers at Minnesota.

Stan Mikita, laboring with back injuries and playing in Bobby Hull's shadow for most of his NHL career, scored twice to pace the Black Hawks at Vancouver.

The Canucks never posed a serious threat after Dennis Hull's 17th of the season 16 seconds into the second period gave Chicago a 3-0 lead.

"A lot of people are asking why we're not winning as much this year," Pappin said recently. "Well, the reason is that we really miss Bobby Hull."

Pappin explained that opposition forwards concentrated so much on Hull's shooting that scoring that it took the pressure off his teammates for "30 to 40 minutes a game."

Hull's absence is also being felt in goal where the Black Hawks have already given up 75 goals after 28 games. After 30 games last season, the goal tending tandem of Tony Esposito and Gary Smith had allowed just 53 goals.

Keech Gets Two

BROCKVILLE (CP) — Brockville Braves took 5-3 advantage of last-place Hull Festivals Tuesday to move back into third place in the six-team Central Junior Hockey League.

Before only 200 fans, the Braves held on through the third period when they were outplayed by the Festivals, who arrived an hour and 15 minutes late for the game because of bad weather.

Trenton's Steve Keech scored twice in the win with single goals to Steve McOsham, Geoff Scott and Dave Saunders. Hull goals were scored by Randy Campori, Michel Charbonneau and Gil Lacavalier.

CFL Rejects $2 Million Bid

OTTAWA (CP) — None of the nine teams in the Canadian Football League wants to expand to the United States "for the sake of expansion or to make a quick buck," CFL commissioner Jake Gaudaur said Tuesday.

He told the Canadian Club that the league this year turned down a bid from New York which would have meant a $2 million entrance fee "and untold dollars" in other benefits such as television.

Mr. Gaudaur also said the four teams in the Eastern Conference were sounded out in the 1960s when the American Football League was formed in rivalry to the National Football League but they rejected the plan.

In 1971, the said, a Detroit group wanted to join the CFL but that application also was turned down.

He said expansion talks arose because of long-range fears among some clubs over rising costs and the notion that new stadiums being built might be occupied by a rival team from a U.S. league.

Mr. Gaudaur said he personally is against expansion "at this time" as long as the Canadian game could survive with its distinctive Canadian flavor. He would favor expansion only if it were the only means to keep the Canadian league alive.

Gaudaur's meeting with former heath minister John Munro and the present minister, Marc Lalonde, saying there were no threats from the government to stop expansion.

He said he was pleased that the cabinet ministers showed a realisation of the importance of football in Canada and that he expected, there would be other meetings.

He said the idea of subsidies to professional teams was not discussed, but that he had brought up the government's help in building the new Vancouver rink.

Without that rink, Canada would not have had a third National Hockey League team, he said. This was one area where government might help football.

He said he also pointed out to Mr. Lalonde that minor football is not only "one half of one per cent" of the $8 million budget of Sports Canada and Recreation Canada.

If football is important, then more funds should be allocated to the grass-roots level, he said.

In an interview, Mr. Gaudaur said that from a population viewpoint, London, Ont., was a natural city for expansion within Canada Geographically, Halifax was best.

In his speech, Mr. Gaudaur noted that the arts in Canada, which were of interest to about 10 per cent of the population, get many more millions of dollars than the $8.5 budget given to Sports Canada and Recreation Canada.

He did not quarrel with the government's spend on the arts but surely the government might consider spending more on sport.

He said Toronto owner John Bassett, in a private meeting with Mr. Munro had suggested the government might consider helping smaller, community-owned CFL teams in the West.

Franchise For New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The announcement of a major league baseball franchise for New Orleans probably will be announced at the 1974 winter meeting of the National Association of Professional Baseball here, Superdome officials say.

Bernard Levy, executive director of the domed stadium, said Tuesday that, "One official in a high place told us that December, 1974, will be an opportune time to announce a major league franchise for New Orleans."

The $160 million domed stadium, to be completed in mid 1974, needs a baseball franchise to keep it busy. When stuffed full for football, it will hold 80,000 spectators, but would normally be set up for 75,000. Baseball capacity would be 59,625.

Michels Headed For Alouettes?

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — John Michels, lefthanded line coach of Minnesota Vikings in the National Football League, said Tuesday he has not been officially approached about taking the head coaching job of Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League.

Columnist John Robertson of the Montreal Star reported that Michels will go to Montreal for talks shortly after the Vikings conclude their NFL season at San Francisco Saturday.

"We have one game to play," said Michels. "I can't even begin to think about anything like that until we end the season.

"The only thing I can say is that I haven't been officially contacted by their people yet."

Michels said if the report is true, the Montreal team would go through proper channels and approach Vikings' head coach Bud Grant or general manager Jim Finks prior to talking to him about the job.

Michels, 41, is completing his sixth season on Grant's staff.

A native of Philadelphia, Michels played college football at Tennessee from 1949 through 1953 and in the professional ranks with Philadelphia Eagles in the NFL and Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the CFL.

WHA Features Youth Program

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The World Hockey Association has opened the way for many young Canadians to earn a living at something they do best—play hockey.

Andre Gaudette had more strikes against him than baseball's legendary Mighty Casey when he graduated from Montreal Junior Canadiens in 1968.

Not only was there a bumper crop of juniors on the Junior Canadiens that year, the elite ers were being culled elsewhere.

The biggest drawback Gaudette found was that National Hockey League clubs were reluctant to overlook his size—5-foot-6 and 160 pounds.

The native of Sherbrooke, Que., toiled in the American Hockey League—three years with Quebec and one with Richmond Robins in the Philadelphia Flyers chain—before his chance came with the WHA.

SCORES 3 GOALS

Tuesday night Gaudette had his biggest night in the big time, scoring three goals to lead Quebec Les Nordiques to a 5-2 win over Philadelphia Blazers.

Elsewhere it was Houston Aeros 6, Alberta Oilers 4; Minnesota Fighting Saints 3, Los Angeles Sharks 3.

The Oilers and Aeros meet again tonight at Houston while Quebec visits New York Raiders. Winnipeg Jets are in Philadelphia with the Blazers and Chicago Cougars entertain New England Whalers.

Gaudette, who celebrates his 26th birthday Tuesday, scored a goal in each period to bring his season's total to 18.

Frank Golembrosky, called up recently from Grand Falls Cataracts of the Newfoundland Senior league, and Alain (Boom Boom) Caron also scored for Quebec.

Night-scoring Frank Hughes scored twice against the Oilers to lead Houston's home-ice victory.

NEW YORK (AP) — Eight new names—six of them pitchers—showed up on ballots for election to baseball's Hall of Fame which were mailed Tuesday.

The new eligibles include Warren Spahn, winningest left hander in major league history, Whitey Ford, Bobo Roberts, Vern Law, Lou Burdette, Curt Simmons, Smokey Burgess and Dick Groat. Burgess, a catcher and pinch-hitting star, and shortstop Groat are the only non-pitchers added to this year's list of eligibles.

The eight new names were added by a screening committee of baseball writers who sifted through all of the players who became eligible for election this year to pare the list down. To be eligible, a player must have performed for 10 seasons in the majors and have been retired for five years.

Election is in the hands of about 450 veteran members of the Baseball Writers Association of America. A player must be named on 75 per cent of the ballots in order to be elected. Last year, four players—Sandy Koufax, Early Wynn, Lefty Gomez and Yogi Berra—were elected to the baseball shrine in the voting.

LISBON, Ohio (AP) — The death of Dwight Beede, who was credited with originating the use of the penalty flag in football during his early coaching years at Youngstown State University, has been ruled an accident.

Beede retired as Youngstown coach after the 1934 season. Death was ruled due to accidental drowning.

Beede was captain of the 1925 football team at Carnegie Tech, now Carnegie Mellon University, in Pittsburgh. He coached at Geneva and West Minister Colleges in Pennsylvania before going to Youngstown, where he became the first football coach in 1938.

Opponents Fail To Show

Tuesday night's hockey weather failed to bring out the opposition for Belleville's peewee entrees in the OMHA.

The Dixie Lee Fried Chicken minors and the Rollins Construction majors went on the ice against each other as the out-of-town teams did not arrive for their scheduled games.

The Rollins peewee majors defeated the Dixie Lee minors 10-3 in an exhibition game played at Memorial Arena. Mark Crawford and Billy Rowe tallied for the minor peewees while Steve Pearce, Gary Frederick and Darrell Duffy each netted two goals for the Rollins' majors.

In OMHA novice major action Tuesday, Belleville Toyers Food City victimized Wellington 7-2. Marksmen for the Belleville novices were Jimmy Mulroney, Bobby Wolfe, Danny Hounslow, Lawrence Hanlon, Louis Crawford, John Gutbrie, and Greg Horwood with single tallies.

Wrestlers Start Season

Though Bayside's 115 pound class wrestler Bob Callahan had the upper hand over Napanee's Phillip Gordanier at the start of their exhibition wrestling bout, Gordanier eventually pinned the Bayside wrestler. The Bay of Quinte wrestlers kicked off their 20 triangular meet schedule which culminates in the Bay of Quinte championships held on Saturday, February 10. Just over 100 wrestlers will compete in this year's high school schedule.

Lancaster Scoffs At Trading Block Rumors

REGINA (CP) — Ron Lancaster doesn't put "a lot of stock" in Saskatchewan Roughrider denials that he's on the trading block.

"I haven't been contacted by anyone," he said in an interview, "but these rumors usually have some basis."

Does he want to go? "It really wouldn't upset me."

Lancaster, who just completed his 12th season in the Canadian Football League and his 10th with Saskatchewan, holds every passing record in the book.

He admitted during Grey Cup week that he is not happy with the money he makes with the Riders and that would be a major consideration in any decision he makes.

"I think I could make more money with another team. That has to be a factor now that I'm unemployed.

"I'm free now to go anywhere I want.

Lancaster resigned Monday night from his job as physical education director at Central Collegiate, but said that has nothing to do with any immediate trade.

"It's just getting tougher to run a department, coach a basketball team and play football all at once.

The school had embarked on an experimental program which failed last year "and it was my fault."

"I just didn't have the time.

RON LANCASTER

My basketball team is 0-5 already and that's my fault."

Besides those factors, Lancaster said doctors have told him he needs to get a rest from all his activities.

The 33-year-old veteran has a year to go on a three-year contract.

The most persistent rumors concerning Lancaster are that his old coach Eagle Keys would like to add him to British Columbia Lions' roster.

But the Lions have just signed Karl Douglas, a top quarterback prospect from Texas A and I who was cut this year by Baltimore Colts, and that makes four quarterbacks in the Lions' embrace for next year.

Rider general manager Ken Preston said Montreal was the only club that approached him about a possible trade involving Lancaster. No approach was made just after the Grey Cup game, got as simple as.

Preston said Lancaster has not asked the club for a trade and the club is not actively seeking one.

Trojan Wrestlers Could Tumble

By Al Zabas
Staff Sportswriter

Moira Secondary School, the reigning power on the Bay of Quinte wrestling throne, may have her crown slip, or perhaps fall in this year's competition.

Moira's 22 wrestlers can currently fill only seven of 14 weight classes under the newly instituted international free style wrestling rules. The 148 pound to unlimited classes are vacant according to Moira coach Jim Hughes as "there aren't any bigger kids coming out."

Brian Spencer, a third year wrestler in the 136 pound class, is one of the eight experienced wrestlers Moira retains this year. Five graduating the Hinchey brothers, left Moira's team last year.

John Dixon (in the 130 pound class) and Greg MacCauley (115) are two of the novice wrestlers "shaping up well" according to Hughes.

Quinte fares little better as most of coach Wally Usrymak's experienced men have left the team. Duane Carmichael graduated last year, while Mike Mayo and Ken Yee left at the beginning of this year.

Centennial Collegiate, Belleville's other Bay of Quinte entree, fields 15 wrestlers, nine of whom have seen previous mat time. Tom Green, one of four 115 pounders, looks tough this year according to coach Pat Carty. Of the novice wrestlers, pounder Brian Emmons "looks promising" said Carty.

Trenton fields a solid team as 11 of its 15 wrestlers come into this year's competition with previous experience.

Two brother teams provide a nucleus for Trenton as Doug Gainforth took a second in the Bay of Quinte 98 pound class and a fourth in COSSA last year. Brother Don (90) has not lost a match this year.

Pat Kilpatrick, who wrestled at 191 last year, teams up with brother Mike who has five years of experience on the mats.

Gord Hope, who wrestled under coach Sandy Howe at Brantford School for the Blind for four years, comes to Trenton High with a COWSSA 115 pound championship under his belt.

Gord is probably one of the best wrestlers we have with us this year," said coach Tom Gauthier. Hope, who has won all five of his bouts this year, will wrestle in either the 122 or 129 weight classes for the Bay of Quinte eliminations.

Napanee's strength lies in Dan Muckle (168) and Mike Howie (115) according to coach Eric Bartlett. Of the 18 wrestlers Napanee fields, 11 have an average experience of two years.

Picton's Prince Edward Collegiate fields a young team as Len Hudson, John Conley and Keith Bowerman are the only prvious mat men on the 15 member team.

Centre Hastings Collegiate will be building their team this year as only three of its 14 wrestlers come into this year with experience. Bayside's situation is similar as only five members of the 12 man team return from last year.

BCI, Albert College, Nicholson and OSD are not fielding Bay of Quinte wrestling teams this year.

Speaker Closes Book On Shulman Incident

TORONTO (CP) — Speaker Allan Reuter closed the book on his chapter of the latest Dr. Morton Shulman controversy in the Ontario legislature Tuesday.

"As far as I am concerned, there is absolutely nothing further for me to do," Mr. Reuter said.

Last week, Dr. Shulman (NDP—Toronto High Park) said Attorney-General Dalton Bales attended a fund-raising party at the rural home of a man involved in the Toronto construction trade who Dr. Shulman said had been linked with price-fixing and bombings.

The charge proved to be erroneous and, amidst abuse from both Progressive Conservatives and Liberals, Dr. Shulman offered to resign—if Premier William Davis would call an immediate byelection.

Some Tories suggested that Dr. Shulman should be censured by the house.

Mr. Reuter said many persons had asked him to express his feelings, but there were no rulings for him to make in connection with the incident.

He said it was not incumbent on the speaker "to make any member apologize" and Dr. Shulman had accepted Mr. Bales's word that he was not at the party.

"There is no provision whatsoever for any sort of negotiated resignation," added Mr. Reuter.

Aid Wineries

TORONTO (CP) — A bill which will allow provincial wineries to use some grapes or concentrates from outside the province in their winemaking was introduced in the legislature Tuesday.

John Clement, minister of consumer and commercial relations, explained that adverse weather conditions had limited Ontario's grape crop.

Cleanup Lull

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Environment Minister James Auld said Tuesday "there appears to be a lull in over-all momentum by the United States of the program to clean up the Great Lakes.

Mr. Auld told the legislature U.S. governors of states bordering the lakes have expressed concern about the American program to spend $25 billion in the next five years on the cleanup.

Hurt by Bomb

MONTREAL (CP) — A man and a woman were in critical condition Tuesday following a bomb explosion in a car in east-end Montreal. Police identified the injured couple as Robert Marcel Doyon, 22, and Monique Corbeil, 24, both of Montreal. They said the bomb which destroyed the car was apparently triggered when the vehicle's ignition was turned on. Doyon lost his right leg.

Welfare Riot

NICOLET, Que. (CP) — Police were called Tuesday to restore order at the local office of the social affairs department after about 30 welfare recipients were barred from the office's conference room.

The welfare recipients, who have been occupying the office since Monday, were banging on the doors of the conference room and booing.

Nicolet is 70 miles northwest of Montreal.

Babies Affected

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The hallucinogenic drug LSD may cause the birth of lillborn or abnormal children, says a report published by the American Medical Association (AMA).

The report, appearing in the latest issue of the AMA Journal, said the abnormalities included deformed limbs, defective hearts and central nervous systems and hydrocephalus—water on the brain.

Again Rejected

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. J. N. Sheriton says North York General Hospital once again has rejected his application for appointment to its obstetrical staff.

Dr. Sheriton was one of two doctors whose complaints of unfair exclusion from the North York hospital led to a provincial inquiry into the granting of hospital privileges to doctors.

Curb Cost

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada would like to improve the effectiveness of its NATO contribution without increasing costs or the size of its European contingent, says Defence Minister James Richardson.

The biggest single item in that program would be the replacement of the aging Argus coastal surveillance aircraft.

Kits Faulty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pregnancy test kits judged unreliable and gonorrhea test kits lacking proof of safety and effectiveness are being recalled throughout the United States, the Food and Drug Administration announced Tuesday.

Leading UK Communist Had Canadian Origins

LONDON (CP) — In a gaunt office near the bustling fruit markets of Covent Garden, Communist Bert Ramelson recalled the Canadian beginnings of his career as a revolutionary and explained why he believes Britain has entered a significant new stage along the road to social upheaval.

Yet Ramelson, whose sturdy build and wavy brown hair belie his 67 years, has no illusions that revolution is just around the corner.

"I'd like to see it but seeing it is secondary," he said.

Ramelson claimed to find enough satisfaction in the conviction that the work he's doing—inspiring and organizing worker protest—forms part of what Marx's contend is the inexorable march of history.

For the headline writers of the "capitalist" press, however, Ramelson's work as industrial organizer of the British Communist party has a decidedly sinister ring.

Hence their ballit of branding him "the most dangerous man in Britain" or "the red beneath your bed."

The Russian-born, Alberta-educated Ramelson dismissed all this as a laughable scare campaign and insisted that "my role is welcomed by the working class."

Certainly the party headquarters which serve as the base for his round-Britain expeditions in the Communist cause give little surface impression of being the control centre of any nationwide conspiracy.

Nothing except a tiny nameplate at the inconspicuous main door designates the small, slightly ramshackle building on King Street as the Communist party's central gathering place.

And the serving of tea by a soft-spoken woman member of the headquarters staff gave an interview between Ramelson and a Canadian reporter an incongruously domesticated touch.

Despite the almost quaint, Dickensian atmosphere of the headquarters scene, a published quote attributed to the industrial organizer is enough to show that the purpose of life at 16 King Street is anything but innocuous.

"There has not been a single mass industrial movement of any size in this country in the last decade where you don't find Communists at the centre," Ramelson was quoted as saying in a reference to the labor unrest which has frequently plunged British industry into ferment over recent months.

Communist Jimmy Reid played a key role in the widely-publicized worker sit-in at Upper Clyde Shipbuilders after that Scottish yard was threatened with shutdown early in 1972.

Less well known than Reid but equally potent in their impact on grassroots trade unionism are other key Communists established in the higher echelons of groups representing miners, car makers, engineers, teachers and railwaymen.

This is not to say that the British labor movement has fallen totally into Communist hands.

Politically and in many other ways, the party—which lacks even a single member of Parliament—represents only a minority bloc of opinion in British public life.

Yet, while other revolutionary fringe groups come and go—many of them merely riding the tide of contemporary social permissiveness—the Communist party sticks grimly to its self-set task of revolution, without the "trendy" trimmings.

Ramelson himself traces his initial Communist conversion back to the Depression days of the 1930s on the Canadian Prairies.

Born in the Ukraine as Boris Ramilovich, he first went to Edmonton from that part of Russia as a 12-year-old when his father, who became a raw-fur dealer, settled in the Canadian city 50 years ago.

The young immigrant excelled as a law student at the University of Alberta, but turned to Marxism, so he said, in response to that "economic and moral crisis of capitalism" more commonly known as the Depression.

His recollections were typical of a veteran Marxist—mass unemployment, allegations of wheat used to stoke railway engines and of workless hordes forced into a nomadic existence by the unscrupulous masters of a collapsing capitalism.

For Ramelson, the year 1936 marked a turning point. He left Canada, never to return, and headed for Spain.

There he fought in the Mackenzie-Papineau battalion, the Canadian segment of the Communist-endorsed International Brigade during the Spanish Civil War.

The Canadian government of that time, Ramelson says, was decidedly unhelpful to the 900 men of the Mackenzie-Papineau unit—named for the legendary leaders of 19th-century rebellions in English- and French-speaking Canada—as the war veterans tried returning home after Franco's victory in 1939.

Ramelson stayed in Britain, where he met his first wife, Marian Ramelson, who died in 1967, was a leading Communist party worker and author of a book—The Petticoat Rebellion—on the fight for women's rights in Britain. Her husband remarried two years ago.

The Communist from Canada saw service in the Second World War and became party secretary for the Yorkshire city of Leeds in 1946.

Seven years later he became secretary for all of Yorkshire and was made national industrial organizer in 1956.

But his influence extends well beyond merely channelling worker unrest into party-approved forms of worker unrest.

For one thing, he heads the party's economic committee and also belongs to the 13-member group responsible for the organization's day-to-day management.

He spoke of being convinced that, despite all efforts by the "capitalist" media, the working class continues to see the Communist party as the only group dedicated to proletarian interests when the political chips are down.

Ramelson insisted that British trade unionists are more militant now than they have been for decades.

Most significant, however, is the way British workers are showing what the veteran Communist called a "mature" attitude in current developments.

Recent labor conflicts have demonstrated to the workers, as never before in recent years, that the state in Britain is far from neutral in disputes between management and union men, Ramelson said.

"Now, increasingly, every strike is assuming political importance," said Ramelson, who sees the whole pattern of recent events producing a revolutionary frame of mind among workers previously inclined to think along traditional reformist lines.

For Ramelson, a particular villain of the piece has been the Industrial Relations Act, hailed by Prime Minister Heath as an attempt to introduce order into Britain's volatile management-labor scene.

Writing in the Communist party's daily newspaper, The Morning Star, Ramelson maintained that the Conservatives really want to establish a permanent ceiling on wages along with what he terms "the abolition of free, collective bargaining."

Adding to the novelty of the present social situation in Britain, from the orthodox Communist point of view, are events such as the Upper Clyde sit-in.

The occupation by Reid and his men, of that shipyard showed how British workers are "using a new form of struggle," said Ramelson.

No longer are they content with old defensive techniques. Instead, as exemplified at Upper Clyde, they are ready to mount "an offensive struggle for the right to work."

The big difference in the proletarian mentality now is that the workers of Britain "are no longer worried about the crisis of capitalism"—which is Ramelson's way of saying that the workers are finally set to pursue their own class interests along Communist-inspired lines.

Japan Like Tiger

TOKYO (AP)—The Fuji Telecasting Co. and the newspaper Sankei commissioned a poll last year asking Americans to associate Japan with an animal. The results showed the fox was the most popular image. This year the poll was repeated and Americans now tend to associate the country with a tiger.

Redistribution Cuts Quebec Seats

OTTAWA (CP) — Quebec is the latest province to come under the knife in the two-year redistribution of the 264 federal electoral ridings.

The redistribution of the 264 ridings will leave Quebec and four other provinces with fewer Commons seats than they have now. Quebec's allotment will fall to 72 from 74. The others are Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

The changes reflect shifting population patterns as revealed in the 1971 census. Generally, the cities will get a bigger share of seats as they continue to attract people from the countryside.

Newly-published maps of proposed Quebec ridings show Montreal will retain 25 seats, with the rest of the province losing two.

The redistribution process began last spring, when boundary commissions in each province began drafting new ridings.

The next step is public hearings. In Quebec they start Jan. 9. Hearings begin Dec. 22 in Newfoundland and Jan. 17 in New Brunswick.

Newfoundland is to fall to six seats from seven, and New Brunswick is to retain its 10-seat quota.

The redistribution will not affect any election held before late 1973, when the work is to be completed.

The only two provinces to gain seats—Ontario and British Columbia—will publish their new maps within the coming month.

Ontario will move to 91 seats from 88, and B.C. will have 28 instead of the present 23.

Davis Plans Law

Political Gifts From Companies To Be Disclosed

TORONTO (CP) — Legislation will be introduced which will require disclosure of donations to Ontario political parties from public and private corporations, Premier William Davis said Tuesday.

He also told the legislature that he was "not yet certain as to whether limitations as to the amounts contributed should be imposed."

The premier said that with respect to contributions to parties from private individuals, "I frankly wish to maintain the right of individuals to confidentiality, providing such contributions are not . . . and could not be presumed to be other than a nominal amount.

"I do not know precisely what such an amount would be, but I would give the assurance that such would be well within the limits which would allay public apprehension or concern," he said.

The Davis government has come under heavy opposition fire since it was revealed that in 1971, the Conservatives received a $50,000 campaign contribution from Fidinam (Ontario) Ltd. a Swiss-based firm which has a $35-million loan from the government-controlled Workmen's Compensation Board.

Mr. Davis said there were many factors to be considered before legislation was introduced including such questions as "public funding of political campaigns."

He said the matters would be referred to the Ontario commission on the legislature headed by Dalton Camp.

Mr. Davis told reporters later that it wasn't the question of being influenced by the Fidinam affair.

He said he felt some people might be getting cynical about the political process and "it's a good process and I want it to be maintained."

The premier said he hoped he could have something of substance from the Camp committee studying the legislature by late spring and he wants legislation well before the next provincial election which will be in 1975 at the latest.

The announcement was not a departure from party tradition but "a logical approach to the problem," said the premier.

In the legislature, Mr. Davis said the public "needs to have the assurance that political contributions which the general public would deem to be of significant amounts are not related to any valuable consideration, past, present or future."

Mr. Davis also said there was a need to examine "our present system, as it exists and to consider any alternatives which might improve on present practices."

Paper On Guarantees Expected by Spring

TORONTO (CP) — A provincial government "green paper" on the problems of warranties and guarantees should be available for the legislature by next spring, John Clement, minister of consumer and commercial relations, announced Tuesday.

He told the legislature industry and the public would be given an opportunity to discuss the paper in a series of meetings the government will arrange.

He said these steps were necessary because the law on warranties and guarantees was "highly technical" and the drafting of legislation — perhaps by the spring of 1974 — difficult and time-consuming.

Ceiling Advocated In Vote Outlays

TORONTO (CP) — There should be ceilings on the amount of money a candidate can spend to get himself elected provincial office, opposition leaders argued Tuesday.

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon and Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, were speaking to an NDP motion of non-confidence in the government because of a lack of electoral reform programs. The government defeated the motion.

Both leaders praised Premier William Davis's announcement earlier in the day that the government will introduce legislation requiring that donations from public and private corporations be made public.

But they referred to Mr. Davis's announcement as "a death-bed repentance."

Mr. Lewis said his party advocates a ceiling on election expenditures that applies to political parties, candidates and contributors.

Mr. Nixon said that for the Conservatives "there is probably still the eventuality of contributions from those corporations and others brave enough to have their name on the dotted line in, what I suppose they would call, support of Progressive Conservative principles."

Mr. Nixon said expenditures must be limited and "this is going to be essential if we are going to get away from what has apparently become the bugbear of modern democracy."

"We've seen it happen in the United States where nobody can run for any public office of importance unless he has a family fortune at his disposal or at least some means whereby he can meet the multi-million-dollar commitments associated with an attempt to be elected to high public office."

Premier Davis said his new legislation making disclosure mandatory might set some limitations and in any case, he was not sure spending ceilings were relevant.

He said he believed the "political process is less related to the spending of funds that it was three or four years ago."

He said the Liberals outspent the Conservatives' in the last federal election yet the PCs made the big gains.

The basic issue, he said, is for the government to set some sort of "moral tone and that is what the government is trying to do."

The premier said his party is the first in Canada to come to grips with the basic problems of conflict of interest and disclosure of campaign funds.

Mr. Davis admitted he was responding to public interest in announcing the legislation.

"I freely confess that the reason the party has been successful over the years and will continue to be successful is because we do respond to the public interest."

Corporation Tax Is Being Revised

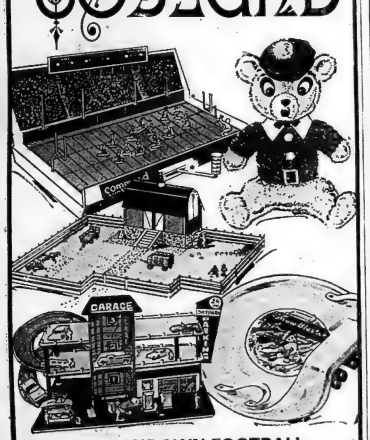
TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government Tuesday introduced its new Corporations Tax Act and despite heavy opposition criticism gave it approval in principle.

The act, 226 pages long, now needs only one more presentation to the legislature before becoming law.

The act, under preparation for several years, continues a 15-per-cent tax on corporations but also provides for tax deductions such as exploration and development expenses and depletion allowances.

"We believe that we should be getting a better return from the activities of corporations and particularly from the exploitation and development of our natural resources in this province," Opposition leader Robert Nixon said.

Depletion allowance should not be deducted from tax paid unless there is evidence that it is being used to the benefit of the people of the province, for particularly the establishment of new jobs and expanding a number of jobs in the community where the natural resource exists."



He said government policies encouraging industries to expand plant machinery have cost the taxpayers of the province a good deal of money indeed and nobody on the government side . . . can indicate that this in fact contributed one job to the economy."

"It was in fact a handout to these industries which was unwarranted and uncalled for, poorly planned—a waste of taxpayers' money." The Liberal leader said.

Pill for People, Not Animals

OTTAWA (CP) — Some Canadian university health centres are prescribing a "morning-after" birth-control pill that has been blasted in the United States as "cancer-causing."

A spokesman for the Carleton University health service said Tuesday that diethylstilbestrol (DES) has been given to some co-eds—"although not very many."

The spokesman also said the drug is being used at universities in Toronto and Kingston, Ont.

A health research group under consumer critic Ralph Nader submitted a report to the United States Food and Drug Administration in Washington Monday charging that DES is "cancer-causing."

"College women are being used as guinea pigs, without even the most rudimentary observance of professional standards and informed consent," the group was quoted as saying.

DES has not been approved for birth-control use in the United States, the group's report said.

The Carleton doctor said DES has been prescribed in daily doses for five days after mating. The concern had not been raised about suspected cancer at these dosage levels, she said.

"We have been concerned about possible effects of the drug on the fetuses," she said. Authorities believe use of the hormone might lead to sexual abnormalities if the pregnancy was not aborted and some centres recommended that the woman should have an abortion if the "morning-after" treatment was not successful in halting the pregnancy.

DES has been banned in Canada as a growth stimulant in livestock, effective Jan. 1, 1973. The indefinite suspension of its use in animals was ordered about six weeks ago because "the safety of the drug, when used as a growth stimulant, has not been satisfactorily established," the health department said at that time.

Malpractice Costs $1.7 Million

DETROIT (AP) — A malpractice judgment of more than $1.7 million was awarded Tuesday to a 8-year-old Detroit man who said she was blinded and lost control of her arms and legs as a result of surgery performed at a Detroit hospital.

A six-member Wayne County circuit court jury awarded $1,740,609, plus interest to Lucille Lenesir after a six-day trial. Detroit General Hospital was defendant in the suit.

"This is probably the largest malpractice verdict in Michigan history," said Judge Horace Gilmore, who presided over the trial.

Because Detroit General is a city hospital, the judgment will be paid from tax money. It will pay for Miss Lenesir's care for the rest of her life.

Ten years ago, Miss Lenesir underwent relatively simple exploratory surgery at the hospital to determine if she had cancer. The suit contended three doctors performing the operation were unaware Miss Lenesir was getting only about 10 per cent of the oxygen she needed while under anesthetic.

As a result, the suit said, she suffered a heart attack and permanent brain damage.

None of the three doctors now is employed by the hospital.

Sexuality Class Big Drawing Card

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A television class on human sexuality is proving the most popular courses at Michigan State University.

Approximately 2,300 students signed up this fall for the class conducted by psychologist Andrew Barclay, who, like many of his students, usually sports work shirts and bell bottoms.

To attract crowds like that, he must be doing something illegal," said one professor at MSU, where agriculture studies once were considered the prime academic pursuit.

Barclay, however, insists his class provides students with badly needed information about their own sexuality.

"We're really not out to titillate anybody," said Barclay, 31. "We're not conducting an illustrated sex manual. We don't want to show them how to do it but to get them to better understand their feelings while they're doing it."

Barclay says his aim is to place sex in perspective and to help students adjust their sexual behavior so it fits naturally into their lives.

Included in the 140 topics during the 10-week course are masculine and feminine roles, homosexuality, self-awareness, and the social, psychological, racial and legal aspects of sex.

While I stress that sex is good, healthy and perfectly normal, I also try to point out that you can engage in sex for the wrong reasons . . . for example, a male student who seeks sex only as an affirmation of his masculinity."

But since he feels that clinical discussions of sex can be boring, Barclay breaks his class into 10-minute blocks of information, getting the message across by using such multi-media effects as rock music, picture montages, bawdy songs

Dunlop Faces International Threat

LONDON (AP) — Union delegates from 15 countries, including two Communist nations, said Tuesday they are prepared to tie up the giant Dunlop-Pirelli Rubber Co. in the world's first global strike.

Delegates came from Canada and 14 European countries—Austria, Belgium, France, West Germany, Britain, Italy, Ireland, the Netherlands, Norway, Romania, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland and Yugoslavia.

The announcement came during a meeting of union leaders to discuss joint action on a world scale against two other multi-national companies, the French Michelin Tire Co. and the Royal Dutch Shell Oil Co.

The delegates have been meeting in London since Sunday under the auspices of the International Federation of Chemical and General Workers' Unions. The federation has been active for several years in promoting international action by unions to meet the threat they see from the growing number of multi-national corporations.

The delegates said in a statement that industrial action against Dunlop-Pirelli, including a strike or a ban on overtime and plant-by-plant demonstrations by employees, will be ordered if the company refuses to discuss measures to safeguard the interests of its workers.

The firm has so far refused to meet delegates representing its personnel on a world scale.

There have been international strikes in the past where workers in one country have supported employees of the same firm in another, but Tuesday's announcement was the first hint of a global tie-up.

Dental Lab Head Alarmed at Price

TORONTO (CP) — Dentures will be "ground out like aspirins" in assembly-line fashion if Ontario dentists try to live up to a promise to provide a full set of false teeth for $180, a standing committee of the legislature studying anti-denturist legislation was told Tuesday.

Barry Strong, owner of a dental laboratory in Windsor, Ont., told the committee that dentists would be forced at that price to send work to large production laboratories in Toronto and Halifax.

He said these laboratories charge about $40 for labor where most smaller concerns charge about $70 because the larger firms leave out several steps in the process that make for better dentures.

Ontario dentists have promised to provide dentures at $180 under proposed legislation that would outlaw denturists providing dentures directly to the public but would create a new profession of denture therapist to work under direct supervision of dentists.

The committee has been charged with conducting a clause-by-clause analysis of the legislation and come up with any amendments it feels are necessary.

For the last two days, it has heard representations from dentists, denturists and members of the public, with about 800 spectators turning up for Monday's meeting.

On Tuesday, the committee was told the proposed legislation would not serve the public since it ran the risk of "a good denturist being put under the direct supervision of a bad dentist."

This remark was made by Kathleen McKenzie of Toronto who, in a private submission to the committee, said she had had three sets of teeth made for her by dentists and all proved unsatisfactory.

"The dental society obviously has no quality control," said Miss McKenzie. "I wouldn't care if they promised to give us dentures for $1.00. I'd still have to break the law (by going to a denturist) to get satisfaction."

Mr. Strong and Miss McKenzie were among about 30 persons making representations to the committee Tuesday, most of whom were private citizens asking that the proposed legislation be scrapped and that denturists be allowed to carry on business with the public.

Most of the speakers related bad experiences they had had with the fitting of teeth by dentists. Only one of the speakers indicated she had not been satisfied with work done by a denturist.

The committee was scheduled to begin a clause-by-clause analysis of the proposed legislation today before reporting to the legislature with its findings.

Acupuncturists Meet

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec Acupuncture Association held its first convocation Tuesday night. Five graduates of a three-year course sponsored by the association received diplomas.

The courses are given by association president Oscar Wesu who studied acupuncture in France and has practised it here for 21 years.

Three recipients of diplomas are naturopaths and a fourth is a chiropractor. The other has no previous medical experience.

Saving Society Up to Rural Folk

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canada's rural population will basically have to solve society's problems which have resulted from the concentration of technology in huge urban centres, delegates to the National Farmers Union annual meeting were told Tuesday.

George, McRobie, an economist from London, England, said rural people still are close enough to nature to be able to investigate alternatives to replace the city-oriented and destructive technology of today.

He said the alternate, a survival technology, must be found to replace the western world's current ideological god of limitless economic growth. Society has been "hoodwinked" into believing no such alternative exists.

Mr. McRobie, development director of the Intermediate Technology Development Group Ltd., said the farmer's union has an international reputation of being concerned with human values and needs and its members must inspire the development of new, decentralized technologies.

The current ideology is based on the harnessing of science and technology to provide the maximum output of goods and services through mass production and the creation of mass markets.

"The main motive power is well-known as greed laced with envy and a good deal of self-deception," he said, and has led to depopulation of rural areas, social alienation by crowding people into cities and an increasing lack of power to enable people to shape their own destinies.

Power now rests in the hands of a few people and anti-planning, anti-conservation and irresponsibility are rampant.

The trend, evident since the Second World War, has seen rural people moved in ever-increasing numbers to the cities where they have to sit in front of machines where they have only a small part of their consciousness engaged in what they are doing.

"Then, in the evening, they go home and sit in front of a television set at an even lower level of consciousness and finally sink into a deeper state of unconsciousness called sleep."

Mr. McRobie said cities "are the peacetime equivalent of the gas chamber. It's slower, but nonetheless effective."

This mindless chaos of modern city life must be replaced with a re-creation of community in rural areas with people working together to replace the lack of power over control of the means of production.

"This means a great deal of decentralizing of power on a whole lot of things that over the last 20 years we've spent pulling into the cities."

The ideal of the owners of capital in today's "robber economy" is production without employment—the use of more and more machines.

There are good forms of mechanization which have eliminated drudgery and onerous work but it's being carried too far and is eliminating people and "that's the sort of technology we don't want."

Urge to Live Strong In Rescued Pilot

EDMONTON (CP) — The Journal quotes the wife of rescued bush pilot Martin Hartwell as saying "my husband always had a terribly powerful urge to live."

In an interview from her home Tuesday in Cologne, West Germany, Emmy Herrmann said she and her son had given up hope that their husband and father would be found alive.

His German name is Leopold Herrmann. His wife said by telephone that he changed names for ease of pronunciation.

Mr. Hartwell, 46, arrived in Canada April 27, 1967. There was little work for professional pilots in Germany, said his wife. He hoped to start anew in Canada and send for his family when he was established.

Mrs. Herrmann said she had made plans to join her husband in Canada next spring.

Meanwhile, the president of Gateway Aviation Ltd. in Edmonton said Tuesday that Mr. Hartwell, rescued in the Arctic 22 days after a twin-engine Beechcraft 18 crashed Nov. 8, was involved in a previous accident in north-central Manitoba in the summer of 1969.

'He doesn't have his instrument rating, nor did he ever have it," said Roy Wagner, who said the Manitoba accident was not connected with the fact Mr. Hartwell did not an instrument rating.

In Flin Flon, Man., Jack Abrams, assistant manager of Parson's Airways, said Mr. Hartwell's 1969 accident occurred just outside the northern Manitoba community. No one was injured.

'He was landing and he just misjudged," Mr. Abrams said. He said Mr. Hartwell was with the firm for 11 months, three months as a pilot and the balance working on ground crew and tourist camp duties.

Japanese Soldiers Still Hide

TOKYO (AP) — The Second World War ended 27 years ago, but it's still real for some Japanese soldiers holed up in former battlefield areas.

Officials estimate there may be between 300 and 3,500 former soldiers hiding in the jungles of Southeast Asia and one Pacific Island, either from ignorance of the war's end or blind loyalty to a military code which taught them death was preferable to surrender.

The tenacity of these stragglers to avoid capture or surrender has evoked sympathy and pain in this country. For years, the Japanese have tried to live down memories of their country's war atrocities and charges that the Japanese character, feverishly nationalistic, is again leading the nation toward militarism.

The latest incident involving former Japanese soldiers occurred on Lubang Island in the Philippines recently. Two stragglers, foraging for food, exchanged fire with a police patrol. One of them, Pte. Kinshichi Kozuka, a member of an intelligence-gathering unit, was killed; the other, believed to be his superior, Lieut. Hiro Onoda, was wounded, and escaped back into the jungle.

The incident numbed the Japanese who barely 10 months earlier listened in disbelief as Shoichi Yokoi, an army sergeant captured near his subterranean hideout on Guam, related how he subsisted on a diet of bark, rats and fruits for more han a quarter of a century even though he knew of Japan's surrender. He said he was ashamed to return home alive. Commented Mainichi Shimbun, a major daily: "We cannot really talk about peace or prosperity until we rescue all those who were alienated from their motherland by their tragic fate at the end of the Second World War."

Spurred by public demands for action, the government says it will try to trace missing soldiers and lure them home. But officials say it may be a near-impossible task. A similar rescue effort in the 1950s ended in failure.

Some stragglers are believed to have married local women. Officials say it could be difficult for them to come home and admit openly what they consider the disgrace of having survived the war.

Others are believed to be aware of the war's end. But, like Yokoi, they may have become victims of their military discipline and they now may prefer to live out their lives in isolation.

"Then there are those who may genuinely believe the war is still going on," says an official. "And they may consider all these attempts to lure them out as enemy traps to capture them."

Show Skin Flicks

KUALA LUMPUR (AP) — Residents in the southern Malaysian town of Johore Bahru complained to the government that theatres were showing only sex movies, apparently to meet the demand by citizens of Singapore, just across Singapore Strait. Skin flicks are banned in Singapore.

Bob Hope Set for 29th Overseas Christmas

NEW YORK (AP) — Bob Hope's first trip to entertain servicemen in wartime almost was his last. It started in early 1941, and the destination was Anchorage, Alaska.

The Hope troupe was in a twin-engined Lockheed Lodestar when a commercial airliner also bound for Anchorage passed through the Lodestar's prop wash. Its pilots apparently sensed the army plane was in trouble and radioed ahead.

Parachutes were being issued when a storm knocked out the plane's radio gear and left the crew completely lost at 13,000 feet.

Anti-aircraft searchlights at the Anchorage airport were turned on. Hope's flight crew spotted the lights during a momentary break in the storm. They landed the plane safely, and the Hope show went on.

The troupe then consisted of actress Frances Langford, comedian Jerry Colonna and pianist Tony Romano. All now are out of show business.

But Hope, at 69, still is going strong. Friday, he'll be off on his 29th overseas tour to entertain U.S. servicemen—including a day with them still in Vietnam. It'll be his 20th consecutive Christmas tour.

And it'll be a sentimental journey of sorts for him. He says it probably will be the last he'll make with the king-sized troupe he's traveled with at Christmas time the last five or six years.

Feature Times

IN THE PARK — In Color — For those who like action and music, these two movies have it all. The dramatic handling of the professional and personal problems encountered by the rock-singing group "Three Dog Night" starring Chet Allen and Michael Pruitt. Also showing, "Clambake," starring Fred Williamson. The ultimate fulfillment of professional boxing and the ring. Also showing, "Cisco Pike," starring Kris Kristofferson, seen in the background of the thriller. Today only: complete program, daily commencing at 1:45, Friday and Saturday at 7:30. Admission $1.50 per person 12 years of age and over.

"I think it'll be the last Christmas tour of any size I'll make," he said at lunch when he was in town last week taping an NBC television special. "But I may still go overseas again."

The first stop on this year's 15-day tour—as in the 1942 trip—will be in Alaska, at a tiny, miserable atoll called Shemya. It's a military refueling base near Attu at the end of the Aleutian chain. About 800 servicemen call it home, reluctantly.

He's doing three shows in South Korea. He's spending Christmas Day at the Bien oa Ai- Base northeast of Saigon. He did his first Vietnam show there in 1964.

It may be the last time he plays that combat zone. He says he hopes so.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

THURS. DEC. 14

Aries (March 21-April 19): Hold your ground tactfully. By the end of the day it will be clear what the main issues are and what the better solution is.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Early tend is toward pressure in your work. Let things take their natural sequence wherever you can. Break for reflection.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Speculative moves are apt to fritter away both money and time. Think in taking initiative, and why. Compare notes.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): It's a good day to work with established ventures; a poor one for a fresh start. People in close contact tend to abrasiveness

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Strive to make this a day of special rest, or at least something less strenuous than usual. If you must travel, start very early.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sep. 22): The closer the bond between you, the more stringent are the nuances of relationship. Significant financial moves are out of favor.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Since it is unlikely that you can please everybody, it may be just as well that you try beginning with what would please you.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): See yourself sticking to the job despite a jumpy, sensitive mood. An inventive response, other than your usual reaction to difficulty, will to work.

Sagittaries (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Squabbles amongst friends have to be avoided at almost any cost —what breaks now is not easily mended.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Today tests your ability to avoid turbulence. Taking out your tensions on your own people is easily done.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Off the beaten track, into something inquiry that is not your regular thing, fine, but watch that your hawk and flies about in the evening.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): It is better to have a modest plan with enough people co-operating than an extravagauna too big for anybody to manage.

Not Essential Eating of Bread

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How essential is bread in one's daily diet? Some diets advocate two slices a day. Some say refrain entirely.

Will vitamin C supply me with enough ascorbic acid to supplement my inability to tolerate raw fruits due to chronic colitis?

Recently I was told by a chiropractor that a daily supply of calcium lactate would keep me well whether I have hay fever, sinusitis or whatever. Do you recommend calcium?

Bread isn't "essential" in anyone's diet—provided necessary nutrition is available from some source or another. There are millions of people in the world who never eat any bread. Take for example, those in areas where rice is the staple food, and people live all their entire lives without ever tasting bread.

There is, in fact, no food that is "essential," because there always can be some adequate substitute for it.

At the same time, we all need certain basic nutrients—protein, enough carbohydrates for our energy needs, vitamins, minerals (and in some instances considerable quantities) of various minerals, a certain amount of fat. But where you get these nutrients isn't the important question.

Bread is primarily a source of carbohydrate, although different kinds of bread can contain varying amounts of minerals, variable amounts of protein, and much bread (not days have B) vitamins added.

Two to four slices a day is probably average for most folks, but this can vary, depending on what else you eat. If you are talking about "diet" in terms of reducing, a modest amount of bread usually is all right. Often it's the spread (the butter, jam or whatever) that does most damage, so far as adding weight goes.

The same is true of potatoes. Potato isn't especially fattening—but the butter, gravy, sour cream and such topping can can pile on a lot of calories.

About vitamin C. Vitamin C is ascorbic acid. If you can't tolerate fruit or juices that are rich in vitamin C, then supplemental tablets can be substituted. From 100 to 200 mg. a day should be sufficient.

Calcium? Certainly I "recommend calcium." It's one of the necessary minerals, useful in forming and keeping strong bones, in healing wounds, and a variety of other purposes.

Whether you get the calcium from a glass or two of milk a day or from many other foods that contain calcium doesn't matter. I certainly don't recommend that people take calcium in the form of calcium lactate unless they aren't getting enough calcium in their food.

As to being a guarantee against "hay fever, sinusitis, 'or whatever,' that's bunk. If overdoses of calcium would cure either hay fever or sinus trouble or anything else, we'd soon be rid of such troubles, wouldn't we?

Calcium can be urgently needed by patients with osteoporosis, for one example, but it's no cure-all. Nothing is.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Does the birth control pill prevent ovulation, or does it abort the fetus once a woman is pregnant?

It prevents ovulation, so that a fetus is not created. (In other words, "the pill" does not stop a pregnancy once it has begun.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	1 ♠	2 ♥	Pass
4 ♥

Opening lead—king of spades.

There are hands where, if the defenders do what seems reasonably to be expected of them, they can stop what appears to be a perfect contract.

Consider this deal where South is in four hearts. Looking at all four hands, it would seem that his only losers are two spades and a diamond, but good defense will bring him up short.

West leads the king of spades and it certainly not difficult for East — who knows from the lead that his partner has the queen — to overtake the king with the ace and return the three.

West wins with the ten and would ordinarily continue with the queen to force declarer to ruff and in that way weaken his trump position. But West can see that passive defense will not succeed. He cannot sensibly expect his partner to show up with two defensive tricks later on to defeat the contract. He can hope for one, perhaps, but not for two.

So West tries to manufacture a trump trick for his side that does not exist naturally. He plays the deuce of spades at trick three, hoping to find his partner with the queen or jack of trumps.

East does not have to be a genius to realize that he is expected to ruff with his highest trump. He observes that West did not lead the queen of spades, a card he is known to have. Accordingly, East overtakes with his partner's plan of defense by ruffing with the jack.

The trump promotion play succeeds admirably. South must inevitably lose a trump trick — regardless of what he does at this point — as well as a diminished trick, and he ultimately goes down one.

Tomorrow: Trump manipulation.

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Housing Corp. Loss Doubled

TORONTO (CP) — An expanding housing program was cited as the main reason for an Ontario Housing Corp's loss of $18,067,523 on its 1971 operations, more than double the 1970 loss of $7,482,363.

The provincial agency's annual report showed a $37,299,496 expenditure in 1971 for development of rental units capable of housing 240,000. In addition, it assisted in providing housing for another 65,000 persons.

The corporation spent $27,694,218 in 1970 on a similar program.

The report showed revenues declined to $19,231,974 from $20,211,365 in 1970. Interest income was down to $9,619,289 from $13,308,222 the year before because of declining interest rates.

Unemployment Up

Unemployment rose to an estimated 524,000 last month from 483,000 in October, Statistics Canada reported Tuesday. There were 503,000 persons out of work a year ago. The November figure was 5.9 per cent of the labor force, compared with 5.4 per cent in October and 5.8 per cent in November last year. The statistics bureau said the labor force continued to expand — an unusual occurrence in November — rising to 8.88 million from 8.78 million in October. (CP Newsmap)

Coal Mine Has Three Years Left

RIVER HEBERT, N.S. (CP) — "We're good for at least another three years, and maybe longer," a veteran mining operator said.

And the citizens of this Cumberland County community in Nova Scotia are hoping Ron Beaton of River Hebert Coal Co. Ltd. is right.

The Cochrane mine is the bread and butter for some 2,500 residents here and is the only major industry in the area. Closing of the mine will likely mean slow death for the area.

A late March announcement that the mine would close sent panic through the community, but later the Nova Scotia government reconsidered the situation and decided on a three- or four-year withdrawal program.

In April the mine was threatened with immediate closure when high levels of methane gas were discovered. Work started on the ventilation system and soon adequate air circulation was restored to assure the men's safety.

Mr. Beaton said the closing-down program might go beyond the four-year period. "We can sell all the coal we can get our hands on . . . many people prefer to burn coal."

The nearby Maccan power plant is the major buyer of the Cochrane coal while the remainder goes to the homes of the people of Cumberland County and adjoining counties.

The mine now operates at 2,000 tons a month, little over half of what it was producing during the peak years of 1964-65.

The mine now employs 115 men working on three shifts. If the mine closes in four years about 35 employees would qualify for a pension.

Mr. Beaton said the mine not only keeps River Hebert alive, but also eases some of the unemployment problems of Springhill, a nearby community which was once the centre of mining production in mainland Nova Scotia.

Most residents in the area believe the mining operation will continue for years to come despite the plans of the provincial government.

But Mr. Beaton, reflecting on the closure of several large mining operations in the province, said: "That could happen here."

Craftsman Dislikes Big Demand

SACATON, Ariz. (AP) — Indian arts and crafts are booming. And one of the tradition's most skilled practitioners, Joseph Lonewolf of the Santa Clara pueblo in New Mexico, doesn't like it.

"People send me cheques to make pots," he said. "They want 10 of one thing. I have not even done yet. I have to send them back. I cannot work like that.

"People try to force me to work faster. They push me, but I try to ignore them. I cannot set a time limit on my work."

His work has brought prices of up to $3,000. During the first mass showing of his work in Arizona recently, all of his pots sold within eight hours. The two most expensive sold in the first minute.

"I sculpture my pots to give them meaning," he says. "And each of them tells a story all its own. But the stories are traditional ones.

CITY OF BELLEVILLE – LOCAL IMPROVEMENT NOTICE

TAKE NOTICE THAT:

1. The Council of the Corporation of the City of Bellville intends to construct as a local improvement the following road, complete with concrete curbs and gutters, replacement sidewalks on both sides and storm sewer, and intends to specially assess a part of the cost upon the land abutting the work and the balance against the Corporation at large as follows:

STREET	FROM	TO	Estimated Cost	Corporation's Share	Owner's Share	Estimated Cost Per Foot Frontage	Estimated Annual Cost Per Foot Frontage
Bridge Street West	Highland Avenue	Sidney Street	$183,700.00	$136,800.00	$46,900.00	$11.99	$1.83

50 ft. x $11.99 = $599.50

If paid over a period of 10 years at 8½% per annum, the cost would be:
50 ft. x $1.83 = $91.50

2. The special assessment is to be paid in 10 equal annual instalments.
3. Application will be made by the Corporation to the Ontario Municipal Board for its approval of the undertaking of the said work, and any owner may, within 21 days after the first publication of the Notice, file with the Clerk of the Municipality his objection to the said work being undertaken.

250 to Be Employed

Picton Firm to Make Half Million Plastic Houses Yearly

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — This town is slated to become the centre of a new plastic housing industry that will ship its products to at least 28 countries around the world.

Production of the dome-shaped housing units will begin either Dec. 28 or Jan. 3 at the former Canadian Forces base here.

Goods have already been delivered to the site and the plant's equipment is in Customs in Belleville, said John E. Grimba, president of the plastics company.

Mr. Grimba said by telephone from Toronto this morning that his factory will employ 200 to 250 local people. Only four "experts" will staff the plant to teach the local people how to manufacture the plastic dome housing units.

Maximum production is expected to be more than 500,000 units annually. But Mr. Grimba said maximum production is dependent on the flow of raw materials, most of them obtained from Canadian companies.

Mr. Grimba says his company, Skylight Homes Ltd., controls the breakthrough in marrying non-combustible plastics, a process that makes the housing units possible.

The factory will produce three models. One is a round dome of 680 feet that will market for $2,100. The second is an extended dome, enclosing 1,100 square feet by inserting a section between the two halves.

Last Footprint on Moon

Apollo Saga Over

HOUSTON (CP) — Eugene Cernan stepped off the moon today, leaving in the lunar sand perhaps the last footprint of the generation which first challenged space. Exploration by the Apollo "moonships ended with Cernan's last words from the dusty surface before preparing for blastoff to earth: 'Godspeed the crew of Apollo 17.' ~

" . . . As I take these last steps from the surface back home, for some time to come," Cernan said before entering the Apollo landing ship Challenger. "I believe history will record that America's challenge of today has forged man's destiny of tomorrow."

Then he added: "And as we leave the moon and Taurus-Littrow we leave as we came, and, God willing, we shall return, with peace and hope for all mankind. Godspeed the crew of Apollo 17."

Turning, Cernan then followed his crewmate, Harrison Jack Schmitt up the ladder into the cabin of Challenger.

There they rested before preparing to leave the lunar surface in the late afternoon and rejoin the third man of Apollo 17, Ronald Evans. He has been orbiting the moon in the command ship America since Monday's lunar landing.

The third and last excursion around the valley of Taurus-Littrow, on man's sixth visit to the moon, was an anti-climax.

No more orange soil was found, like that which set the scientists a gog during Tuesday's second safari.

The second disappointment was the apparent total failure of two important surface experiments. One, to measure the surface electrical properties, overheated. The other, a much more ambitious project to determine whether gravity waves—as predicted by Einstein—actually exist, flatly refused to function despite thousands of radio commands from earth.

Bilingualism Target Date Moved to 1978

OTTAWA (CP) — The government announced today how it will go about filling nearly 25,000 public service positions with bilingual persons by 1978 without discriminating against unilingual public servants.

The altered policy announced by Treasury Board President Mr. Drury sets back by three years the target date for a functionally bilingual public service, and outlines nine "principles" to designate and fill bilingual positions while protecting the job security of unilingual public servants.

Back to Biblical Times

It's Christmas pageant time again at the Ontario School for the Deaf. With a cast of more than 70 students — including youngsters like five-year-old Linda Mainbardis here testing beard makeup of Bobby Ryall, 17 — the annual Nativity, based on biblical sequences, is being presented this week. It's the longest-running stage production of the season in Belleville. For details, see first page, second section.

Trade Seen Linked To Truce Role

"I'm sorry, I have no change!"

OTTAWA (CP) — Officials continue to take a strongly sceptical view of Canadian involvement in a Vietnam ceasefire. But the decision whether to take part is being linked to wider issues of U.S.-Canada relations.

With important trade talks likely to resume in late January, they are especially concerned about the consequences of a rejection of Washington's request to join the observer group.

One cabinet minister familiar with the issues says that to speak of the rewards and punishments that Washington could use to influence a decision "is going a bit too far."

But sources at the cabinet level and below agree the Vietnam question is tied to other U.S.-Canada issues.

Kissinger Back Home

WASHINGTON (CP) — Henry Kissinger's return without a Vietnam pact apparently presents President Nixon today with some hard choices on how to reach a peace agreement.

Nixon arranged a morning meeting with his adviser, who returned shortly before midnight Wednesday night from nine days of arduous bargaining in Paris with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho.

Thieu's Truce Backed by U.S.

PARIS (AP) — The United States threw its support today behind the Christmas peace package proposed by South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu and accused North Vietnam of using "high pressure" tactics in an attempt to impose an incomplete peace settlement.

New Cost-sharing Pact On Health Top Priority

OTTAWA (CP) — Marc Lalonde, Canada's new health minister, sees a new federal-provincial cost-sharing agreement as one of his first tasks.

"As you know, on the health side, proposals have been considered over the last year or two concerning a fundamental review of the medicare and hospital insurance schemes," he said in an interview Wednesday.

"These reviews could end up, if there is an agreement, in a really fundamental change in the whole operation."

"It would lead in effect to . . . the repeal of the medicare and hospital insurance acts; the replacing of these two with a new act that would allow greater flexibility for the provinces and more room for them to work out their own priorities."

He has had informal discussions already with Quebec health and social affairs minister Claude Castonguay. And today, he was to have informal meeting with Ontario Health Minister Richard Potter in Toronto.

He said he would like to see a full-scale federal-provincial ministers conference in the near future.

Any new health plans would have to meet federal criteria about universal applicability, portability from one province to another, and accessibility by all persons. But Mr. Lalonde said, these plans could offer the provinces much more control, especially over which areas of health care other than hospital and doctor payments should receive greater emphasis.

"Our system at the present time has a built-in prejudice for hospital care and doctors care."

The provinces have no incentive to develop new services, because there are no provisions for cost-sharing, he said.

Proposals for revamping the agreement were put forward 13 months ago by former health minister John Munro. They were not greeted with unanimous approval by the provinces.

However, rapidly rising costs have put some pressure on the provinces, Mr. Lalonde said. There was even some pressure from the public for less expensive kinds of health services.

Mr. Lalonde ruled out a suggestion that deterrent fees might be brought in to limit use of hospital or medical insurance plans.

Girl, 12, Helps Deliver Sister

TORONTO (CP) — Joli Grant, a 12-year-old East York girl is especially proud of her six-day-old sister, Samantha Mary, because she assisted in delivery of the baby.

The operation was performed by former nurse Sheila Murray—a neighbor of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Grant—in the living room of the Grant residence. The mother said Samantha Mary's arrival was "so unexpected" because she is usually in labor 12 to 16 hours.

The 6-pound, 7-ounce baby is Mrs. Grant's sixth child.

Joli, a Grade 7 student, tied the umbilical cord with a shoelace on instructions from Mrs. Murray while her younger brothers and sisters peeked from the kitchen.

Mrs. Grant said it was "quite a lesson in childbirth" for all the children.

Joli said: "The only thing I'm sure of is tying the shoelace."

Roy Grant, equally surprised by the unexpected arrival, had left the house that morning to act as chairman of a public relations conference.

No Law Against Car Taking Drink

CALGARY (CP) — Provincial Judge L. A. Justason in a stickler for correct English—a fact he revealed in court Wednesday.

He said he is "on the threshold" of throwing out grammatically incorrect charges.

The judge delivered the warning "to constables who dangle their participles" when he refused to proceed with a charge that alleged a motor vehicle had alcohol in its blood.

The charge stated that a 23-year-old Claresholm, Alta., man on Dec. 7 "drove a motor vehicle having consumed alcohol in such quantity" that the amount of alcohol in its blood exceeded the legal limit.

"There is no such offence known to criminal law," said Judge Justason.

"Why can't these constables get dangling participles out of their minds?"

"The English language is fast becoming a relic to be framed and hung on the wall. Either we should speak the language or bring an interpreter into the court."

Firm to Build Plastic Homes

ves of the domes. The third model, with 760 square feet, is designed to look like a "typical suburban brick bungalow".

The plastic houses will last at least 50 years, and longer if sprayed with plastic once every 10 years.

The dome unit was perfected after the firm established what people in developing countries can afford to pay for housing.

Studies show If a housing unit is priced above $5,000 only 4 per cent of the population of a developing country can afford it.

If the price is above $2,000, 27½-per cent can afford it, but at $1,500 54 percent can become owners.

Among the countries expected to purchase the domes are Costa Rica, the Philippines, Afghanistan, Mexico, Algeria and Chile. Mr. Grimbas said he has "many" signed contracts already.

Before April, 1973, Skylight expects to be producing homes for Canadians and Americans. A plant in Baton Rouge, Louisiana, now produces the units but the Picton plant will be "much larger," said the president.

The domes come in five colors, white, yellow, green, blue or orange.

When packed for export, the standard dome units fill a crate measuring 21 by 8 by 8 feet and each crate weighs 1,750 pounds.

The plant locating service of the provincial government recommended the Picton army base location, said Mr. Grimbs.

"I specified only that I wanted to locate close to water and rail and must have a one-floor operation.

Climate, usually a vital factor in plastic manufacturing processes, is not significant in Mr. Grimbas' operation he said. The cold winters in Picton will not hinder his plastic-spraying process.

William Duggan, Prince Edward county's industrial commissioner, said in Picton today that he was happy to be selected for the army base site. He said he had had talks with representatives of Loch Sley Holdings, the company that owns the site, and a letter of intent was signed and deposited at the industrial commissioner's office about a month ago.

"Picton Mayor - elect Harvey J. McFarland is a principal in Lock Sley Holdings, and he hinted during the recent municipal campaign of two new industries coming to Picton.

Mr. Duggan said further talks will be held with the Skylight president "within the next few days".

Mr. Grimbs said from Toronto this morning that he will be conferring with Mr. McFarland in Picton tomorrow morning.

A Canadian citizen, Mr. Grimbs is a native of Latvia, who came to Canada in 1951. He has controlled the plastic process to be used in Picton for the last 14 months, and has already sold dome units to a Toronto man who has erected them for ski chalets.

Mr. McFarland was out of town today and not available for comment.

Sometimes it works and sometimes it just doesn't, says Keith Gordon, who makes his living picking locks. Mr. Gordon says many Belleville homes are improperly safeguarded offering a thief little resistance.

10 Per Cent Affected

Premium Postage May Mean Nothing

TRENTON (Staff) — According to the postmaster here, post offices across Canada for the first time this year, are lumping first and third-class mail together for bulk shipping.

This method contrasts that of previous years when first-class, eight-cent mail was separated.

Donald R. Dishart, assistant postmaster for Trenton, said Wednesday the joint shipping is a system that has caused a 24-hour slowdown in delivery to homes and boxes beyond regular Christmas season backlogs.

Add to this a 20 per cent increase in mail received over the same period as last year, and it's "thrown a bit of a monkey wrench into our operations," he said.

Postmaster Gordon Hanna said a directive earlier this year left the question of bulk mail to the discretion of local postmasters, in direct proportion to the volume.

Up until 1971, the first class mail was sorted and sent for distribution, third class such as unsealed cards, was then sorted in bulk and shipped later.

Now, with the exception of local mail, first and second-class is shipped together to larger distribution points such as Belleville.

Contacted by telephone in Toronto Wednesday, Kenneth Bagnall, post office regional director of public affairs for Ontario, said bulk mail receives "no airlift or highway priorities".

He referred to Mr. Dishart's statement of a 24-hour delay and "an unfortunate way of putting it."

Mr. Bagnall said the bulk shipments were designed to speed up delivery.

Good Locks Insure Insurance Payoff

When it is your business to be able to break into a lock of anything, you learn very quickly that Belleville homeowners aren't very concerned about safeguarding their residences.

A lock-picker for more than 20 years, Keith Gordon of the Gordon Lock Company, says, "people in Belleville aren't concerned or conscious of the need to keep their locks up to date."

The expression "locks are to keep honest people out," comes up regularly as Mr. Crook wants to get in, he'll find a way. There always is one."

The principal of the lock of the 'Ole Biz' make the burglar do as much damage as possible while entering the home, allowing the owner to collect insurance which will generally cover loss only when forcible entry can be established, either by broken glass or splintered door jambs and window frames.

"People moving in from larger cities are much more aware of the need to have doors adequately protected and have it done immediately after purchase," he said.

A surprising number of homes in the city are still equipped with locking devices on doors that Mr. Gordon will not even stand on his north Front Street store.

"Anything that doesn't have a dead bolt device isn't worth having," he said. "There's no security in it."

Doors may be opened using a stiff credit card wedged between the door catch and the frame. With a dead bolt this cannot be done and severe damage has to be done to the door before it will open.

Some apartments have a the poor variety along with a large number of the older homes, he said. The difference between safe and sorry is approximately two dollars.

Using an assortment of tools (available only to certified locksmiths) Mr. Gordon tinkered at a lock while he recalled being asked to enter a building for repossession purposes.

The people who owned the club weren't too happy about it and he picked the latch and took a couple of shots at us (himself and the bailiff). "They missed, thank God."

Locks are getting better all the time, he said, and they are getting harder for me to pick. With Christmas around the corner, everyone should be especially careful of valuables left in their homes, this being prime picking season.

"You learn something new every day in this business, he said. "There's always a new way to break into something and a new lock being devised to prevent it. My job is to be able to break into anything.

I can break in a crook can as well. Prisons are filled with a lot smarter pickers than me," he said.

Most home owners are more aware of insurance needs, while apartment dwellers are both more liable to be burglarized and it is conscious about insurance on their home's contents.

A good lock will only make your insurance pay. It won't completely safeguard your belongings, says Mr. Gordon.

Road Damage Riles Councillors

Heavy gravel trucks hauling up to 20 and 40 tons of material for provincial highway construction jobs are tearing up county and township roads for which no compensation is received by the local municipalities.

This was the complaint heard Wednesday in Hastings county council by Township reeves in the south part of the county.

Sidney Reeve Jack M. Bush told council that the reconstruction of Highway 2 between Trenton and Belleville would cost his township between $75,000 and $100,000 in additional road repairs.

He said the municipality gets no added monetary assistance to help keep these roads in shape.

Thurlow Deputy Reeve Borden Forsythe said his township had the same problem.

Gravel from township pits is hauled over local roads for construction jobs on Highway 401, he said.

"When they (the gravel truck operators) wear out one road they start on another. The municipalities should be compensated."

Reeve Bush noted that the gravel truck operators feel they are within their rights in using any road because they pay heavy license fees and gasoline taxes.

He said more and more licence fee and tax money was being received by the province but less and less was coming back in the form of road grants to the local municipalities.

The discussion on heavy gravel trucks ripping up municipal roads followed a statement from Huntingdon township Reeve Russell Sills that the provincial cutback on road grants was hurting Hastings more than any other county.

He said the grant reduction had put the county back 18 years in road construction and if assistance wasn't soon received the county would never catch up.

Reeve Horace Casey of Thurlow said the provincial department knew what was going on with respect to big gravel trucks using township roads.

He said requests for better roads and more maintenance was coming from all directions, especially school bus operators.

"We have to tell them there is no money available and they don't like it," he said.

On motion of Rawdon Reeve Ray Shortt, council voted to invite district highways engineer W. A. Snell of Kingston, Hastings MPP Clarke Rollins and Quinte MPP Hon. Richard T. Potter to the January council session to discuss road needs.

Waste Disposal Study Approved in Principle

Hastings county council Tuesday voted "approval in principle" for a waste management study be carried out in the county.

The recommendation was contained in a report of the municipal reform committee presented by its chairman Reeve George Lyons of Desoronto, who said that his committee had met with representatives of the Waste Management Branch of the Ministry of the Environment, who urged the study.

The province would be prepared to subsidize the cost of such a study at a 50 per cent rate.

Purpose of such a study would be to review the capacities and conditions of existing sites, the collection systems presently in use, the number of sites required in a county such as Hastings and also the backup system which would be required to collect and dispose of wastes.

The report stated that of the 49 registered waste disposal sites in the county, 30 or more were not up to standard and were being badly operated.

In the opinion of waste management branch officials, the study would pinpoint the need for new sites, keeping in mind the geographic, residential and seasonal populations.

It was noted that such a study was being considered for the Belleville, Trenton, Sidney, Thurlow, Huntingdon and Frankford areas and it was suggested that all bodies "get together" before initiating the study project.

Prince Edward county already has a waste management study under way.

Thurlow Reeve Horace Casey said any waste management study should include sludge disposal from the Belleville Water Pollution Control plant which he said was more of a problem than ordinary garbage.

His said his township would approve of a study only if it included sludge material.

Sidney Reeve Jack M. Bush agreed that sewage sludge from the Belleville plant was a big problem.

Currently the sludge from the Belleville plant is dumped in Thurlow and Sidney townships but both reeves said neither municipality wanted it.

It was admitted that the sludge was treated and that the OWRC claims it is harmless but Mr. Bush said that unless every precaution was taken, it could get into farmers' water supplies and into streams.

Student Death Feared On Rebuilt Highway 2

Do you stop for school buses?

Most people don't on Highway 2 between Trenton and Belleville.

As a result, Ontario Provincial Police expect a fatality on the stretch of road.

"It's inevitable that some child will be killed," says Constable B. A. Turner, accident prevention co-ordinator with the Belleville OPP.

"If you see a school bus with its lights flashing, you must stop, whether you are following or approaching the bus," says Constable Turner.

It's as simple as that.

But because many motorists don't follow the rules, police are seriously concerned about the hazard to school children on Highway 2.

Since reconstruction of the highway to provide four lanes of traffic, motorists, especially those approaching a school bus, have failed to stop to allow children to cross the road.

But the Belleville - Trenton stretch of Highway 2 is not technically a four-lane divided highway.

The east and west bound lanes are separated only by a "rumble" or "singing" strip a grooved concrete strip designed to give the motorist audible warning that he is crossing the middle of the highway.

So, under present provincial law, motorists approaching or following a school bus on Highway 2 between Belleville and Trenton must stop when the bus puts on its warning flashing lights.

Failure to stop carries the penalty of a fine and the loss of four demerit points — and as Constable Turner says, the death penalty — the probable death of a school child.

Keeping Lines Open

Belleville viewed as "The Friendly City" may have a variety of interpretations according to what one does, what one earns and what are ones tastes in recreation and so on.

That the city is home to some 34,000 people we all know. A sizeable number of the population have roots going back many years — to the community's early beginnings — while many others, and they must be considered in the majority, have come here in fairly recent times.

Most are here by choice, if not birth, for Belleville is a pleasant place in which to live and its growth and progress in recent years have made it all the more interesting and stimulating. For all that, you can attend some function or other, say a movie or a travel series film, even the church you have been attending with at least some regularity for years, and realize that the person sitting next to you and a large proportion of the others in audience or congregation, are total strangers.

This of course can be the experience of people in any community, but it does put some strain on the concept locally of this being a "friendly city." Then again, the way our society is structured, the demands of work and so on, leaves little time for more than casual acquaintanceship. Nor is this undesirable, for if everyone is happy in his work, as they say, then it makes for a healthy community at large. And if even strangers can muster a smile or two in the course of daily contacts . . . well we are all the better for these in the midst of our collectively busy lives.

Mayor-elect Mrs. Robin Jeffrey has promised closer ties between City Hall and the community and this should be all to the good. It should improve our image still further as a friendly city and contribute to the overall sense of wellbeing that seems to sit well on a city like Belleville.

In the same spirit is the prospect of the United Community Services and the Belleville Family YMCA getting together to discuss their differences. Such contacts are necessary in any community for the efficient functioning of community services as well as for the simple necessity, this Christmas time especially, of keeping friendships intact and communications open.

Arctic Saga

It was the kind of saga that would have appeared inside the pages of Life Magazine — itself now on the verge of extinction — for it had to do with man in extremity, with life and death, with the very basics of existence.

We refer to the Arctic plane crash that took the lives of a nurse and an Eskimo woman only 28 days later a 14-year-old Eskimo boy, leaving only pilot Martin Hartwell alive.

The boy had chopped firewood, built a shelter and went fishing, and by all accounts had been largely instrumental in the injured pilot's survival. Then, according to Hartwell, he had begun to lose hope and one day while talking about his brothers and sisters, he died.

The crash raises many questions, about the flight itself, the search mission that was called off and then resumed, and the whole business of wilderness survival. Our thoughts go back to another classic tale of the will to live — that of Ralph Flores and Helen Klaben who were rescued after 49 days on a remote snow-clad mountain slope in British Columbia a decade or so ago.

With young David Kotook's death another Arctic legend has been kindled. Mourning also are the Eskimo woman and the 27-year-old English nurse accompanying them, Judith Hill. There are many dedicated medical personnel like Miss Hill in the far north, not a few of them from overseas. The spirit of the Arctic lures them — and sometimes fate claims them forever.

Tourism and Business Generally Declining

Shades of Uganda in Attitude of Bahamas Regime

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's
Ottawa Bureau

NASSAU, The Bahamas — December 1962, the Royal Victoria Hotel.

Prime Minister John Diefenbaker, in Nassau for the conference on guided missiles with British Prime Minister Harold MacMillan and U.S. President John Kennedy, teeters precariously on a chair at the edge of the pool.

On the spur of the moment he had flown down to the Bahamas for the closing day of the conference with a few picked hands from the External Affairs Department and a small press corps from the Parliamentary Gallery.

He was holding a press conference on the final day's announcement from the summit talks that Britain had agreed to abandon its Blue Streak missile and arm herself, instead, with American nuclear warheads.

"Is it true," asked a reporter from the Windsor Star, for openers, "that President Kennedy hates your guts!"

Just like that, the question, out of the clear blue star-studded tropic night, froze a tippling the Prime Minister backwards in surprise into the pool.

It opened — and closed — the press conference.

But in the abrupt ending there was a fringe benefit for the press corps, a couple of days before flying home for Christmas to explore Nassau.

Then, 10 years ago, it was beautiful and tranquil, as warmly attractive as the lovely old Royal Victoria itself, an ancient but still elegant old-world hostelry built before the American Civil War, and set amid a lush tropic garden of hibiscus, bougenvillaea, flame trees, orange, pine-apple and banana, and giant philodendrons.

A steel band played Yellow Bird in a tree house, the Royal Air Force crest shone in color on the bottom of the lighted pool, tapers flickered along the walks winding through the gardens.

The Royal Victoria was a jewel of Nassau along with the Emerald Beach and the Balmoral Beach Club five miles out along the western shore.

Paradise Island then had only its world-famed beach and its opulent Ocean Club into which Huntington Hartford, heir to the millions of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company, had poured millions.

The island was at peace with itself and the world.

Now, Nassau: December, 1972 and the Royal Victoria Hotel.

Abandoned, empty and ill slowly crumbling into ruin, staring with gleamless windows out into the old gardens now deep in dead croton leaves and palm fans.

More than 100 years ago, Rhett Butler had stopped at the Royal Victoria when running guns from Nassau to the Confederacy — or at least that is what author Margaret Mitchell said in her best-selling "Gone With the Wind".

Handsome, swashbuckling, romantic Rhett would not have cared for the Royal Victoria, nor for Nassau, now.

Nor do habitual visitors returning since 1963 year after year to see and sorrow over the deterioration.

The exclusive west end Cable Beach hotels try hard to make it pleasant, but they are bucking the trend.

Paradise Island has been transformed with motor wheels, dice games and slot machines into a West Indian Las Vegas, swarming with high-rollers, little old ladies in blue hair with their cups of silver half - dollars feeding the slots and oyster-eyed security men patrolling the casino and the swinging hotels.

A black government in its fifth year of power is hard at work with immigration permits purging the island of whites regardless of the $1-billion American and the $3-billion Canadian investment sunk into the island's staggering economy and losing value by the day.

Whites who have lived on the island for as long as 21 years are finding it impossible to renew their work permits and are being forced to leave, liquidating, at distress prices, their assets.

A lavish home that took $80,000 to build five years ago is on the market for $40,000 with no takers.

Even senior bank and trust company executives are having work permits problematic.

Indicative of the way the wind is blowing in the West Indies was an incident at the conference of a member of Prime Minister Lynden Pindling's cabinet shutting down Nassau Airport, trapping hundreds of Canadian and American tourists within its hot, grubby confines.

He did it out of plain pique on returning from Miami where he had been searched by American customs and stripped to the skin on suspicion of concealing contraband.

The Bahamas have a strange and colorful history.

First they ran slaves to the American mainland, then guns for the Confederacy, bona fide smuggling prohibition, and now, so goes the gossip, narcotics.

They may call it Paradise, but it is something else again.

Family Planning Objectives Are Outlined

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Recently you published a letter from two gentlemen expressing concern regarding the Family Planning Association of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties. I can only assume from the many inaccuracies in the letter that they were very poorly informed about our organization and should therefore, like to take this opportunity to set them, your readers, and the record, straight. Perhaps some of their confusion stemmed from the fact that they attended a private planning session for volunteers, not, as they believed, an open meeting of the Association, at which the Board has one a month where interested visitors would most certainly be welcome.

The Family Planning Association of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties is a member of the Family Planning Federation of Canada, and of Planned Parenthood Ontario. It shares with other groups across Canada, certain basic objectives and concerns, primarily the promotion of the use of family planning services as an aid to responsible parenthood, as a member of the Family Planning Federation of Canada, was allocated a portion of the financial grant made by the Federal Government to the Federation. The purpose of the allocation was to help the Association establish itself, and it will be discontinued as soon as our Association is self-sufficient, at which point we will have to arrange our own funding. At the present time, we are not members of United Community Services, although we rent office space and a telephone line from their office building. We have a staff of one — a secretary who is paid for nine of the thirty hours a week she works, and a Board of Directors numbering 19, the majority of whom are from Education, Health and Social Service professions.

In the year since the Board was formed, our main emphasis has been to contact various groups in the community to assess the concerns in each of which they see, in order to help us plan our direction.

We sent a survey questionnaire to the doctors in the Hastings and Prince Edward counties area to ask them personally if they would be willing to accept referrals from us if we had requests for information from people who had no family doctor. We had a positive response from most of those who replied, and interesting comments from the rest. At the same time, a survey questionnaire was distributed to the pharmacists in the same area, which received 100 percent response and co-operation. We received word that the Ontario Medical Association recently passed a resolution regarding its official policy on family planning. Part of that resolution is as follows:

"That family planning information including that concerned with contraception, male and female sterilization, and infertility studies be made readily available to all citizens of this province through physicians' offices, voluntary organizations, and public health units."

We had a meeting with representatives from education — public, private and separate, at which the current education programs in family life education, including family planning, were discussed, and ways in which our Association might assist to augment them were explored.

Since September the Association has been running a training course for a number of volunteers who will be available information to people who would like to discuss contraception and family planning. To this end we are attempting to train knowledgeable, sympathetic, responsive volunteers who can make people feel at ease discussing a topic which is often considered embarrassing or "dirty". The volunteers will not, of course, be advising, or in any way to be making decisions for people with whom they talk, but will be guidelines for the volunteer states "While the Association recognizes that professional consultation will usually provide the ultimate answer to individuals' problems, it recognizes also that many people may not know where to go for the appropriate consultation, nor necessarily wish to speak with a professional first". The criticism has been levelled at the Association that such a referral and information service is not necessary in this community, and while we do not yet have a sufficient data to prove the point either way — the experience of Association in other areas across Ontario and other parts of Canada leads us to believe that a need does exist. If it should appear, as time goes by, that such is not the case, and that the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties area is atypical in this respect, then of course, we would change our plans and attempt to reassess our programs.

It is our assumption that if the need exists, our service will be used and that through it, we will gain some ideas and insights into other needs in the area which might be met by our Association.

Chairman, Family Planning Association of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties

Tax Reform at Provincial Level?

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

It's time for Ontario tax reform.

Stop gap grants and subsidies have divorced authority from responsibility. Municipal tax rules designed for frontier farm life befuddle politicians and taxpayers alike.

When most Ontarians farmed, taxes based on land holdings were fair. Today, a millionaire can occupy a small apartment while a poor farmer struggles on many acres. With land based taxes, municipalities can't pay education or welfare costs and the province bails them out producing chaos tempered by patchwork grants. In three sample townships, Scott, Marmora and Belmont, 60 per cent, 58 percent and 55 percent of costs were paid by the province. Even in wealthy Toronto, 32 per cent of municipal revenue is provincial revenue. Municipal councils give representation without authority. They just dispense the provincial grants and lose their independence and power.

Education, the biggest municipal expense, like welfare, has little relation to land. Municipalities build schools and roads, not as wanted or needed but to get provincial grants. Changing provincial policies make even today's municipal expenses, tomorrow's white elephants. While governments and municipal politicians pass the buck, the same taxpayers foot the bill.

Tenants and homeowners are over-taxed. The province acknowledging injustice, gave rebates to homeowners, tenants and farmers. If people weren't over-taxed, the refunds would be unnecessary. The administrative cost of collecting and refunding the over-charge is pure waste.

Assessment no longer reflects values. The province, trying to do their taxation, bungled by combining equalization of rates between municipalities with adjustment of values between individual properties. The resulting chaos swamped assessment appeal boards. Ontario then ordered an assessment freeze — while going back to the drawing board.

The province should:

1. Assume all costs of welfare and teacher's salaries directly and allow municipal authority to construct and operate the schools and raise and spend their own money for municipal functions assisted by provincial grants only in extraordinary cases.

2. Roll back assessments to the level before the province assumed assessment.

3. Multiply the previous assessments by the assessment sales ratio in each municipality to bring properties up to present market value without increasing taxes.

4. Re-assess to allow for increases in the value of individual properties.

Reform by itself won't necessarily slow the tax gallop but could restore the relationship between taxes and the services provided by provincial and local governments. Sudden multi-million dollar plunges into the government grab bag aren't a sound way to run a province.

Today In History

Dec. 14, 1972 . . .

Prince Albert, consort of Queen Victoria, died 111 years ago today—in 1861—of typhoid fever at the age of 42. A keen sponsor scientific and sponsor of social reforms, his influence over the Queen was fully appreciated only after his death. Victoria went into seclusion for many years and was mourning at the end of her life. Some historians believe her political astuteness, on her return to public life, was a direct result of her life with the German-born prince.

1856—John Diefenbaker was elected the national leader of the Progressive Conservative party.

1931—The Canadian government abolished all foreign exchange controls.

Pricy Firearm

LONDON (CP — A 17-century flintlock, once the property of Louis XIII, changed hands at a leading auctioneer's here for £125,000 (about $300,000.) a world record price for a firearm. Bought by an anonymous dealer from an American collector, the flintlock is inlaid with silver and brass engravings. "This probably added to the price," one auctioneer said. Modelling Career Hectic But Money Is Great!

By STASIA EVASUK

Starry-eyed girls with an eye on a modelling career would envy Jill Hammond of Toronto earning $1,500 a week as a model in that small, overcrowded metropolis New York. Her pictures appear in magazines like Mademoiselle, Glamour, Redbook, Seventeen, Co-ed and then there are those glamorous location jobs to islands in the sun during the dreary, winter months.

But life looks more glamorous on the outside than the way it is lived on the inside, according to Jill, 21, daughter of Mrs. Ruth Hammond. Jill came here 16 months ago to try her luck at the big time.

"It takes a long time getting started on a modelling career here," says green-eyed, auburn - haired Jill who stands 5 feet, 7 inches.

"You have to tramp the streets showing your portfolio to different studios. It was four months before I got my first job."

Her luck changed when Jean Williams, who runs her own model agency in Toronto, came down on a visit and showed her how to do her hair and make-up different. Practically the next day she started working and hasn't stopped since.

"August, September and October are good months and so are January, February and March.

"During those months I average $1,500 a week and in slow months, $500 or $600 a week."

"I've got Salvation Army people living on one side of my building and the Mafia on the other. Joey Gallo used to live right above me (except "Crazy Joe" Gallo, reputed underworld boss, was slain in a hail of bullets on April 7).

"I never go out alone at night and have double locks on my doors. You don't carry a lot of money with you when you go out, even if you're not alone."

Jill leads a quiet social life, mostly going to model-photographer parties. She seldom goes out on the town unless somebody visits from Toronto and she shows them around.

"There's more opportunity to make good money here but you spend it so fast," she admits. As for the glamour-out work:

"I was out last week by the ocean in New Jersey for a magazine. It was 30 degrees and I nearly froze to death. You call that glamour-out work?"

Mental Health Patients Receive Special Christmas Presents

Though the Belleville Mental Health Association has not existed since 1970, the Christmas Gift Program for area mental health patients will continue.

"More than 500 mental health patients in the Quinte district will still receive presents this Christmas," said Mrs. Mary Fletcher, chairman of the Christmas gift program at Christ Church.

Mrs. Helen Kelly and Mrs. Mary Fletcher, who are both members of the Belleville Mental Health Association, have purchased all the gifts including jewellery.

"We wrote letters to area women's organizations for gifts or money donations. We have received money which requires more time to purchase presents and wrapping them," said the chairman.

Special care volunteers assist Mrs. Fletcher and Mrs. Kelly. Mrs. Jean James and others have helped wrap the gifts for 500 patients and will deliver Christmas presents to 18 homes in Belleville, Trenton, Picton, Madoc, Deseronto, West Lake, Campbellford and Delora.

Since the Belleville branch of the Mental Health Association is inactive, these women are an associate "group of Mental Health Ontario in Toronto.

There are still 100 more gifts or money donations needed. Anyone wishing to donate may contact Mrs. Mary Fletcher at Christ Church, Belleville before Saturday, December 16.

Art Duncan Addresses Medical Secretaries

The importance of a sense of humor was guest speaker Art Duncan's theme when he addressed the Quinte Medical Secretaries and physician-employers at the recent annual Christmas dinner.

Following introduction by Mrs. Eileen Cooley, Mr. Duncan, recently acclaimed in New York City as "The Toastmaster of Canada", emphasized the need for more content in one's daily life, more laughter to balance sadness, more introspection to counteract today's hectic lifestyle.

Mr. Duncan also noted the alleged generation gap. He suggested that today's parents in their determination to make easier for their children, were depriving them of the sense of appreciation that comes with singular effort and accomplishment, in spite of this, he added, today's children were stronger and brighter, and more aware, than were those of our generation and declared the future to be, in his estimation, in pretty good hands.

Sharing the head table with Mr. and Mrs. Duncan were Mrs. Sharon Tapp, president; Dr. R. M. Anderson, honorary president; Mrs. Diana Maxwell, past president; Dr. F. M. Swaine, past honorary president; Mrs. Jackie Vivian, vice-president and Dr. R. S. Smith, Quinte's Representative to OMSA, Mrs. Mae Cathcart and Dr. J. N. Hartt. Dr. Anderson thanked Mr. Duncan.

Mrs. Tapp extended special thanks to Mrs. Cooley, Mrs. Cathcart and members.

Dollar Tree Featured

One of the highlights of the Cannifton-Corbyville Sr. Citizens' annual Christmas party was an explanation given by Horace Casey of the future water and sewage installation to take place in Cannifton.

Mr. Borden Forsythe also spoke briefly.

Another feature of the evening was a Christmas tree covered with dollar bills which was to be given to a charity fund.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONWELL

Is the 'other woman' neurotic?

WHAT depends on the woman involved with someone else's husband. If this is the first time she has been this "other woman," the circumstances are too general to reach any conclusion. If the woman makes a habit of secreting only married men, then she may be suffering from a neurosis. Perhaps she can be only interested in a man not because he is a man, but because she needs the satisfaction of knowing she is taking him away from his wife.

Should a premonition be ignored?

NOT entirely: that is if someone is troubled by sensing that something dreadful is going to occur, he should not dismiss the idea just because he is afraid that thinking about it may make it happen. If the individual cannot feel comfortable about his haunting sensation, he might need professional help. He might then see that his fear is dashing more than suppressed guilt seeking expression through a persistent premonition.

Does a child hate a schedule?

FAR from it. Regular meal- and bed-time, etc., give a youngster a sense of orderliness that enables him to establish himself in the world around him. The trick, however, is to maintain the schedule in a relaxed, matter-of-course manner that is free of anxiety. If the child senses that his parents are under pressure to maintain his routine, he will begin to feel tense, too, and may grow to hate the whole business of doing things on schedule.

'Change' Like Rowing

By DORIS CLARK

Those who have rowed a boat know the value of even effort on both oars. One slow oar and you have a crazy series of S curves. The S curve may also be called the S. C. Factor, or Stupidity Curve.

In applying the S.C. Factor to the velocity of things one p asks, "Why doesn't one segment of our culture keep pace with o t h e r s?" That's the same as pondering why one person is a mile slower than another. Academic as this question may be, it still leaves a lot of people unable to recognize or appreciate the velocity of change.

Even so, many, perhaps most, can improve t h e i r idea-awareness and appreciation enough to help speed up their evaluation and acceptance. — Bob Ludwig, Vancouver.

Dear Doris: I went out with a g u y — it was sort of a blind date. Jim seemed very nice at the party, but since I was not used to drinking hard liquor, the whisky I did happen to drink made me very drunk.

Suddenly I found myself in a bedroom with Jim and you can imagine what happened next. After I sobered up quite quickly and realized my mistake. For about two weeks I was very depressed a n d ashamed of myself.

Then last week another boy, John, took me out. I did not know John knew about my indiscretion, but he forced me into having sex with him. All the boys know about me now and I don't know what to do.

If I am pregnant I have decided to run away from home. I could never tell my parents; I would disgrace them. But one good thing has come out of all this — I have found and accepted God.

Do I have to see a doctor to verify if I am pregnant? How do I face the snide remarks and the boys' smirks? — On The Verge of a Breakdown.

Dear On The Verge: If you have found God, get His help in facing your parents with the facts. He has given you these mature people to care for you and to be His hands when you are in trouble.

You will have to rebuild your reputation, which isn't easy. Find the strength to say "No!" always to hard liquor and insistent boys. Walk into your doctor's office and get reassurances about a pregnancy.

Then, with the people who are giving you m o r a l support after they get over (the blow) you must hold your head high and ignore those who choose to make snide remarks.

Confidential to Powder and Perfume: Make-up helps but if you tend to blemishes, get the medicated kind of foundation, and write in for my 20-cent leaflet on acne. Buy good quality products, and apply them in private — please!

Perfume is enchanting, but "a little dab'll do you". Don't forget to wash your face first. Make-up will only make dirt dirtier. And keep your crowning g l o r y shining with frequent washing and brushing.

Confidential to M.A.L.: There were two people involved in what happened before the wedding—your too-ardent fiance and you. You gave in to him because of his brave assurance that he would love you more if you did.

Look at it this way: You could just as well accuse him as let him accuse you, of doing wrong by inviting on premarital sex. If you wanted to. Now it is 10 years later and you have allowed his criticisms to keep coming. Personally, I think he still loves you but has developed a bad habit.

Tell him you either want to join his club and go with him or join one of your own. Stand up to him a little and say to him, in no uncertain terms, "If you love me, show me!" I think you could burst his bubble of arrogance pretty easily.

"Toybrary" Creates Unisex Concept

VICTORIA (CP) — When children visit the play area provided by Victoria toymaker Richard Latte, the girls sometimes choose to play with the forts and the boys inspect A-frame doll houses.

Mr. Latte thinks if his designs are interesting enough children won't be divided by preconditioned notions of what toys appeal to what sex.

His custom-made toys, in 50 designs, are made of wood; even when they're scarred and scratched they are solid and safe. He says they're much better than plastic toys that break leaving rigid, sharp edges.

Mr. Latte l e a r n e d teaching his own children, 11-month-old Rain and Michael, 2. A former economics student, he has spent more than five years in Victoria in arts and crafts. His House repairs gave him a feeling for carpentry and toys.

His wife Sheila helps him run a "toybrary" where for a yearly fee of $3 a child can come and use the play area. For an additional fee the family may rent toys to take home.

The Lattes' business theory is the children still want new of the toys they have borrowed and parents will order one custom-made. A fort costs $24 and prices go up to $145 for a multi-dimensional indoor-outdoor piece of play equipment.

"I'm at the point where my larger structures can be d i s mantled piece by piece so they can be carried to the family car," Mr. Latte said.

Seemingly simple at first, the toys do prove to involve a child's creativity, learning power and muscle power as well as time. The tug boats have hatches that open, close and are removable; anchors let out or wind in and there are barges to tow.

The climbing apparatus has additional features such as a slide, and a canvas set of covers that click into place and transform the structure into a tent or secret castle.

Richard Latte said what he is doing is fun. "I'm living up to the child that exists in me."

Limits Lifted For GPs

WINNIPEG (CP) — Victoria Hospital is pursuing plans to allow more general practitioners to treat patients in their care for mental and emotional illness.

Dr. Gordon Smith, chief of psychiatry for the 254-bed hospital, said in an interview that five family d o c t o r s already are treating mental illness on the hospital's 25-bed psychiatric ward. As well, three other doctors have admitting privileges for their patients.

Treatment of patients admitted to psychiatry is conducted by hospital staff in consultation with psychiatrists, who take part in the patient care and advise family doctors on procedure.

Dr. Smith says the idea behind the system is to "bring mental health to the same level as physical conditions and treat it the same way you would approach medical and surgical cases in a community hospital."

He said the hospital allows general practitioners to do their own obstetrics, internal medicine and so on. "Why shouldn't the family doctor be involved in his patients' mental and emotional conditions treatment as well?"

Readers' Response Varies For Best 10 Years

Dear Readers: I asked you to tell me which 10 years in your life were the best. I promised to let you know how you stacked up with the majority of the people who wrote. But before I do, I'd like to share some of the mail with you:

From Bubbling in Bethesda: I'm 49 years old and everything gets better except politics, traffic and appliance repairs.

M.N.G. In Mineapolis: My best years are NOW. I am 80 and I refuse to live in the past. There is nothing there. It's all ahead. Life can be beautiful if we let it.

D.W., Chicago: My best 10 years were from 20 to 30. My children were sweet little babies and my husband hadn't started to drink and chase women.

Dottie In, From Columbus, Ohio: My 10 years were between 50 and 60. I went back to work, got a new daughter-in-law, paid off our home, became a grandmother twice, went to Hawaii, shook hands with the Pope.

G.M.W.: My best 10 were from 8 to 18. Then I got married.

J.T. from Jacksonville, Florida: The best 10 years for me were as follows: 5-15 best for education: 20-30 best for romance: 35-45 best for finances; 65 began the best 10 years for comfort, relaxation, freedom from compulsory duties. I retired then and I love it.

Mrs. T.A.M. of L.A., Cal.: I am 73 and am having a grand time. Better than when I was young. My fun started when I became a widow 30 years ago. I live alone, eat when I please, go to church and square dancing, nobody bosses me around and men don't bother me.

Seventy Seven Plus: Any 10 years could be my best. There are two years I would like to forget, from April 7, 1917 until May 16, 1919. I was in the famous Rainbow Division of the First World War. That was supposed to be the war to end wars. We never learn, it seems.

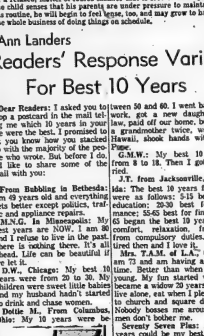
Ann F., Longview, Washington: I'm only 16 but my first 10 years were the best. It's rough being a teenager.

R.B.V., Monigemery, Ala.: The best years are from 22 to 72. Retired. More relaxed. I eat less, go to bed later, get up later. Don't have to fight the traffic. Can stay home if it's cold or raining.

Mrs. C.S.B.: Life begins at 40. I could write a play about it but I think it's already been done.

Mrs. M.F., Baltimore Md.: I am 70 now and my best years were from 23 to 33. We were struggling together then, my husband and I. The thrill of having babies, working together for a future—it was us against the world. And what a marvelous time we had. Those days were beautiful.

W.R., Belaire, Texas: I'm a wife, age 60—and the 10 best years are the last 10 years—counting backwards from this moment on.



Mrs. R.C.R. from Haciends Heights, Cal.: I'm 52 now and every year gets better. I look forward to every day and have no desire to turn the clock back even one minute.

F.J. from San Jose, Cal.: The best 10 years started when my youngest could go to the toilet alone and the oldest went off to college.

F.L., Miami, Fla.: The best 10 years were from 20 to 60—I thought, and then from 40 to 50 they got better. It has been that way all along. Now I am 70. Please ask me again in 10 years, Ann.

School Administrators To Teach A Half Day

TRENTON (Staff) — This Friday, seven Hastings county board of education administrative staff members will be taking up chalk and pointers as they return to teaching duties.

But their stint at teaching at V.P. Carveell School here is only to be a one-morning affair.

School principal Gale Allen explained the idea to have the six superintendents and one educational assistant return to classrooms came about when the school teaching staff wanted to plan its winter student interest program that also includes preparing for a winter carnival.

To plan for the carnival, winter sports and all the activities that surround the colder season requires "a long planning session", Mr. Allen said.

"If we can all get together and plan it at one meeting, we can save quite a bit of time."

He sought the assistance of Trenton area superintendent Glenn Watson, who fielded the idea before board officials. The idea caught hold and plans were made. At one point even director of education Eric Runacres said he wanted to take a hand, but because of other commitments he found he couldn't.

Mr. Allen says, "This arrangement provides a practical opportunity for the administrative personnel to gain first hand knowledge and information about the various aspects of the school program".

The principal feels morning teaching sessions will expose the administrators to classroom needs.

"Undoubtedly this will prove helpful in their dialogue with and presentations to the board of education regarding curriculum development, student achievement and the like."

The seven going back to school Friday morning are: superintendents Glenn Watson, Robert Horwood, Frank Tait, E. F. Morris, L. F. Reid, John Garrett (former Trenton High School principal), and educational assistant Donald Lockyer.

They will be teaching grades 1 through 8.

Going by the book meant just exactly that for many a community practitioner of Dr. Sam Cronk's generation.

Last night, a library at Belleville General Hospital was dedicated in his name.

Aptly, centrepiece of the new Dr. G. S. Cronk Medical Library is a well-thumbed series of volumes on surgery. For years, the books were among the veteran professional's most treasured possessions.

When he began his lengthy career there were few alternatives to such references for a community doctor of Dr. Cronk's generation.

Before the era of easily-reached specialization and consultation, the hometown physician frequently was alone in resolving a problem. For the doctor on the spot, his medical books often were his only guide.

Last night's dedication placed in sharp relief the changes in medicine since those earlier days — an evolution in which Dr. Cronk participated as a community practitioner.

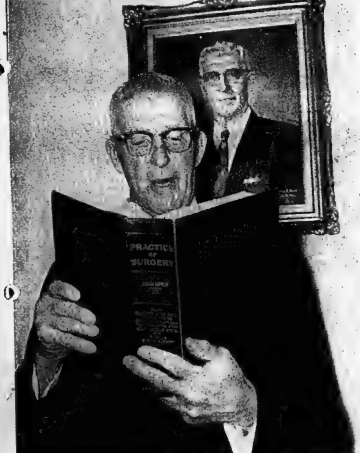
The library is installed in the hospital's spanking new administrative wing, the last phase of expansion which has totally transformed Belleville General into an up-to-date medical complex.

Equipment included a glass-top operating table, lighting of which counted a gooseneck lamp behind the surgeon — an installation he has good reason to recall.

"I remember one day I was operating I burned my ear on it," Dr. Cronk recounted in his speech during the dedication.

But taking things in stride early became a part of the physician's life style, his career synopsis in last night's dedication speech by Dr. Harold Williamson showed.

He even had to work to put himself through high school.



Born north of Kingston on a Parham farm in 1889, Dr. Cronk travelled as a youth with prospectors in the Cobalt area. He returned to work at silver-mine blasting to get the money for a secondary school education. In 1915 he graduated from Queen's University medical school, joined the Canadian Army Medical Corps and helped doctor the casualties of World War I. He worked in a Boston hospital for a year before opening practice in Belleville.

His subsequent career in general practice, obstetrics and surgery also included 30 years in public appointments as a coroner and city health officer — a sum of service from which he emerged a well-known and popular community figure. He retired from full-time practice a year ago.

Such a service record resulted in Dr. Cronk being "esteemed by hundreds of people in a community . . . very fortunate to have such a doctor over the years," said Rt. Rev. J. P. Sullivan, hospital board chairman last night.

Added Dr. Williamson: "It has been a long and admirable career which we all might emulate."

During the brief ceremony Dr. Bruce Cronk unveiled a portrait of his father, which will hang in the new library bearing his name.

A Surgeon's Books

Dr. G. S. Cronk examines one of the volumes the well-known city surgeon donated to Belleville General Hospital's medical library named after him last night. Behind him is portrait also presented library, being organized in hospital's new administration wing.

Wardenship Two-way Fight

The 1973 wardenship in Hastings county will be a straight two-way fight between the council heads of two southern municipalities.

This was indicated Wednesday as council members met for their traditional year-end luncheon following their two-day December session.

The two receive in lost their hats into the wardenship contest are Thurlow Reeve Hector Casey and George Lyons, Reeve of the town of Deseronto.

In contrast, the race for the 1972 county wardenship was a four-way affair with Tyendinaga Reeve Carmban Gibson winning the honor.

It was a time for reminiscing at yesterday's yearend luncheon as talks were heard from no less than 12 reeves or deputy reeves who will join the members of next year's county council body.

These are Reeves Russell Sills of Huntingdon, Jack M Bush of Sidney, Carman Gibson of Tyendinaga, Albert Ider of Wollaston, Ray Hanbah of Mayo, John Wilkes of Marmora and Lake, Merton Hamm of Limerick, Floyd Bredbour of McClure, Wicklow and Bangor and Jack N. Brown of Bancroft.

Also missing from county council next year will be deputy Reeves Borden Forsythe of Thurlow, Murray Heath of Rawdon, and Stanton Cassidy of Hungerford.

On a lighter vein, Reeve Bredbour said that he must have set some kind of record for briefness in his county council stint.

Mr. Bredbour was named as reeve of the northern municipality following the death by accident of Reeve Delmont Card.

He attended this week's two day council session but will not be back as he was defeated at the polls in the December 4 municipal election.

Also doing a bit of reminiscing at Wednesday's luncheon was Lee Grills, former MP for Hastings. Mr. Grills recalled his own days at county council during his own wardenship back in 1952.

County council experience was invaluable for municipal officials on their way up, he said.

Hastings county council next year will establish some kind of a record of its own with no less than 25 new faces to report for the January session.

These will include successors to the 12 retiring members and the 13 additional deputy reeves who under recent municipal act changes will be sitting on council for the first time.

This means that of the 47-member council body, more than half of the council body will be new faces.

Two Appointed To Committee

Two retiring county council members, Reeves Albert Vader of Wollaston and Ray Hannah of Mayo have been appointed to three-year terms on the Hastings County Land Division Committee.

The appointments were made at the conclusion of the two-day December session on Wednesday. The two reeves will replace J. Ralph Martin, RR 3 Bancroft and Bruce Port, RR 6 Belleville on the committee.

Two other present committee members, Ed Colling of RR 1 Stirling and Kenneth Holland RR 5 Madoc, had their terms extended for another two years.

Pleads Guilty

TRENTON (Staff) — A Belleville man pleaded guilty in Provincial Court here Wednesday to two charges of uttering forged cheques.

Gregg McLeod was fined $200 on each charge. If he fails to make payment within a month, he faces a two-month jail sentence.

History Lives at Park Dale

By BRIAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

Some lessons can't be learned in the classroom. Children need involvement, something books and teachers don't always provide.

With those thoughts in mind, Park Dale Public School set out this year to imbue its 540 students in the day-to-day existence of Canadian pioneer living. Using antiques, films and historical experts, the school has tried to take history out of the textbooks and place it in a context subteens can understand.

Christmas has provided another chance to step into the past. This week, youngsters — and many of their parents — are gathering in the auditorium and corridors for an old-fashioned Christmas concert followed by a visit to the friendly general store.

Plays, carols and dances went on all day Wednesday while parents, in three shifts, watched their children perform in the shadows of a pop-corn-laden Christmas tree. The shifts were necessary to accommodate everyone in the tiny hall.

Today junior clerks and store managers haggled with their customers over the price of such items as corn husk dolls, ginger bread men and bees' wax candles. Prices were kep below 50 cents. Indicating inflation can be beaten if you don't mind stepping into the past.

"This is life, it's what makes education worthwhile," observed vice-principal Miss Phyllis Beatty, wearing a floor-length dress for the occasion. She and principal Bernard Wright have been developing the pioneer theme with fellow staff members since last spring.

"What I like is that the whole school is involved," said Mr. Wright, pointing out that even kindergarten students took part in carol and Nativity scene presentations.

In October, the school celebrated Thanksgiving by holding a Pioneer Feast with students cooking the turkeys and decorating their classrooms.

"They learned that the whole family got involved when things had to be done," commented librarian Mrs. Wilma Alexander. "That's something children don't always realize today."

One unusual aspect of the Park Dale approach is participation by the parents. Many have come to the school to help teachers instruct children in the intricacies of making bread, butter, cider and other staples of the early Canadian home.

Antique collectors have loaned ancient equipment to the school. Officials of North Marysburgh Museum, along with parents and staff members, all contributed urns, ladles and other utensils that have been preserved through the years.

Mrs. Alexander's library was stocked before the school year began to facilitate the pioneer emphasis. Specialty books — particularly old cookbooks — tape cassettes, kits and films are among the articles available to teachers wishing to add a historic touch to their classroom routine.

How are the children reacting?

"Very enthusiastically," said Mrs. Alexander. "When they were making bread, they loved kneading it and getting up to their elbows in flour, especially the boys."

Principal Wright says the school will feature a different theme next year although it is too soon to say what it will be. He is thankful for the school's autonomy in being able to chart its own course, a privilege many education boards are adopting.

Councillors To Decide On Grants

The Hastings county finance and road committees will meet to decide on what federal local initiatives winter works programs might be undertaken by the county this coming season.

The county has an allotment of $46,000 in federal funds and project applications have to be in by January 15.

One possible project mentioned for consideration was trimming out natural stands of trees on the county's reforestation area near Bird's Creek in Herschel township.

Reeve Frank Peever said there were stands of pine, poplar and other tree types which could be trimmed out and sold for wood chipping purposes.

Another possible project mentioned by Marmora and Lake Reeve John Wilkes was the lowering of a high hill on the county road north of Malone. He said that 30 to 40 men could be kept busy all winter on the project.

Fees Set

The fee structure for building permits in municipalities participating in the Hastings county building inspection program was approved this week by county council.

Permit fees will be $1 per 100 square feet for all types of construction with a minimum permit fee of $5.

Carols Never Change

And neither do children — especially when they take part in an old-fashioned Christmas concert. Entire body of Park Dale Public School is contributing to the pioneer Christmas celebration. Librarian Wilma Alexander says one of the program's major benefits has been a greater appreciation for ancestors by the children.

Nativity Pageant Returns

The lights go up again Friday on Belleville's longest-running Christmas stage production.

It's the Ontario School for the Deaf Nativity Pageant, now in its fourth decade.

The 1972 production, for the first time, is housed in the new Joseph G. Deneza recreation complex — where up-to-date facilities contrast with the old school auditorium which housed the pagant through the years.

New surroundings permit more effective production — with better lighting, a bigger stage to work with.

Nonetheless, the pageant still adheres to the formal, and script of its first draft, dating back to the early 1930s. Even when World War II saw school families commandeered for the air force, the pageant was moved downtown and staged in a church hall.

The production, which combines mime, music and projected visual effects, relates biblical events surrounding the birth of Jesus.

One reason for its unchanged pattern is that the pagent adheres to the events sequence of the New Testament and hence takes on a biblical timelessness.

The pageant also is a major event of the school year for OSD students, many of whom play various roles through the years as they grow older.

The cast of more than 70 — plus backstage crews — provides ample scope for student participation.

Kenneth Graham, OSD teacher who has been its director the last few years, says the presentation is the only major Christmastime stage production in Belleville.

This Christmas is for the general public.

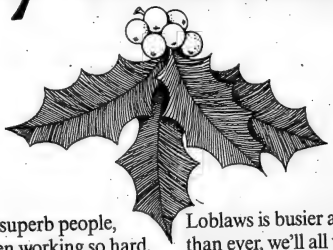
The pageant runs two nights — Friday and Saturday with proceeds going to the OSD Pupils' Benefit Fund.

Crash Victim In Hospital

TWEED (Staff) — A Tamworth man is in Belleville General Hospital today with head and possible chest injuries sustained in a two-vehicle collision 10 p.m. Dec. 13 four miles west of Kaladar on Highway 7.

The car, driven by Edward Harold Wehring, 47, of Tamworth, came into collision with a CN transport truck driven by John Phillips, 27, of Kenwick.

Damage to the transport was estimated at $2,500 and to the Wehring car at $1,000.



Cutting It Fine

THERE IS STILL TIME!

An Appeal To All Members Of The Legislative Assembly Of Ontario To Oppose A Decision By The Minister Of Health To Force Denturists To Work Under The Control Of Dentists!

Bill 203

On June 26, 1972, Bill 203 "An Act to Provide for the Licensing and Practice of Dental Technologists" was introduced in the Legislature by the Honourable Robert Welch acting on behalf of the Honourable R. T. Potter, Minister of Health.

Mr. Welch, in his comments made on introduction of the Bill, stated that "the purpose of the Bill was to create a new dental health worker (modelled unquestionably after denturists) who would be permitted to deal directly with the public in the provision of full upper and lower dentures".

The Bill did NOT provide for any supervision of these people by dentists.

The introduction of Bill 203 caused an immediate uproar in the ranks of organized dentistry. The profession saw in Bill 203 a threat to their monopoly over the provision of all types of dental services. Dentists everywhere throughout Ontario mounted an extensive campaign against the proposed legislation and concentrated their lobbying efforts on Members of the Legislative Assembly of Ontario. The Denturist Society, in response to the campaign launched by dentists, sought assurances from Members of the Legislature (cabinet ministers and back benchers alike) that Bill 203 would receive sufficient support to ensure its passage through the Legislature. We were told again and again that the Bill was really government policy and "was not subject to change". We were led to believe that any amendments would be of a "minor nature" and it would be "left up to the regulations which would go forward with the Bill to define more precisely, education, qualifications, licensing, and the scope of practice of the new dental health practitioner".

An Aboutface

On Tuesday, December 5th, however, the Minister of Health, Honourable R. T. Potter, attempted to push through second reading in the Legislature an amended version of Bill 203 — amendments that were designed to place denturists under the complete control of dentists. Strong criticism of this attempt obliged the Minister to withdraw the Bill. Later that same evening, however, Health Minister Potter announced his intention to reintroduce legislations to replace Bill 203. This new legislation will undoubtedly incorporate the specific amendments which denturists opposed, namely, that the new dental health worker will be controlled and supervised exclusively by dentists in the same manner as dental hygienists, dental nurses, dental assistants and dental technicians are presently controlled and supervised.

This latest move by the Health Minister is nothing less than a complete reversal of what we were led to believe was the unalterable policy of the government.

Another Dental Auxiliary

Thus the new dental health worker will become just another dental auxiliary, added to the long list of dental auxiliaries who are controlled exclusively by dentists and who have been developed mainly for the purpose of providing an additional financial arm to enhance the income of practicing dentists.

How Will The Public Be Affected By These Developments?

The Denturist Society is of the firm opinion that the new legislation incorporating the requirements of supervision by dentists, will be emptied of all meaning for the public as no substantial benefits will occur to those in need. Experience has taught us that no reduction in costs for dental health care occurs through the creation of dental auxiliaries. Moreover, people will be obliged to secure needed denture services only through facilities operated and controlled by dentists. Additionally, if denturists are to be eliminated as a competitive factor (which is what will surely happen if the Minister of Health does not reverse his decision) dentists will again have a free hand to charge whatever they please for their services, notwithstanding the empty promises of the dental profession that they will lower the prices of dentures if they are granted control over denturists.

A Matter Of Urgency

It is a matter of urgency, therefore, that the government of this province, BEFORE endorsing any such move on the part of the Minister of Health to create another meaningless dental auxiliary, should take into account that there are now too few dentists to serve the needs of the people of this province. Supervision and control therefore would oblige all persons seeking the services of denturists to obtain these only through existing dental offices.

Supervision By Whom?

This Society is not opposed to rigorous and stringent licensing requirements. We are not opposed to a licensing board and are most certainly not opposed to formal training, but it is sheer nonsense for the Minister to call for supervision of our activities by the very profession which, in our opinion is at least partially responsible for the dental cripples who daily attend at denture clinics for dentures to replace teeth lost through inept or inadequate dental care. It must be stated therefore, that most persons who have lost some or all of their natural teeth are living testimony to the fact that the dental profession has failed miserably in its primary purpose, namely that of providing adequate dental care for the people of Ontario.

It must also be stated that the majority of persons who attend at the offices of denturists are already wearing dentures provided by dentists — dentures that were ill-fitting and non-functional. ARE THESE DENTISTS WHO WERE UNABLE TO SATISFY THE NEEDS OF THEIR OWN PATIENTS, REGARDLESS OF THE COSTS TO BE GRANTED SUPERVISION OF DENTURISTS WHICH WOULD EMPOWER THEM TO DECIDE WHETHER DENTURISTS HAVE SUCCEEDED WHERE THEY HAVE FAILED?

Seen in this light, the concept of dental supervision is so irrational that one can only speculate that the Minister of Health, who has admitted publicly on numerous occasions that he will not meet with or even talk to denturists, has apparently yielded to the specious arguments advanced by the dentists.

Should The Public Be Ignored?

Over the past several months, members of the public have written countless letters of support for denturists. Many of these letters were directed to the Minister of Health. In nearly every instance, such letters endorsing the services performed by denturists, were written by patients of denturists. It is very apparent to us now, that not only were our recommendations and opinions totally ignored, but those of the public as well.

Clearly there is a principle at stake here and that principle is that the public should have the right to select denture services on the basis of preference. If the public prefers the services of a denturist rather than those provided by the dentists, they should be allowed to do so provided that their oral health needs will not be endangered.

No Health Hazard

The Denturist Society submits that the activities of denturists do not constitute a health hazard and we challenge any responsible authority to prove otherwise.

At the present time there are more than ninety denture clinics throughout Ontario operated by denturists who are members of the Denturist Society. Something in the order of 700 to 900 persons attend daily at these clinics, which is an average of 12,000 to 14,000 persons monthly. Surely, if the activities of denturist posed a threat to the oral health of these people there would be widespread evidence of such. Where is the evidence? We acknowledge the human factor and accept that mistakes can be made, but we insist that with very few exceptions denturists have performed and are performing competently, with a degree of success attending their efforts that cannot be matched by most dentists who have the bulk of their technical work performed by dental technicians who are permitted to have no contact with patients.

An Appeal To The Minister

We appeal therefore to the Minister of Health to reconsider his proposal to place denturists under the control of dentists. We further appeal to him to reconsider his decision not to meet with representatives of the Denturist Society. Consultation with all parties concerned is surely the only proper way to resolve the growing conflict.

In lieu of such consultation, are we to conclude that the Minister is of the opinion that the wishes of thousands of Ontarians should not be considered? In the public interest held to be of secondary importance to the vested interests of the dental profession? Should not the public have full opportunity to have their say as to who will provide the services they require?

Another question which has not been answered to the satisfaction of anyone is. What is to happen to the many denturists who took such enormous risks in their defiance of the dental establishment? Is their reward to be closure of their places of business and consequent denial of services to the many people who found the services of denturists worthwhile?

We are told that "denturists will be given an opportunity to qualify under the new Act". THIS IS A MEANINGLESS CONCESSION! If dentists are granted control over the new dental health worker, they will decide who they will employ. Will any dentist even consider hiring a former denturist? Indeed, would any denturist willingly place himself again under the control of dentists?

Unfair Legislation

The proposed legislation is so obviously unfair, both to the public and to denturists, that it should be withdrawn immediately in order that a whole new approach may be taken by government — an approach free of bias and one which will ensure fair and equal opportunities to all.

We appeal therefore to the public to support denturists in our efforts to resist the passage of legislation which will benefit no one. We urge you to write or phone your Member of the Provincial Parliament calling for withdrawal of Bill 246 which will effectively eliminate denturists.

Late Call for Help Heart Victim's Error

CHICAGO (CP) — Two American heart researchers say that most deaths from heart attacks that occur outside hospitals are due to delay in the patient seeking medical assistance.

Heart attack is one of the leading causes of death in North America today. The two researchers report that of the approximately 400,000 such deaths in the United States each year, close to 250,000 are estimated to occur outside a medical facility.

The investigators, Drs. Manning Feinleib and Michael J. Davidson of the National Heart and Lung Institute in Bethesda, Md., have written in the Journal of the American Medical Association that "by far the greatest delay in the case of a patient with an acute myocardial infarction was his own unwillingness to call for help."

The doctors advocated development of a countrywide network of 24-hour out-patient diagnostic centres to provide quick evaluation of self-referred or physician-referred patients.

They also urged development of less toxic and more effective drugs that may be self-administered to prevent heart failure in coronary heart disease patients.

There should be increased availability of emergency equipment and drugs at such public facilities as stadia, airports and railway stations, they said.

The coronary-prone patient should be identified and educated and he should be taught enough to enable him to know when to seek medical help quickly.

Build New Roads

MOSCOW (AP) — The official Soviet news agency Tass reported that Cuba built about 7,000 miles of new roads between 1959 and 1971, proving that "the Communist party and the revolutionary government of the Republic of Cuba devote great attention to road building."

To Seek Loan

LONDON (AP) — The Philippine government signed a $50-million loan agreement with Britain and indicated it would seek major new international financing before the end of 1973.

Hospital May Get Reprieve

Ontario Health Minister Dr. R. T. Potter has given some hope that the 11-bed obstetrical department at Lennox and Addington County hospital may not be phased out.

The health ministry's financial restriction on hospitals cut the $38,000 a year allowed for the obstetrical department, forcing it to close by April 1973.

At a meeting with James Taylor, MPP for Prince Edward - Lennox, Dr. Potter agreed that the Napanee hospital should be an exception to his ministry's policy of amalgamating obstetrical departments in hospitals within close proximity to one another.

Napanee women would have to go to Kingston or Belleville for delivery, where few town physicians have hospital rights. One of the reasons for building the hospital seven years ago was to provide obstetrical service for the town and eliminate the 25-mile drive to hospital for expectant mothers.

Mr. Taylor said the hospital will have to find the $36,000 necessary to operate the obstetrical ward within the five per cent budgetary increase allowed in 1973 over 1972.

If the spending cannot be whittled down, the matter can be put in the hands of Alan Hay, executive director of the Ontario hospital association, for further economic study, suggested Dr. Potter.

If Mr. Hay cannot find a solution, Dr. Potter will again confer with Mr. Taylor to find an answer.

The obstetrical ward at the hospital has a 20 per cent annual occupancy rate, with fewer than one baby a day born there. Three nurses are employed on the ward.

Hospital administrator E. H. Mills was doubtful about further cutting of costs to find money to finance the obstetrical ward. He said that over the last three years the operating budget has been lowered by about a quarter of a million dollars while all services were maintained.

$1.2 million hospital was built with community support. Industrial workers took a dollar-a-week payroll deduction for two years to pay for the hospital and service clubs and municipal governments in the area contributed heavily.

DONALD E. PUGH, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Pugh, Belleville, recently received his Master of Arts degree in Canadian Studies at Carleton University. Mr. Pugh, a graduate of BCIVS is a staff member of Michiporten High School.

Labor Seminar Fails to Draw

Lack of interest has forced cancellation of a one-day labor school planned for March 3 in Belleville.

Organizing body, the Quinte District Labor Council, had hoped for 50 students to attend seminars on provincial labor law and unemployment insurance. Courses are provided by the Canadian Labor Congress.

QDLC president Reg Loader said few local workers had indicated they would attend, prompting the QDLC to make the cancellation.

Suburban Land Not Real Jackpot

Farmers should get no compensation for loss of expected capital gains if their land is zoned for greenbelt, deputy minister of environment Everett Biggs said Tuesday.

"There is not enough money in the public treasury to compensate the owners," he told a Toronto conference on land-use planning.

Frank Sokmans, deputy director of Quinte Planning Board, commenting on the Biggs' statement said they are a logical in terms of provincial government policy.

The local planner indicated that farmers holding agricultural land in this region, thinking it may be sold for commercial or industrial development, may have another think coming. The Biggs' statement also means farmers will not be compensated for being blocked from selling for such developments.

He said that Quinte Planning Board policy will be to designate Belleville, Trenton and such centres as Frankford for growth but to keep the surrounding countryside largely for rural areas.

Mr. Sokmans stated "active urban uses" will not be encouraged in the township and that it is consistent with government policy that agricultural lands should be valued as agricultural lands. The Greenbelt land-use designation includes agricultural properties.

He doubts the belief held by some circles that Belleville and Trenton will eventually grow together. Otherwise the area between the two communities could contain 1.5 million people — an unlikely development when projected population for greater Belleville is 70,000 people for the year 2,000.

And this Belleville projection is based on a conscious effort to make the city one of the regional growth centres with concurrent limitations on other than natural suburban growth into the townships.

In his speech yesterday, Mr. Biggs said attempting to build the highest possible assessment has been one of the main elements in past planning.

He said under this system, planning of land-use for the benefit of the most people is impossible.

"Dollar planning" will result in "disaster to viable agriculture," he concluded, adding that the province is striving to maintain greenbelt (including agricultural) use of rural areas.

Council Urges Store Boycott

Local union members are being urged to boycott Atlantic and Pacific supermarkets.

In a recommendation approved Tuesday, the Quinte District Labor Council resolved to support Local 411 of the Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union, currently on strike at A and P's Toronto warehouse.

The 200-member local is striking for better wages and other work benefits. It claims A and P has hired the Canadian Driver Pool, a strike-breaking organization that takes trucks and outside workers through picket lines.

A and P has two Belleville outlets.

Youthful Prisoners Roam in Wilderness

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP) — Youthful prisoners at the Whitehorse Correctional Centre have been roaming through the Yukon wilderness, but they're not on a prison break.

Three groups of eight young offenders have spent 10 days in the wilderness with corrections officer Gary McLaughlin in a territorial government-sponsored leadership training course. They've gone into the woods with only a minimum of supplies, so minimal that on one occasion they resorted to eating gophers.

V. L. Ogison, director of corrections for the Yukon, says the government hopes the pilot project will give "dissident and indifferent" offenders a sense of self-confidence, co-operation and leadership ability. He says the boys are despondent and unco-operative when they leave for the expedition, but are enthusiastic after returning.

Mr. McLaughlin's diary indicates the wilderness trips are no picnic.

"By the time we stopped for lunch we were so wet, I thought we'd crossed the Mekong Delta. We had walked 20 miles in 11 hours with an average of 55 pounds carried by each of us.

Fort Chimo Folk Worry Over Dam

MONTREAL (CP) — For John Watt and the 600 other Eskimo residents of Fort Chimo, Que., food and transportation are dependent on water levels and currents of rivers they say could be affected by the James Bay hydroelectric development, a court hearing was told Wednesday.

The Koksoak River supplies the community with food and an inland transportation route and brings the yearly supply ships, Mr. Watt said.

If the current is not strong enough to clear the ice away in spring, the supply ship is delayed and carefully-rationed stores run dangerously low.

When the level of the Koksoak is low there are fewer fish and Mr. Watt has a hard time taking his 25-foot canoe upriver to his hunting and fishing spots, he said.

In an initial report by the James Bay Development Corp. the Kaniapiscau River, an important tributary flowing into the Koksoak, would be dammed near its source and diverted to feed the La Grand River basin—site of the $6-billion power project.

Representatives of about 8,000 Indians and Eskimos of Northern Quebec have filed a petition for an injunction which would halt the James Bay project.

They say the provincial act which authorizes it deprives them of their rights and goes beyond the legislative powers of the provincial government.

Mr. Watt used an Eskimo—or Inuit—interpreter for his testimony. He said he worked 27 years for the Hudson's Bay Co. at Port Chimo and for the past year and a half he has worked as a clerk for the department of Indian affairs.

But he still feeds his family by fishing on weekends and hunting, for which he sometimes takes four weeks away from his job. Sometimes his family eats fish 300 days of the year, he said.

Earlier in the day, Cree Chief Billy Diamond of Rupert House, Que., described the hunting life of his people.

About 50 Indians and Eskimos have been in Montreal for the hearing since Dec. 4, Chief Diamond said in an interview.

"That's a long time for us to be in the city. It's very frustrating."

The group, staying in downtown hotels, was worried Wednesday that the $250,000 grant the federal government gave the native peoples in June for their investigation was running out, but later in the day Loyola College of Montreal announced it has organized emergency housing for the group.

The college gave the students' association permission to reopen a youth hostel which housed transient students during the summer, and the students hope to raise about $6 per day per guest to cover food and transportation costs during their stay.

Bicyclists Not Supported

Hastings county council has voted not to concur with a Peel county resolution calling for the Ministry of Transportation and Communications to subsidize provision of bicycle pathways along main roads.

The resolution asked that the province adopt a policy of subsidizing bicycle paths if the county road authority decided such paths were desired.

But council had divided thoughts on the matter with Hungerford Reeve Frank Peever, Tweed Reeve Barbara Allen and Bancroft Deputy Reeve Audrey Donnelly speaking in favor of the idea.

Rawdon Reeve Ray Shortt was opposed, saying that bicycles were a "damned nuisance" on the roads. Reeve Horace Casey of Thurlow said the county was now unable to find enough money for roads without helping to provide bicycle paths.

And Faraday Reeve John MacKenzie suggested if bicycle paths were provided, the users soon would want the hills sanded in winter.

Reeve Peever noted, however, that at least one state in the USA set aside one per cent of its highways budget for provision of bicycle paths.

Deputy Reeve Donnelly noted that several Ontario municipalities, including Ottawa, were providing bicycle paths, and Tweed Reeve Allen suggested that maybe bicycle paths would be a good idea as bicycles were dangerous on the highways.

Council, however, did concur in a Pembroke resolution calling for action on the part of censor boards in curbing pornography in movies, on television and in publications.

Council also voted not to concur in a Whitby resolution asking for incentive grants to municipalities to help bring existing arenas up to new provincial safety standards.

Neither did council concur with a Northumberland and Durham county resolution calling for amendment of present legislation which would make it mandatory for municipalities to pay county levies on a quarterly basis.

Managers Meet Here

Management personnel from Ontario Hydro's eastern region met in Belleville Wednesday to discuss and review Task Force Hydro's report on making the utility a crown corporation.

The first report was presented to the 75-member body, "as a step in keeping all the staff informed of changes," said Norman Manning, public relations officer for Ontario Hydro.

Five reports will be submitted by the task force, the first being hydro's future role and place followed by organization, financing, nuclear program and make or buy, which will deal with who will be awarded construction contracts — hydro crews or companies from the private sector.

Tweed

TWEED—Miss Louise Cassidy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cassidy, Tweed successfully passed the Red Cross Water Safety and Royal Life Saving Society Instructors Course held at Trenton High School pool.

The Tweed Minor Hockey Association took door-to-door orders Thursday, Dec. 7 for pre-sliced dark fruit cakes. The cakes will then be delivered Thursday, December 14.

This project will assist the group in meeting rising costs of the association.

SNAPE, England (CP) — The current prices freeze in Britain is a godsend as far as slow readers in East Suffolk are concerned. A local county library committee has deferred a plan to treble the one-penny fine imposed on persons who do not return library books on time.

Manitoba Knows Individual Gifts

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Ontario government's decision to force political parties to reveal all corporate donations still may leave Manitoba as the province with the most stringent disclosure laws.

Premier William Davis announced Tuesday that he will introduce legislation before the next provincial election requiring public disclosure by political parties of all funds donated by private and public companies. Details were not revealed.

Manitoba now is the only province which requires its political parties to reveal after each election all individual donations over $100. The province also demands an annual accounting of all contributions of more than $500.

British Columbia requires its political parties to disclose the amount they spent in election campaigns, but does not require them to name the sources of their funds.

The federal government, and the remaining seven provinces have no disclosure laws governing political finances, although the Ontario Health Insurance Plan (OHIP).

Earlier this year, legislation on election finances was introduced in the House of Commons, but with the dissolution of Parliament for the Oct. 30 federal election, the proposed legislation died on the order paper.

Its basic aim was to provide some government financing for candidates and limit spending by individual candidates. The question of corporate donations was left untouched.

Premier Dave Barrett of British Columbia said during his election campaign last August that his government would bring in the toughest conflict-of-interest legislation in Canada. But since his sweeping victory, he has not mentioned the subject.

Stewart Checked Grant

TORONTO (CP) — Agriculture Minister William Stewart said in the legislature Wednesday there was "no conflict of interest" in his accepting two grants totalling $1,000 from programs run by his own department.

Mr. Stewart told Opposition Leader Robert Nixon he "checked carefully" before applying for the grants for his cattle farm near London, Ont., in 1968 and 1969.

He established his policy guidelines for cabinet ministers regarding conflict of interest earlier this year.

Mr. Nixon had asked whether the grants, one to assist in paying for a new cattle barn and the other for a new concrete silo "were a conflict of interest or an error in judgment."

Mr. Stewart said his grants were no different from gasoline tax rebates or "farm tax rebates which went to all members of the legislature who are farmers."

Mr. Nixon said capital grants programs "should be reserved for farmers who make their main income from farm operations."

Potter Promising Doctor Fee Reviews

TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister Richard Potter has promised a thorough review of doctors' fee structures under the Ontario Health Insurance Plan (OHIP).

The promise came Wednesday in the face of criticism by opposition leaders for what they termed exorbitant medical fees as the legislature voted another $156 million in additional funds to go with the $324-million OHIP costs provided in the original budget.

The legislature voted an additional $18 million in increased expenditures to the province's hospitals for the current fiscal year.

Dr. Potter indicated the government would be willing to consider a basic salary for doctors, plus some kind of incentive program, instead of the present fee-for-services program.

He agreed that OHIP costs could not continue to rise and he vowed to bring the expenses into line.

The opposition assault began with Liberal Leader Robert Nixon, who said doctors believe that "if their income falls below $40,000 a year they're starving."

Considering the total OHIP cost of $574 million per year, Mr. Nixon said, "the plain, oversimplified average payment per doctor under OHIP is a shattering one—$57,000 per doctor."

Stephen Lewis, New Democratic Party leader, said that allowing the Ontario Medical Association (OMA) to set basic OHIP fee schedules without negotiation "is absolutely unconscionable." The OMA "is the strongest union in the province."

Dr. Potter agreed that Ontario "can't allow our health costs in OHIP to continue to rise. . . . We have to find some way of controlling it."

He said other jurisdictions have proven that regulating doctors, payments on a straight salary basis is not the best way. "There must be some incentive—perhaps a combination is the best method."

The health minister added that he expects a government-ordered report this month on physicians' fees and services.

Put Teeth in Bill

TORONTO (CP) — Legislation outlawing denturists in Ontario passed its next-to-last hurdle Wednesday on its way to receiving royal assent from the provincial government.

A standing committee of the legislature analysing the controversial legislation finally reached agreement Wednesday on recommendations it will make to the house.

The bill will create the designation of denture therapist, a person allowed to fit and manufacture false teeth under the supervision of a dentist.

The committee will also recommend to the legislature the passing of a bill to amend The Dentistry Act to allow denture therapists to practise legally.

The bill also calls for a low-cost denture service whereby a group of dentists across the province will provide a full set of false teeth for $180.

Brunelle Boosting Welfare Benefits

TORONTO (CP) — An increase in family welfare benefits ranging between 10 and 25 per cent, effective Jan. 1, was announced Wednesday in the legislature by Rene Brunelle, minister of community and social services.

Ian Deans (NDP-Wentworth) immediately labelled the increases 'a pittance."

Mr. Brunelle said the increases will cost the province $16 million for the fiscal year 1973-74. Another $4 million will be spent so the benefits can be started in January, although the current fiscal year does not end until March.

The increases do not affect general welfare assistance, which is expected to cost $315 million in the current fiscal year.

Pickering Community Coming, Airport or Not

TORONTO (CP) — The government budgeted more than $46 million Wednesday for land for the North Pickering community to be built near the proposed new international airport.

The government hopes to recover up to 75 per cent of the money from the federal government. The community will be built whether the airport is or not.

Claude Bennett, minister without portfolio in charge of the Pickering project, said if the airport isn't built, it will mean only a delay in reaching the maximum population.

He said the projected date for construction of housing units in the project is 1977.

Mr. Bennett said the government has already purchased about 3,300 acres for the project and "we have a commitment for just a few dollars short of $20 million for these purchases. . . ."

Greg Scarlett Back in Action

by

Eric Emerson

Sports Editor

Greg Scarlett is 19 years old and alive.

The words are mine. The meaning, I hope, is his.

By some standards Greg is not alive and well. His left side still lacks the muscle tone and co-ordination of his right. His speech is slurred. He finds schoolwork puzzling and memory a task.

Last Christmas eve, Greg fell down a flight of stairs. His skull was fractured. He was in a coma for over two months from a blood clot in his brain. He breathed through a hole cut into his windpipe.

A year later he is playing basketball for the Centennial Secondary School senior team.

"I have trouble dribbling with my left hand. It still isn't co-ordinated. I don't shoot much. I play defence and pass," he says with the same kind of pride that basketball players who cannot put the ball consistently through a hoop direct towards those phasics of the game.

Before his accident Greg was an all-round athlete. He played safety on the 1965 COSSA junior football team at BCI, where his brother Mike was a star halfback. He participated in all-star minor hockey and was an undisciplined but talented lacrosse player on juvenile and junior teams in this city.

"Greg was never a good basketball player. He was better in contact sports," says his basketball coach Bruce Faulds.

He now plays the tag end of games when the Chargers have a comfortable lead and his teammates accept his playing mistakes in much the same manner as they would an enthusiastic youngster who keeps double dribbling into their neighborhood pick - up game.

"Sure the guys on the team get upset sometimes because he lacks co-ordination but I think that they, and I guess I, think of him as kind of a little brother," says Faulds.

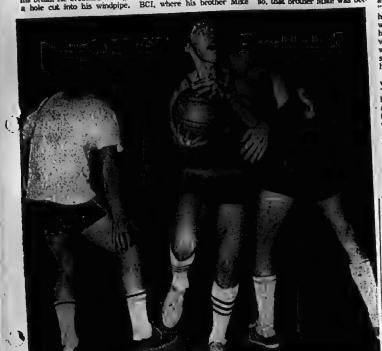
Which is probably the feeling that has always come to mind with Greg Scarlett — someone's kid brother, someone with curly, uncombed hair, a football sweater, worn sneakers, and the unshakable, instinctive belief that he can lick the world.

He admits, and truthfully so, that brother Mike was better in most sports "but I was a better lacrosse player. He was better the first year, but not the last. I could have played pro."

When he emerged from Kingston General Hospital on May 19th Greg weighed 70 pounds, less than half his body weight before the accident. Today he weighs 150 and is training with weights to rebuild muscle in his stiro-plied left side. "I've grown four-and-a-half inches since then, too," he boasts.

Greg's biggest concern, however, isn't left hand dribbling or weight lifting or the Trenton Junior B lacrosse team that he hopes to play on this summer. It's people.

"When I was in the hospital, I guess a lot of people said I was dead (which a lot of people did) and when I got out I was mentally retarded . . . and everybody wanted to be my doctor, . . . I was supposed to stay in Kingston another month and a half, but I'm tired of talking to doctors."



Greg remembers the people he's touched since his accident.

He especially remembers and thanks his father, Gus. "We had hospitalization, but he still spent a lot of money when I was in there." And he remembers people like Bevan Clarke and Mark Pivnaski who helped him in small ways to regain some of his motor skills.

He admits to finding schoolwork extremely difficult. "When I first came out of the hospital, I couldn't remember anything. It's hard to concentrate in class now. Sports are what I can concentrate in."

His basketball coach may have spoken more than a grain of truth when he said that, 'Greg wasn't a great athlete, but he was always hustling and he had a keen interest in sports.'

He still is. He still does.

Greg Scarlett drives against Centennial senior basketball teammates Al Miller and Randy Starke during a Charger practice session. The Belleville athlete was injured seriously in a fall last Christmas, but has returned to compete with the high school basketball team this season.

Quinte Enters School Curling

By AL ZARAS
Staff Spotswriter

The Quinte Secondary School curling rink skipped by Steve Bennett could be the only rink representing Belleville schools in the annual School Boy Curling Playdowns.

Moira is experiencing difficulties in the selection of a team to represent the school in the Ontario Curling Association's playdowns to be held at the Quinte Curling Club on December 28 and 29.

"There seems to be some difficulty in getting together curlers for the School Boy," said Paul Henderson, co-ordinator for the Moira curlers, "if sufficient interest is shown, there will be a team."

Henderson will be making the selection for the Moira School Boy representatives today if enough curlers come out to a meeting he has called.

Moira, who three years ago in the All-Ontario championship were runners-up to a Kingston rink, may not have a rink, but Quinte will be putting a rink on the sheets.

The Quinte rink, curling out of the Quinte Curling Club with spare Mike Wiwczaruk, lead Paul Champagne, second Paul Tummon, vice Don Anderson, and skip Steve Bennett, defeated the Quinte Secondary rink out of Tweed Curling Club 11-5 for the right to represent the school in the OCA playdowns.

The Quinte rink defeated the Tweed rink after Anderson and Tummon changed positions with Tummon, at his own request, moving to the second position and Anderson moved up to vice.

"There is no disgrace, as many people think," said Anderson of the move, "to move down to second or to lead. Sweepers are important."

Skip Bennett, who has been curling for five years, concurred with his rink mate. "It is difficult to play a good game or to even win if the sweepers don't do a good job. Tummon is a good sweeper."

Quinte, who hold a 2-2 record in Bay of Quinte curling, will be up against rinks from high schools in Brighton, Trenton, Picton, Centre Hastings, and three from Kingston.

According to Jim Dallas, OCA School Boy district chairman, should the Quinte rink win the third division (extending from Cobourg to Kingston inclusive, they will go on to play a rink from the fourth division in the Peterborough area. The winner of the match goes on to the provincial finals at Guelph University. From Guelph, as the Ontario School Boy Champion, a rink would go to the Dominion finals in Moncton, New Brunswick.

BCI Sweeps Picton

BCI's basketball team made a clean sweep of their meet with Prince Edward Collegiate, but not without some trouble from the Picton Bay of Quinte League members.

The Picton midget team put up a battle for the win as BCI led 47-46 with 35 seconds left in the game. Joe Gillis, Picton's high scorer with 13 points, went to the line and dropped two foul shots to give his team a 48-47 lead. Twenty-three seconds later, BCI forward Dave Franklin dropped an 18-foot jump shot to give the Collegians a 49-48 victory.

Kent Quinn, brother of PEGI senior top scorer Kevin, totalled 11 points while BCI, who played without two starters Bruce Milliken and Mitch Hannah, gained point performances from Franklin (15), John Geen (11) and Rungano Mujswarie (10).

BCI juniors blasted Picton to a 63-31 defeat as Russ Simonds put 18 points through the hoop with Fred Casa and Larry Wilson dropping 14 each. Picton's Tim Barrett was the high scorer of the game with a total of 19 points.

The BCI senior basketball team went on to a 69-56 victory from a half-time lead of 31-25. BCI's Peter Scott marked up 18 points and grabbed 11 rebounds, while team mates Jim Wilson (16) and Gary Donovan (13), and George Lloyd (11) assured the Collegians of the lead throughout the game.

Kevin Quinn with 25 points and Doug Dermiah with 17, were the high scorers for the Picton team.

Sheehan Paces Raider Romp

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bobby Sheehan was one of the many young players California Golden Seals was hoping would shake them contenders in the National Hockey League—but is until the World Hockey Association became a fact.

Sheehan, who scored 20 goals and assisted on 20 last season for California in the NHL, jumped to New York Raiders of the WHA this year and is doing for them exactly what he did for the Seals last season—scoring goals.

He scored three Wednesday night in leading the Raiders to a 9-1 romp of Quebec Les Nordiques in WHA action. The goals gave him a total of 39 for the season.

In other games, Philadelphia Blazers scored four goals in the third period to defeat Winnipeg Jets 7-4, Chicago Cougars downed New England Whalers 6-3 and Alberta Oilers beat Houston Aeros 3-2.

Sheehan, a native of Weyburn, Sask., had brief stints in the NHL with Montreal Canadiens before being sold to the Seals in May, 1971.

In a full season last year with the Golden Seals, he scored 46 points and the Seals were counting on him and other young players like Tom Webster, Wayne Carleton and Gerry Pinder to make them respectable. But the WHA proved too strong an attraction.

Wednesday night, Sheehan combined with another former California player, Norm Ferguson, to trample Les Nordiques as they both contributed four goals—three by Sheehan.

Ferguson and Sheehan each picked up a goal and two assists in the first period in which the Raiders scored five goals. Sheehan then scored twice early in the third period, both on power plays.

Bob Leiter, Garry Peters, Rrc Ward, the league's leading marksman, Gary Sperr and Wayne Rivers also scored for New York while Alain Caron got Quebec's only goal with 3½ minutes left in the game.

"I was lucky for a change," Sheehan said of his three goals. "I was trying to pass on my first goal and it went in. I needed a cheap one to get me going."

Goalie Pete Donnelly of New York pointed out that Les Nordiques appeared tired and Quebec coach J. C. Tremblay agreed:

"I know how silly you feel. Teacher had me sitting in the corner all afternoon!"

Deadmarsh Pays For Brief Show

BUFFALO (AP) — Butch Deadmarsh of Buffalo Sabres never got into the National Hockey League against Boston Bruins but he still got socked for a $100 game misconduct penalty.

This hockey rarity occurred at the tailend of Buffalo's 7-3 victory over Boston Wednesday night as the Sabres kept intact their record of not having lost on home ice this season. The streak now is at 16, 13 victories and three ties.

With 90 seconds left and Buffalo's victory assured, the Boston players rushed the Buffalo bench. The melee, climax of a fight-filled game, resulted in penalties to three players from each team. In addition to Deadmarsh, Larry Hillman of Buffalo and Boston's Bobby Orr and Terry O'Reilly were slapped with misconducts.

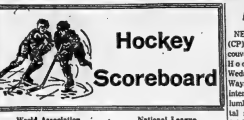
Orr, the Bruins' captain who had been the rush on the Sabres' bench, said "they were grabbing my players from the bench so I went."

Boston coach Tom Johnson said "they were looking for trouble from the start."

"One guy was going after everybody," Johnson didn't name the player, but left no doubt he referred to Deadmarsh, Buffalo's 20-year-old rookie defenseman.



"The fights all were in retaliation," commented Schoenfeld. "You don't pick on guys like Bobby Orr. Wayne Cashman and Dallas Smith had to be stupid to go looking for fights with them."

Gerry Meehan, Buffalo's captain, said the Bruins were actually cutting Schoenfeld while they were all going after him.

"I think it was just a rough hockey game," said the Sabres' coach Joe Crozier. He added that Frank Udvari, supervisor of NHL officials was at the game. "He has a film of the episode and will study it for any possible future action," Crozier said.

Maki 'Fair'

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — A spokesman for Vancouver Canucks of the National Hockey League reported Wednesday that left-winger Wayne Maki "is resting in the intensive care unit at Royal Columbian Hospital and the hospital staff lists his condition as fair" following a four-hour emergency operation Sunday for removal of a brain tumor.

"His brother Chico visited last night and Wayne is conscious," said Greg Douglas, public relations officer for the Canucks.

Chico Maki, who plays right wing with Chicago Black Hawks, visited with his 28-year-old brother before a Tuesday night game between Vancouver and Chicago.

Mr. Douglas said Chico left town with his team and would not return "unless Wayne's condition changes."

Wayne Maki was sent back to Vancouver from Atlanta, Ga., after he complained of constant headaches during the team's last road trip. He was admitted to hospital Saturday for observation and underwent surgery Sunday afternoon.

Buffalo on Time With Win Over Bruins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Soon after Buffalo Sabres joined the National Hockey League, Punch Imlach was reported to have boasted his club would become the first expansion team to win the Stanley Cup.

Imlach apparently did not set a timeline, but if the Buffalo team he had a personal hand in building continues to improve, it might be sooner than even Imlach thinks.

The Sabres Wednesday night stretched their unbeaten streak at home to 16 games by rallying to defeat Stanley Cup champions Boston Bruins 7-3 in a brawling game.

With the win, the Sabres ended Boston's 12 - game unbeaten streak during which the Bruins were five in a row.

In other games Wednesday night, Pittsburgh Penguins bombarded New York Islanders' goal as they rolled to a 9-1 victory; New York Rangers scored in the final minute of play to beat Toronto Maple Leafs 4-3; Atlanta Flames shut out Detroit Red Wings 2-0; Minnesota North Stars downed Philadelphia Flyers 7-2; Montreal Canadiens and California Golden Seals played to a 3-3 tie and Los Angeles Kings beat Chicago Black Hawks 3-1.

In games tonight, Rangers are at Boston and St. Louis Blues play in Philadelphia.

Imlach, who won four Stanley Cups and a league championship for Toronto after building the Leafs from a last-place team in 1958, took on the challenge of ushering the Sabres into the NHL in the 1970-71 season after he was fired by the Leafs.

PUNCH IMLACH

As general manager-coach, he built the Buffalo franchise from scratch—there was, no farm team—but through judicious use of the draft and trades he is gradually turning the Sabres into a contender in the NHL.

Although he has relinquished the coaching job to friend Joe Crozier, the players Imlach had a hand in selecting are keeping the Sabres in step with Montreal, New York and Boston, the recognized power teams in the NHL's East Division.

One of those players, Gil Perreault, Imlach's first draft pick in 1970, scored two goals Wednesday night in sparking the Sabres to their win over Boston.

Perreault's goals were his 13th and 14th of the season. His first, at 5:31 of the second period, gave Buffalo a 4-3 lead after the Bruins had taken a 2-0 lead in the first period on goals by Ken Hodge and Don Marcotte.

After Larry Hillman and Craig Ramsay scored in the first period to tie the score, Gerry Meehan and Perreault scored early in the second period to put Buffalo ahead for the rest of the game which was interrupted four times by fights.

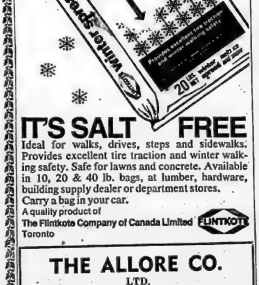
The last fight, 194 minutes from the end of the game, involved players of both clubs after the Bruins rushed off their bench to the Sabres' bench. As a result, Boston's Bobby Orr and Terry O'Reilly and Buffalo's Hillman and Butch Deadmarsh were given game misconducts.

Sabres Sink Kitchener

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Riding almost machine-gun accuracy, Moscow Selects registered an 11 victory over the reinforced Kitchener Rangers of the Ontario Hockey Association today in a series in an exhibition game Wednesday night before 4,086 fans.

The Selects have three wins and a tie in their four games so far. They continue their exhibition tour with a contest in Thunder Bay Friday night. Other Ontario games are scheduled for Sudbury, London and Toronto.

The Moscow club shared its eight goals among eight players: Eugeny Kazachkin, Vladimir Popov, Sergey Kapustin, Alexander Golikov, Alexander Martynyi, Alexander Lobanov, Nikolay Shorin and Viktor Shalimir.



Dennis Ververgaert, on loan from the OHA Junior A London Knights, counted both Kitchener goals, one in the first period, the other in the second.

The Selects blasted 47 shots at the Kitchener net where Bob Blanchet and Rick Lemay shared tending duties. Selects goalie Viktor Krivolapov faced 18 Ranger shots.

Moscow moved to a 4-1 lead in the first period, had it reduced to 5-2 in the second, then fired three unanswered goals in the third.

Following the game, Andrev Starovoitov, head of the Soviet Union's Ice Hockey Federation, said the second period provided the best hockey of the Selects so far. In it each team scored once although the Selects outshot Kitchener 16-9.

Black Hawks Share Control of Canucks

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Sun says Arthur Wirtz, owner of the National Hockey League Chicago Black Hawks, is the largest single shareholder in Medical Investment Corp. Ltd. (Medicor) of Minneapolis, which controls Vancouver Canucks of the NHL.

The newspaper says in a story from Minneapolis that Wirtz is regarded under United States securities law as having control of Medicor, which has a 60-per-cent holding in Northwest Sports Enterprises Ltd., immediate parent company of the Canucks.

Documents filed with the U.S. Securities Exchange Commission show that Wirtz bought 400,000 shares in Medicor Sept. 30, 1971, representing 31.6 per cent of issued common stock, says The Sun.

Tom Scallen, president of both Medicor and Northwest, was previously the largest single shareholder and was regarded as having control.

NHL president Clarence Campbell, asked in Montreal for comment, said he knew about the transaction: "It was not a share deal, it was a loan deal" to prevent another group foreclosing on notes in an attempt to gain control of a Medicor-owned ice show.

"The league is satisfied as to the purpose and they know all about it."

But the Sun says the agreement under which Wirtz bought the shares gives him full voting rights and makes no mention of any loan provisions.

Last week, Scallen denied a Toronto newspaper report that the Canucks now are controlled by the Black Hawks.

He said the club is not controlled by any outside interests and denied that the Black Hawks hold shares as collateral for a loan.

Atlanta Hawks, led by Pete Maravich, shaded New York Knicks 121-120 Wednesday night, beating the Knicks the second night in a row in National Basketball Association action.

Maravich scored 37 points, 16 more than Tuesday night, and his game-winning points Wednesday night included the winning field goal with two seconds left.

In the other NBA games, Los Angeles Lakers beat Philadelphia 76ers 128-90; Golden State Warriors trimmed Detroit Pistons 118-107; Boston Celtics stopped Phoenix Suns 105-100 and Milwaukee Bucks nipped Seattle SuperSonics 104-103 in overtime.

In the American Basketball Association, it was: Memphis 104, New York 98 and Kentucky 119 and Carolina 112.

In the Atlanta-New York contest, th lead changed hands 11 times in the final period until the Knicks took a 120-119 lead with 42 seconds left on Dick Barnett's two free throws.

The Knicks had possession of the ball with nine seconds remaining when Bilkee Bradley too a shot and missed. The Hawks regained possession of the ball for Maravich's game-winning shot.

Golden State outscored Detroit 19-4 in a five-minute span during the third and fourth periods to overcome a 78-76 deficit and beat the Pistons.

Milwaukee blew an 18-point lead in the third quarter but held on to nip Seattle.

Locale Poses Fight Problem

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Entrepreneur Jack Kent Cooke says he has offered a lot of money to heavyweight champion Joe Frazier to fight Muhammad Ali but believes a California locale poses the major problem.

Cooke, who owns the Forum, home of the Los Angeles major league basketball and hockey entries, wants the rematch held there and so far hasn't budged off the position. Since he financed the $1.5 million each for Frazier and Ali for their first meeting, he holds the aces.

Also, contracts say he has the say.

Frazier's manager, Yank Durham, said in New York on Tuesday that his fighter wants $4 million to defend against Ali whom he defeated in their initial meeting nearly two years ago.

Has Cooke offered $4 million?

"Money is a matter of negotiation, I'm sure you know that," answered the multi-millionaire sportsman.

And Frazier indicated he might want more than goes to Ali as the challenger. Has he been offered more?

"Again, all I can say is that this is a matter of negotiations." Cooke replied.

Although Cook agreed the California rules might be more the stumbling block than the Forum, he said he had "no opinion" on whether rules should be changed.

Durham said in New York that "California would have to waive some of their laws before we would fight there." He explained:

"California calls for 10-ounce gloves. We want eight ounce gloves. There's a rule that when a fighter's mouthpiece is knocked loose, the fight must be stopped until it is replaced.

"But the stupidest of all is the butting rule. If a fighter who is leading on points—no matter what is the stage of the bout—and he is butted accidentally or otherwise, he is declared the winner. If he's behind on points, then the fight is declared a draw."

Think Again, Jake

TORONTO (CP) — George Blanda became a grandfather three months old on Sunday and, while commissioner Jake Gaudaur doesn't with him any ill luck, Jake probably won't send him a present either.

Blanda, on Sunday, becomes the oldest player to play major league professional football in modern times and therein lies the chagrin for the commissioner of the Canadian Football League.

"It was just after I had retired as a player and become president of Hamilton Tiger-Cats," Jake recalled Wednesday.

"I had to go south to settle a $150,000 lawsuit laid against us by Chicago Bears. We won even had a true bill returned against us by a Florida court.

"The problem was, Carl Voyles, our coach and general manager, had signed Blanda and two others—linebacker Frank Dempsey and a running-back named Hoffman—to Hamilton contracts which they were still under contract to the Bears."

It was a classic case of tampering. Legal minds ruled that the Tiger-Cats might be able to hold the three to their Canadian contracts, but that it would be costly—probably resulting in a $50,000 sanction against the club for each of the three players.

"That was when I made my big decision," Jake said.

"I realized that Blanda was a great quarterback but, my gosh, he was 27 years old. I wasn't going to risk $50,000 on a quarterback of such an advanced age.

Internazionale of Milan, the Italian soccer club that won the European Cup in 1964 and 1965 and lost in the final in 1971, was knocked out of the UEFA Cup competition Wednesday by Victoria Sofia of Portugal.

Vitoria lost 1:0 to the Italian team on a foggy field but advanced to the quarter-finals 2-1 on aggregate by virtue of its 2-0 victory at home two weeks ago.

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota Vikings, wanting to move from one of the coldest and smallest parks in the National Football League, have voted to accept a 30-year contract as prime tenant of a proposed $15 million domed stadium in downtown Minneapolis.

The five-man Viking board of directors voted 3 to 1, with one absentee, to accept terms Wednesday calling for a rental fee of 15 per cent of gross ticket sales in the 47,500-seat facility.

"We would think it is one of the highest leases in the league," said Jim Finks, Viking general manager, "but one we could live with. It's a good lease."

The proposal now goes before the Minneapolis city council. Mayor Charles Stenvig and the city board of estimate and tax

Former Star Blasts Namath

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Namath is a "self-established moral authority" whose sexual philosophies twist minds of adoring youngsters, says a one-time all-pro defensive lineman.

Bill Glass, former Cleveland Browns star, who once played for Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Canadian Football League, blasted a stated Namath doctrine that sexual relations between two unmarried consenting adults are morally acceptable.

"Joe's a great football player and a good guy," said Glass, who retired in 1968. "He's a free man, but his High Heisman Playboy approach to morals is sickening standard for our young people to witness."

Glass, now a minister, has written a book, Don't Blame the Game, that he said Wednesday is "an answer from National Football League's decent majority" to the Namaths, the Dave Meggreys and the Marty Domres.

The 250-pound former All-Pro categorized Domres, Baltimore Colts young quarterback, with Namath after reading Marty's book, Bump-and-Bun.

Generally, Glass said, the moral standards of NFL players "ranks much higher than that of the business world, but it's those two—Namath and Domres—who get the attention."

Glass also tore into Meggreys, once time St. Louis Cardinal linebacker who quit the NFL, with claims that the game was "dehumanizing" and "racist."

Glass disputed the racism claim, saying:

"The locker room is far ahead of the neighborhood, and even the church, in genuine racial understanding. It is wrong to blame the game for the prejudice of a nation."

On Meggrey's claim that drugs are widely used in the NFL, the former Baylor All-American said:

Smrke Sinks Three in Loss

Western Tire juvenile Peter Smrke played solid hockey for a losing cause Wednesday night as he chalked up three goals in the tiremen's 8-5 loss to Trenton.

The Belleville OMHA team was short handed as John Bowes and Jimmy Richardson were not in sweaters to fill in Western Tire's third line.

Despite the lack of two players and a 3-0 deficit at the end of the first period, the Belleville juvenile's Kevin Joudrey, Dave Taylor and Smrke tallied three goals in the second period to close the Trenton lead to 4-3.

In the third period the team "ran out of gas" according to coach Lou Smrke, as Trenton scored four goals to 1 to Smrke's two tallies.

SHE DUFFY'S SUCCESSOR

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Dennis Stolz was confirmed Wednesday as Michigan State University's new head football coach. The board of trustees voted to hire the 39-year-old Stolz at $35,000 a year to succeed Duffy Daugherty, retiring after 19 years.

Smallpox Cure Found

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Free Press says in a copyright story a group of Winnipeg physicians has achieved a high rate of success with a new method of treating smallpox patients.

The newspaper quotes Dr. John Forster, a senior investigator in the group associated with the Manitoba Cancer Treatment and Research Foundation, as saying the treatment was tried during a recent outbreak of smallpox in Bangladesh.

It says a scientific paper on the method is to be published this week in the British medical journal, The Lancet.

The story says that while the average smallpox death rate is one of three patients, eight of nine receiving the new treatment recovered quickly.

The treatment involved massive infusions of solutions containing cytosine arabinoside, a cancer drug developed in the United States. Each of the patients received about one quarter of the medication daily for three to four days.

Minimum Pay General

TORONTO (CP) — A survey by the Ontario labor ministry shows that nearly half of all employees in the restaurant, hotel and tavern businesses work for $1.65 an hour, the minimum wage permitted in the province.

The study, which provided the background for the government's recent decision to increase the minimum wage to $1.80 an hour effective Feb. 1, 1973, shows that 37,660 of 76,000 workers in the group were paid the minimum.

The figures were compiled in July and August, 1972, and covered 564,000 employees in low-wage industries.

The percentage of employees in manufacturing earning less than $1.80 ranged from 4.4 per cent in wool-cloth mills to 53.8 per cent in hosiery mills. Of employees surveyed in the retail trades, about 20 per cent earned less than the pending $1.80 minimum.

The $1.80 minimum wage will provide $72 a week based on a 40-hour work week.

Pilots Plan Strike

MEXICO CITY (Reuter) — The International Federation of Airline Pilots' Associations announced here Wednesday night it will call a worldwide strike if airliner hijackings continue next year.

In a communique issued after two days of closed meetings, the pilots said they would not only go on strike as they did last June, but would ask for support from other air transport federations.

Frosted Windows Blamed in Mishap

ST. JEAN, Que. (CP) — Windows were frosted over on one of the school buses involved in a crash between two school buses and a loaded 10-ton dump truck, a coroner's inquest was told Wednesday.

Sylvain Guay told special coroner Paul Magnan he was sitting two seats behind the driver of the grey bus owned by Autobus Richelieu Ltd. and was unable to see out of the window.

"You had to scratch the ice off the windows if you wanted to see where you were," the 14-year-old student said.

Claude Parent, 17, and Raymond Hebert, 17, both of Lasalle, Que., were killed in the crash.

Sylvain told the inquest that during the ride from school, driver Emile Hamel stopped to pick up a man in military uniform.

"He paid his fare and sat down behind the driver. They talked throughout the ride," the boy said. "I saw the bus driver turn his head at least 10 times to face the military man every time he spoke."

Old Cars Sit on Land Worth Nearly $64,000

EDMONTON (CP) — Eastern Fraser has a photographic memory when it comes to his rusting metal.

He knows where everything is. "You just have to keep on top of it," he said, surveying his eight-acre collection. "Believe me. If I've got an engine around here worth $200, I know where it is."

Mr. Fraser is in the auto salvage business—a business he has built up from one car in 1964.

Not everything looks rosy, however.

"I know where the lemons are, too," he said with some disgust while pointing to a 1969 foreign car. "I paid $300 for that one and haven't sold a thing off it but a tire."

Mr. Fraser estimated that the land on which his operation sits is worth roughly $64,000. And the more than 1,000 car bodies in various stages of strip represent a large investment.

Business is good, but he indicated there is still room for improvement.

"We depend very heavily on insurance companies both for old damaged units and for re sale of parts."

Dealers such as he usually buy insurance company write-offs and resell various parts to replace those damaged or worn out in less serious wrecks, Mr. Fraser said.

"Bad some of the insurance companies are selling their customers factory replacements now where a used item such as we might have in stock would do.

It can cost up $600 to buy a replacement door for a late model car with electric windows, he said. "We might have the same thing in stock, in perfect condition, for about $75."

It's Mr. Fraser's only complaint about the business.

"When we appraise a unit we are judging not just the amount of parts that can be salvaged from it, but the demand for those parts," he continued.

"We charge about 35 per cent of the list price for the same parts as you would buy new in the store; depending of course on its condition."

Profits from the business are almost totally dependent on the amount of work the proprietor cares to put into it, Mr. Fraser said.

Home Again

LONDON (CP — Britain is about to dispatch an unlikely export to Africa—lions. British zoos now have more than 1,500 lions in captivity and with successful breeding the numbers are mushrooming fast. But with African stocks dwindling on safari and game parks, a delegation of African game-keepers recently met British zoo officials here to discuss sending more than 200 lions home. The beasts will be returned several at a time during the next few years.

Delivers Bottles

CALGARY (CP) — The manager of a dial-a-bottle service estimates about one per cent of Calgary's 400,000 residents use his pick-up and delivery service every week. Luke Comiota says his service delivers ice, liquor and mix anywhere in the city to people at parties who don't want to be inconvenienced by late demands for more liquor.

North Bay Trio Get Life Terms

PARRY SOUND, Ont. (CP) — Three North Bay area men were sentenced to life imprisonment Wednesday after they were convicted of the non-capital murder of 26-year-old Arthur Lyons Brownlee.

The Ontario Supreme Court jury deliberated four hours before finding Bert William King, 33, Ralph Terrance Gallipeau, 20, and Keith Ronald Jarrett, 27, guilty of the fatal beating of the old man Aug. 14 in his isolated cabin.

Sharon Vester, Jarrett's girl friend and Marilyn Johnson, Gallipeau's girl friend, testified they had been drinking for two days when the three men left King's home late on Aug. 13.

Budworms Expected

OTTAWA (CP) — Outbreaks of spruce budworm this spring will at least equal last year's infestations and projections show there could be moderate to severe infestations in Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes.

R. M. Prentice, a program co-ordinator for the Canadian Forestry Service (CFS), said in an interview Wednesday that the areas where the worst outbreaks are expected have been defined.

"Ontario is not too bad this year but in Quebec and the Maritimes it threatens some of the main productive forest areas."

The projections for 1973 were outlined earlier this week at a closed meeting of federal and provincial forestry experts, industry representatives and government representatives.

The destruction of spruce and fir forests takes place during a period of about five weeks in the spring when the larvae hatch and feed voraciously on the buds and shoots.

Gets New Hearing

TORONTO (CP) — A Tanzanian immigrant, is to have a new hearing Jan. 5 on a debt collection case in which a provincial judge threatened him with three days in jail because he did not want to pay a $23.35 car repair bill.

Judge George Davies admitted this week that he threatened Bashir Habib Rattansey with jail.

South African Blacks Get Big Boosts in Pay

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Industrial unrest among blacks in segregated South Africa has been followed by some whopping pay raises.

Thirteen doctors serving the black townships of Johannesburg walked out of their hospital one Saturday complaining of "insulting wages." On Tuesday they were back on the job 300 per cent a month better off.

More significantly, that raise put them on an equal pay footing with white doctors at the same hospital.

Within a few days one of South Africa's largest mining companies, Johannesburg Consolidated Investments, announced 50-per-cent salary raises for its African staff at head office and through economic peculiarities a promise of increases—"the maximum that is economically feasible"—for its 50,000 African mine workers.

That same day employers in the retail and distributive industries offered increases of up to 46 per cent for black workers, adding the equivalent of $28.34 a month to the minimum wage of $56.87.

The JCI head office staff now will earn an average $171 a month instead of $115.00.

The employers' willingness to give way on such a large scale was in part prompted by one of the worst bouts of inflation this country has seen.

Prices generally have soared 10 per cent this year, but and profit-taking by middlemen some basic foodstuffs such as corn, sugar and cooking oil have rocketed.

Employers also know that non-whites can take out grievances spontaneously and violently, as at Port Elizabeth in May, 1971, when hundreds stoned buses after the operators announced fare increases.

The doctors' walkout came at the end of a week during which non-white longshoremen at Durban, Africa's largest port, and Cape Town failed to report for work for three days claiming unsubstantial raises. There was no violence and the longshoremen accepted a promise the government-run wages board would hurry up consideration of their case.

In other places militant demands weren't so well received. Diamond miners at Kimberley struck for higher wages and were promptly arrested. They were contract workers and forbidden to strike.

In Johannesburg, the city council that made concessions to doctors bluntly told black nurses it would be no use them striking. Nursing, said a spokesman, was a prestige job among blacks and the council always had more job applicants than it could handle.

Elsewhere, the government has been encouraging higher wages for Africans who are not allowed to organize themselves in recognized labor unions. A wages board negotiates for them, with a government appointee bidding against the employers.

Estate and Gift Taxation Studied

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Prince Edward Island's plan to rescind estate and gift tax legislation has prompted the other two Maritime governments to review their involvement in that field of taxation.

Plans for the review were announced by premiers Gerald Regan of Nova Scotia and Richard Hatfield of New Brunswick Wednesday at a news conference at the end of the eighth meeting of the council of Maritime premiers.

The two premiers said they discussed the question of succession duties legislation with Premier Alex Campbell of Prince Edward Island during the two-day meeting.

Mr. Campbell announced several weeks ago his government would introduce legislation during the next sitting of his legislature to abolish existing estate and gift tax acts.

He said his provincial treasury stood to collect only $240,000 from such acts during the next three years, the cut-off date of the legislation.

"It's not worthwhile," he said.

Both premiers Hatfield and Regan said they now had a "better understanding" of why Mr. Campbell's Liberal government wanted to opt out of succession duties legislation.

Premier Hatfield told reporters he would return to New Brunswick and discuss the P.E.I. move with his minister of finance and cabinet colleagues.

Mr. Regan said: I will report back to my cabinet to consider the question. We have consistently said if Ontario and Quebec rescind their acts we would look closely at ours also.

It was earlier estimated Nova Scotia would collect about $3 million annually from the tax while New Brunswick would gain about $2 million. Mr. Regan said it now looks as though his government will get more than $3 million this year, but he could not put a figure on it.

The four Atlantic provinces, Manitoba and Saskatchewan entered succession duty field early this year after the federal government abandoned it in favor of a capital-gains levy.

CAHA 'Buzzing' About Proposed Series

CALGARY (CP) — The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has the feeling it's being told quietly to "buzz off" from the international hockey scene.

At least that's the impression the National Hockey League and others have left with CAHA president Joe Krycka, who isn't prepared to let the association step aside "after more than 50 years in international hockey."

The Calgary lawyer said the CAHA opened the door by negotiating the September series between the Russian national team and Team Canada, made up of NHL players.

"... All of a sudden, now that the door's open, they're saying: Well, that's fine CAHA, you guys just buzz off now because the big boy's are here and we're going to take over.

"I haven't any objections to the pro teams playing the national teams of Russia, Czechoslovakia or Sweden because I think that's the stage we are getting to.

"What I object to is lining the pockets of any individual in the NHL or the NHL as a whole.

"It's the CAHA teams that developed international hockey to this point and if international hockey all of a sudden is going to bear some kind of fruit, then I think the fruit of 50 years of labor should get poured back for the kids. . . .

The CAHA's concern about international hockey erupted in November when Alan Eagleson, executive-director of the NHL Players' Association, announced a four-game exhibition tour of selected NHL cities for late January by one of the top Soviet Union teams.

He said the deal, an agreement between the NHL and the players' association, didn't involve any other organization.

Later, however, the NHL announced negotiations for the series had stalled and it was planning a 10-game series with the Russians to be played in the middle of the 1973-74 season.

The CAHA, of course, wants the NHL in the amateur project channels, dealing with the CAHA when Canadian teams are involved and the corresponding U.S. body when American squads enter the picture.

Krycka said in an interview that European clubs have advised the CAHA that they will abide by International Ice Hockey Federation (IIHF) rules when dealing with the pros. This means working with the CAHA.

The 39-year-old Krycka said the CAHA hopes its IIHF brothers in Europe have learned something from the fact that Canada operates under two separate heads—CAHA and NHL.

"They only have one organization that runs all their hockey . . . but if they do have professional hockey it will be run under the same wing, where . . . we've split the thing off into two or three organizations and all we've got is trouble.

"All we (CAHA) can hope for is that our European friends are going to realize if they decide to get into that bag, that they're only looking for the kind of trouble that we've already been through.

"And, secondly, the CAHA can hope for some sort of assistance by way of pressure from the Federal government."

The Europeans probably have no objection to having a European professional league, he said.

"But if they're going to have a professional league, they're going to run it. It isn't going to be run by Bruce Norris, president of the NHL Detroit Red Wings, or anybody else from North America.

"And if they're going to run pro teams they're going to run them out of their particular ice hockey federations as they now exist. This means they will control the professionals instead of having the professionals control the amateurs. . . ."

The president said he believes one of the problems Eagleson and Clarence Campbell, NHL president, are going to face in trying to negotiate another series with the Russians or other European clubs is the kind of revenue that Eagleson and the pros left over there.

Krycka attended all four games in the Russian-Team Canada series in Moscow and was on hand for three of four games in Canada.

If anything was learned from the series, he said, it was that "we've got to revamp our hockey system from the grassroots up. We either go professional or learned anything is another decision he must make for it's can tell, outside of two or three teams, they're still choosing the puck instead of the player and chasing it.

"And the only way you do that is against a team that can't skate. When we shot the puck into the corner against the Russians, they had it and were coming back with it by the time we got there."

Krycka said a program has to be initiated at the start of the minor level, "not when the players have reached the juvenile or junior classes."

"Right now, we've got our minor CAHA council geared to where it's looking at a development program down to the grassroots."

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Aries (March 21 — April 19): Take time out from normal week — end activities to review your financial situation. Realistic planning is very much in season!

Taurus (April 20 — May 20): Minor problems may take as much time and effort as major questions, but at least you get them settled within reasonable limits.

Gemini (May 21 — June 20): There's plenty of routine to be done yet. Get some extra rest, light entertainment or seasonal duties at the earliest available moment.

Cancer (June 21 — July 22): Everything flows along at a fairly steady and productive pace. Pursue your own special interests in peaceful diligence.

Leo (July 23 — Aug. 22): Prepare for another normal weekend with added seasonal doings to keep you busy. Experimental procedures encounter turbulence.

Virgo (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): The appeal of doing something novel is irresistible. Pursue your curiosity far enough to get a good idea of what may be involved.

Libra (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): For once everybody seems willing to pitch in and move with the world. It's not your job to get all the details perfect.

Drafts Don't Cause Urinary Troubles

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Your article on "E. coli" prompted this letter.

Several well-meaning employees of ours are spreading the idea that "drafts" are directly and solely responsible for a few real or imaginary cases of minor urinary infections which have occurred over a long period of time.

It is difficult for me to accept this diagnosis. Common sense indicates that such infections would be commonplace in this group for 100 to 200. There must be countless known and unknown causes for these infections. I personally can accept something like E. coli be a draft on someone's toilet.

Please list some other causes so the next "victim" can think about something other than drafts. Incidentally, everything possible is being done to eliminate the alleged cause. Let me say the next epidemic will involve too much heat!

I know something about treating urinary infections, but have discovered no effective treatment to date which will outlaw such as drafts being the cause of the infections. Or other common but shallow beliefs such as the notions that warts are caused by handling toads, that honey and vinegar, is a cure for almost anything that ails you, that "sugar causes diabetes," and so on ad nauseam.

Infections—in the urinary tract or elsewhere—are caused by germs. In women E. coli is the common one. But there are other grants which, if they start in proliferate, will do the same thing.

If "drafts" caused urinary infections, then it stands to reason that on a windy day a lot of people would develop urinary infections. What's a wind except a strong draft? But folks who have been bitten by the "draft theory" never stop to think of that.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband is a borderline diabetic.

To have his blood checked for sugar, it costs $9 lab fee and $8 to see the doctor to find out the results of the test.

I can check his urine with tablets for just a few cents. Is the urine test as accurate as the blood test?

As a rough guide, the urine test for sugar is very useful—fine for a day-by-day test to see whether a patient is starting to "spill sugar."

However it is not nearly as accurate as the blood test. Indeed, blood sugar can be higher than normal. In some people, with little or no sugar in the urine—but the patient still has diabetes.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I read your column about bronchiectasis, which I have but I didn't understand your postural drainage," lying across the bed with head and shoulders lower than the rest of the body.

Does this mean lying on the back with head and shoulders hanging over the bed? Please explain.

Lie on your abdomen, face and shoulders over edge of bed. The point is, effective drainage accumulates in the throat and bronchi, you have to cough it up. In postural drainage" position, the phlegm can slide down out of the bronchial tubes, instead of having to be coughed up.

Slant boards also are available for this.

A Neat Trick

North dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

Opening lead—ace of clubs.

Assume you're in six diamonds and West leads the ace and another club. Everything looks altogether solid; you lead the A-K of trumps, learning that East started with four to the jack.

Of course you'd like to now lead a trump from dummy and finesse, but this is hard to do when there are no more trumps in dummy. So, to make the hand, you must try to reach a position where in effect, you can take a trump finesse without leading a trump.

This is not as difficult a feat to perform as you might think. What you must do is ruff two of dummy's cards to that you will wind up with the same number of trumps as East. Then, if all has gone well, you can coup him.

You start the process by playing a heart to the ace and ruffing a heart. Then you play a spade to the ten and ruff another heart. As a result of these maneuvers, you have even up with East in trumps and, after you lead the jack of spades to the queen, you have East over a barrel, for this is the position:

North
♠ K
♥ A
♦ J

West
♦ 9 8

East
♦ J 8

South
♦ A K

You lead the king of hearts and, if East ruffs, you overruff and draw his last trump.

If he discards instead, so do you. Then you lead the jack of hearts and again, if East discards, so do you. But on the next lead from dummy, East cannot escape his fate. He is couped.
